This year, those who are successful in a township will receive some recognition.

It was no doubt due to this organization that two young men Mariposa, in South Victoria, defeated two fine young men from Victoria College in the Lindsay Collegiate and during the farmer's convention and this won the Burnaby Cup. A prize given to those who are successful in debating for the Province of Ontario.

This debate was listened to by an audience of some three thousand.

In the recent years gone by, all that seemed to be required to be a good farmer was that he knew how to manage his own farm well. But in this day of organization and co-operation, if Agriculture is to remain on the map and occupy the position that her importnace would justify her in filling, her young men and women must be trained to present the cause of Agriculture in a clear and forceful manner.

As some of the young men from this township have done well before it is hoped they will avail themselves of this opporunity of improving themselves and encourageing those who seek their good.

YOUNG FARMERS VISIT TORONTO

BAILIEBORO, Jan. 30.— The young men who are taking the agricultural short course at the town hall at Centreville enjoyed a visit to the stock yards, abattoirs and farmers' dairy on Friday last. The boys left on the six fifteen C.P.R. train at Kendry, and arrived at the North Toronto station at eight o'clock a.m. From there they were taken by the instructors, Messrs. F. C. Patterson, of Port Hope, and Fraser Ross, of Fort William, through the stock yards, and it was explained clearly to the boys the method of shipping and disposing of thier live stock on the Toronto market. Afterwards they visited Swift's abattoir and were served with a bountiful dinner, and afterwards they were shown through the entire plant. During the afternoon a visit was paid to the farmers' dairy, where they were shown the process that the milk and cream has to go through previous to being manufactured into butter and condensed milk. A number of the boys remained over the week end in the city.

Among those who visited Toronto were Messrs. F. C. Patterson, Fraser Ross, Jno. and Jim Gainer, Russel and Amos Bonner, Reg and Leonard Atcheson, W. and M. Bradshaw, Herb and Harold Dawson, Cleveland Byers, James Johnston, Dawson Rutherford, Walter Thorne, Wilfrid Johnston, Richard Stewart, Fred Barnard, Willan Hutchinson, Gerald and Aylmer Dawson, Wm. and Ralph Benson, Edwin Eagleson, Howard Fair, Arnold Brown and others.

During the past week the boys have had considerable experience in visiting the different farms and judging the different classes of live stock.

The young ladies have finished their course in sewing, and have now commenced a two weeks' course in household science.

MR. D. ZELINKA

Stomach Bloated With Gas Was His Worry

Mr. D. Zelinka of 15 East 26th Street, N. Y., writes: "I want you to know that no day passed for months and months that did not find my stomach bloated with gas and shooting pains darting through my stomach. I felt hungry at times, but as soon as I started eating, food nauseated me and I became bilious. My tongue was coated, had bad taste and breath was offensive. I never thought this could all be from my liver, but my liver it must have been, for the very first day after taking your wonderful Carter's Little Liver Pills I felt like a new person. The small dose makes them easy to take, too."

AN INACTIVE LIVER IS THE CAUSE OF CONSTIPATION

Your bowels become constipated; you have sick and bilious headaches; your tongue coated and furry; your breath bad; specks float before your eyes, and often you feel as if you were going to faint, especially if in a crowded place where there is little or no ventilation.

When in this condition there is only thing to do, and that is to take

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

They will stimulate the sluggish liver so that it will regulate the flow of bile to act properly on the bowels, and thus clear away all the poisonous matter that is responsible for all your liver troubles.

LAKEFIELD PARISH HALL CONSIDERED

St. John's Church Committee to Discuss Prospects and Plans.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 20. — The annual vestry meeting of St John's Church was held in the school room on Monday evening with a fair attendance and Rev. W. Cox in the chair. The rector in his address reviewed the past year and outlined his plans for the future, showing optimism regarding the future of the parish. He expressed a hope that during the year something definite would be accomplished towards a Parish Hall which is sadly needed by the church at the present time. The Sunday School requires more space, than can be provided and the organizations should have a common meeting place. The matter was discussed and it was felt that the need was great and something should be done and a committee was formed from the vestry which would be augmented by a delegate from each of the organizations to discuss the matter and plan for it.

The vestry appointed Messrs. Jas. Watson, W. G. Fitzgerald and E. R. Tate as their representatives on the committee.

Mr. J. C. Strickland was appointed People's Warden and the Rector named Mr. Sam White as his warden. Mr. T. B. Marling was appointed vestry clerk.

Messrs T. Watson, M. Hampton, Jas. Simpson, G. Ogilvie and A. Webster were appointed sidesmen.

Messrs J. F. Lillecrap, A. E. Dawson and H. G. Fitzgerald were appointed lay delegates to the Synod.

The reports of the various organizations showed progress and all were in a prosperous condition.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. J. W. Todd and the choir, and the various organizatons for their faithful work throughout the year.

The rector paid a special tribute to the work of Miss Louise Hampton, who has cared for the after during the past years, her faithfulness and her reverent care have been unremitting no matter what the weather conditions.

DROWSINESS.

(Hal Cochran.)

From the break of the morn there's a thought that is kind; a thought that most everyone's had. Just stop, now, and think; it's been yours, you will find. It's a thought that makes anyone glad.

In the long morning hours, while you're working away, to evening your thinking will roam. You look to the time when your work turns to play, and you rest while you're reading at home.

What joy to sink down in an old rocking chair and let all the world travel by. Your brain is at ease and you haven't a care. You can rest, you can read, you can sigh.

Ah, yes, it is nice, when the evening hours come, in reading to bury thoughts deep. But reading eventually makes you ho, hum, and it's nicer to fall off to sleep.

THE CEMETERY COMPANY.

A community organization that for many years has been doing most efficient work is the Little Lake Cemetery Company, the annual meeting of which was held yesterday.

Since the days when Peterborough was a sparsely populated town the company has been in existence, and its splendid administration is reflected in the beauty of the Little Lake Cemetery, than which there are few more beautiful "God's Acres" in this country.

The vision of the first directors in choosing this site for Peterborough's cemetery has been supported by succeeding boards, who year after year have added to the appearance of the grounds.

The cemetery board is operated for the lot owners, each of which has a vote, and the profits from the year's operations go back into the fund for taking care of the grounds.

That is, the organization is not a money-making one, but simply a board of management, carrying on a most necessary work in a business-like manner on behalf of the community.

Many well-known citizens have given many years of service to the Little Lake Cemetery, and their fellow-citizens should be grateful for the faithful attention that has been given to the business of this institution.

DR. SAUNDERS' CASE.

One Progressive resolution that the Examiner believes should be heartily supported in Parliament is that which Mr. John Millar, member for Ou'Appelle, announces he will move during the coming session, asking an annuity of $5,000 for Dr. Charles E. Saunders, discoverer of Marquis wheat.

The treatment accorded to Dr. Saunders so far has been enough to bring a blush of shame to the cheek of every Canadian.

Here is a man who has given many years of his life to the service of his country, during which his research work has resulted in the discovery of a new wheat that has carried Canada's wheat belt far into the north and added hundreds of millions of dollars to the wealth of the Dominion.

Not only that, but the results of his discovery will continue indefinitely, enriching Canada many years after he has passed on.

Yet there has been no recognition by the country to which he gave this great boon, save a yearly dole so small that it would be a shame to mention the amount.

It is no wonder that the United States attracts some of our finest students and scientists in view of the ingratitude that up to the present has characterized Canada's treatment of Dr. Saunders.

Mr. Millar's resolution offers the way to make amends. It should be accepted by all parties as a deserved recognition of a great achievement on behalf of this country, and there would be no complaint if the House saw fit to increase the amount of the annuity.

In any case, let Canada do what is decent for one who has accomplished so much for her.

MILK TESTS.

Public opinion will be strongly behind the Board of Health in its decision to publish the results of the monthly milk tests, and the vendors have no real cause to resent the board's action.

If these tests are to secure any real purpose the results must be made known for the benefit of the consumer.

No milk dealer who is careful about the cleanliness and quality of the milk he sells will be hurt by this publicity, while the very fact that the tests are to be published will have the effect of causing those engaged in the milk business to protect their own interests by more attention to the product they sell.

On the other hand the dealers who have been negligent in this respect have no right to be shielded at the expense perhaps of the health of their customers.

The public must be protected against anything that savours of dirt or lack of the essential qualities in this liquid food that plays such a large part in the menu of the whole family, and is practically the sole food of the younger children.

The dealers have the remedy in their own hands; if they sell good milk the monthly publication of the results of the tests will be splendid advertising for them.

If they don't sell good milk the public should know it, for the sooner they are out of business the better.

TRADE IN CANADA IMPROVING.

It is a matter of rejoicing that trade and economic conditions in Canada in 1924 showed a marked tendency to improve. Benefit from the progress in the United States is already foreshadowed in Canada, and conditions are steadily improving. Foreign trade in 1924 showed encouraging results. For the twelve months ending October 31, 1924, the total was $1,895,000,000, or an increase of $160,000,000, as compared with 1923. On the other hand the imports amounted to $819,000,000, a decline of 10 per cent. from the previous year. This decrease is attributed chiefly to the quiet condition which prevailed in domestic trade, although lower prices probably accounted for some of it. Exports amounted to $1,077,000,000, an increase of 8 per cent. over 1923. The excess of exports over imports in 1924 was $258,000,000, as compared with $83,000,000 in 1923, an increase of 211 per cent. A feature of this trade was that the imports from the United States declined nearly 12 per cent., while exports to the United States increased 3 per cent. during the same period.

The crops in 1924 showed a considerable decrease as compared with 1923. The production of wheat was placed at 272,000,000 bushels, a decrease of 202,000,000 bushels from 1923. Even with this decrease the crop of 1924 was a little better than the average for 1918-1922, and considerably better than the average for the period from 1913-1922. A compensating factor was the advance in the price of wheat from $1 to $1.65, or thereabout. While the car loadings showed an increase of 27 per cent. over 1923; the earnings of the Canadian National Railway decreased 5.3 per cent., and those of the Canadian Pacific Railway 3.7 per cent. It is probable that, owing to the smaller grain crop, these decreases will continue for some time.

During the year the Canadian dollar returned to par on the New York market. Current bank loans were $100,000,000 less than the previous year. The savings deposits in the chartered banks increased by slightly more than $1,000,000. Bank clearings for the 10 months ended October 31 declined $287,000,000, or 2 per cent. from the total for the corresponding period of 1923. Due largely to the abundance of money and the consequent forced entry of the banks into the investment field, all classes of securities have tended to advance in price during the year. As compared with 1923, the net debt of the Dominion was decreased by over $10,000,000. For the first time since 1915 the Dominion Government borrowed money on long-term securilties at a lower cost than 5 per cent. Several Government loans were floated in Canada. Canadian borrowings in the New York market were over $200,000,000.

There was a slight decrease in building operations during the year. The commercial failures in Canada for the year ending on October 31, numbered 2,488, with liabilities of $69,700,000, as compared with 3,427 with liabilities of $67,700,000 in 1923. Thus while there were fewer failures in 1924, the amount of liabilities was $2,000,000 greater. The cost of living is still high, immigration has been small, and the increase in population has been small. Industrial recovery has not been uniform, as many of the industries were running on half time, with diminished profits, and some with no profits whatever. The encouraging feature is that of late there has been gradual improvement, with increased demand for steel, especially from the railroads. The textile trades are gradually recovering from the depression, and trade in hides and leather has increased. Unemployment, while it has been serious, has been, for the most part, seasonal. There is every reason to believe that from now on business will steadily improve.—Brantford Expositor.

WHERE DO YOU LIVE?

Where do you live? If you are out in the country the answer would probably be on R. R. No. 4, with some added directions; if in a village, the answer might be "in that white frame house two doors east of the public school;" if in a city, the reply would be given in terms of street and number.

But where do you live? Not a geographical location, not a farm address or a city number. Dr. Sedgwick of Hamilton developed the idea when speaking to the London Rotary Club, and he pressed his query to the point where it was bound to make men think.

John Bunyan lived in jail during the time of his life when he did his greatest work. He was surrounded by poor, miserable creatures; he was in a cramped cell where light was poor, air was old and stale. But John Bunyan, the real John Bunyan, was not there. He was out and away travelling with Pilgrim who carried his heavy load strapped to his back and sought the place where it could be removed. From that cell John Bunyan made the trip, fell into the slough of despond, was ensnared in and escaped from Doubting Castle, and finally walked by the banks of the river on the other side of which was his beautiful city.

Yet the jailers of that day would have replied that John Bunyan was firmly locked in prison; they would have been certain of it, and had there been any doubt they could have taken the questioner right down the old flagstone walk, into the place, stopped in front of the cell and said, "There is John Bunyan." But the real John Bunyan was not there; he was away, struggling with life, fighting the battles of the man who was making his way to the Eternal City, and he gave to the world the greatest pen picture of its kind that has ever been written. It is today the world's most read book, apart from the Bible.

John Carey cobbled shoes in his little shop in England. Where did he live? Ask any of the townspeople of his day, and they would have taken you to a little shoe shop that looked much like any other of its kind, and the information would have been, "That's John Carey's place, that's where he lives."

But John Carey did not live there. On one wall of his shop was a map in which India had a prominent place. That was before there was a missionary in India. John Carey, the real John Carey, was living in India—he had never been there, had never travelled to its shores. Yet India was the residence of the real John Carey. India it was that called him to go and preach the gospel there. It was a dual personality, John Carey cobbling boots and doing his work well, and John Carey planning, saving and dreaming of the day when the darkness of India would be flooded with the light of the gospel so far denied to it. And finally the real John Carey dropped his hammer and forsook his last and became the pioneer missionary to India.

In a city not far from London lives a man of sixty-eight years. If you went there and asked where he lived, people would show you a humble little home perched almost dangerously on the bank of the river. If you went in and met him you would see a person with the sight of one eye gone and a growth that is reaching out to blot the gilht of day from the other. Not much of a place to live, four or five rooms on a back street. So that's where Frank lives?

But wait—outside is what you would call a shed, only it has many windows and much light. Out there are pictures, good pictures. Before the day's work starts and after it is over Frank is there, painting. There is never a sunrise he does not see, nor is there a day that the sun sinks in a riot of glory that his memory has not imprisoned the grandeur of it all. The gathering clouds of a summer storm, the wind-tossed trees of March—these are his habitation.

Where does he live? His one great, consuming hope is that before the light of day is forever shut from his remaining eye he may paint one picture, greater, grander, more wonderful than all others, one that will live long after he has gone and give to those who view it a glimpse of the realm where Frank lived, that will let them see what he saw and worship where he built his shrine in the great world around him.

The world owes its advancement to those who may in their day be dubbed dreamers, sometimes visionaries, agitators or theorists. They catch a glimpse of something better, and then strain at the fetters until they are free to reach out to inherit their new land. Their own day and generation pass them by, but history looks back and calls them great.—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

No, gentle reader, it is not necessary to stay up all night to see the eclipse. You'll have to get a better excuse.

Wise and Otherwise.

One who married a man with a past tells us now she doesn't expect so much of the future.

A THOUGHT.

MEDITATION AND CONTEMPLATION.

In this age of materialization, there are many men and women who faithfully go through a "daily dozen" or less of vigorous exercises to invigorate and strengthen the body and like it; but if you talk to them about exercises to refine and encourage the gray matter above their collars, they just look blank or say, "Oh, stop your kidding."

These are the folks that have no time for reading, get all their current information by radio and let it vanish into air as it came, look to the movies for their heart thrills and to the associate next to them to help hem keep their jobs.

These are the folks whose topics of conversation circle around going and getting, fun, frolic and furbelows, eats, booze and jazz, and on a piteously small vocabulary at that.

Unless such folks have recently been inveigled into interest in crossword puzzles, just because everybody's doing them, it is as certain as beans in Boston that such words as contemplate and meditate are Greek to them.

If you should try to talk to them on the value of meditation and the happiness of contemplation, they would label you "nut" and shun you as a tramp "fights" shy of work and water.

Oh ,this sort of folks are wise, all right, but it isn't the wisdom that comes from thought.

What do such folks know of the twofold enjoyment of genuine pleasures, actualities and memories? What do such folks know of the profit that comes from self communion, pensive preparation, deliberation, anticipated pleasure, expectant joy?

What do scuh folks care about anything except the little miserable fun of a joy ride, a movie date, a stolen drink or the weekly pay envelope.

With no real object in life and no intentness of purpose, they do not even enjoy the thrill of the dreamer-prospector who seeks the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow; having no place to go, they just huddle together, whistling, singing, dancing,to keep up their spirits until a bitter and forlorn old age forces them to survey the past with disappointment and regret.

Thosewho spend their working hours resting up for the evenings fun will some day be like mile posts on back roads detours, alone and far removed.

Even those who are striving for knowledge will not get very far on the highway of life unless some time is giben to contemplation and meditation—meditation of the past, that mistakes may not be repeated; contemplation of the future, that the larning and experiences of today may be profitably applied tomorrow.

The lamb quality was not good and the early offering contained none good enough to qualifyfor a 16-cent market. Fair quality ewes sold at 15 1-2 and bucks at 13 1-2 cents a pound Choice sheep were 8 to 8 1-2 cent a pound.

A light run of hogs set the sellers holding for another 25 cent advance and it is expetced that some sales will be made as high as $10.50 a cwt f. o. b. to-day.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, Jan. 20. —Fluctuating conditions may be expected for the next few weeks. Dealers at the present time are just buying what they need for immediate requirements anticipating a drop at any time. British Columbia reports shipping fresh to Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Eastern Markets.

Toronto steady and unchanged.

Manitoba dealers quoting delivered extras 55 to 60, first 50 to 55, seconds 35.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20. — Enlarged estimates of European import needs for the next six months helped lift the wheat market to-day to above any previous prices this season, but heavy profit-taking together with apparent slowness of export demand for United States wheat led to a reaction. Wheat closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 3-8 cent higher. May 190 1-4 to 190 1-2 and July 167 1-8 to 167 1-4, with corn at 1-8 to 7-8 cent net decline, oats 1-8 to 1-2 cent down, and provisions varying from 17 cents setback to 35 cents advance.

STERLING RATES.

Sterling demand $4.79 1-8.

Sterling cables $4.79 1-2.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, Jan. 20. — The export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market to-day showed little change with little business being transacted owing to offers coming from overseas being below a workable figure. The domestic market for coarse grains was again reported quiet, with, however, prices maintaining a steady undertone. Ontario No. 2 white oats were quoted at 66 cents No. 3 at 64 cent sand No. 4 grade at 52 cents per bushel, ex-store

Prices were steady for spring wheat grades of flour, while business both of domestic and country account continues of a very dull character. A stronger feeling developed in winter wheat flour and prices were advanced 25 cents per barrel.

Extreme dullness marked the trading in butter but the tendency remains firm.. The cheese market was inactive, with fodder made No. 1 goods quoted at 19 1-2 to 20 cents per pound and No. 2 at 18 1-2 to 19 cents per pound.

Prices were well maintained for all grades of eggs at the recent advances noted.

The heavy exporting of Canadian beans to the United States continues and prices at $2.90 per bushel.

HIGHER TEA PRICES EXPECTED ANY DAY

The estimated increase in the consumption of tea in 1924 over 1923 has amounted to over 39 million pounds. An increase in production of only seventeen million pounds during the same period has resulted in tea prices advancing in primary markets from ten to fourteen cents per pound since last summer. The price to the consumer today is on the basis of much lower primary costs, so a general increase to tea drinkers is inevitable in the near future.

Dr. Glidden, who examined accused, said: "Id iagnosed his case as neurasthenia. I would not say there was insanity."

Dr. Cathcart told of accused spending six days in St Anne's Hospital in June, 1923, suffering from a nervous condition. This concluded the defence.

Crown Counsel Hutcheson, in reply, called Dr .McNaughton, of the Brockville Asylum,who told of having examined accused in December last. His report said that accused had no organic trouble but suffered from psychneurosis, a nerve affliction.

Mr. Hutcheson: "Is it insanity?"

Witnes: "No"

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

Rub on Good Old Musterole

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Colds are merely congestion. Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster, it does the work without the blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief. 40c and 75c, at all druggists.

PETERBOROUGH EXHIBITION HAS EXTENDED ITS SEASON ONE DAY; ROLAND DENNE AGAIN PRESIDENT

"I would like to make another suggestion and that is that we make a special drive for one thousand membership tickets for our show. There is no reason why every farmer and citizen should not have a ticket at $2.00. It does not only mean a gate entrance, but it makes it possible for us to show a better statement to both Governments when our grants are being given, and if each member of the board would take ten tickets to sell in his district it would be easy to accomplish our objective.

"No doubt the members of the Fair Board are aware that this year we sustained a great loss by losing two valued members, namely, Mr. Harry Webber and Mr. Noble Kelly, who had the great interest at stake all the time. They were two brothers that we cannot afford to lose, and the community at large is the loser, as well as the Fair Board.

"I will ask you to stand with bowed heads for one minute in respect to these men.

"I again thank you for your assistance, and after all, we are trying to do our part in making the city of Peterborough and county the best in the Province."

Horse Classes.

It was remarked that there was lack of competition in the horse classes, and something should be done to increase it. The ways and means were left to the new Board of Directors.

It was decided on vote not to have a spring stallion show. On motion of E. B. Fowler and W. Steinkrauss, a standing crop competition will be held in 1925. Fall wheat and white oats are included in the competition, which will be on the same plan as last year.

Junior Section.

I. H. Shields proposed that a junior section be elected as a board of directors, to co-operate with the older board and learn the business. He was satisfied to allow it to go over to the new board.

E. F. Mason suggested that the boys be chosen by vote from the different schools and school sections.

Vivian Milburn said the boys could be appointed by the Young People's Clubs, who are most interested in the business.

New Suggestions.

Among the new ideas brought out at the meeting was a suggestion by the President that races and high jumping horses provide the grandstand entertainment instead of the usual vaudeville.

Webber Turner produced a statement from a smaller city than Peterborough showing a greater profit for the Fair Board than is shown by Peterborough's.

He would give more than the people expect in order to build up to this standard, and instead of using the military ride instead of vaudeville, he would combine the two attractions.

A plan to put boxes in front of the grandstand to be used by families was brought forward by the President.

Run Five Days.

Webber Turner wanted to get into the five-day class, and to add a paid band to the attractions.

Several members objected to the five-day proposition on the ground that the time is too long for farmers and would kill the agricultural end of the Fair.

Webber Turner then suggested that the extra day be made a sports day on which the livestock exhibitors would not be expected to be present.

Since the entertainment is paid for by the week, this plan would cost no more, and would add to the attraction of the occasion, he said.

The plan was finally adopted, the dates set being September 15. 16, 17, 18 and 19. The first day, Tuesday, is to be sports day, when baseball and athletics will prevail. The vaudeville and other attractions will be in full swing every day of the five, but livestock exhibitors are not asked to be present until Wednesday.

Internal cleanliness protects against disease

IN CONSTIPATION, say intestinal specialists, lies the primary cause of more than three-quarters of all illness, including the gravest diseases of life.

Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Why Physicians Favour Lubrication

Medical science has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless.

Take Nujol regularly and adopt this habit of internal cleanliness. For sale by all druggists.

The Nervous Wreck

By E. J. RATH

HIS nerves were bad, but all the cowboys in Montana were afraid of him. He couldn't sleep nights, but they couldn't wake him up mornings. He would run at sight of a horse, but would as soon as not drive a car over the edge of a cliff. He was a weakling, but he tried to fight everyone!

PETERBORO KIWANIS CLUB WILL CELEBRATE TENTH ANNIVERSARY

This Week Marks the Raising of a Fund for Memorial to be Erected in Vancouver to Memory of Late President Warren Harding—Site Where Kiwanian Harding Delivered Last Public Address.

An undertaking that is occupying the attention of the local Kiwanis Club, in conjunction with Kiwanis organizations all over the country and across the continent, is the raising during the week of January 18th to 24th of the entire fund for the granite and bronze memorial to be erected by the Kiwanis Clubs of the United States and Canada in Stanley Park, Vancouver, B.C. honoring the late President Harding and symbolizing the friendship and goodwill between the two countries. This undertaking will be the feature of the Tenth Anniversary of Kiwanis which is being celebrated by nation-wide clubs this week.

The late Warren G. Harding was an active member of the Kiwanis Club of Marion, Ohio, and the condition which prompted the location of the memorial in Stanley Park, Vancouver, was the fact that this was the place where Kiwanian Harding delivered his last public address, the address in which he emphasized the spirit of freindship existing between the United States and Canada. This was the only time that a President of the United States ever visited Canadian soil during his term of office. Stanley Park is an excellent location because it possesses ideal surroundings and is carefully guarded and it is accessible and is annually visited by thousands of interested tourists.

The dominant thought of the Vancouver address by President Harding is expressed in the following words, chiseled on the monument: "What an object lesson of peace is shown today by our two countries to all the world. No grim-faced fortifications mark our frontiers, no huge battleships patrol our dividing waters, no stealthy spies lurk in our tranquil border hamlets. Only a scrap of paper, recording hardly more than a simple understanding, safeguards lives and properties on the Great Lakes, and only humble mile-posts make the inviolable boundary line for thousands of miles through farm and forest. Our protection is in our fraternity, our armor is our faith, and the tie that binds more firmly year by year is ever-increasing acquaintance and comradeship through interchange of citizens; and the compact is not of perishable parchment, but of fair and honorable dealing which, God grant, shall continue for all time."

The selected design for the monument is a semi-circular seat with an elevated center to contain a bronze tablet with Harding's profile in bas relief and the extract from his last address above quoted. In the centre rear are two bronze female figures symbolizing Canada and the United States, facing each other and keeping guard, not only over the man represented in the bas relief, but also over those memorable words of international amity. Canada and the United States hold between them in one hand the olive branch of peace, in the other the shields of the two nations. At each end of the memorial structure is an eagle typical and symbolic of America. The dominating motif is peace and friendship between the two great nations of North America. The extreme length of the monument, which is placed within fifty feet of the band stand where the late President delivered his address, is thirty-seven feet; depth, thirteen feet, nine inches; height, ten feet, nine inches. A flower bed will add five feet on each end to the length and five feet in depth to the rear. The bronze figures are seven feet, six inches in height.

The memorial is directly within the vision of and not more than one hundred feet away from the driveway used by visitors and sight-seeing automobiles. The memorial will face in such a direction as to have the light of the sun at all time, and the idea of a low monument was chosen as the only one possible, for the tall majestic trees in the background would minimize and belittle any attempt at vertical emphasis.

The monument, which will be constructed of bronze and granite, has an estimated figure of expense on it of $36,000. The design is by Charles Marega, sculptor, with who are associated Twizell and Twizell, architects, Vancouver.

But one method of securing funds is available. International Kiwanis has no authority or desire to take the funds from the treasury nor to levy an assessment upon districts, clubs or members. Voluntary subscriptions will therefore be asked for, and "these should be small in size and popular in character."

The Peterboro celebration of Kiwanis' tenth anniversary will be marked at the weekly luncheon by the presence of Rev. Walter Cox of Lakefield, who will speak on Kiwanis Ideals. The slogan of anniversary week is "A Tenth of a Century of Achievement—Greater Responsibilities Ahead."

BIBLE SOCIETY ANNUAL MEETING

Successful Year Reported at Hastings—Union Services for Occasion.

MISSIONARY TALK.

HASTINGS, Jan. 21. — The services in the Methodist Church on Sunday were in charge of Rev. S. G. Pinnock, of Toronto. On Sunday morning he addressed the congregation on missions.

In the evening it was in charge of the annual meeting of the Bible Society, the Presbyterian Church's evening service being withdrawn so that Union services might be held.

Mr. W. M. Fowlds, president of the local branch of the Bible Society, presided as chairman.

Rev. D. A. Thompson led in prayer, and the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. The Scripture lesson was taken by Rev. Thompson, and splendid music was rendered by the choir.

Rev. Pinnock gave the address, his theme being "The Bible in Africa." The speaker has spent thirty-five years in missionary work in Africa, and gave a splendid review and history of the life and customs and religious work in the dark continent.

Several pieces were recited and sung, in the native African tongue by Mr. Pinnock, and his address was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

Mr. W. P. Plant gave the minutes of the year's work, and was again appointed secretary.

The offering received was the largest ever as yet received from this branch in the history of the society.

SIXTEEN ORBS.

LONDON, January 21.—Bermondsey, one of London's poorest districts is calling in the aid of artificial sunlight to assist in the fight against disease and death.

The Bermondsey Solarium, as the new hospital is to be called, will follow out the Swiss plan of treatment for diseases like consumption. Dr. Rollier, in Switzerland, has been curing apparently hopeless cases of consumption by exposing patients to the blazing sun and the high air of the Alps. And as Bermondsey has little or no sun it will use the artificial variety.

The hospital will be a long, low building, with a wide verandah running its entire length, and a concrete slope where patients may be treated in the open, exposed to the sun.

Inside there will be separate accommodations for men and women.

Here, when the sun is not shining outside 16 artificial suns will shed their health giving rays on the afflicted.

Artificial Light.

Each "sun" is a large arc lamp, which sheds a golden, glowing warmth. To the healing rays of these artificial suns the patients will be constantly exposed.

The discovery of this treatment originated in an experiment by Dr. Rollier, in which he found that tubercle bacilli when placed on a glass slide died in two minutes from sunlight. This led to his sunlight treatment for disease. From the first the results were so amazing that they astonished the medical world. Patients given up as incurable slowly recovered their health an strength. Children twisted with rickets straightened out, put on weight and became healthy and strong.

One feature of the new Bermondsey Hospital is to be the beauty of the surroundings. Much time and money will be spent on the gardens, for the promoters believe that pleasant surroundings actually help in the cure. They make the patient feel happy and this mental sunniness reacts on the body, helping the healing process.

Is Definite Epoch

According to Sir Herbert Barker, the world-famed manipulative surgeon, the building of this Solarium marks a definite epoch in the age-long battle with tuberculosis.

"We are only slowly beginning to realize the marvellous power of the sun's rays in the battle with disease" he says. "The ultra-violet rays of the sun spell annihilation to the unseen but deadly germs which invade our bodies and eat away our lives.

"People who live in the open, under the beneficent rays of the great healer, the sun, are not prone to consumption. Consumption is the disease of civilization.

"The Solarium, in my opinion, is tre hospital of the future. The novelty of to-day will become the common place of to-morrow.

"Our great grandchildren will read of the 'black death' which decimated Europe in the Middle Ages."

FABLES ON HEALTH

MR. MANN'S LAMENESS.

Mrs. Mann of Anytown knew many good remedies for lameness.

And it was well that she did, for Mr. Mann often came home from work in the evening with a lame back or knee.

The complaint was more frequent during the winter months. Walking on icy streets, or streets wet and slippery from rain and snow often causes lameness.

So on this evening when Mr. Mann complained of a lame back, she went to the kitchen cabinet for some cider vinegar and some saltpetre.

With these she mixed some wormwood leaves and made a poultice.

She bound the poultice on the affected part, and let it remain there until it was cold.

The lameness disappeared.

Sometimes Mrs. Mann had found, however, that a second application was necessary for relief.

LEMIEUX ACT INVALID.

Interpretation of Privy Council Judgment Made in London.

LONDON, Jan. 21. — (Canadian Press).—The official interpretation here of the judgment given yesterday by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, allowing the appeal of the Toronto Hydro-Electric Commission against the decision of the Ontario Appellate Court, which upheld the validity of the Lemieux Act, is that the Privy Council decision renders the Lemieux Act invalid altogether as being ultra vires of the Dominion Parliament.

The Privy Council holds that the Dominion Parliament would be justified in instituting such legislation only in case of national emergency.

ONLY THE MOTHER KNOWS ABOUT THE COUGHS AND COLDS OF THE CHILDREN

It is hard to keep them from taking cold; they will run out of doors not properly clad, or have on too much clothing; play too hard and get overheated and cool off too suddenly; get their feet wet; kick off the bed clothes at night, and do a dozen things the mother can't prevent.

The prompt use of DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP will check the cough or cold before any serious lung trouble can possibly develop.

Mrs. Everett E. Keetch, R.R. No. 2, Fredericton, NB, writes:—"My little boy, age nine years, had a dreadful cold which left him with a bad cough I tried Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after using three bottles he was completely relieved. I would advise all mothers to use this remedy for their children as it is an excellent medicine."

BOOKLET OF VERSES

Miss A. M. Lancaster Interested in Things Literary.

The latest contribution to Peterborough's list of literary efforts is the tiny booklets of verses recently issued by Miss A. M. Lancaster, superintendent of the Peterborough Protestant Home. Miss Lancaster, who is interested in all things literary, has included in this miniature souvenir volume half a dozen pretty bits of verse of her own composition, and has christened it, appropriately enough, "Rosemary and Pansies," from the famous quotation, "There's rosemary, that's for rememberance.. and there's pansies, that's for thoughts."

"A Service Flag" is the initial poem, the theme the pensive thought of the little lad who cried to his father, "God has a Son in the War!" when he saw the single star hung in the "radiant blue of the west."

There is a bit of dainty rhyming for February and for October, "a proud young Indian Maiden", a song of hope for New Year's Eve, and "A Psalm of the Hour", ending with "Maker of night and day, We lift our hearts to Thee, Guard Thou our hours of life, we pray, And to eternity."

The sixth selection is a charming piece of thought in poetry, "St. Michael's—A Memory", centering about the musings of a watcher in the Buffalo cathedral of "St. Michael's—old and gray, By the market place it stands; And the people slip in to pray, And to fold their weary hands, In the midst of the busy day."

BIG PROGRAMME FOR ENGINEERS

Paper on Wembley Power Conference Illustrated by Slides.

ON THURSDAY.

The next meeting of the Peterboro Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada, which is to be held in the Chamber of Commerce on Thursday, January 22nd, at 8.15 p.m., promises to be one of the most important and interesting meetings of the season.

The executive have secured as speaker for that evening, Mr. Fred J. Brown, M.Sc., M.E.I.C., who will give a paper on "The First World Power Conference at Wembly."

Anyone who attended the annual banquet of the local branch and heard the remarks of Mr. J. B. Challies, M.E.I.C., on the subject of Canada's representation at the conference, could not fail to be impressed with the fact that, due to the ability of the Canadian delegates and the general nature of the Canadian contribution, Canada received a wonderful advertisement as one of the world's greatest power producers.

This conference was the first of its kind, and although papers were presented by delegates from all over the world, it was generally conceded that the Canadian contribution was outstanding.

Mr. Brown, who is a partner in the firm of Walter J. Francis & Co., consulting engineers, Montreal, and who is also well known on account of his lectures on engineering economics at McGill, was one of the Canadian delegates, therefore his address which he is to give on Thursday evening is in the nature of first hand information, and as he is well known in Peterboro as a speaker, having always been a welcome guest at the various functions in connection with the Engineering Institute in this city, where he has contributed many able after dinner speeches, it is anticipated that there will be a large audience.

Mr. Fraser S. Keith, M.E.I.C., general secretary of the Engineering Institute of Canada, is bringing a group of slides illustrating the Wembley Exhibition. These should be of general interest to the public.

As usual on these occasions, the executive committee extend a cordial invitation to the general public to attend the meeting.

JOHN LOCKE AGAIN PRESIDENT SEYMOUR AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY

SPORT DAY AGAIN.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 21.—The annual meeting of the Seymour Agricultural Society was held on Tuesday afternoon in the Public Library. Mr. John Locke, the president for 1924, presided. In his address to those present, he said it had been a pleasure to work with the board of directors. Everything had been agreeable, though sometimes there had been differences of opinion. But through these differences one gets the best results. The society had been fortunate in the past year in having good weather. Their different activities during the year had been quite satisfactory. The 24th of May had been taken up as a sport day. The receipts had been four hundred and eighty-four dollars, clearing only a small balance of twenty-six dollars. During the summer a midway had been arranged with for a week which brought to them, counting the booth, three hundred and fifty-five dollars, and, lastly, the Fall Fair. He spoke of the prize-list being gone over very thoroughly, but did not think the society would be able to increase the prizes. He also spoke of the grants given by the councils. The president also said that Dr. O. J. Reid, veterinary district director, suggests that the society have a shed built for tested cattle alone, and that this shed be disinfected. Mr. Locke thought that a permanent plan should be made of the grounds by a competent man, so that the new board could plan better when making improvements.

Moved and seconded by Mr. Hume and Mr. W. M. Stephens, that the president be thanked for this address, and that it be published in the annual report. Carried.

The secretary, Mr. J. N. Stone, was called upon to read the minutes of the last meeting, which was held on January 24th, 1924. The year 1923 had been the largest on record for many years. The rest-room for ladies had proved most satisfactory, and Mr. T. J. Horkins deserves the thanks of the society.

Moved and seconded by Mr. Horkins and Mr. McCook that the minutes be adopted as read. Carried.

Crop Competition.

Moved and seconded by T. J. Horkins and W. M. Stephens, that the society have the standing field crop competition for oats and corn as last year. Carried.

On motion of Horkins and O'Hara departmental judges will be employed.

Mr. Hume suggested that the board of directors ask that competent men be sent as judges.

The treasurer was instructed to pay the fee of $2 to convention.

The secretary read a letter, giving this society authority to elect four additional directors on its board.

Moved and seconded by Horkins and Little, that this society avail themselves of the opportunity, and that the Mayor of Campbellford and Reeve of Seymour be two of the directors. Carried.

On motion of Horkins and Watters the President and Chas. Bonnycastle were appointed delegates to the annual meeting of the Central Fairs Association to be held in Belleville in the City Hall on January 28.

Moved and seconded by Hume and Watters that a day of sports be put on for May 25th, 1925, carried.

The president, J. Locke, and Secretary J. N. Stone, were appointed delegate to the Ontario Convention held in Toronto at the King Edward Hotel on February 4th and 5th, 1925.

On motion of Horkins and Walters, Chas. Bedford and Marshall West, were again appointed auditors for 1925.

Officers Elected.

The election of officers was the next business and the following were elected:

President—John Locke, 1st vice-president, W. A. Wynn; 2nd vice-president, H. Watters.

Directors—Messrs W. M. Stephens, T. J. Horkins, Alex. Hume, Reeve Grills, E. A. McCook, A. J. Meyers, G. Kerr, Dr. O'Hara, W. J. Abernethy, C. Bedford, F. Hendy, Geo. Vonvolkenburg, W. H. Locke.

On motion of Horkins and Hume, the same lady directors as last year were re-apointed.

The following honorary directors were appointed for 1925:—Chas. E. Bonnycastel, M. West, F. Dinwoodie, R. H. Little, H. Dunham, Thos. H. Rowe, and W. J. Ross.

Mr .A. Hume made a suggestion that the new board see that a building is set aside or a new one built for accredited cattle. There was considerable discussion concerning this by Messrs Hume, Horkins, McCook and the President.

On motion of Messrs Hume and Horkins, the meeting adjourned and the new board met at the close, the President for 1925, Mr. John Locke in the chair. Moved and seconded by Messrs Horkins and Wynn that Mr. J. N. Stone, be secretary-treasurer at the same salary, carried.

There was some discussion as to the date of the Fall Fair, but it was left in the hands of the delegates to the Annual Meeting of Central Fair's Asociation held at Belleville.

Apply for Booths.

The secretary read two applications for booths nuder the judges stand. One from Willing Workers of Christ Church for two days, May 25th and Fall Fair day. The other was from the Girl Guides for the last Fair Day. Moved and seconded by A. Hume and H. Watters that Girl Guides have use of the booth for May 25th, caried.

Moved and seconded by W. M. Stephens and T. J. Horkins that the Girl Guides habe use of the booth for Fair Day and that the Willing Workers have the next choice for a booth, carried.

It was decided to ask ten dollars for the booth under the judges stand if it was a nice day on these occasions. After considerable discussion, it was decided on motion of Horkins and Watters that the whole board of directors be a delegation to go before the Seymour Council at their first meeting in March and that the secretary notify all the members to that effect. The board then adjourned.

The financial statement will appear to-morrow.

About forty people met at the home of one of its members, Mrs. A. L. Malcolmn, Sebastapool street, on Tuesday night for a social evening and tea. The evening was spent in contests and a short programme as follows: Instrumental solo, Miss K. Dolman; vocal duet, Miss H. wood; humorous readings, Mr. S. A. Maguire and Mr. T. H. Craighead. Those who were lowest in one of the contests had to think out a charade and act it. The lowest in the other had to choose an old song and sing it.

The topic for the evening was given by Rev. C. F. McIntosh. The subject dealt with the life of one of the famous missionaries, Dr. James Robertson. CAMPBELLFORD TOO MUCH FOR INDIANS

The Belleville Interscholastic Team Take Small End of 6 to 2 Score.

CAMPBELLFORD, January 21.—The High School hockey team made it two straight wins in the Interscolastic series by defeating Belleville ihgh school 6 to 2 at Coverts' Arena last night. It was a fast and clean game and the large crowd cheered the clever plays of both teams.

Miss O'Shaughnessy entertained the players of both teams to lunch after the game. The local kids had a shade on the visitors for speed and they also pulled off some beautiful combinatic in the first two periods that had the Belleville defence bewildered—Cliff. Baker, Blute and Reynolds getting in on top of Collings time after time.

It would be hard to pick the star of Principal Greig's boys, they all played good hockey, and each did his share. Reynolds showed a big improvement on shooting and checking. He had "Red" Townsend checked to a frazzle and it was very seldom the Belleville flash got by the husky left winger. He also scored three of the local goals, and was shooting hard and accurate all night "Teddy" Blute turned in another nice game. He had checked in great style and was a source of constant worry to the Belleville puck carrier. He also figured prominently on the defence, being up in every combination play by the locals.

Cliff Baker pulled off some fast rushes and wound up grand night's hockey by scoring two goals alone, one of which was not counted. They did not weaken the front line any. Ward Baker and Thomas were a stone wall in front of Fox, and they kept the Belleville four line well out making them shoot from outside, or chasing them into the corners.

Fox had plenty of shots to handle and got everything he had any chance to see. He was very cool under fire and any team will earn any goals they score on him.

1st Period.

Campbellford secured possession of the face off but Townsend relieved at the Belleville defence and rushed to the other end, where his shot hit Ward Baker on the knee cap. It took a lot out of the little defence man but he gamely continued after a few minutes. The local boys were passing the puck and getting right in on Collings, and the Belleville goalie was having a busy time. Blute was the first to bulge the twine when he slammed home C. Baker's nice pass.

A C. Baker to Blute to Reynolds' combination was responsible for the next two scores; Galloway got Belleville's first from a scrimmage in front of Fox.

Campbellford boys were having much the better of the play, finally through their clever combination and Blute and Reynolds were right through again only to have Collings make a sensational save.

2nd Period.

Townsend moved up to centre for Belleville and reduced the lead to one when he grabbed a loose puck and with nobody to beat but Fox flipped it in the corner. Playing a man short C. Baker and Reynolds kept the Belleville outfit in their own end by clever poke checking and Reynolds beat Collings with a waist high corner shot.

3rd Period.

Belleville tried desperately to get goals but the local kids checked like fiends and the Townsend gang got very few clear shots at Fox. Red worked his head off but he couldn't get close enough to do any damage, with the whole Belleville team up at Campbellford end; Cliff Baker slipped down the right boards and outskated everybody for a well earned goal; he went from centre again around the Belleville defence, but fell right in front of the net. However he slipped the puck in the net but not before the referee had rung his bell and the goal did not count.

Campbellford shot the puck up the ice for the remaining minute of play.

OMEMEE CHURCH'S SACRED PAGEANT

OMEMEE, Jan. 21.—The Sacred New Year's Pageant, which was given in connection with the Sunday evening service in the Methodist Church was unique and beautiful.

Following the reading of the Scripture, the church lights were turned off with the exception of the organ light. A huge candle, representing "the light of the world," was lighted and placed on the pulpit. Twelve young girls wearing white, six on each church aisle, each carrying an unlighted candle, slowly advanced to the altar as the choir sang the first verse of that well-known hymn, "The Light of the World is Jesus." As the singing ceased, the girl representing January, stepped within the altar, and, lighting her candle from 'the light of the world,' recited a verse bearing on the month of good resolutions. Each girl came in turn until every month of the year was gathered within the altar, when they sweetly sang the second verse of "The Light of the World is Jesus." As they finished, the choir took up the familiar refrain in the third verse and chorus, while the months of the year, now with candles burning brightly, slowly marched down the aisle. The pastor, Rev. E. W. Rowland, then delivered a powerful sermon, thus making the service very impressive throughout.

Ladies' Aid Meeting.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Church held their regular monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. L. Morcombe. The president, Mrs. Wm. Henderson, conducted the devotional exercises, after which the minutes of the previous meeting were received. The treasurer gave a detailed account of the expenditure since the last meeting, which left a balance of $106 in the treasury. The president then informed the society that all the indebtedness of renovating the church had been met.

A letter of appreciation from the superintendent and officers of the Sunday School was read, thanking the ladies for the splendid Christmas tree entertainment given by them for the school, the proceeds of which was handed over to the treasurer of the Sunday School.

The matter of loaning the church dishes to outside organizations was opened for discussion. A resolution was passed several years ago to the effect that they were not to be loaned, which made it very awkward for the officers of the society to-day. A new resolution to this effect was placed on the books.

The entertaining of the choir to a banquet was next discussed and the final decision was that the society entertain the choir on Friday evening, January 30th. Committees were appointed to make all arrangement. Mrs. E. Bradburn and Mrs. Wm. Henderson were appointed as a programme committee, and Mrs I. Shields, Mrs. A. Rutherford and Miss A. Neil a menu committee.

The names of all paid members were read by the treasurer, and it was decided to read the names at every monthly meeting, and it is hoped that all membership fees will be paid before the close of the year, April 30th.

Miss L. Parsons kindly offered her home for the February meeting.

Mrs. Rowland closed the meeting with prayer.

Young People's League.

Monday night was citizenship night at the Young People's League. Mr. Vernon Lang was in charge of the meeting, which proved most interesting. The hymns were of a patriotic nature, and the singing was heartily indulged in. The topic for the evening was in the very capable hands of Miss Roberts (teacher at the Orange Line School), who gave a splendid paper on the fatal and the adventurous journey of Captain Scott and party in the quest of the South Pole.

During the evening the Scripture lesson was read by Miss Helen Johnston. Miss Daisy McAughey gave a splendid reading on New Year resolutions, and Miss Reta Kennedy rendered a pretty solo.

The meeting closed with the "Watchword," repeated in unison by the Leaguers.

CANADIAN CLUB HEARD ADDRESS

Professor Tells of "Glengarry Days"—Humor and Pathos.

A meeting of the Women's Canadian Club, attended by about sixty of the members, was held in the Public Library hall Monday afternoon, when an address on "Glengarry Days," was delivered by Prof. J. F. Macdonald, professor of English at Queen's University, Kingston. The speaker was introduced by the president of the society, Mrs. F. D. Kerr, and a vote of thanks was voiced at the conclusion by Miss M. Archer, seconded by Mrs. E. F. Mason.

The professor, in simple, pleasant fashion, with a touch of dry Scotch humour that met with the appreciation of his hearers, and a choice of appropriate words that painted effective little pictures of the people among whom he had been born and for whom he entertains a very manifest affection, gave an interesting insight into the ways and manners of the old Glengarry people, the residents of a section of the country which comprises one of the few romantic spots in the whole Dominion.

Remnants of three Highland regiments were these old settlers of Glengarry county, that bit of Scotch Ontario near the borders of Quebec. Towards the close of the eighteenth century, these disbanded regiments settled in that county and in 1804, a bloc of six hundred of their country people from the Old Land came out to join them. The speaker, who disagreed with the portraits painted of these Glengarry folk by Ralph Connor, said that they were not the mollycoddles and the very pious people pictured in that writer's books, but resembled more closely the Highlanders portrayed in Neil Munro's books, the curious, dour folk with a mixture of good temper and here and there one of the dark, melancholy "fey" Scots, those whose black mood would come upon them in the midst of merrymaking and send them out to the hills to tramp it off.

A list of officers and sub-officers of the three old Highland regiments, as read by the speaker, evoked much merriment because of the preponderance of the "Macdonald" names. Every second man was a "Macdonald," and the good old Highland name rolled off the professor's tongue with an accent that proclaimed much pride in his own family tree.

The system in this old community of distinguishing men of the same name from each other by referring for instance, to a man as "Jimmy Alec Rory Peter Alec," the names of several of his forbears for generations back, was described in detail. Banks in that section made a rule that men from these clans must record on their books and sign their cheques with their proper name, also their nickname, of which every man possessed a sample, and the number of their lot and concession of land. Only in this way was confusion avoided.

"In that curiously aristocratic feudal type of civilization set down in the new world," the old noble families were remembered, and the "laird" of the clan was so dubbed in the new country, regardless of his worldly possessions. The thin-skinned, touchy pride of the Highlander was made a matter of humorous reminiscence, and a good deal of pride was manifested in the exploits in the old Highland games of putting the shot, throwing the hammer, and tossing the caber, of these Glengarry men, giants, many of them, members of a district of which it was said that therein might be raised a regiment of one thousand men, every one of whom stood six feet in his stockings. "I doubt that you could do that today." "Big Rory" McClelland was a master at the art of these Highland games in those [illegible] of six feet four inches in height, [illegible] and twenty to two hundred and forty pounds in weight, with a record in the running broad jump of twenty-one feet.

Dancing for prizes was another of the recreations of these early settlers. "If there was ever a vision of a man bursting with pride it was to see a man who had won over his fellows in the piping competitions, and was then called upon, as champion, to play his favorite tune, or more often, his favorite lament." Dancing of the eightsome reels and the Strathspeys of those times was a strenuous performance, but even the very eldery took part in them without any discomfort.

Speaking of the admirable manner in which the Roman Catholics, the men from Inverness, and the Presbyterians, got along together in those days, the speaker said that in 1851, the poplation of Glengarry was 17,596, of whom 8,870 were Catholics and 7,891 were Presbyterians, with about six hundred of "the fancy religions."

In 1871, after a steady influx of French people from the province of Quebec had been filtering into the county for some years, there were 2,000 of French birth resident there. Today, instead of being eight per cent Highland Scotch, Glengarry is about sixty per cent French. "It is a curious movement," said the professor.

Referring to Sellars' "Tragedy of Quebec", by the former editor of the Huntingdon "Gleaner", in which this movement has been stamped as a clerical one, emanating from the church, the speaker disagreed with this view, as he said that Frenchmen bought up farms at high prices in Glengarry from Roman Catholic tenants as well as Presbyterians, the former Scotch owners being compelled to sell out when the French invasion became more apparent. Archbishop Gauthier, said Professor Macdonald, was a native of Glengarry. His mother was a Macdonald, and he had three tongues; the English, the French and the Gaelic, of so many of the later residents of the country.

Speaking of school-days in Glengarry, and of the old Dominie McIntyre, "who was not a believer in the theory that if you laid violent hands on an urchin, you might brush the bloom from his soul, and it might not rise to the full extent of its angelic powers," the professor related of the experiences of his youth in school-time. The old Dominie regarded with great disgust the introduction into the school curriculum of lessons on Hygiene and Temperance. The taking of such lessons depended on the desire of a certan number of parents in requesting their inclusion in the studies of their children, and the dominie bribed the youngsters to refrain from advocating the course at home, by teaching them the Highland Fling on Friday afternoons. recently.

MILLBROOK NEWS.

Concluding Sermon of Series by Rev. F. W. Howard.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 20. — The concluding sermon in the series, "A Christian," preached by Rev. F. W. Howard during the past month, was given on Sunday evening, the subject, "A Christian, What?" being under consideration. Mr. Howard has used the blackboard the better to impress his theme each time, and the good congregations present each Sunday evening have proved interest taken.

A duet, "Almost Persuaded," by Mrs. G. W. Sayles and Miss Loretta Barnard, made a fitting introduction to the theme presented.

The text was from John 12:26, "If any man serve me, let him follow me." Asking the question, "Why am I a Christian" the answer was given "Because Jesus Christ meets my needs because Christ is unique in character, in knowledge both of humanity and divinity, in His Word, and in the end to which He leads us. No other ever challenged man up the road Jesus Christ leads, culminating as it does, in completeness of life, being, and joy.

What is it to be a Christian? To begin with it is a reasonable, natural thing, within the reach of everyone. And it is to be gone about in a simple natural, common sense way. A simple beginning, and a sublime culmination, is the promise of the gospel which bears a Divine signature not in th power, or art of man to counterfeit.'

Five terms are applied to Christians in the New Testament—disciples, believers, followers, brothers, saints, and each of these states a fact suggest a question, and contains an invitation.

A disciple is one who learns what the teacher came to teach, and there are some called Christians who are either poor students, or none at all since they are travelling on an experience of conversion twenty-five years ago have made no further progress. What did Christ teach? That love is law in the Christian life and is shown by its real fruits, worship, praise, service, reverence, upholding His cause, and supporting His institutions.

Believers are those who trust themselves upon the bridge of salvation which Christ has provided from the land of guilt to the land of forgiveness; from the land of bondage to that of liberty, from the land of fear to that of peace. We make no mistake in trusting Jesus as Saviour Teacher for He will lead to the best time possible in our social pleasures, and in business life. "It isn't making any mistake to say the Golden Rule is good business."

"If any man serve Me let him follow Me," and unless we are disciples and believers we are not likely to follow. Jesus was a good mixer and helper. He solved the dilemna at the wedding feast, changed the house of mourning to one of gladness, and has left us an example to follow in His steps. Closely following we are surest of growth in character and service like our Master, finding His leadership brings us at last to glory.

Discipleship at the feet of Jesus leads to apostleship which means out in the world to work. Linked in Christian brotherhood we become one in affection, in confidence, and in expectation. It adjures selfishness It is pathetic to see so many "playing for keeps," hoarding not giving, thereby losing enjoyment of the best things, piling up treasure, sometimes to the damnation of their children after they are gone, and continually poor spiritually.

"Saints"—many are afraid of the term. Yet "a saint is one who is matured in piety," and is not determined by age for many old folks are not saint and some young people are. There should be a tendency towards this experience as age advances, and without this ,the life being self-centred, grown pessimistic, and unsympathetic.

Sainthood is determined by a choice of God and of godliness, and is the result of being a disciple, believer, follower, and living as brothers with our fellowmen. Failing this, we will draw a cipher in the end.

MARY JONES WALKED 25 MILES 120 YEARS AGO TO GET BIBLE

Since Then the British and Foreign Bible Society Has Changed World.

ROMANTIC STORY

Complete Scriptures in 137 Languages Are Distributed in All Nations.

(By Milton Bronner)

LONDON, Jan 20.—"Mary Jones, a Welsh girl athirst for God's word, walked 25 miles to the nearest village, seeking to buy a Bible, 120 years ago. She had saved her scanty wages for that purpose.

"But Bibles were scarce in Great Britain and elsewhere in the world at that time and Mary's quest nearly ended in failure. The shopkeeper in the village said he had no Bibles for sale. But when the girl wept with grief and disappointment, he said he would part with one of his precious two copies.

"That's one of the greatest Christmas-tide holiday true stories that I know. And it's especially great because out of it grew a unique business—that of selling the Bible translated into all the tongues of men. Earnest men moved by Mary Jones' story founded the British and Foreign Bible Society, which has been going strong now for 120 years and is the senior organization of its kind in the whole world."

The speaker was Dr. John H. Ritson, one of the two managing secretaries of the great organization. We were standing before a glass case, in which is enshrined Mary Jones' own Bible and on the fly-leaf of which is her own autograph.

And this case is situated in the most unique library in the world. It's a big room which contains 16,500 volumes. And every one of them is a Bible or a part of it!

There are versions here in 807 languages. Most of the rare Bibles in the world are here. Fourteen versions before Luther's, in high and low German, are here. So is the famous Virginian Indian Bible printed in America in 1685.

Scholars from all over the world come here to consult precious volumes which are locked up in steel vaults every night because they are more precious than jewels, being absolutely irreplaceable.

"The world," said Dr. Ritson, "gets saturated with automobiles, with cameras, with inventions of various kinds, but it never gets saturated with Bibles. No other book approaches it. Homer has been rendered into more than a score of modern laguages; Shakespeare has been translated into 40; Tolstoy into 50; 'The Imitation of Christ' into 40; 'Pilgrim s'Progress' into 118.

Hundreds of Languages.

"But these are nothing compared to the versions of the Bible. Our society has spread the Gospel in 566 languages and dialects. These include the complete Bible in 137 languages; the complete New Testament in 138 more, while some book or books of the Scriptures have gone out in 291 others.

"Wherever missionaries preach the Gospel to the tribes of men, there an endeavor is made to give the people a Bible they themselves can read. Our society often pays the expenses of the missionary who makes the translation. Often there is no written language and the missionary has to invent one.

"You can imagine how hard it is when I tell you that in Bantu, a wide-spread negro-language, there are words that sound like a series of clicks. A band of happy Bantus talking sounds like a flock of contented hens. Sometimes the difficulty is to find a word in the native language that it will give an idea of some word in our language. Often this leads to something very beautiful and poetic.

Peculiar Words.

"For instance, I have recently returned from a trip in various parts of the world on the society's business. One of the places I visited was Raratonga, a little island in the Pacific. The natives have no word for conscience, so we made it "heart-judge.'

"They have no word for 'forever,' so it became very beautifully—'time-on-on-still-on.'

"'I will not leave thee nor forsake thee,' became 'I will never leave thee nor forsake thee, no never-on-on-on.'

"During the past year we have made eight new versions of the Bible. Three are in native African languages; another is in Corsican; still another in Latgalian for Esthonia; another in Nosu for the aboriginal tribes of West China; still another for the Indians of British ujana; and lastly a version of the New Testament for the people of one of the Solomon Islands.

"Some figures are illuminating. Since the society was organized we have sold 343,000,000 copies of the Scriptures of which only about 102,500,000 were in English. We are now selling an average of 30,000 copies of the Bible every day of the year.

"In China alone we sell every year as many as there are letters in the English Bible—three and a quarter million. We have gotten to the point now where in spite of after-the-war increases in expenses, we are selling the New Testament as cheaply as two pence (four cents) and the Gospels for a half penny ,one cent)."

Cotton Trade Depressed.

Ouput Is Not Being Absorbed —Factories May Reduce Hours.

MANCHESTER, Jan. 21.—(Canadian Press.)—Those in the Lancashire cotton trade who not long ago were hoping for a recovery from the prolonged depression and even looking for a boom have been disappointed. The official statement issued by the master cotton spinners federation reveals that the trade is faring badly, the output of yarn not being absorbed and stocks rapidly increasing.

The statement says that in the business, especially in the American section, reduction in working hours is likely to be necessary in the near future unless there is an improvement.

RADIO TO AID POLICE.

International Code Has Been Completed After Several Months' Work.

TORONTO, Jan. 21.—(Canadian Press). — An instance of the part radio will ultimately play in police work is the fact that an international code for radio use has been completed after several months' work, and is now in actual use between the guardians of law in American and Canadian cities. This was spoken of in a recent address by Chief Dickson of Toronto.

Remarking that a police force was now an international organization, he said this code would enable messages to be broadcast to police everywhere without the ordinary listener-in being able to understand them.

Newly-discovered methods of sending photographs by radio would be of invaluable assistance to the police, the Chief declared. The picture of a wanted man would be flashed all over Europe and America in a few hours if future developments of this invention proceeded as expected.

FRANCE HELPS IN CONFERENCE

Brings in Recommendation on Opium That Tides Over Crisis.

A NEW PLAN.

GENEVA, Jan. 21 — (Canadian Press).—The crisis in the international opium conference threatened through the failure of the British and United States delegates to agree on a proposition for suppression of opium smoking in the Far East, seemed somewhat tempered at the conclusion of this morning's session as a result of mediation by France. This took the form of a new proposal by Edouard Daladier, French Minister of Colonies, that the various countries engage to abolish opium smoking with fifteen years after the council of the league of nations has officially recorded the fact that the growth of opium in producing countries had shown appreciable reduction.

The French plan gives China two years to curb her production and provides for the league council making investigation the third year to determine whether the reduction was appreciable.

Viscount Cecil of Chetwood, Great Britain's principal delegate, in opening today's session declared the situation was critical and that he hoped what he had to say would be construed calmly and as being necessitated by his stern sense of duty.

Lord Cecil said he recognized the deep sincerity of the United States and her anxiety to solve the opium problem. He assured the delegates that he never joined in the jibes sometimes levelled at the United States.

SOVIET RUSSIA MOURNS LENIN

"Father of Bolshevism" Honored by Silence in Russia's Factories.

BUILDINGS DRAPED.

MOSCOW, January 21. — All Soviet Russia was in mourning today, the first anniversary of the death of Nikolai Lenin, whose memory among the Communists is venerated as the founder of the Soviet Regime.

The official Soviet buildings at home and abroad, were ordered to be draped with red flags, fringed by crepe, and all stores, theatres and restauants were directed to close.

The sale of liquor was forbidden. There were none of the usual street parades or outward demonstrations characteristic of Bolshevic functions, silence being the dominant feature of to-day's commemorative exercises.

Throughout the day long streams of visitors, including school children, filed through Lenine's wooden musoleum, in the Red Square, to view the wax like features of the "Father of Bolshevism."

A huge black and white portrait of the late premier was displayed on the Kremlin walls above the tomb, flanked by gigantic gilt numerals, "1924-1925."

In the towns and villages factory work and traffic ceased for five minutes as a mark of respect. Soviet newspapers printed long articles detailing Lenine's life and achievements and millions of pamphlets containing his writings were circulated among the masses.

WEST'S REVENUE ALMOST EQUALS RECORD OF 1923

Only Ten Millions Below Returns From the Record Crop.

DEBTS BEING PAID

WINNIPEG, Jan. 21.—The Manitoba Free Press has issued its statistical number, covering the returns from the farms of the Prairie Province, or, more properly, the returns of the larger items, such as the wheat and other grains sold between August 1 and December 31, the sales of butter, cheese and livestock of all kinds, and the returns from potato, root and forage crops. There are also partial returns from sales of poultry, honey and like commodities, and these figures indicate that the movement of such items from the farms has set in motion over three hundred and eighty-four million dollars. Some of the larger items in this total are the following:

For all wheat inspected and passed, Winnipeg price basis, Fort William $215,450,123; this amount represents 144,471,358 bushels, and during the same period in 1923 the amount inspected was 263,090,080. So that this year the amount inspected was 118,618,732 bushels less than last year, but th amount of money received was only some $29,545,000 less, so that the higher prices have in a very considerable measure made up for the shortage of the crop. The percentage of contract grades this year works out at 60.2, as against 85.28 last year. The inspection of wheat does not cover all that has been marketed. The actual marketings at country elevators were 165,708,945 bushels, and as nearly as can be ascertained these marketings were divided between the provinces as follows:—

Manitoba has marketed about 8,000,000 bushels more than in the same period in 1923, which reflects the better crop harvested, while Saskatchewan and Alberta, both having suffered heavy loss from drought and other causes, have fallen far behind last year; Saskatchewan 117,579,337 bushels less, and Alberta 43,376,509 bushels less.

August	$1.43½	$1.05½
September	$1.43½	$1.06½
October	$1.59½	$ .97½
November	$1.64½	$ .97½
December	$1.72½	$ .93½

Total Farm Revenue.

Possibly the most interesting fact is that in spite of the very great shrinkage in deliveries of grain, the total returns from the farm products on which it has been possible to secure figures, are slightly less than ten millions lower than in 1923, when the West harvested the biggest crop in its history. The Free Press has taken the opportunity of its statistical number to publish a revised estimate of the crop. In making this revised estimate it is pointed out that only once before in 20 years has any revised estimate been published. On the previous occasion the revision was made on a decreased acreage issued by the Dominion government. This time it was considered wise, owing to the fact that a heavy frost came directly after the September estimate was issued, and also that the threshing season was such that there were considerable losses, and, further, that considerable grain is still unthreshed, much of which is not likely to yield merchantable wheat. The estimate as it now stands is made from the returns specially asked for from the paper, and from 340 local correspondents, and shows a decrease in acreage yield of wheat of two and a half bushels in Manitoba about two bushels in Saskatchewan, and less than a bushel in Alberta. The total reduction for the three provinces runs just under twenty-seven million six hundred thousand bushels, the estimate being 268,263,449, as against 295,858,791 as estimated on September 15.

There is little change in the estimate of coarse grains, these having been very low in the first estimate, but in Manitoba the yield of barley has been advanced five bushels per acre, and flax four. The question has been asked from the East what is the outlook for next spring? Are the heavy snows reported in the West an indication of better crops in 1925? There are two Western saws that used to be heard more frequently in the old days than of later years. They are: "Plenty of Snow—Plenty of Wheat," and "Plenty of Mosquitoes—Plenty of Wheat," and they both turn on the same thing, namely, moisture. Plenty of snow indicates a good supply of moisture to start the crop in the spring, and if mosquitoes are abundant in the warm months, it is a pretty sure indication that there is sufficient moisture to keep the crop growing as it should.

There was more rain last fall than has been the fortune of the West for some years, and the frost came early and was severe. This means that it has followed the moisture to a great depth in the ground, and will be there to furnish sub-surface moisture far into the growing season. The snows are heavier than for a number of years, which indicates plenty of surface moisture to start the crop. In other words, the present winter indicates normal, healthy conditions, and, given favorable spring weather, the crops of 1925 should get away to a good start.

Meantime, the financial situation, particularly in Manitoba, is of great interest. Mortgage and loan companies are almost unanimous in reporting that principal and interest alike on loans has been met to an extent very much in excess of expectations. Merchants report farmers' accounts well met, and buying very satisfactory. There are districts where conditions are not good, but the province of Manitoba, as a whole, has not only turned the corner, but has gone a considerable number of yards on a newer and brighter road; and in Saskatchewan and Alberta while the report on the reduction of indebtedness is not quite so good, it shows very substantial improvement also.

Cattle Licked Poison Meant To Kill Vermin And Several Head Died

CAVAN, Jan. 21.—Mr. W. T. Donaldson had the misfortune to lose several head of fine cattle last week. A preparation had been gotten and put on the cattle to rid them of vermin. Some of the cattle licked the poison and died. Others of the herd are still feeling the effects of the poison.

Mr. R. Matchett sold a Durham calf to Mr. J. Hickson, Manvers, last Tuesday and delivered it at Bethany on Wednesday. The calf brought a good price.

Beef cattle of good breeding are more in demand this year than they have been for the past two years.

Wheat is $1.55 at Cavan this week; this is an increase of five cents over last week's price. Alsike is worth up to $8.00.

UNSOUND MARES CAUSE TROUBLE

WEAK POINTS TELL

In driving about the country, and also in cities, our attention is often called to the unsoundness of horses, and the question arises, Why are there so many unsound horses? Unsoundness, in most cases, is due to one of two causes: either the animal has a poor conformation and is, hence, predisposed to unsoundness of various kinds or else he has been used unjustly. The horse of good conformation, if properly used, ought to pass through life sound. "Accidents will happen in the best of families," so with horses, accidents will happen, but these account for only a few of the cases of unsoundness.

If carefully studied, the majority of cases of unsoundness will be found to be due to poor breeding. Too often the mare which is more or less broken down is used for breeding. We seem to forget the great law of nature that like produces like, or else hope that in our own cases it will be set aside and that we will get a colt of good conformation from a dam or sire of poor conformation, or again, we rely upon the strong points in the sire to overcome the weak points in the dam. These cannot be relied upon. Each attempt is an experiment without sufficient chances for its success to warrant its being tried.

The question may arise: Is an unsound mare ever fit for breeding? It depends upon the cause of the unsoundness, upon her conformation. If the disease causing her unsoundness was produced without due provocation, or if there was some reason for it, but not enough if the conformation had been right, I certainly would not breed her. If, on the other hand, the unsoundness was due to an accident, then she may be bred. In other words, it is the conformation that is transmitted, not the unsoundness itself.

TEMPERATURES OF ANIMALS DIFFER

Each Class Has a Range of Its Own— Indicative of Health.

The temperatures of domestic animals are of interest in that each class has a normal temperature range of its own.

Horses.

The horse in health will have a temperature not lower than 99.5° or higher than 101.3°. There are exceptions, of course, to all rules, and a few animals may be normal at higher or lower temperatures than those given.

Cattle.

The normal temperature range for cattle is 100.4° to 103.1°, which covers the case pretty well. When a bovine animal's temperature goes above 103.1° it can be considered above normal, and that there is some disturbance within.

Sheep and Swine.

Sheep, to be considered normal, give a temperature reading between 102.2° to 104.5°. The pig's normal temperature can be looked for between 100.4° and 104°. Some individuals run high and others low, but all are steady within two degrees during period of health.

Poultry.

Poultry have very high normal temperatures, 106.7° to 108.5°. Such temperatures as enjoyed by poultry in health could not be endured by any other of our domestic animals for more than a few days.

High Temperatures Indicate Fever.

Any deviation from the normal temperature is taken as a source of information regarding the state of health of our domestic animals. High temperatures indicate feverish condition, while sub-normal temperatures indicate decline and weakening of the individual to a point of grave danger. Exercise raises the temperature, and rest lowers it, hence we get higher readings in the evening than in the morning.—L. Stevenson, Dept. of Extension, O. A. College, Guelph.

CANADA LEADS THE WORLD IN WHEAT EXPORT

Americans Wonder What is Happening as Dominion Steps Ahead.

UPSETS THE DOPE.

Canadian Weather and the Wheat Increasingly Affect U. S. Grain Prices.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—The American farmer is puzzled about the wheat situation this year. It looks, at this writing, as if we will have a wheat crop of 814,000,000 bushels. A year ago the crop was 786,000,000 bushels. This is an increase of 28,000,000 bushels.

At the same time, the price has jumped up about 35 per cent. What is the matter? Has the law of supply and demand been repealed so that now the more we produce the more we will get per bushel for it?

It looks that way until we study the matter, and then we find that the United States is having less and less to say every year about the price of wheat, while our northern neighbor, Canada, is having more and more to say about it every year.

The wheat market is a world market. It is commonly said that the price is set in Liverpool, and it is the exportable surplus of wheat that has the most direct bearing on the world price. During the war years, the United States was far and away the biggest contributor to the European wheat supply, but the last two years have seen her taking second place to Canada.

The development of Canada as a wheat producer has been phenomenal, rivalling our own development during the '80's and '90's. In 1900, Canada grew only about 2,000,000 acres of wheat, while last year she sowed over 23,000,000 acres, and the end is not yet. Conservative men say that only about one-fourth of Canada's available wheat area in the three prairie provinces is now being used.

Canadian Weather Problem.

Canada, however, while blessed with an abundance of land, is not always blessed with favorable weather and abundant rainfall. Her yields of wheat per acre show a very extreme variation from year to year. Since 1900, extreme variations in yield from 10.1 bushels to 26.0 bushels per acre have occurred. During the same period the extremes in the United States have only been from 12.2 to 17 bushels per acre.

This difference is mainly due to the more even rainfall and wider area covered by the wheat belt of the United States. In 1923, Canada had a bumper crop of over 474,000,000 bushels, while this year the crop is estimated at 282,000,000 bushels. This variation in production naturally has a great effect on the surplus available for export and upon the price which the farmer of the United States receives for his wheat.

From now on the American farmer and grain dealer, when wondering what is going to happen to the price of wheat, will watch the weather reports from Canada. The exports of wheat and wheat-flour from the United States during the fiscal year ending July 1, 1924, were in excess of 100,000,000 bushels. Whether we, in the United States, have a high protective tariff or not, so long as we continue to be an exporting nation, Canadian weather and Canadian wheat will have an increasingly important bearing on the price of our own wheat.—R. F. Taber.

HOW TO RAISE DUCKS.

Should Be Fed Like a Baby on Bread and Milk When Young.

After hatching, in about one day's time, place before them bread and milk mixed [illegible], and a pan of sand and water. Be sure your ducklings get sand and water at starting. Ducks will thrive if water is before them all the time. It is their nature to want water. After a few days on bread and milk, add bran or fine corn meal or fine cracked corn to the bread and milk. Always use milk to mix duck feed.

As the ducks grow older feed cracked corn and wheat. At younger age corn bread and milk is good for a change in feed. Let the ducks have green feed also. If you do not want them out of pens gather green feed yourself for them. Do not keep ducks shut up except at night. Let them in the creek and watch them to keep crows away. Be careful of turtles in creeks also.

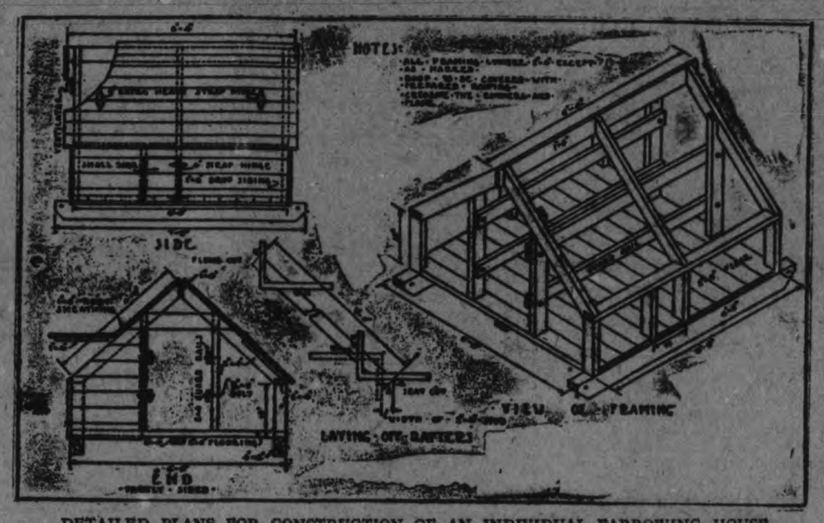
When ducks are nearly feathered out feed whole corn mixed with some cracked corn. Then at last whole corn and wheat altogether. They will not want to eat it at first, but do not feed them too much and they'll eat it. Feed ducks three times a day, like ourselves.

Keep their drinking water as clean as possible. They want water right beside them in a few weeks if you stay and watch them, allowing them to be in water only a few minutes. Do not let ducks sleep in a muddy or damp pen.

Yield Of Irrigated Belt Averaged $26 To The Acre

LETHBRIDGE, Jan. 21.—Irrigated crops on the C.P.R. irrigation block in Southern Alberta produced in 1924 a gross return of $26.53 per acre, according to the annual report of the project manager, S. G. Porter. This is an increase of $7.72 per acre over 1923 when the gross average was only $18.81 per acre, the lowest on record. During 1924 the 52,521 acres of irrigated land under crop produced a gross return of $1,351,544.73, but this does not take into account the returns from livestock, poultry and dairying. Counting the latter, and the production from dry lands under the ditch, the average per acre is raised to $30.79. There is a margin of $12 an acre when the figures are compared with dry land production.

HOW TO BUILD A HOG PEN



DETAILED PLANS FOR CONSTRUCTION OF AN INDIVIDUAL FARROWING HOUSE

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 21.—An individual farrowing house, of simple and sturdy construction, has been designed by John H. Wuichet and H. P. Twitchell, of the agricultural extension service at the Ohio State University here.

Struck by the need of an adequate shelter for the brood sow, especially during cold weather, these men have put up an individual house for her comfort.

"Upon the shelter provided and the surrounding conditions," they point out, "will depend very largely the success in raising the litter, provided proper feeding methods are also followed. Where one already has a house of the community type, several of the individual houses should also be provided. Where only a few sows are kept the individual house will probably be the most satisfactory and economical type to use."

Advantages.

The features claimed for the individual houses are:

1. It can be moved easily and frequently to fresh ground. This is important in the control of swine parasites and diseases, as it has been definitely determined that the most prolific source of parasites and diseases are old and unsanitary hog houses, lots and pastures.

2. If the house is properly built it will provide for a maximum of sunlight and ventilation.

3. It permits of easy cleaning.

4. In cold weather the small individual house will usually be warmer without artificial heat than the houses containing several pens.

It is not meant to be implied that all the advantages are in favor of the individual house, but only to suggest that it has a definite place on practically every farm where hogs are kept.

Guard Rails.

The house pictured here is a combination of the farrowing crate with the individual farrowing house. The particular feature is the provision for guard rails through the center of the house, which makes it practically impossible for the sow to tramp or lie on her pigs, yet gives room for the sow to lie down comfortably to nurse the pigs.

Holes should be bored about two or three inches apart in the uprights on each side of the door to allow adjustment of the rails for height to conform to the size of the sow; adjustment for width may be had by placing one or both pairs of rails on the inner side of the uprights.

The use of the guard rails in the center position is to be recommended only for those sows that habitually overlie their pigs or for those that are particularly nervous and irritable. Even for sows of that kind, it probably will be necessary to use the guard rails in this position for only a few days, until the pigs are strong enough to take care of themselves fairly well.

After that time the door at one end of the house may be fastened shut, and three of the rails fastened around the inside of the house in the usual manner about eight inches from the floor. The other should be placed up over the door out of the way. If no trouble is anticipated, the guard rails may be placed in the latter position before the sow farrows.

Light and Air.

Another feature of the house is the hinged roof, which permits of a vast amount of adjustment for both sunlight and ventilation, and yet affords protection from rain and direct winds, all important features of any farrowing house. It also allows the hersdman the utmost freedom in taking care of the pigs and cleaning out the house without getting inside.

Where the rails are in use through the center and it seems advisable to keep the sow confined, the small door at each side of the pen will be found convenient in giving the pigs a chance to exercise without releasing the sow. One of these doors may be eliminated where a slight decrease in cost would be a factor.

For extremely large sows, it will be necessary to increase the dimensions of the house, but for average sized sows and for gilts, the dimensions given will suffice. On some farms where the natural drainage is good or where the heuse is frequently moved to fresh ground, the floor may be omitted. This will materially decrease the cost of the house, but it will be necessary in that case to provide sills both on and between the runners.

The doors on each end may be hinged from the top or from the side When hinged from the top, they may be fastened up completely out of the way, which is an advantage in that the door is less likely to be broken off by hogs running or rubbing against it. Care should be taken to see that the battens on these doors are placed at least three inches in from the edge, so as not to interfere with closing the door when the guard rails are in the center position.

Roofing.

The plans and bill of materials call for the roof to be covered with prepared roofing. This should be securely fastened to the door part of the roof first and be lapped over underneath and stripped with a lath to prevent the hogs from rubbing it loose along the bottom edge. Then the roofing material on the upper part should be allowed to extend four to six inches below the break in the roof, and securely nailed down about three inches above the break.

The cost of the house may be somewhat cheapened by using ship-lap instead of plain lumber for the roof, in which case the prepared roofing may be omitted. However, a flap of roofing material should cover the breaks in the roof at the comb and where the roof-door joins the stationary part of the roof. This latter strip should be calked along the upper edge either with calking compound, asphaltum (which usually is furnished with a roll of roofing) or thick paint.

SWEET CLOVER IS A GREAT CROP SAYS MAN WHO HAD TO BE SHOWN

By G. A. CARPENTER.

I have been growing sweet clover since 1914, but the first few years all I realized was failure, excepting a few scattered stalks which supplied inoculation for the next sowing. However, since then I have been growing the crop very successfully, and from my experience I will give a few reasons why other farmers should use sweet clover:

First. Sweet clover improves the soil much more rapidly than red clover, because it has a greater root system which penetrates the subsoil deeper than red clover. The long roots loosen up the subsoil, and at the same time put humus in it.

Second. Sweet clover will grow on the poorest kind of soil, if it has lime and inoculation, and in a few years will more than double the productiveness of the soil.

Third. Sweet clover will produce more pasture to the acre than any other legume. I never keep cattle off when it is wet with rain or dew, and I have never had a single case of bloat, while red clover or alfalfa would be dangerous.

Fourth. If the hay crop is short, a nice crop of sweet clover can be harvested after wheat harvest, about September 1, which makes the finest kind of hay for any kind of stock. I have cut one ton to the acre at this time. The following summer it makes its main crop. If wanted for pasture it will be ready about two weeks before other pasture is ready. If cut for hay it should be cut when about 30 or 36 inches high, or before the buds appear. The hay cures slowly, but when it reaches the proper stage to cut, cut it rain or shine, let it remain until nicely wilted, then rake in light windows, and forget about it until it gets dry. For me, sometimes, this has been two weeks. Then as soon as the dew is off in the morning, and before it gets dry, turn it upside down to dry out the underside a little better; haul in the afternoon. Rain does not bleach or hurt it nearly as much as it does red clover or alfalfa.

Fifth. Sweet clover makes better bee pasture than anything I know of.

Sixth. Sweet clover grows so fast it smothers out weeds.

Cattle that are not used to sweet clover hay do not take to it so readily at first, but they soon learn to like it.

Always insist on good seed and see that it contains no noxious weeds. I sow my seed in the hull, because the hull forms a blanket which holds moisture and assists in germination, and if liquid inoculation is used the hull will absorb and hold the inoculation better than the hulled seed.

Try sweet clover and you won't regret it.

Alberta Butter Export Doubled During 1924

CALGARY, Jan. 21.—Members of the provincial government have expressed considerable satisfaction with the manner that Alberta has come through the year 1924. Premier Greenfield emphasized the point that substantial progress has been made toward a return to normal and that revenues have been well sustained despite conditions in some parts of the province. In the premier's opinion, Alberta has moved a long way during the past year in the direction of agricultural development. Hon. George Hoadley, minister of agriculture, states that the crop statisitcs, which are compiled each year in connection with the Dominion government statistics bureau, go to show that it has been a profitable year for farmers who had at least average yields. A record year in butter is reported by Mr. Hoadley. The total production has amounted to some 20,000,000 pounds compared with 17,000,000 pounds last year. More than 4,000,000 pounds was graded for export, or nearly double the exports of the previous year.

CAN YOU REVERSE-

In a pit village Jack's landlady had a few more lodgers beside himself, and a bullock's head often made its entry to the lodgings for potted meat. Jack got fed up, and desired a change of diet—rump steak, for instance, or some joint. The butcher's boy called as usual with the head as ordered, but Jack, getting his eye on it as it made its appearance, exclaimed: "Lad, next week, when thoo cums, bring the beast in fall forst!"

Farmers Busy Sawing When The Early Winter Speeded Up Lumbering

EAST EMILY, Jan. 21.—The order of the day in this district now is sawing wood.

The sawing machines are busy in this locality as the farmers got their wood out of the swamp early this season, as the weather has been so favorable for the work. Some of the farmers have taken advantage of the good sleighing and are busy drawing wood to Peterboro'.

Owing to the recent snowstorms which have visited the district recently, some of the roads are quite filled in. The roads are so bad in some places that they had to be broken in the fields.

EUROPEAN DISEASE IN AMERICAN HENS

European Fowl Pest is Considered a Very Dangerous Ailment.

ITHACA, N.Y., Jan. 21.—Discovery of a fatal European disease among poultry in the United States, which had first been made by Dr. Veranus A. Moore, of Cornell University, has been confirmed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The disease is the European fowl pest. It is characterized by its extremely infectious nature, its rapid spread and its high fatality.

Realizing the seriousness of the infection, some of the eastern states have already ordered an embargo against shipments from the poultry-producing states of the middle west. Congress has appropriated $100,000 toward fighting the disease, and suppressive measures have been formulated by the bureau of animal industry at Washington.

Other poultry diseases may be mistaken for fowl pest, experts here point out. But, like foot-and-mouth disease with livestock, it is dangerous enough to encourage all precaution, even where the disease may be found later to be a less serious kind.

Conspicuous symptoms are depression and loss of appetite followed by prostration. The comb and wattles usually become purple and sometimes swollen. A sticky exuding substance may paste the eyelids together, clog the nasal passages and even obstruct the windpipe, causing labored breathing.

Since treatment of infected birds is futile, those who have been working on this disease say, the aim should be to prevent its spread. The first fowls showing such symptoms should be killed immediately by a method which would guard against contamination. The carcasses should be burned or buried.

The healthy fowls should be moved to new quarters and watched carefully for symptoms. The houses and runs should be cleaned and disinfected with a 5 per cent. solution of carbolic acid.

The drinking water may be made antiseptic by adding one-third teaspoon of permanganate of potash to each gallon.

PREVENT SPROUTING OF STORED TUBERS

Bad Habits of Rested Potatoes Should Be Nipped in Bud.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 21.—Now is the time when stored potatoes have ended their "rest" periods and enter the danger era of sprouting.

According to John Bushnell, potato specialist here, this "rest period" ends about Jan. 1. During this time potatoes do not sprout.

To prevent sprouting after this stage, he advises farmers to keep storage temperature below 42 degrees, at which the potatoes will remain dormant.

The rest period of late potatoes lasts about 100 days after the plants die. For early varieties the period is shorter. During this period there is no trouble in storing them, as they will not sprout even at room temperatures.

Pinfeathers

When adding medicine to the drinking water, do not use metal vessels unless they are agate or porcelain lined. Earthenware water dishes are cheap and always preferable.

Crossing produces stamina, but it does damage by destroying the purity of the breed.

Happy, contented, singing hens are found in congenial environment. They are in the best of health and profit.

Breeding stocks hould be purchased early, so the fowls will become accustomed to their new home before the hatching season arrives.

CAUSE OF GLADNESS.

'Twas eventide. The boy stood on the bridge, clapping his hands vigorously. Beyond the brow of the hill a dull-red glow suffused the sky.

"Ah, little boy," remarked the stranger, who was rather near-sighted. "It does my heart good to see you appreciate you beautiful cloud effect."

"Yes, sir," replied the lad, "I've been watching it for ten minutes." Upon the boy's face there appeared a smile of radiant bliss.

"A real poet without doubt, and do you watch the sunset often my boy?"

"Sunset? Why, that ain't sunset, gov'nor, that's the village school burning down."

BOBBY BURNS A POOR FARMER BUT GOOD POET

CROWDED LIFE

Some wise person once made the remrak that "a great man is like other people—only more so"—the idea being that ordinary folks do both good deeds and bad deeds, and are sometimes clever and sometimes make fools of themselves, whereas the great man does sensible deeds on a large scale and makes a fool of himself on a large scale too.

The story of Robert Burns, the great farmer-poet, as told by Andrew Dakers in a recent book, is very largely the story of a man who made a fool of himself, on a very, very great scale. He could not resist a drink or the eyes of a pretty girl, says Mr. Dakers, and because of these two weaknesses he was in trouble of some kind or other most of his life. But the author of this book is a pretty canny Scotchman himself, and, after granting that Bobby Burns did act like a fool a good deal of the time, he asks how many men there were in Burns' country in his own time who lived more soberly, and also how many men there are who are worth their salt who haven't made fools of themselves in some way or other at some time or other.

Robert Burns' life, after he had reached the age of twenty-three, was crowded with one love affair after another—one of them very unhappy, another as beautiful as anything in his own poetry, and still another one just plain funny. There were plenty of gossips around to turn them all into scandal; but Burns lived to turn them into the greatest love poems in the language, and to silence the gossips.

Handsome, unusually strong—he could lift a plow and toss it on the back of a wagon without seeming to exert himself—and with "an easy way about him," Bobby Burns was just as attractive to the opposite sex as they were to him. That was how, when one morning his dog ran over a sheet that had been stretched on a lawn to dry in the sun, and he went up to apologize to the girl who had put it there, a few minutes later he had conquered, and had been conquered by, Jean Armour, the "lovely Jean," who later became his wife. But Jean's father disapproved of Burns—not because of the gossip about him, but because he was penniless—and tore up the marriage paper he had given to her.

Down on his luck and generally disgusted with life, Burns decided to leave Scotland for good and go to the Indies—and he prepared to publish his book of poems now, for no other reason than to get the money to pay for his passage. In the meantime his plans were changed by his meeting the pretty Mary Campbell, and becoming engaged to her: but his "Highland Mary" became suddenly ill and died. It was after this that the poet lost his balance a little, and began a ridiculous high-brow kind of philandering—though innocent enough—with a Mrs. M'Lehose.

But Bobby Burns soon got his feet on the ground again, in spite of the fact that at the age of twenty-seven he found himself famous and the lion of the social world of Edinburgh. He married Jean Armour, whose father's attitude had changed once Bobby's pockets were jingling with coin, settled down on a farm at Ellisland, and took a position as exciseman for the district. This time he learned a lesson that a great many men before and after him have had to learn—that making a living out of farming is a job that doesn't leave time for many other occupations. He died a poor man, and one of his last letters on record was a plea to a friend for ten pounds to save him from a debtor's jail.

Burns' tribute to his wife, given in a letter to another friend, is worth quoting:

"The most placid good nature and sweetness of disposition; a warm heart, gratefully devoted with all its powers to love me; vigorous health and sprightly cheerfulness, set off to the best advantage by a more than common handsome figure—these, I think, in a woman, may make a good wife, though she should never had read a page but the Scriptures of the Old and New Testament, nor have danced in a brighter assembly than a penny pay wedding."

Loaning Company To Put New Millions Into West

WINNIPEG, Jan. 21.—As a result of a personal investigation made by a number of its leading officials, one of the largest loaning companies in Eastern Canada is preparing to place several millions in mortgage loans in Western Canada during the coming year. The company already has many millions in the West, and in company with other companies has been exercising extreme caution in making further advances. However, the heads of the company visited many parts of the West and were pleased with the tendencies which they saw developing. In view of the feeling that the West has learned the lesson of economy and will develop in future, on the whole along sound lines, the officials have recommended to the directors that the company continue to loan in the Prairie Provinces. At the same time, Vancouver was picked as a desirable loaning field, and the company is preparing to place several millions there.

Tenth Successive Victory For Peterboro Virtually Clinchs Engagement in Group Play-off—College Fighting Spirit Failed Against Petes' Speed and Hockey Form.

DEFENSE HAD BIG SHARE IN GAME.

McLeod and Parker Scored Three of the Four Goals and Assisted in Another—Dwyer Kept the Gate Barred.

(By F. D. C.)

The Peterboro Hockey Club Seniors ran their string of victories up to ten, and added a new victim to their list, at the Toronto Arena last night, when they beat the University of Toronto sextette 4 goals to 1, thus making a clean sweep of the Toronto end of their schedule in Group One.

With three games to play at home, and their only other "road" fixture with the Hamilton Rowing Club, the Petes have worked into a position that makes their presence in the group play-off almost a certainty.

Last night's game was far from the best in which the Petes have participated in Toronto. The Petes were always in front and although the Collegians displayed the fighting spirit that is characteristic of all Varsity teams and never stopped trying, the group leaders performed as if the result of the game was a foregone conclusion.

They blanked Varsity in the first two periods and picked up a goal themselves in each session, going into the last dash, two counters to the good. The chief excitement of the game was concentrated in the first few minutes of the last period when Varsity grabbed their only marker and heartened by this success, made a desperate efort to pull up on even terms. The Petes met this spurt by letting out an extra link themselves, and McLeod settled the argument by a pretty rush that put the visitors again two goals in front, and the game dropped back to the far-from-spectacular pace of the first two periods.

Varsitiy Minus Hudson.

Varsity were without Louie Hudson, who had his leg hurt in a game against McGill Saturday, and his speedy skating was missed altothough the Arena experts seemed to think the Collegians had more team work and were just as effective without the fast Hudson. Connie Smythe's squad gave the Petes a hard and a clean fight, and went down with colors flying. Led by "Red" Porter and Taylor, their two good defence ment, the students never gave up the fight, and in the last stages they threw everybody up on the attack, casting all ideas of defence overboard. It did not get anything, but it was a demonstration of "college spirit" that won the admiration of the fans.

Porter was probably Varsity's outstanding performer. The flame-headed defence man had a world of speed and he made rush after rush that might have succeded against less effective opposition. Taylor, his defence mate, was also very useful, while Sullivan in the nets turned in a fine performance. He had no chance with the three that beat him and he blocked a host at close range.

On the line Hugh Plaxton looked the most effective, although he had little on the rest of the attacking division, all of whom gave every ounce they had.

Defence Scintillated.

The chief honors on the Peterboro team were carried off by the defence. Dwyer was almost invincible in the nets, his work being done with his usual cool effectiveness and and he never looked better between the posts. Parker and McLeod not only were most effective defensively, turning back rush after rush, but they imparted most of the punch to the Pete's attack. Parker got two of the goals, and McLeod scored one and carried the puck up and gave Ranger a pass for the fourth, so that the defence pair were responsible for all their team's counters.

Only in flashes did the attacking division show their best form, either individually on as a line, although there was some brilliant hockey at times by all the advance guard.

The spotty performance was likely due to a feeling that the game was always safe as it was noticeable that when Varsity threatened early in the last period the Petes' line woke up in a hurry and showed their stuff.

It was a remarkably clean game, the only two penalties falling to the Petes, Bailey being chased for kicking the puck and Rose for slashing. The best of feeling was in evidence between the two teams.

The line-up:

Opened Slowly.

Play opened very slowly and there was no excitement for the first few minutes until Parker got away for a couple of spectacular rushes that came near scoring. The Petes were doing most of the effective attacking, but their shooting was off the target, Ranger in particular missing several good openings. Bailey got a penalty for kicking the puck, and Varsity gave Dwyer a chance to show his class. Rose got his wind knocked out by a body check and retired for the rest of the period.

Twelve minutes after the game began Parker opened the scoring when he broke away with one of his spectacular dashes and worked in close to beat Sullivan.

The Petes should have had a couple more counters before the period ended, and Varsity also missed a glorious chance when Plaxton took a pass close in and shot wide.

The second session was not much faster than the first. Varsity tried hard but had not much luck in penetrating Peterboro's defence, and none at all in beating Dwyer. The Petes were within the scoring zone enough to have fattened their lead, but it was not until seventeen minutes had gone that they finally turned the trick. A Varsity rush was smashed, and the Petes broke four abreast, with only two men to beat. McLeod was the puck-carrier, and when the defence was reached, flipped the rubber to Ranger, who went in close to score. Sullivan did a nose dive in a desperate effort to save, but the puck hit him and dropped into the net. The period ended with the Petes 3 to 0 in front.

The chief fireworks were provided at the beginning of the third session.

It started tamely enough, but after three minutes going, Plaxton got away nicely, and although he was checked, the rubber carooned to Kirkpatrick, who banged in a fast one.

Varsity saw a chance for victory, and they came on like wild men. The Petes had plenty in reserve, however, and they met this sudden onslaught with a fresh burst of speed. Bailey made a beautiful rush and nearly scored. Then Bert McLeod tore down the centre, and, shooting as he rounded the defence, beat Sullivan cold on a lightning shot into the top corner of the net.

The game slowed down perceptibly after this fine play, and the Petes had little trouble in holding their lead, in fact they increased it when Parker hammered in a rebound after Sullivan had stopped a hard one from Rose.

First Period—

1 Peterboro—Parker, 12 mins.

Second Period—

2 Peterboro—Ranger, from McLeod, 17 mins.

Third Period—

3 Varsity—Kickpatrick, 3 mins.

4 Peterboro—McLeod, 2.30 mins.

5 Peterboro—Parker, 10 mins.

Penalties—Varsity 0; Peterboro, Bailey, Rose.

Peterboro's win over Varsity in Toronto last night has further increased the hockey enthusiasm, and there will be a record attendance at Brock Street Rink on Friday night when Parkdale will clash with the S.P.A. champs.

The Toronto crew are counting on the smaller ice surface to win for them, but the Petes, with ten wins under their belt, are confident that they can once more take the measure of the Paddlers.

It will be a mighty battle, for Parkdale, led by Harry Watson, can be counted upon to put up a desperate fight for victory.

A new block of reserved seats is available, and will be on sale tomorrow morning at Bond's. They will be in great demand.

M. J. Rodden has been detailed to referee the game.

Hung Up Same Score, 12 to 2, in Lakefield, as in Home Game.

FAST, CLEAN GAME.

LAKEFIELD, January 21. — The Peterborough Juniors duplicated their home score of 12 to 2 against Grove school here last night in the Junior series of the O.H.A. The visitors had a decided advantage in speed, weight and experience, but the young students played pluckily to the final bell, and certainly were not disgraced. It was a clean, interesting game, well handled by Walter Jackson of Peterborough, who was impartial in his decisions.

The line-up was:

The School boys held Peterboro to a two-all tie in the first period, but the visitors ran in six in the second, and four in the final. The goal-getters were Milloy 4, McDougall 3, Salmon 2, Maudsley 2, Cheu 1, Loosemore 1, and Fawcett 1.

Loosemore was one of the youngest boys on the ice but he was always conspicuous. Rainnie, Christmas and Griffiths turned in a good game.

WON AT OMEMEE.

OMEMEE, January 20. — The George Street Methodist Hockey Team of Peterborough, met the locals here on Friday evening, and succeeded in carrying home the laurels.

Mr. Walter Mitchell of Omemee, handled the bell to the satisfaction of all witnesses, and many penalties were imposed, thus the many fans had the privilege of seeing a good clean game. The score was 4 to 1 in favor of the visitors.

Defeated Lindsay.

Both teams showed plenty of pep, and are the material from which professionals are made. The game resulted in a win for the home team by a score of 6-2. Rev. E. W. Rowland refereed the game in a capable manner.

CY DENNENY LEADS.

Ottawa Player Has Most Points—Dye Most Goals.

MONTREAL, Jan. 21. — Cy. Denneny, Ottawa left wing star, led the goal-getters of the league in the first half of the race closed on Saturday. Denneny has not scored as many goals as Babe Dye, but with assists being credited this season, The official figures issued by President Frank Calder on Tuesday show Denneny with the greatest number of points, his 30 being two more than Joliat's average. Babe Dye, who has scored one more goal than both Denneny and Joliat stands third in list with 21 points. Dye only having one assist in his list.

Boston's Fourteenth Loss.

Montreal Ties With Canadiens in National Hockey League.

BOSTON, Jan. 21. — (Canadian Press).—Montreal added the two points necessary to tie with the Canadiens for second place in the National Hockey League by defeating Boston Bruins 2 to 0 before a small-sized crowd here last night. A heavy snowstorm was held responsible for the lack of hockey enthusiasts who saw the home club take its fourteenth defeat of the season.

PROTEST ROUGH GAMES.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 21. —The Boston Athletic Association will withdraw its hockey team from further competition in the United States Amateur Hockey Association unless officials put an immediate stop to unnecessary and wilfull "roughing" in league games, it was announced here last night by George W. Wightman, president of the B. A. A.

This action was taken at a meeting of the governing committee of the association held this afternoon as a consequence of the injury of Leo Hughes, member of the team, who suffered the loss of an eye during a league game at Pittsburgh on January 16.

KNOX JUNIORS DEFEAT ST. JAMES JUNIORS

One of the most exciting games of the season in the junior group of the City Church Hockey League was staged between 8 and 9 o'clock on the Collegiate Rink before a large number of spectators, who kept the players advised of their presence.

The game was clean throughout the two periods and much enjoyed by the spectators as well as the players.

Although Knox defeated their opponents, 6-0, this does not do justice to the game, which was full of thrills from the first period to the final gong.

Mr. Hall, secretary of the league, handled the game to the satisfaction of both teams.

The players lined up as follows:

SEVERAL GAMES CHURCH LEAGUE

Players Are Invited to Study Rules and Regulations.

Several games were played last week in the Church Hockey League and each game showed how evenly matched these teams are, and how eagerly each youngster is that his team should cop the pennant.

There were some changes necessary in the schedule before published and the executive has corrected all these in the new schedule.

There are a few changes in the rules and regulations of the league and every player in the league would do well to study them.

Rules and Regulations of the City Church Hockey League.

That proof of age must have the signatures of the superintendent ond pastor of the church and Sunday school who will be held responsible for correctness of same and must be a member of the church or Sunday school on or before December 15, 1925.

That no O.H.A. or City League players are permitted to enter the City Church Hockey League.

That the entry fee of $5.00 be charged each team entering the league and on competing and staying in the league will be refunded—their entry fee.

That each team or teams entering the league must hand to the secretary, Mr. Hall, a list of all players being used in order that a check can be made of them by the secretary.

That all protests must be handed to the secretary in writing or left with the president, Mr. Loomis, at the Y.M.C.A. not later than 48 hours after the game is played and must be fully signed by the captain and manager or acting captain of the team protesting.

The time and date will be entered on the protest when received by the secretary.

No juvenile player can play more than two games for a junior team and if plays three games must remain a junior player. This rule applies to all groups in the league.

Any team or teams not fulfilling the above rule will forfeit their deposit money.

Each church entering a team or teams must donate one dollar ($1.00) to the league funds for expenses.

If this order is not fulfilled same will be deducted from their deposit fee.

Each team or teams entering the league in the jun or or juvenile groups must pay for the rink at the time of the scheduled game.

Any rink accounts against teams will be filled and if not paid will be deducted from their deposit money.

Any team or teams being unable to play on their schedule night must have a written statement mailed personally handed or left with the secretary, Y.M.C.A., 48 hours in advance of the game.

That any team not prepared to play on their schedule night without advising the secretary will be given 10 minutes in which to have a full team of six men on hand. Six men must be at least ready to play all games and if default as thus mentioned twice will forfeit their deposit money and be suspended from the league.

The scheduled committee will advise the teams of postponed games through the secretary when such games can be played. The City Church Hockey League will be grouped as follows:

Midget, 14 years and under.

Juvenile, 16 years and under.

Junior, 19 years and under.

For information the secretary may be interviewed at the Y.M.C.A. or the president, Mr. Loomis. All teams must have their line-up and positions given to the referee before the game starts which will be handed to Mr. Loomis at the Y.M.C.A. after the game.

This is important in order that the secretary may keep a record of the league standing and the captains and managers of teams are asked to help see this request is fulfilled.

St. James Rink, $1.60 each team for one hour.

Any team defaulting more than two games will forfeit their deposit money.

Games scheduled at the hour and date of O.H.A. games will, if advised by the be inflicted and postponement of same will receive the careful attention of the schedule committee.

Cut out and reserve rules, regulations and schedule.

Capitol Entertainment

WE'RE shouting about our picture to-day—we're proud of it—for it is Frank Lloyd's first picture since he made "THE SEA HAWK." It's one of the most human dramas you've ever seen.

Arrested!

The shame of it. But the honor, too. For he was laying down his reputation, his home and maybe his life to shield another's honor. Your heart will respond to the call of his—your heart will cry out for him.

WINTER SPORTS FEATURE BANFF

BIG PROGRAMME.

BANFF, Jan. 21.—Judging from the activity of the people of this mountain town right in the middle of winter, one would hardly think its greatest activity was in the middle of summer. The Banff Winter Carnival has become an institution of winter, the same as the Indian Day has been for many years an institution of summer. Instead of the old and young all being engaged in the work of making tourists happy, they are seen in the more active pastime of preparing for competition in snow shoeing, skiing, skijoring, racing dog teams and the general run of outdoor sports. There is no doubt that Banff is coming into its own as a winter resort, and this year will place it in the permanent calendar as such.

People are already beginning to gather from the East and South to witness the sports that begin on February 7th and run to the 14th. As usual the greatest interest is taken in the ski jumping, in which some of the great ski jumpers on the continent will participate, among them being Uno Holstrom, now resident in Vancouver, who learned the game in his homeland, who still sticks to the idea that the form and style is more attractive to spectators than distance and sloping landings.

AMATEUR ATHLETES HELP THEIR NATION

Nurmi's New Records Raise Banking Credit of Little Finland.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Jan. 21. — (United Press).— The sturdy performances of Finland's group of Amateur Athletes, headed by Paavo Nurmi, have raised the credit rating of the little Battine nation at least $10,000,000 in the opinion of Leonard Astrom, Finnish minister to the United States and Wall Street's Banker.

The peculiar relation of Amateur Athletes to national finance was brought out here to-day when a story was told in the street of a dinner at the home of Charles Mitchell, president of the National City Bank at which Astrom conferred the highest decoration of Finland, the Order of the White Rose, on the banker.

The conversation naturally turned to Finland's great showing at the Olympic games in Paris and the unprecedented performances of Nurmi and his brother Finns. Astrom found to his amazement that the bankers had been more impressed by the showing of the nation in amateur athletics than in declaring independence from Russia. "We believe," Mitchell said, "That a nation which could raise sturdy athletes could pay its bills and we changed the credit rating of Finland accordingly."

As a contrast nobody could be found in the street who found a relation between Argentine finance and the professional performances of Luis Angelo Firpo.

The street can see a relation between national credits and amateur athletics but it cannot see a similar parallel in the field of professional pugilism.

Firpo may have advertised the Argentine, in a way, just as much as Nurmi has advertised Finland but the quality of the advertising in different.

RAIN HELPS ENGLAND.

Cricket Team May Pull Ahead of Australian Eleven.

ADELAIDE, England, —Jan. 21. —(Canadian Press).—England has a fighting chance of winning third cricket test match with Australia, thanks to rain, with 7 wickets to fall requiring 243 runs for victory Falling from five this morning until noon the rain was responsible for the dramatic collapse of the Australian batsmen in their second inning, the soft wicket when play was resumed making the English bowling deadly. Of the seven Australian wickets remaining, five were taken for only nine runs and the side was dismissed in 60 minutes with only 39 runs added to the overnight score of 211 for three wickets. The Australians first inning score was 489 and in the second they obtained 250 leaving England to get 375 runs to win. The Englishmen to-day brought their total up to 133 for first three wickets of their second innings.

The Rink Rats and Brinton Carpet Boys clashed on the Free Rink in a friendly game of hockey, when the Brinton Carpet boys won by the score of 4 to 2.

Jim McMartin on the defence for the Brintons was the comic of the night, making a sensational rush leaving the ice and going flying into a six-foot snow drift; which delayed the game for a considerable time, when both teams had to dig him out.

GOLF MORE POPULAR.

At Present There Are 360 Different Clubs in Canada.

TORONTO, Jan. 21.—(Canadian Press).—There are 360 golf clubs in Canada, according to the latest estimate. As a large number of clubs are to be started this spring, 400 would be a conservative estimate of the number by the end of 1925.

Ontario leads the provinces with 123 clubs, Quebec has 53, Alberta 48, Saskatchewan 47, Manitoba 38, British Columbia 28, Nova Scotia 13, New Brunswick 9, and Prince Edward Island one.

Toronto would seem to be the "golfiest" city in the Dominion. The Queen City has 21 clubs, Montreal 19 and Winnipeg 16. Calgary six, Victoria and Vancouver each five.

Yetta was adopted by the Diamond family when a baby, who says she was given entirely to them by the mother. Mrs. Adelman claims she only parted temporarily with her daughter at a time when Diamond had no family of his own, and now that he is no longer childless she wants the baby returned. "The girl has broken down under the strain of her experiences."

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL.

HERE'S DRAMA THAT IS REAL; HERO IS HUNG.

"Legally Dead," the all star attraction at the Royal Theatre, tomorrow, takes us to the portals of the next world — and then, thank heaven, it stops! What might have been turned into a piece of hokum by some other author and director is kept straight and presents a theme of timely appeal to the public.

The hero is a newspaper man with a conviction that most victims of capital punishment are innocent. To better study the state's "guests" in the penitentiary he commits burglary and gets a sentence. Of course, not being a hardened criminal, he gets pardoned, but out of his prison experience grow a set of circumstances which finally send him back again when a detective is killed, charged with murder. Circumstances convict him and he is hanged. What th' — the hero hanged?

Absolutely— but that is where the days' news and scinece's newest sensation come in. Adrenalin, the greatest discovery of the world of scinece about which the world's press has been printting stories by the dozen, is used to bring him back to life.

Universal deserves a good deal of credit for filming this as the story it is instead of making the plot go on and speculate about what the hero saw "on the other side." As it is, the story is thoroughly logical backed up in every detail by the day's news, and the nature of it makes it essentially dramatic.

The criminal world and the penitentiary figure strongly in the story, which was written by Charles Furthmann, now associate scenario editor at Universal City and formerly, for fifteen years or more, an investigator of crime with state's attorney's offices of Illinois.

Milton Sills of "Sea Hawk" and other big pictures, plays the chief character of the story—the 'subject' of the adrenalin test. He is supported by a distinguished cast.

TIGER THOMPSON CLOSES ENGAGEMENT TO-NIGHT.

Film fans who like productions staged in the great outdoors, with plenty of action and romance, should not overlook Harry Carey in "Tiger Thompson" at the Royal to-night. It's a different "Western," the thrills are all there, also the heart interest. It's a worth-while entertainment.

"ELIZA," THE NEW SONG HIT, AT ROYAL.

The new song that is sweeping the country, "Eliza," is one of the new popular numbers being featured by the Royal Orchestra. This snappy fox-trot is being played nightly while the comedies are being shown.

AT THE CAPITOL.

CAPITOL MUSICIANS APPEAR AS SOLOISTS

The musical ability of the Capitol Theatre orchestra has never been questioned and the policy of introducing the individual members of the orchestra in solo numbers, which was inaugurated on Monday and Tuesday, met with hearty approval of Capitol patrons. William Layfield, cornet player of the Capitol orchestra, revealed splendid control of his instrument in his number, Tosti's "Good-bye." His tones were exceptionally sweet and clear and his rendition of this well known song, was exquisite and sympathetic. At all performances Mr. Layfield's work was received with splendid applause. The management of the Capitol announce that other members of the orchestra will appear as soloists in the near future.

SILENT WATCHER DRAMA OF HOME.

Glenn Hunter and Bessie Love Make Hit in New Frank Lloyd Masterpiece.

Since he made "The Sea Hawk," Frank Lloyd has given photoplay fans reason to expect great things from him, and in "The Silent Watcher," a First National picture featuring Glenn Hunter and Bessie Love, which began its showing at the CAPITOL THEATRE to-day, he offers the pubilc an entertainment that may be well termed great.

"The Silent Watcher" is not a photoplay of unusual length, extraordinary settings or elaborate wardrobe. In fact it is its simplicity of theme and picturiztion which makes it so doubly entertaining. There is no padding — "The Silent Watcher" follows Mary Roberts Rinehart's Saturday Evening Post story, "The Altar on the Hill,' faithfuly, and in its cinema transformation it is improved a hundred per cent. Mrs. Rinehart's story was literally brilliant, but when one sees the close-ups of Joe and Mary and "The Chief" on the screen, one's appreciation of the characters mounts much higher.

Glenn Hunter, as Joe Roberts, has the faculty of winning one's sympathy with a single glance and of registering his thoughts without any apparent attempt at acting And all that goes for Hunter's superb demonstration may be repeated for Bessie Love. Miss Love's screen personality is universally known because of her numerous appearances on the silver sheet, but it is doubtful if she ever displayed her talent to better advantage.

Hobart Bosworth, who plays The Chief, too, lends dignity and understanding to his character. Alma Bennett, as Lily Elliott, proves a real actress and coquette, and DeWitt Jennings as the Chief of Detectives looks the part and acts it to a "T." Ohers in the cast who merit commendation are Aggie Herring, Gorge Nicholls, Gertrude Astor and Lionel Belmore.

NEW GASOLINE TANK

The Manning garage on Brock street has recently installed something entirely new to Peterboro in the way of an automatic gasoline pump, the first to be installed in the city. This pump renews its supply of gas as the quantity in the tank is depleted. Any fraction of the ten gallons which the tank holds is replaced immediately after the hose is returned to its bracket.

The Clear Vision Dispenser, as this type of pump is named, is absolutely automatic. As soon as the hose is returned to its hook, the ten-gallon bowl fills in a few seconds, eliminating the pumping of hundreds of gallons of gasoline in a day into the tank by an operator. A positive check on sales is afforded by the fact that the meter registers only the gasoline that passes through the hose. It has an automatic valve that ensures the gasoline being returned underground when the hoze nozzle is hung inside and the door locked, thus affording a safety feature when the owner is absent or the shop closed for the day.

It is a handsome piece of equipment, fitted outside with a cumputing scale, showing the charges for different mounts of gasoline, and with its glass bowl covered with wire screening in lattice effect. The base and top are finished in red.

READ THIS ONE
I have suffered from Kidney and Rheumatic trouble for the past ten years, and during that time I spent more than a hundred dollars for different medicines, and was unable to procure any relief.
I was beginning to lose faith in medicines and I considered my case more or less hopeless. Hearing so much about Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills, I decided to give them a trial, and before I had finished one box, I felt like a different man; and am now completely rid of an ailment which had bothered me almost day and night for the past ten years.
I procured Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills at Lynch's Drug Store, and when I purchased them I was told to return for my money if they did not help me. I can recommend these pills and I would willingly pay a good deal to get the relief that I did from them.
This testimonial is given at my own suggestion, and I take pleasure and I consider it my duty to recommend Dr. Banta's Pills to anyone suffering from kidney or rheumatic ailments of any description.

HOCKEY.
Sporting Editor, Examiner:—Please settle a dispute arising out of a pool on last night's Varsity-Peterboro game. A has right score, 4-1 for Peterborough. B has 8 to 2 for Peterborough and claims that as his percentage is the same as 4-1 and the pool was to be settled by the percentage method he is entitled to half the receipts.
Fan.
There should be no necessity of an argument over this question. Common sense should tell all the interested parties that the correct scores always wins. B's percentage although the same, does not entitle him to any consideration when A has guessed the actual score.—Sporting Editor.

Privy Council Decision Meets Disapproval of Tom Moore.

OTTAWA, Jan. 21. — (Canadian Press).—"The Privy Council decision on the Industrial Disputes Act case will set the clock back at least a decade so far as the adjustment of industrial disputes are concerned by forcing labor into the position of relying on its own numerical and financial strength to secure just treatment and betterment of conditions instead of being able to rely on the justice of its claims," said Tom Moore, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada in a statement issued to-day.

Peterborough's civic toboggan slide, at the east end of the Hunter street bridge will be officially declared open to-night at 7.30 o'clock, but that is many hours too late for the children of the district who tried out its thrills and joys this afternoon.
The slope, while perfectly safe and well protected, is sufficient to send toboggans half way across the James Stevenson park. The surface of the slide will improve with ice.
His Worship Mayor Turner, who worked so earnestly for its erection, will officitae at the opening of Peterborough's first civic toboggan slide. It is rumored that he may make a practical test.

RURAL HOCKEY COMES TO FORE

The Northumberland County Teams Have Good Game at Cobourg.

GULLY WON 4-3.

COBOURG, Jan. 22.—Rural hockey is coming into prominence in Northumberland County this season and one of the closest games yet played was staged at the Cobourg rink during the week between Baltimore and The Gully. At the end of the first period, The Gully had scored twice, and both teams went into the second with lots of vim and pep. The result was that neither scored.
Baltimore evened up matters in the third by scoring twice and Gully returned the tally breaking the tie before the bell sounded, by putting over another one.
Then Baltimore scored again and the game was once more tied, remaining so until the last half minute when The Gully nailed another goal, winning the game by the low margin of 4 to 3.
The line-up was as follows:
The Gully—Goal, J. Oliver; defence, H. Speer and D. Hoskin; wings, A. Hiscock and K. Haig; centre, W. A. Hoskin. Sub. H. Hiscock.
Baltimere—Goal, Stewart; defence C. Ballad and H. Mann; centre, Clifford Simes; wings, Bates and Ferguson. Subs., Buzwash and Boddy.
Referee—Murray Walsh.

GAS POISONING IS BIG DANGER

Recent Deaths Bring Warning to all Citizens—Furnaces Dangerous.

SOME SYMPTOMS.

Carbon monoxide has become one of the commonest forms of gas poisoning, and in large cities the number of deaths from this usually exceeds those from any other poison. It is usually found associated with other gases resulting especially from incomplete combustion. Carbon monoxide is a colorless, tasteless, and almost odourless gas. It burns with a pale blue flame. Death results from paralysis of the respiratory apparatus.
A case occurred in Peterboro on Monday morning, when a man awoke to find the house full of gas, and he and his family suffering from headache.
There are a multitude of processes in which these carbon monoxide fumes are generated. Some of the most important of these include.
(a) Automobile exhausts.
(b) Gas-fired heaters and leaky gas fixtues.
(c) Coal furnaces.
The onset of cold weather tends to increase the number of accidents from this gas. Proper ventilation is essential wherever there is danger of this poison.

Automobile Exhausts.
Automobile owners should recognize the danger involved in running a gasoline engine in a small closed space for any considerable period. In recent tests on the exhaust of a small a automobile engine it was found it discharged approximately 25 cubic feet of gas per minute, samples of which gave an average of 6 per cent. carbon monoxide or 1 1-2 cubic feet of deadly carbon monoxide gas per minute. Larger engines will naturally give off more. A ratio of 15 parts of carbon monoxide to 10,000 parts of air is considered a dangerous concentration to be exposed to for any considerable time, and a small engine in "warming up" and giving off only 1 cubic foot of carbon monoxide per minute would contaminate the air of a garage 10 feet by 10 feet by 20 feet to the danger point in about 3 minutes.

Gas-Fired Water Heaters.
Gas-fired water heaters may become an important source of carbon monoxide in houses when they are not propely installed and maintained. They are especially dangerous because this poisonous gas is driven off when any carbonaceous flame touches the cool surface of the water vessel, so as to reduce the temperature of the flame below the ignition point of the gases. Soot moreover gradually collects on these devices, and may become incandescent thus furnishing ideal conditions for the production of carbon monoxide. These dangers may all be overcome and accidents averted by means of adequate ventilation through a proper connection from the heater, to an active flue.
Artificial gas contains carbon monoxide before burning, and may in itself create ill effects by passing from a leaky fixture or broken gas main through the soil into the cellar, and thence into the dwelling. Since it is lighter than air it tends to rise. In passing through the soil the gas may be robbed of its characteristic odour, and thus be rendered more dangerous through the difficulty of detection. All defective gas appliances should be immediately reported to the gas company.

Coal Furnaces.
Gases from stoves or furnaces contain a considerable quantity of carbon monoxide when formed by the incomplete combustion of wood or coal in closed spaces. This condition may occur in furnaces when fresh fuel is added and the draught is closed or the damper in the smoke pipe not opened enough. The danger can be removed by opening the draught and damper and allowing a free circulation of air through the furnace until the blue flame containing the carbon monoxide has disappeared. Similar dangers may result from the use of charcoal braziers or open fire places where insufficient draught is provided.

Symptoms of Poisoning.
Carbon monoxide poisoning may be either acute or chronic. The attack comes on gradually and consciousness is eventually lost. The individual feels dizzy and complains of headache, and a feeling of sleepiness, and sense of fatigue. Even though the victim may become aware of the danger he is often unable to escape because of the great loss of motor power.

DEER SLAUGHTERED.

At Least Four Thousand Are Killed in Canada Each Hunting Season.

TORONTO, Jan. 21.—(Canadian Press). — Four thousand is a conservative estimate of the number of deer killed in Ontario woods during the annual runting season. As yet, however, there is no scarcity of deer in the province, and the Department of Game and Fisheries does not see any necessity for restrictions such as limitation of shooting permits to buck deer two years old or over, as has been suggested.
Twenty sanctuaries have been set aside in the province and the latest one, opened last October, comprising about 800 square miles in the Thunder Bay District, is already overrun with game of all sorts. In addition to the sanctuaries, Ontario deer have been protected by restriction of the season and issuance of hunting licenses. In 1923, 17,877 resident deer hunters' licenses were granted, as well as 1,347 general non-resident licenses.

DIRECTOR ON TRIAL.

New Evidence in Case of Home Bank Director Wood.

TORONTO, January 21. — Canadian Press. — Major J. E. Nash, of the accounting firm of which investigated the Home Bank affairs after its failure, continued his expert evidence this morning in the trial of S. Casey Wood, the bank director.
He brought out the fact however that the Home Bank kept money on deposit in several banks in the United States, and that on the strength of these deposits President H. J. Daly borrowed moey from the United States banks.
It was also brought out that O'Connor who was secretary to Daly had borrowed up to $?,000 from the foreign department of the Home Bank. This amount he paid over to the Daly-Mitchell account and from it Daly paid it out to the American banks.
Major Nash said he saw nothing improper in transferring bank property to a holding company provided the values were fair and there was no attempt at establishing a paper profit.

CONSERVATIVE WOMEN'S RALLY THRONGS WAR VETERANS' HALL WITH TWO BIG ORGANIZATIONS

Mrs. Howard Fallis Presides at Unique Quasi Political Function Originated and Planned by Ladies in Her Association—Excellently Varied Programme.

MAYOR TURNER WELCOMED VISITORS TO CITY.

Tenets of Conservatism Are Staunchly Upheld and Gracefully Expounded by President V. J. McElderry of the Men's Association—W. H. Bradburn Lauds Ontario's Wealth.

What was advertised as an "At Home," under the direction of President Mrs. Howard Fallis and the members of the Women's Conservative Association last night, resolved itself into a splendid rally of Conservative forces in tne city. The large hall of the G.W.V.A. was filled to capacity, and the enthusiasm was unbounded, speakers being halted time and again while gusts of applause swept the audience. Refreshments, dancing, cards, and music took second place to the addresses, which were full of optimism and confidence. And from first to last the affair was originated, organized and carried out by the Women's Association with a swing and decorum that set it apart from the usual run of party or society gatherings.

The good feeling that exists between the Men's and the Women's Conservative Associations was evidenced by the presence on the platform of V. J. McElderry, president of the Men's Association, and by the presentation to Mrs. Fallis on behalf of the men's organization, by Roland Denne, of a beautiful bouquet of American Beauty roses.

There were associated with Mrs. Fallis; the first vice-president, Mrs. S. T. Medd; the second vice-president, Mrs. Millar; the third vice-president, Miss Morgan; the secretary, Mrs. Roland Denne, and the treasurer, Mrs. Evans.

Conservative Addresses.

While there were the attacks on opponents that mark political gatherings everywhere, the addresses last night were mainly constructive and often prophetic. Mayor J. J. Turner, expressing a welcome to the visitors; Mr. McElderry telling the aims of the Conservative party; Mrs. Fallis extolling Sir John A. MacDonald; Mr. Bradburn portraying the wonders of Ontario's natural wealth, and Mr. Denne presenting roses with the wishes of his association, all spoke in the utmost good nature that often bubbled over in laughter as the audience caught an apt phrase or a humorous characterization.

The quiet earnestness of Mrs. Fallis' manner impressed her words on her hearers, and probably her address will be the longest remembered. A woman speaker, she remarked, is still something of a novelty, and she feared the Women's Association was "trotting her forward as an exhibit."

Mayor J. J. Turner.

Mayor Turner remarked on the comprehensiveness of the programme; it would take in all the likes and dislikes of everyone present. This reminded him ,he said, of the comprehensiveness of the national policy under which the Dominion of Canada flourished so many years. "That is what you have in your minds; a complete scheme that will be of benefit to the whole dominion."

His Worship, disavowing any political stimulus to his presence, referred to his welcome to Premier King, and extended the some courtesy to the representatives present last night from Lakefield, Otonabee, Monaghan, Smith and Harvey. He congratulated those in charge of the affair, commenting on the shame he sometimes felt in the small audiences that turned out to welcome visiting celebrities, and expressing pleasure in the large audience that showed its appreciation of the hospitality of the Conservative Women's Association. Women have a great part to play in the government of the country, and there is no reason why sisters, mothers and wives should not lay hold on the vital affairs of the nation of which they are part and parcel. "It is very fitting," the Mayor said, "that the ladies have seen fit to think for themselves and take an active interest in municipal, provincial and federal affairs. They are helping in the municipality. Their organizations make the city better. It is a fine thing that they should aspire to office, for on the Board of Education we have an estimable woman who has done and is continuing to do splendid work in the public service. Women are a strength in the land, and the country is better for their service."

Mrs. Fallis, in thanking the Mayor for his presence, remarked that while his reasons as he had enunciated them might be very good, nothing could convince her but that he was there because he was a real good Tory at heart, and couldn't stay away.

V. J. McElderry.

As President of the Men's Liberal-Conservative Association of West Peterborough, V. J. McElderry brought greetings to the Women's Association, and assured the members that the men are behind them in all their activities. The ballot had been practically thrust upon the women of Ontario, since there was no great demand for it in this province. "It is splendid," he said, "to see how they have accepted it and assumed the duties the franchise entails. They took to it in a way as though they had been used to it for generations. The Conservative women have a more true conception of politics, I believe, than any other."

In an extraordinarily inspiring presentation of the principles of Conservatism, Mr. McElderry prefaced his exposition by remarking that politics have resolved themselves into a question of tariff. "The object of Conservatism," he declared, "is to build up progress and establish a strong industrial country, not to grasp at every nostrum suggested. The Conservative policy has more than once saved a nation from annihilation when in similar circumstances to ours. We are a thinly-populated country beside a large prosperous nation. We are confronted with the humiliating spectacle of people being obliged to go abroad and seek employment on alien shores. The object of the Conservatives is to do away with this and bring independence to the people. It is not a policy of aggrandizement, but a policy of prosperity and success for all the people in the country, and without this measure of material prosperity, the country cannot have the political prosperity that is so much desired."

The aim of the Conservative party, Mr. McElderry pointed out, is to consolidate the resources of the country and provide employment for its sons and daughters and for the proper modicum of immigration to which the vast natural resources of the country naturally entitle it. These natural resources are now going to the United States for manufacture, and it is the duty of Canadians to see that they are fully manufactured here, and not dissipated. "If we are able to utilize these wonderful natural resources which are our heritage—if we can develop and complete them in our midst—we will build up a prosperous and successful community. If we are able to supply work to all our people, we will give to our agriculturists—the backbone of the country—the best market they can obtain; a home market. At this moment the market is badly needed, because the next nearest market has been practically shut off by the Fordney and other tariffs."

Mr. McElderry expressed indignation in the exporting in bond of vast quantities of Canadian A1 wheat, to be exported from United States as flour. This should be made into flour in Canada, he declared. "A prosperous, forward-looking and advancing country is the aim of the Conservative party."

Mrs. Howard Fallis.

When Premier King visited Toronto, Mrs. Fallis said, there was seen with him in the seats of the mighty, Charles Hanna, lately elected in West Hastings by-election. "At every banquet and dinner, he has had the seat of honor. The Liberal party must have adopted Mr. Hanna as a sort of mascot. They probably think that since he brought them good luck at West Hastings he will bring it right along."

A new note had been struck, the speaker said, when it was indicated that Mr. Hanna wished to have his name handed down with Shakespeare's, and had written thirty stanzas which he presented to a Belleville debating society. She quoted the verses:

"At Pete's point they've been fishing
For many weeks and days,
As they've only four fish
They hardly think it pays."

The second stanza, Mrs. Fallis opined, should be framed by the City Council and hung in the council chamber:

"Now our Citiy Council
I'd like to say a word,
Of all the Councils I have known
This one is sure a bird."

In the last stanza the Club members are exhorted:

"Now don't sit round the club house
And of the Council chew,
Let all get out behind them
And see what we can do."

"Do you wonder that we had no show against Mr. Hanna in Belleville" asked Mrs. Fallis.

The Premier's Attitude.

The attitude adopted by Premier King in his speech at Massey Hall was censured by the President of the Women's Association, who berated him for calling the Progressives to unite with him in annihilating the Conservative party. "That is not

ROBIN AT WATFORD.

WATFORD, Ont., Jan. 22. —The first robin of the year was not only seen but has been captured in this village this morning. The feathered beauty had injured one of its wings in some manner and was being attacked by a number of sparrows near the public library at the corner of Main and Erie Streets when it was seen and rescued by Manager Cook, of the Edwards Bros., Butcher shop. Mr. Cook took the injured bird into the store to care for it and the robin is hopping about quite tame and contented in the room at the rear of the store.

FRENCH WOUNDS OF WAR PLACED IN DEBT SCALES

Credit Suggested for Eleven Billion Days of Mobilization at Five Francs a Day.

ON DOLLAR BASIS.

French Deputy Asks for the Good Will of World in Debt Settlement.

PARIS, Jan. 22. —Canadian Press. —In the debate yesterday in the Chamber of Deputies on foreign affairs the communist member, Cachin ,aserted that the Geneva protocol was dead, but his statement was sharply resented by Premier Herriot. Why anyone should attempt to discredit the sincerest effort for peace ever made by the democracy of France was something that he was unable to understand, he said. The Geneva protocol, he added, had the entire support of the people of the country.

Discussing Debt Settlement.

Deputy Marin, discussing debt settlement for bearing the brunt of the early years of the war; that Britain and the United States who are responsible for France's war costs not included in the Versailles treaty, cannot now ask France to pay their own war expenses and that Britain especially entered the war to protect her own interests as she would have done under direct and immediate menace had the Germans reached Dunkirk, Calais and Boulogne.

"We have heard much about a businessmen's settlement of war debts," M. Marin said. "If we were forced to treat on that basis we might ask that some credit be allowed us for eleven billion days of mobilization at five franc per day; we might ask what is the cash value represented by France holding 1915 kilometres of trenches during 1915 while Britain was looking after 40 and the Belgians 18 kilometrees; also what would be the price of 1,425,000 lives lost.

Dollar Domination.

"The dollar has become the king of the financial world. Never has a country in the history of the world enjoyed such financial and moral power as the United States does now They cannot demand from a country bled unco death, a policy of compensation. It must not come to pass that financial domination will be made the instrument of political domination."

Premier Herriot, in complimenting M. Marin on his speech, said that "France has the right to evoke the memory of her wounds in order to ask the goodwill of men throughout the entire world to assist her now."

The sitting was closed with a speech by M. Cachin, leader of the Communists who denounced the London agreement and the Geneva protocol as eutopian. M. Cachin spoke for an hour and a half. The protocol, he described as a failure, which neither the United States nor Great Britain would take into consideration.

Premier Herriot interrupted the speaker, expressing wonder that a deputy claiming to represent the masses should discredit "the sincerest and most vigorous effort for peace the French Democracy had ever made."

Blames Capitalists.

M. Cachin blamed "the capitalist regime" for the existing threats of war. He said the Dawes plan was costing the German worker dear, without affecting the evacuation of Germany. He feared the Dawes plan would be extended to France, delivering France to United States finance, as the Reich "has already been delivered," or, rather to the lowest international finance.

He dealt lengthily with the recent troubles in Georgia which he described as an attempt by the Mersheviks to rise against the Georgian Bolsheviks.

At one moment the Socialists and Communists were wrangling so that it seemed as if a collision were coming, but Vice President Bouisson, turning to the Communists, called out:—"There are four of you, and you make enough row for forty."

Russian Debts.

M. Cachin discussed the question of Russian debts to France, declaring that the banks and those who issued loans ought to refund the full amount, which was more than one billion francs.

"It is no more just to demand poverty stricken Russian to repay that money," he exclaimed, "than for Great Britain and the United States to ask us to repay the 130,000,000,000 they advanced to us."

He thought that some arrangement might be reached favoring the small holders of Russian loans. He considered that Soviet Russia would be justified in asking compensation for the billion France had advanced to foment civil war in Russia, Poland and France, he asserted, had united on a secret treaty. This M. Herriot indignantly denied, but M. Cachin repeated his affirmation.

OPIUM SESSIONS GIVEN HOIST TO PREVENT CRASH

NOT ENCOURAGING

GENEVA, Jan. 22.— (Canadian Press).—Despite French and Swedish efforts at Mediation the International Opium conference adjourned yesterday until Saturday in anything but a conciliatory mood with many of the delegates still pessimistic as to the outcome. Stephen G. Porter, head of the United States delegation described the situation last night as "distinctly discouraging."

The recess of the plenary sessions was taken until Saturday on motion of Sweden, backed by the other Scandinavian countries. It was taken in order to find a means for elucidating and co-ordinating the proposals, declarations and suggestions before the conference on the question of the suppression of opium smoking in the Far East which has become the pivotal problem and may eventually cause the collapse of the conference.

Seek A Compromise.

President Zahle said last night that although he would strive through conciliatory initiatives to bring about a solution for the opium smoking question satisfactory to the United States delegation and those delegates which opposed their position, the best he really expected to accomplish was the introduction of a resolution at Saturday's meeting for the appointment of a joint committee representing the first and the present opium conferences. Such a committee, Dr. Zahle explained, could study the various suggestions offered and seek a compromise formula and urge the first opium conference to adopt this.

Dr. Zahle gave it as his opinion that the question of opium smoking belonged solely to the first opium conference, which was confined to the powers having colonies in the Far East, and expressed the view as president of the present more general conference that Mr. Porter's motion for a review of the first conference would require the unanimous approval of the delegates.

Interests in East.

Unanimity seems out of the question, for the reason that all the countries having possessions where opium is moked would undoubtedly vote again Mr. Porter's motion.

The entire day was given over to attempts to save the conference from a crash. It began with a spirited repudiation by Lord Cecil of Chelmwood, head of the British delegation, of Mr. Porter's accusation that financial considerations entered into the powers' reluctance to end opium smoking within a fixed period. It continued with a brilliant oration by M. Daladier the youthful French colonial minister.

WE KNOW

The first four days of our genuine anniversary sale of men's clothing and furnishings have fully demonstrated that a word to the wise is sufficient, for the response to our first sale announcement has been record-breakingly generous. Men and young men who dress well and demand stylish coats, suits, hats and other wear, all in the super-quality class, have expressed their surprise and pleasure at the extraordinarily wonderful values we are offering daily. In fact, such big savings as this sale affords to those who are taking advantage of our need to unload are rolling up for us one of the greatest selling seasons in our history.

Our business policy only permits of one sale each year, and when marking down prices for that event profits are lost sight of in our determination to effect a substantial clearance.

This anniversary celebration of ours started last Saturday and will continue until the end of the month. Again we say "A Word to the Wise is Sufficient" when we place on sale for Saturday only our stock of winter overcoats at HALF PRICE. See advertisement to-morrow.

POLICE DETAIN SLAYER'S CHUM

CAN'T READ BIBLE.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 22.—Two girls, aged sixteen, and a youth, all admitting they attended a gay party at the home of David Stein and there met Dorothy Ellingson on the night of the day she slew her mother, were detained by police yesterday to be questioned later.

The girls are Catherine Messman and Thelma Vollberg, and the boy is Emil Kreuter, a jazz band drummer.

Kreuter told the officers of the Stein home entertainment, where Dorothy, a few hours after she shot her mother, was regarded as the "life of the party." He said:

"I gave my entire attention to Dot that night and before the evening was over we became very friendly."

Letters Flood Her Cell.

Dorothy, her rust-colored bob matching her suit—almost the same color—cried less and appeared to be happier as she surveyed stacks of mail sent to her from all parts of the country and gifts of Bibles, prayer books, fruits and flowers.

One church and several mission workers' societies were among those writing to Dorothy. They urged her to take up religion and "save herself from Hell."

The girl said frankly:

"I tried to reach the Bible to-day, but I just can't."

Dorothy insisted that she has nothing in common with Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, the youths who killed for "a thrill." She said:

"I should say not—my case is not like that of Leopold and Loeb, and I would not have Clarence Darrow for my attorney on a bet. If they are thinking of getting Darrow for me they better stop right now. I won't have him at all."

I think it all started when I was fourteen years old and used to play hookey from school and loved to think that I was fooling the teachers.

Pitfalls All About.

I started to tell fibs about school and where I had been. I thought it was smart to make up all kinds of stories. I think that's when I started on the wrong path. That was the beginning, and then afterward came the jazz cafes.

They don't care who you are or what you are. All they want is a little gay life and they'll pay for your dinner and you can dance all night and go out to the beach and see life anyway you want to, but, of course, they expect you to be a "good fellow," as they call it.

They expect you to drink and to drink just as much as they want you to drink. Oh, yes, they can always get the booze. That's easy, and you have to drink your share of it or they'll call you a "dead one" and never ask you to go stepping with them again.

No Line Drawn.

And you can't draw the line at anything—not with men like that. They're paying your way and they expect you to do your part, too.

By this time I began to think it was foolish to work.

Why work? Why not let the men work and give him a good time?

When I met a man that I particularly liked or one that would take me on the kind of parties I enjoyed I put his name down and sometimes I put down the name of a man who never took me anywhere at all.

I just looked at him and met him and thought he was the sort of person I might like, so I put his name down so that I might call him

PUBLIC HIT BY PRIVY COUNCIL

Invalidating of Lemieux Act Governing Industrial Disputes Sets Clock Back.

LABOR OPINION.

LONDON, January 22. — The official interpretation here of the judgment given Tuesday by the judicial committee of the privy council allowing the appeal of the Toronto Hydro Electric Commission against the decision of the Ontario appellate court, which upheld the validity of the Lemieux act, is that the privy council decision renders the Lemieux act invalid altogether as being ultra vires of the Dominion parliament.

The privy council judgment maintains that the Dominion parliament was justified in instituting such legislation only in case of a natonal emergency.

Tom Moore's Comment.

MONTREAL, Jan. 22. — "If the decision of the Privy council means the total abolition of the industrial disputes act, it will set the clock back for at least a decade as far as progress in dealing with industrial disputes is concerned."

This is the comment of Tom Moore, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, on the decision of the Privy Council that the industrial disputes act is beyond the power of the Dominion government.

Mr. Moore said that the decision of the Privy council "will no doubt be welcome to the small minority known as the left wing in the labor movement." It will give the communists and others, he said, a full opportunity of developing their propaganda of class conflict, removing, as it does, the restraint on the calling of sudden strikes in certain vital "key industries."

Employers and the public, he warned, stand more to lose by the abolition of the act than does labor. Furthermore, organized labor will be forced back to a fuller reliance on its physical and financial strength to obtain justice and better conditions instead of depending on the force and justice of their arguments.

Finally, he declared that the decision should cause the government to consider the necessity of seeking some changes in the British North American Act, to give the Dominion government the power to deal with such matters in the same way as the Australian and the South African governments have.

The Broad Effect.

OTTAWA, January 22. — That the Privy council judgment with respect to the constitutionality of the Lemieux act, will have a far-reaching effect in respect to federal jurisdiction generally, is the opinion of members of the government here, who have pursued the text.

So far as the Department of Labor is concerned it is admitted that the findings of the learned judges entirely upset the entire machinery by which for the past eighteen years industrial disputes have been arbitrated and settled. There still remains on the statute books a conciliation act but the opinion here is that the very objections raised by the Privy council against the Lemieux act will render the conciliation act unworkable and ineffective. The only alternative now would appear to be the creation of provincial acts, and in that connection complete uniformity is regarded as impossible. Such acts moreover could not easily be applied to interprovincial corporations and their workers.

"It is to be deeply regretted," said Hon. James Murdock, "that after employers and employed had through the workings of the act attained to a broader and fairer view of their relations the act should be upset. I

MONTREAL ALDERMAN BLAMED IN LAXITY IN POLICE DEPARTMENT

Arrogated to Himself Control of Police for Purposes of Patronage.

FAILED IN DUTY

Lawyer Calls Upon Judge to Censure Brodeur—Urges Complete Reforms.

MONTREAL, Jan. 22.—(Canadian Press).—That Alderman J. A. A. Brodeur, Chairman of the Executive Committee, had violated the terms of the city charter in refraining from naming a director of public safety, had arrogated the post to himself so as to corral power and patronage, and had become "the omnipotent, the man with the power of a Czar," was the declaration of J. P. Lanctot, K.C., in closing his argument for the petitioners at the Montreal police probe here yesterday afternoon before Mr. Justice Coderre.

"Spiritual Director of the Chief of Police", counsel dubbed the chairman, at the same time declaring that the executive committee head failed in its duty. Mr. Lanctot said he found Ald. Brodeur guilty of bad administration of the police department, and asked Mr. Justice Coderre to censure him.

Flouted the Council.

With "his" majority on the committee, Mr. Lanctot held, Alderman Brodeur had flouted the City Council itself in neglecting to take action and report back to the aldermen on the suggestions for police reorganization made by a special aldermanic committee. And counsel also thought that the committee majority had done wrong in not suspending Chief Belanger after Mr. Justice Coderre had drawn the authorities' attention to the evidence given at the probe by the police chief himself.

Mr. Lanctot suggested that the population of Montreal should adopt as its motto "complete reforms in the police or civic elections in April next." Application to the legislature to turn the present administration out of power was the remaining if the City Council did not adopt Mr. Justice Coderre's report and make changes.

Chief's Approval.

Before the probe, Mr. Brodeur had declared to all and sundry that everything was well with the police. He had arranged a little aldermanic inquiry, and had had the chief of police declare that all was well.

"As soon as the judicial enquete was accorded," added Mr. Lanctot, "we saw in the newspapers an opinion of the legal adviser of the City of Montreal, Mr. St. Pierre, to the effect that witnesses would not be immune; that might well have had the effect of imparting fear to witnesses courageous enough to want to come in the witness box before the judicial investigation.

OTTAWA ASSIZE JUDGE SET UP SPEED RECORD

Long Docket Disposed of in Twenty Hours.

OTTAWA, Jan. 22. —One of the fastest assize sittings on record in local court annuals was established yesterday at the Court House when Mr. Justice Logie the presiding judge brought to an end the winter asize list which opened on Monday afternoon. There were eight jury actions and four non-jury actions set down on the list as well as the murder trial of John Buchannan Pirie.

Of the dozen civil actions only six came to trial. Two cases were settled out of court, four were put over to the next court and three were dismissed. In all the court took only about twenty court hours to clear up the civil list and dispose of the murder trial.

SEEK TO HALT POWER INQUIRY BY THE COUNCIL

Campbell Flour Mills Take Action at Osgoode Hall To-day.

DENY AUTHORITY.

Plaintiffs Urge That Inquiry is Not in the Public Interest.

TORONTO, Jan. 22 — (Canadian Press)—Campbell Flour Mills Ltd., of Toronto, are plaintiffs in an action at Osgoode Hall in which they seek an injunction restraining Judge Huycke and the City of Peterboro from proceeding in an investigation directed by the city council. A declaration of the court is asked to the effect that a resolution passed on December 9th requiring Judge Huycke to enquire into the failure of the Public Utilities Commission to charge the plaintiff company for electricity used in its Peterboro mill from March, 1919, to December, 1921, is beyond the power of the council and not within section 248 of the Municipal Act under which it was ordered.

The company further asks a declaration that the defendants are precluded from making an investigation by the findings of the public utilities commission, who investigated at the request of the City of Peterboro and reported in favor of the company.

It is urged that the enquiry is not in the public interest, but at the instigation of a competitor, a member of the council, who wants to obtain possession of facts concerning the private business of the company. An order is asked to set aside a writ which requires David Holland, manager of the company, to produce certain books.

POISON GAS IS VITAL WEAPON

Next War Will be Fought With Deadly Chemicals.

BERLIN, Jan. 20.—The war of the future will be chiefly a gas war, in the opinion of Dr. R. Hanslian and R. Bergendorff, who have just published a scientific treatise on "The Chemical War."

Military strategisst must, in the opinion of these two chemists, reckon with gas as "a vital weapon put into the hands of the nation most highly developed in science and technology. Consequently it will confer world importance, or even world power, only on the nation which shows supreme capacity in this field."

According to these authors, the war of the future will be a combination of air and gas fighting supported by gas-carrying tank squadrons which will range over wide areas. The civil population will suffer quite as much as will the military forces.

WOOD PAID LOAN.

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—(Canadian Press).—Major A. E. Nash of the accounting firm which investigated the affairs of the Home Bank after its failure testified at the trial of S. Casey Wood, Home Bank director yesterday afternoon, that the only personal loan the accused had made from the bank was $3000. This loan was made before he became a director and was reduced to $2000 the first year he was on the board and subsequently wiped off altogether. The interest on the loan was always paid promptly witness said.

The only loan made to a company in which the accused was interested was to the Mercantile Securities Company. This loan was also paid off. Major Nash said that when the Bank took over the Canadian Debenture corporation, a Daly company, that the liabilities exceeded the assets by $40,000. To look after this debt Daly borrowed $40,000 from the Toronto branch and paid it to head office. Major Nash said he had sought an explanation of this before Mr. Daly died but was unable to get solution of this method of financing.

WOMEN'S MISSIONARY AUXILIARY MEETING

Mrs. (Canon) Allen President of Millbrook Church Body.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 21 —The women's Missionary Auxilliary of St. Thomas Church held its annual meeting on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. C. M. Westmacott, the president, Mrs. (Canon) Allen, being in the chair.

The attendance was most encouraging and the reports for the year showed much interest shown, an excellent work accomplished.

The following officers for 1925 were elected:

President, Mrs. (Canon) Allen.
Vice-President, Mrs. V. Mulligan.
Secretary, Mrs. E. Whyte.
Treasurer, Mrs. Chas. McNeil.
Dorcas Secretary, Miss Annie Armstrong.
Leaflet Secretary, Miss Muriel Smith.
Sup't Little Helpers, Mrs. (Rev.) M. G. B. Williams.

A most interesting feature of the meeting was an address by Miss Dixon, of Toronto, who is spending the winter with Mrs. Westmacott.

Miss Dixon took as her theme, the story of Jesus when a guest in the home of Lazarus at Bethany, and his conversation with the two sisters Mary and Martha, in reference to responsibility for the household duties. The speaker, having travelled in the Holy Land, was able to make clear the details of the scene which the story pictures, from personal observation. The spiritual lessons drawn were inspiring and beautifully presented.

Readings from the new study book, "The Church and the Newcomer," were given by Miss A. Armstrong and Mrs.H. J. Grassett. It was decided to continue the missionary reading class, one afternoon each week, during the winter as there is hardly sufficient time at the monthly business sessions to give the book the attention it deerves. The first meeting will be at the home of Mrs. C. McNeil. Light refreshments were served at the close, and time given for discussion of the chapters read thus fixing more firmly in mind the subject matter, and making more profitable the study period enjoyed together.

The usual social hour followed the closing prayer giving opportunity for talking over the aims for the year, and other matters of interest in connection with the Auxiliary, Mrs. Westmacott and Miss Macnamara serving lunch before the gathering finally dispersed.

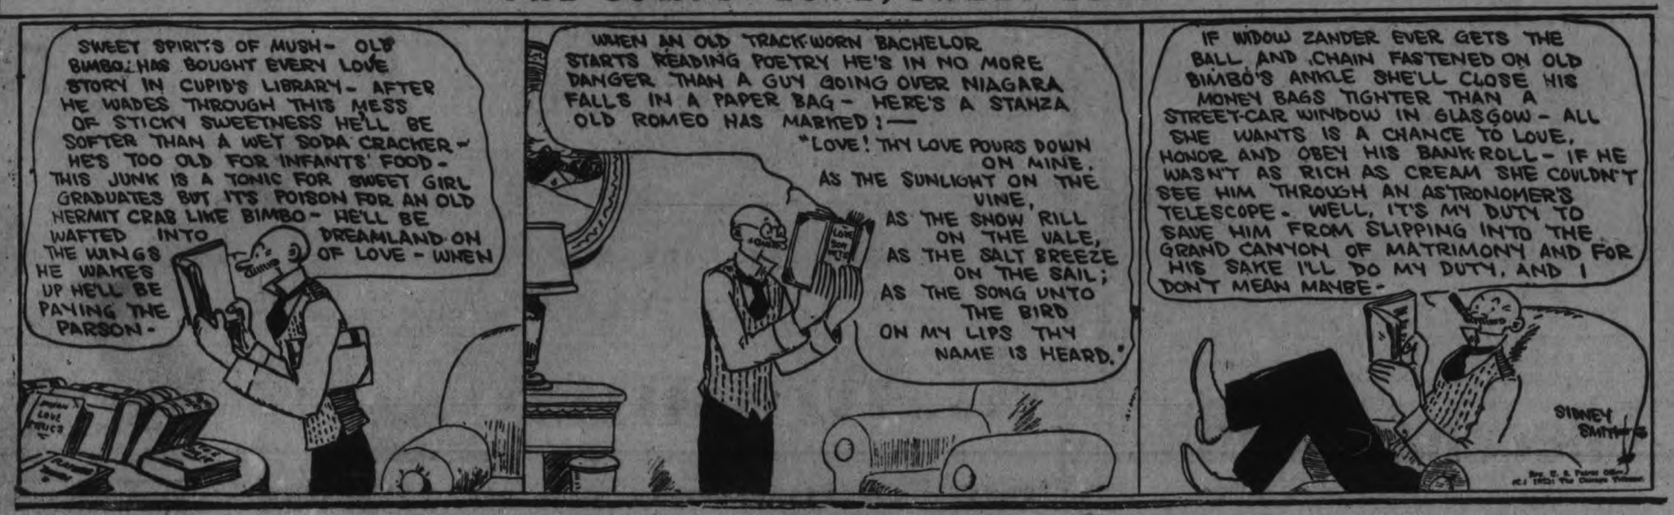
THE GUMPS—LOVE, SWEET LOVE



AVERAGE PRICE $70.60 PAID FOR 18 SHORTHORNS AT ANNUAL SALE

WELL ATTENDED

The seventh annual auction sale of inspected Shorthorns was held under the ausnices of the Peterboro County Shorthorn Breeders' Association at the stables of the King's Hotel, Simcoe Street, yesterday afternoon with a good crowd of buyers in attendance. The bulls all sold at a fair price, the average price for the eighteen sold being $70.60, while the highest price paid for a single beast was paid by N. Watkins, of R.R. No. 6, Peterboro, who bought "Golden King," imported, for the sum of $115. Roan King and Ury Prince, two young beasts, sold for $37.50 apiece, this being the lowest sales of the day.

Much interest was taken in the sale and farmers from all the districts surrounding Peterboro were in attendance. Although Mr. George Jackson, the auctioneer, almost had difficulty in some cases to sell the stock at a reasonable price, he said that the prices paid in most cases were very satisfactory.

Royal Duke—N. Windover, Lakehurst, $85.

Roan King—Jno. Shea, Lakefield, $37.50.

Escana Duke — H. Grant, Peterboro, $67.50.

The opinion here is that the reasons of the judgment will apply just as well to the combines act and to the question of the Federal eight-hour day.

Murdock Explains.

It is being represented that Mr. Murdock forced the issue id insisted upon a test case with respect to the Ontario Hydro. Mr. Murdock explains his action as follows:

"In the latter part of June, 1923, a dispute in the steel plant at Sydney developed to the extent of involving the men employed in the mining industry on Cap Breton Island, with the additional result that a requisition for troops was made to maintain peace, order and good government and practically all of the available permanent forces of Canada were despatched to Sydney and remained there for some weeks.

"About the same time there developed a dispute between the Canadian Electrical Trades Union, Toronto branch, and the Toronto Electric commissioners, and efforts were made to bring about the establishment of a board by joint agreement. This failed and then it became a question of whether the department should establish the board on the application of the employees and in disregard to the protest of the employers.

Would have been Blamed.

"The department was confronted with the fact that some few years previously a somewhat similar dispute in Toronto had developed to the extent of tying up the transportation facilities of Toronto for a short time during the exhibition, and taking into consideration all of the questions involved and the fact that the permanent troops were practically all at Sydney in connection with another dispute, the department decided to establish the board. The Toronto Electric Commissioners secured an injunction from Mr. Justice Orde, with the result now known.

"Had the department failed to take action and had a serious strike occurred during exhibition week I know who would have been blamed," remarked the Minister of Labor." It was reasonable to expect that an act which had been in force and which had been practically unchallenged for 16 years could withstand the test of the courts. In any case it was inevitable that there should be a showdown at one time or another."

Since the act was passed there have been 535 applications for boards of arbitration, 449 of which were granted. In only 37 cases was a strike not averted. In recent years the application of the act was practically unfailing in bringing about a peaceful settlement.

The judgment has been received generally with keen disappointment.

CONSERVATIVE WOMEN'S RALLY

the spirit of the Conservative party," she said, "or of Sir John A. MacDonald, who said he welcomed the co-operation of the Liberal party, and carried it out in practice. Whatever else Mr. King may be, he is certainly not a statesman."

Another angle of the Massey Hall speech by the Premier, attacked by Mrs. Fallis, was his statement that there will be no more changes in the tariff for some years. "Having bribed the Progressives in the past, he thinks he has bribed them sufficiently to hold them for a time and will not proceed to cater to the Eastern voters," she declared.

At the Liberal picnic in Peterborough all the speakers referred to Hon. Arthur Meighen as a pessimist, Mrs. Fallis said, but he is just a man with the courage to tell the people these things that others fear to mention, or try to hide. At that picnic, Hon. George P. Graham called attention to the rapid recovery the United States made after the Civil War, but stopped at the crucial moment, just when he should have told how it was done. Every cent was pressed into the development of the country's natural resources, then a tariff wall was built to protect the growing industries, and immigrants were brought from Europe. "The poet must have had Mr. Graham in mind when he wrote 'Oh, consistency; what a rare jewel thou art,'" Mrs. Fallis said. "Canada, where more men are out of work than ever before, is the one nation in the world that has lowered her tariff since the war, while 65 other nations have raised theirs. The only explanation is that Canada has in power at Ottawa a government and a leader who know more than the combined governments and leaders of 65 other countries. It reminds me of the line in Goldsmith's poem, The Deserted Village:

And still they gaz'd
And still the wonder grew
That one small head could carry all he knew."

About the War.

Hon. Thomas Low brought out another excuse or thought, Mrs. Fallis continued, when he discovered in the war records a terrible thing—that the Union Government and Mr. Meighen had made mistakes during the war. I guess they did. The best statesmen in the world made mistakes. But they were all doing their best. I only know one prominent man in Canada who made no mistake in his war record and who is subject to no criticism. He is W. L. Mackenzie King. He was safely under the spreading wings of the American eagle. I wonder that a follower of Mackenzie King ever mentions the war."

In closing, Mrs. Fallis urged her audience, especially the younger members, to read the history of Canada and of the Conservative party, remembering that they are members of a party that has often gone down to defeat, but never to disgrace. In Hon. Arthur Meighen they have a leader of intelligence, honesty, capability, and with the courage of his convictions.

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P.

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., closed the programme of addresses with a comprehensive survey of the rich endowments of Ontario and a tribute to the work of the women. Reading between the lines, he said, it is evident that there will be a Federal election in a short time. The Conservative party must keep its powder dry; it is going out to win. "If that Government remains in power at Ottawa," he declared, "we will be so over-flooded with debt that, while it is now a burden, it will become an over-burden. People who can get out—I was going to say 'sell out" but that will be impossible—will go to the south.'

Ontario is a heritage that everyone should be proud of, and the Conservative party should be proud of the present Provincial government. "Hon. G. Howard Ferguson is a man of his word and intends to keep it, and I will follow him so long as I have the honor to represent you in the Ontario house."

Mr. Bradburn, after quoting statistics of the material wealth and productivity of Ontario, offered his assistance gladly to any members of his riding who desire anything done for them.

Drive for Members.

Mrs. Fallis took the floor again, in announcing the end of the first phrase of the programme, and told of a campaign for members inaugurated by the Women's Association. She urged women to join the association during the present drive, when each member is seeking five new members.

BERLIN HELPS DOG OWNERS DODGE TAX

Dogs Whose Tax is Not Paid to be Pawned and Later Sold by Auction.

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—The city tax office has unwittingly devised a convenient way of enabling dog owners to get rid of undesirable canines, and of escaping the payment of the dog tax. A decree has been issued by the magistrate that dogs for which the tax has not been paid shall be "pawned" and later sold at auction.

The procedure follows: If an owner is in arrears with his dog tax and declines to pay up, a ticket is affixed to the dog's collar to the effect that he has been "pawned" by the city. The owner no longer has the right to dispose of the canine at will. As soon as a number of tax delinquents has been rounded up—enough to make it worth while—a public auction of the dogs takes place. The lowest bid at which the tax official will give up a dog is one equal to the dog tax in arrears. If nobody offers the amount of the tax or more, the city buys the dog and reimburses the tax department from a special fund. The dog is then taken to a kennel in the suburb of Lankwitz, where a veterinary surgeon kills him.

As the dogs which are thus put up for auction are almost invariably anything but thoroughbreds, and are considered a good riddance by the owners, the city must in nine cases out of ten take money out of one drawer and put it into the next to acquire these doubtful possessions.

WOMEN WEARING MILITARY HATS

British Guardsman's Busby is Model for London Milliners.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—(Associated Press).—The smart four-gallon busby that tops off the full dress uniform of British guardsmen and delights the feminine contingent that never fails to be interested in the picturesque ceremony of guard mount at Buckingham Palace, has been copied by London milliners in a miniature bearskin hat that promises to be popular at the winter style shows. The new hat fits closely over the ears and is held in place by regulation military chin straps.

Another innovation for the winter, this time in footwear, is the use of ostrich skin for shoes. The skins are dyed brown and the holes from which the feathers have been plucked assume a deeper shade, adding an effective decoration. One London bootmaker has been showing shoes made from walrus hide, and is experimenting with the skin of the rayfish, which he thinks will prove successful for footwear.

Loan Bond Holders Been Refused Interest by Lisbon Treasury.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 2.—Discord has arisen between Dutch holders of Portuguese bonds and the Lisbon treasury over the latter's refusal to play interest on loans in Dutch currency, which, boudholders claim, was expressly stipultaed by the terms of the loans.

As a consequence, the Amsterdam Stock Exchange announces that no new Portuguese issues will henceforth be quoted on the official list and this has drawn a statement from the Portuguese legation in defense of the Portuguese standpoint.

Amsterdam is a great clearing center for the collection of dividend warrants and coupons of all continental loans and securities. Discussing the whole subject of post-war international finance, the Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant draws attention to a number of what it holds to be useless and vexatious obstacles to business.

"If foreign governments," says the paper, naming especially Portugal, Argentina, Greece, and others, "only knew how all these hampering restrictions like non-enemy declarations, foreign ownership and the like are constantly being flagrantly evaded in a wholesale manner by a huge, ingenious transfer system, they would soon abolish them, as they are in the main entirely ineffective; the only victims being the small bona fide investor."

LEAGUE OF NATIONS GET REAL ESTATE

Total Will Soon Reach $5,000,000—Permanent Buildings Erected.

By HENRY WOOD.

GENEVA, Jan. 22.—(United Press).—As a result of the decision of the League Assembly to build at once a new million dollar assembly hall at Geneva, the League of Nations will soon have a permanent group of three buildings, each of which has cost a million dollars or more.

These will consist of the present permanent home of the League Secretariat. This building was formerly the National Hotel, one of the largest and most fashionable hotel buildings in Switzerland. It was purchased by the league for something over 5,000,000 gold francs and the grounds that go with it constitute one of the most beautiful properties bordering anywhere on Lake Geneva.

The second building of the group consists of the new International Labor Bureau, which is rapidly nearing completion. Its total cost will exceed somewhat $1,000,000.

Finally, there is the new Assembly Hall, in which the Assembly of the League of Nations, as well as the numerous international conferences held under the auspices of the league, will hold their sessions. This building will adjoin the Secretariat on property which has been bought by the league.

Besides these three buildings leaguers are hoping also to secure private donations that will permit of the erection of a separate library building.

When all of the construction has been completed the League of Nations will possess real estate holdings at Geneva that will total $5,000,000.

Girl Feared Argentine Might Capture Prince

LONDON, Jan. 22.— The Prince of Wales was amused at a meeting of the League of Mercy recently when Lady Tree told a story, illustrating the ignorance in some quarters of London of parts of the earth outside the British empire.

While looking at an electric news sign in Trafalgar Square, Lady Tree said she hear a girl say to her man friend:

"The Prince is going to visit Argentina. What's he going to see her for?"

The disdainful reply was: "He's not a she—he's the captain of the All Blacks."

MOTOR LICENSES.

Hon. Geo. S. Henry, Minister of Public Works, has dropped his proposed plan of having all motor licenses issued in Toronto, and for this year will continue the old system.

If Mr. Henry is wise he will permanently abandon the idea of centralizing the issuing of licenses.

The proposal met with a storm of disapproval from the army of motorists throughout the Province, and although it is claimed there would be some saving for the Government if the licenses were all distributed from Toronto, the system would cost the motorists more and would prove a source of inconvenience to the thousands of car owners living outside the Provincial capital.

So far as Peterborough and district is concerned, the present method by which the licenses are issued by the local branch of the Ontario Motor League has worked out most satisfactorily and smoothly, and a departure from this plan would be resented.

Hon. Mr. Henry would not be proving a very astute politician if he failed to realize that public opinion in all parts of the Province is very strongly against his centralization scheme.

He should quietly drop it overboard.

THE NEW LEADER.

With Hon. W. E. Raney chosen as leader of the Progressive party in the Legislature, it can be safely prophesied that there will be no lack of fireworks during the coming session.

The Premier and Mr. Raney get along together about as amicably as two strange bull terriers, and the fact that the former Attorney-General has been chosen to lead the Progressives will probably be regarded as a challenge to Mr. Ferguson to drag up his choicest jibes for use during the session.

Mr. Raney is quite well able to take care of himself along that line, so that there should be some interesting moments when the Legislature meets.

It will add colour to the proceedings, although it may not be productive of much that is for the public good.

The leadership of Mr. Raney, of course, confirms the Progressive attitude toward the Ontario Temperance Act.

The new commander's views on that question are known to everybody, and he will be a shining target for Mr. McCausland and other "wet" snipers if they have any time left to devote to him after paying their respects to the Premier.

PETERBOROUGH'S EXHIBITION.

Peterborough's Industrial Exhibition is fast growing into the one week standard, as predicted by the Examiner.

This year the Exhibition will be spread over five days, and it will not be long before the big annual event will announce a solid week's activities.

There is no marking time with the Peterborough Industrial.

With a dynamo like President Roland Denne, whose re-election for an eighth term shows how much his services are appreciated by the Directors, supplying the driving power of enthusiasm and a small army of zealous and hard-working Directors ready at all times to work for success, there is nothing for the Exhibition to do but go ahead, aiming at new levels of achievement.

The annual meeting developed improvements to plant and programme that promise to make the Exhibition of 1925 an outstanding success.

Already the vision of the management has given Peterborough grounds and buildings and grandstand accommodation that are unsurpassed outside of the larger centres, and the community value of Exhibition Park is becoming more and more generally appreciated as the facilities are more freely utilized by the citizens for various activities.

There is no dead-wood in the composition of the Exhibition Board, and they are getting results beyond what the most enthusiastic friend of the Exhibition would hardly have dared prophesy a few years ago.

"EVENTUALLY—WHY NOT NOW?"

The fact that much of what is called seasonal unemployment could be averted if the public could only be jolted out of the idea that it is necessary to postpone such operations as painting and decorating until the arrival of warm weather, is brought into prominence by an appeal by the Master Painters' Association of Ottawa.

What is true of Ottawa is also true of Peterborough, namely, that skilled painters and decorators are often thrown out of work during the winter months when they might be working at their trade were it not for this habit on the part of the public of regarding the cold months as unsuitable for this kind of work.

The master painters point out that painting, and especially interior decorating, can be done just as successfully now as at any time in the year, and they are appealing to scores of citizens who are contemplating decorations or new wallpaper in the spring to put their orders in now in order that their employees may be given work during the winter, and that the usual rush in the spring may be avoided.

The same conditions apply to automobile painting. There is always a congestion of orders as soon as the warm weather draws near as car owners press to have their machines painted.

Why should not a lot of this painting be done during the winter and thus provide work for men who are now out of employment?

THE COMING SESSION.

Although there is a cynical attitude of indifference among Canadian taxpayers as to the length and number of speeches in Parliament every year, it must be conceded that if a review is taken of the actual business which can be done by the legislators at Ottawa, there is an important programme ahead for 1925, says the St. Catharines Standard. It depends largely on how the task is performed, whether it will be valuable to the country or not. Certain it is that the subjects which might profitably be discussed will have a direct bearing on the prosperity of the Dominion for some time to come. Here are a few of the subjects:

Adequate protection or a still further tendency toward Free Trade.

Conservation of pulpwood, power and other resources and their utilization to the maximum to build up Canadian industry.

Equalization of railway rates or an adjustment which will satisfy both East and West, regarded by some experts as an impossible performance by Parliament.

Reduced expenditure in every Government department in order to bring about reduced taxation.

New railway construction, including that of the Peace River Valley, a subject requiring further capital outlay on the national lines.

Senate reform as promised by Premier King.

A score or more of private bills and the usual amount of hokum which always features a session preceding a general election.

The Standard has only touched on a few of the important issues before the country. Bound up with these are many other issues less important but requiring skill in statesmanship and knowledge of business generally. When there is a distinct cleavage of opinion such as exists between the agrarians of the West and many portions of the East, can the country really hope for a permanent solution of its problems?

WAYS TO RETRENCH.

The Montreal Star, after many columns of generalities upon what must be done to improve Canada's financial standing, comes out with five definite ways in which it considers that retrenchment can be effected effectively.

The five remedies are:

1st. By cutting down the sessional indemnity. In Sir John Macdonald's time $600 was enough; surely $1,500 should be more than enough now.

2nd. By curtailing the flow of senseless speech, and by making the members talk to the point to limit the sessions to actual necessities, thus stopping this debating society twaddle that fills our Hansards.

3rd. By making a determined stand against the spending of a dollar for anything not urgently needed.

4th. By cutting down the overgrown army of civil servants, and by eliminating every incompetent man and woman in the pay of the country.

5th. By forcing both railway systems to eliminate every dollar of unnecessary expense, by stopping superfluous trains on both systems, involving duplications; by reducing the service over the Grand Trunk Pacific and Transcontinental to the actual needs of the population.

By adopting these measures the Star declares Canadians might have their faces turned to see salvation.

Unfortunately, the first one will strike the average member so unfavourably that he is unlikely ever to get down to a real consideration of the balance of the cure.

THE DIGNITY OF THE LAW.

Canada has often been regarded as a bit old-fashioned by her neighbors to the south, just a little behind the times, and in some lines of life we can laugh off the reproach. In the way of robberies, of train hold-ups, of divorces, of murders and other unpleasant things, we are far behind our neighbors, and feel a certain degree of pride that it is so. Our courts, for instance, administer even-handed justice to great and small, and Portsmouth Penitentiary at present holds a former Provincial Treasurer, Assistant Treasurer, and others who have been prominent in the life of the nation. Bank directors who have been careless of the work entrusted to them have either been tried or are still before the courts. Canada in short, is not a good place for evil-doers, and we are rather proud of the fact.

Canada has never had a murder case of the kind of Loeb and Leopold, of Chicago, who seem to have misused their many opportunities and made the most of every evil impulse. A good many Canadians as well as Americans felt that the law of "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth" would be the most fitting for the young murderers, but with the brilliant defence put up by Clarence S. Darrow and his associates, the death penalty was averted.

A rather illuminating statement has been issued by the Chicago Bar Association which fixed the sum of $130,000 as the fees for the defence counsel, which throws a queer slant on the dignity of the law as interpreted by that association.

"The three attorneys who defended Richard A. Loeb and Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., C. S. Darrow, B. Bachrach and W. Bachrach, having requested the opinion of the Board of Managers of the Chicago Bar Association concerning their fees pursuant to an agreement with their clients previously publicly announced; and having informed the board that subject to its approval they have agreed with the clients by whom they were retained upon a total fee of $130,000 for all their services; this board is of the opinion that in view of the time and labor required, and responsibility involved, the difficulty of the questions raised, and the professional skill of counsel, and also of the outcome of the trial, the sum of $130,000 is a reasonable total professional fee for all their services in that case."

The phrase "and also the outcome of the trial" seems to make a mockery of justice. Suppose the decision had gone against their clients, would the Chicago Bar Association have cut down the fee of counsel? And had they succeeded in clearing their clients would the amount have been correspondingly increased? The dignity of the law would surely have been more fittingly upheld if the reasons for this large counsel fee had not been quite so bluntly stated. The association might just as well have added—"and in view of the wealth of the murderers' families."

As a contrast, the fee of the defence counsel in the Delorme trial in Montreal is said to have been very small—yet that case lasted for many months and was vastly more complicated than the Loeb-Leopold one.—Ottawa Journal.

A THOUGHT.

FOR THE GOOD OF CIVILIZATION.

Columbus started for the kitchen door of Asia and eventually entered the front door of America. He discovered the New World, after others had found it, which in respect to importance, was the greatest move of its time, because Columbus not only discovered America, but he made plans to develop America.

Then, for about four hundred years, thoughts of discovery were largely turned toward development. Columbus was a commercial man. He gave us a trading idea, and trade, or commerce, is a thing that has made America. It is important to discover something, but much more important to develop that something.

For four hundred years, the sea was looked upon as a separator, then some Wise Men of the Middle West started to explore along the shore of Lake Michigan—started out with the compass of Conscience—and they found something that had been discovered years before. In other words, they founded something that had not been put in practice. They did not discover, they developed something.

They developed Rotary, and to-day it is Rotary International. It was further developed, and now circumnavigates the globe.

Rotary International is Chicago co-operating with China, London cabling its friendship for New York, and the little town of Sullivan, Indiana, sending its regards to Scotland.

Rotary International is trade, plus tolerance, and so many more things necessary for the welfare of the world.

Rotary International is no longer just an American idea—it is rapidly developing world ideals and backing them up by sound and sensible interests that are common interests for the good of civilization.

The political ambassadors of all the world cannot perform so great a service or bring about a better influence.

Why Stay Fat? You Can Reduce

The answer of most fat people is that it is too hard, too troublesome and too dangerous to force the weight down. Marmola Prescription Tablets overcome all these difficulties. They are pleasant to take, entail no dieting or exercise, and have the added advantage of cheapness. A box is sold at one dollar by all druggists the world over, or send the price direct to the Marmola Co., General Motors Bldg., Detroit, Mich. Now that you know this, you have no excuse for being fat. You can reduce steadily and easily without going through long sieges of tiresome exercise and starvation diet with fear of bad effects. Get a box and start getting slender now.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Jan. 21.—Tuesday's cattle sales at the Union Stock Yards were 1,570 head and with the day's receipts of 1,654 this meant a carryover of still around 1,000. The activity of the past two weeks has waned and buyers are scrutinizing purchases more careful than they did. The only cattle to show any decline are the non-breedy and unfinished and they are off anywhere from 25 to 50 cents. The restriction of boat cattle space largely to one firm, does not yet evidence itself here as steers sold this morning at $8.25 a cwt., a price easily steady.

Rogers and Maybee were buying exports again to-day of short keeps, heifers and finished steers. Heifers were $5.50 to $6.50, short keeps around $7.25 and the finished steers up to $8.25 a cwt. Butchers' stuff in the early business did not show any change. Phin heavy steers for local butchering sold at $6.50 and a bunch of good medium heifers 925 lbs. each brought $5.50 a cwt. One buyer of light butchers' heifers said he had trouble in getting a supply at last week's prices.

This morning's receipts were light being only 43 cars, 355 cattle, 162 calves, 1,713 hogs and 100 sheep and lambs. About two cars of heavy bulls are here and without immediate sale as the exporters are out of the market for these at the moment. Heavy ones sold at $4.50 a cwt., a drop of half a dollar a cwt. This morning's light run gave a little stimulus to business and the market looks as though there will not be much left to-night.

Calves were not too heavy a run and quality considered prices held Tuesday's advance. With a few choice calves available the drop was 13½ cents, but bulk quantities of mediums sold at 11 cents and the best common ones at 9 cents.

Buyers of lambs are not eager for any except the profitable light killing ewes. Heavy lambs have to be peddled to the detriment of prices. A few real good lambs sold at 16 cents and a bunch at 15 3-4 cents. Bucks and heavy lambs were 13 to 13½ and choice sheep 8½ cents a point.

Hogs were quoted firm this morning at the advance to $10.50 a cwt. f.o.b. and $11.50 off cars.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, Jan. 21. — There was no change in the local grain market to-day, hardly any business being transacted and in fact cable inquiries at any figure were scarce. Extreme dullness marked the trade in coarse grains but prices were firm No. 2 white oats being quoted at 66 cents, No. 3 at 64 cents, and No. 4 at 62 cents per bushel ex-store.

Prices for all grades of butter were well maintained. Little business was done in cheese. Fodder made No .1 goods sold at 19 1-2 to 20 cents per pound and No. 2 at 18 1-2 to 19 cents per pound. The egg market was active and the price trend was steady.

Crop beans were quoted at $2.90 per bushel.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21. — Extremely heavy selling after prices had equalled the season's previous top record led to a sharp decline in the wheat market to-day. Much of the selling was said to have been in the nature of profit-taking on the part of the holders. Wheat closed weak, 1 1-4 to 2 1-8 cents net lower, May 1.88 3-8 to 1.88 1-2 and July 1.65 5-8 to 1.65 3-4, with corn 2 to 2 7-8 cents down oats showing 7-8 cent to 1 7-8 cents drop and provisions varying from 12 decline to 27 cents advance.

LIVESTOCK POOL ALBERTA SCHEME

Tentative Plans Outlined at U.F.A. Convention in Calgary.

CALGARY, Alta., Jan. 22. —(By Canadian Press).—Principles governing the successful operation of a permanent livestock pool were set forth in a statement submitted by the provisional board of directors of the Alberta Co-operative Livestock Producers, Ltd., before the U.F.A. convention, here yesterday afternoon.

The statement which was drawn up on behalf of the livestock section of the organization's co-operative marketing committee, urged an intensified campaign for participating members and the assurance of 2,500 loads of stock, annually, as essential factors to the permanency of the pool.

Following a provisional canvass for members, it is proposed to organize district shipping associations, where a sufficient number of contracts have been secured. Plans for the formation of a selling agency will be carried out following the election of a permanent board of directors, the statement intimated.

This selling agency, according to recommendations, will be established in Winnipeg while arrangements will be made with responsible selling agencies at Toronto, Montreal, Liverpool and Glasgow. The possibilities of the Japanese market and the chilled beef trade with Great Britain also will be studied.

Prime essentials to the successful operation of a livestock pool were enumerated as follows: democratic control; equality of voting power; share of earnings in proportion to the amount of business contributed; control of a sufficient quantity and quality of business, so as to give the pool selling strength and protection against "unfriendly" interests.

The question of regular supply, transportation, selection and disposal of surpluses were reviewed at length.

FELLED MONSTER PINE.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Jan. 22. —(United Press).—There are still a few monster pines left in the Adirondack counties. Samuel Watson and Victor Rock, employed on a lumber job for J. R. Tanner near Thorps Patent, recently felled a huge pine in which were twelve logs measuring five standard. The pine was one of the largest felled since the days of the Adirondack pioneers.

up some rainy evening and see if he didn't want to take me stepping.

I have crammed a whole life story into eight or nine months.

It broke me and it will break anyone who tries to keep it up. There are lots of other girls traveling at the same rate this very day. There are hundreds of other girls running away from school and telling fibs to their parents and having their own wild way—right now.

The cafes are full of them, the beach resorts are full of them, the dance places are full of them, and nobody cares a snap about them or what becomes of them except the parents and the brothers and sisters they are deceiving.

I hope some of the girls who read this, girls who are trying to decide whether they will pay the price for gaiety or will stay at home and listen to what mothers will say, will take my case as an example and decide to do the right thing.

Her Crimson Verse.

Here is some poetry I have written. It tells everything better than I can say it in prose:

She's gone, and nothing I can do will bring her back;
I'll go through life if I'm to live alone,
With but one shot in temper born attack.

I killed her—and I can't atone.
To-day I am the cynosure of hostile eyes.
The world is shocked, my loved ones turn away.
I have no friends, for my own lies have caught me in their dark, dim cell. I sat and smiled
Although my heart within me hung like lead;
My thoughts were on my poor soul defiled
With blood of my dear mother lying dead.

The greatest crime of all, this I have done
To take the life of her who gave me birth;
My dance is ended and my race is run.
Oh, gaiety, oh, jazz, where is thy worth?

(To be continued to-morrow).

WARSAW CHURCH ANNUAL MEETING

Presbyterians Start Voting on Church Union—Reports Were Good.

WARSAW, Jan. 21.—The annual meeting of Warsaw Presbyterian Church was held in the church last Thursday evening, the minister, Rev. W. Atkinson, presided. There were no changes of officers. H. Munro is chairman of the board; Mr. Alex. Watts is secretary-treasurer of both Sunday School and Church; M. E. Hawthorne is superintendent of the Sunday School, which is in splendid condition; the classes are large. The Ladies' Aid made a donation towards the missionary work and are to supply the curtains for the Sunday School.

The Ladies' Aid and Missionary Society, of which Mrs. Munro is president; Mrs. John Clifford, secretary, and Miss Vera Taylor, treasurer, has had regular meetings and has done good worok.

After the regular business was over, there was an opportunity for voting on Church Union. There was also an opportunity for one-half hour after the church service last Sunday, and will be after the church service next Sunday, and again at the adjourned business meeting on Thursday evening, January 29th. The ballots will then be counted.

Cottesloe Church

Cottesloe Church held its annual meeting on Wednesday evening, January 14th. This little church is reported as doing good work all around. The first voting on Church Union took place at the close of this meeting. They also voted or had the opportunity to do so after last Sunday's and will have after next Sunday's services; and at an adjourned meeting to be held on Wednesday evening, January 28th. The ballots will then be counted.

Social Evening.

On Thursday evening last about fifty of the church people of Bethel met in the Sunday School room for a good-bye evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Payne. A very pleasant social evening was spent, with music, games, a contest and lunch. When the prizes were being given, Mr. and Mrs. Payne were called to come up for their's and were presented with a handsome library table and an address, to which both Mr. and Mrs. Payne replied, clearly and happily.

Their old home was very dear to them, they said. Both had been helpers in every good work in the neighborhood, and while they will still be near, their church will be in Warsaw.

Honor Mrs. Laporte.

On Tuesday evening a large number of the friends and acquaintances of Mrs. Wm. Laporte (nee Olive Clements) gathered in the town hall and gave her a shower. There were many useful and pretty presents, also some money. When the refreshments were passed the bride, who wore her wedding gown of white Canton crepe, went round and gave each one a piece of her wedding cake. A very pleasant social evening was spent, and ere the crowd dispersed, there were many heartfelt wishes for the future happiness of the young couple.

Ice is Good.

The ice harvest has begun. The ice is quite good. There is a great depth of snow on the ground, but there is no crust. The Dummer road has good sleighing though. North and south roads are quite sidling. A thaw would be welcome since many cisterns are dry. Some farmers are melting snow while others draw water from the river.

Mr. Buck of Norwood was in the district looking at elm trees last Friday.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Payne have moved into their new home in Warsaw.

W. H. Bell has set up a cobbler shop in the village.

The front wheels dropped sharply, the flivver tilted forward at an angle of 45 degrees, plunged, flattened out again and came to a stop—hub deep in a stream.

"There!" said Sally. "I told you there was water!"

"I never denied it," said the Wreck.

DANCE CRAZE IS DYING OUT FAST

French People Becoming Fed Up on Jazz and Late Hours.

BY MINOTT SAUNDERS.

PARIS, Jan. 21 (United Press) --The dance craze is passing in Paris. This is clear from statistics and from life of the city. The spell lasted for over five years, but it has been on the wane for several months

When the Armistice was signed all Paris started to dance with joy. The first outburst of frolicing was held in the streets, but the pent-up feelings of those grievous war years could not be satisfied with one celebration, and so the dance went merrily on in cafes, restaurants, hotel corridors, private salons rooms rented by clubs in fashionable houses public halls, road-houses, inns and everpwhere else that would accommodate shuffling human feet.

This excessive dancing looked like a seasonal whim but then came the American jazz band. In 1918 Americans in uniform, did their best, and with such success, to introduce the foxtrot and teach the latest steps to the French girls not only in the cities, but in remote villages through out the south and east where they were on duty. The French quickly caught the idea, and when the war ended they were in the proper spirit to go in for jazz whole-heartedly.

The popularity of dancing continued almost unabated until last summer. It was remarked at the fashionable resorts that sports enticed the crowds away from the gay cafes before and during the tea hours, and in the evening the gaming tables were the main attraction.

But the best check is the so-called dancing palaces. At the end of 1923 there were 848 such "dancings" in Paris, but at the end of last year there were less than 500. This means that the working classes are no longer supporting the dance.

In the meantime the semi-fashionable clubs, which held their dances still goes merrily on in Paris, but it is now chiefly confined to restaurants—after the dinner hours—and to midnight cafes in the Montmartre has seriously felt the strain of the loss of popularity of the dance They did well as long as the season was on, but the slump came about two months ago, and business has been very bad. Quite a number of dancing places had to close for lack of patronage and the gaiety of the district has considerably toned down In all the places the dear dancing girls grumble about the hard winter.

Unquestionably the high cost of dancing has been a contributing factor in the decline of its popularity The increase in living expenses has hit all classes, and this includes musicians who have demanded more pay and the vicious circle has been functioning. Within the past few weeks a great many American jazz artists have sailed for home.

143 American Cases In Paris Divorce Courts

PARIS, Jan. 21.—American divorces granted in the Paris courts during 1923 numbered 143 out a total of 7,064. While the percentage of American divorces as regards the total numbers seems relatively small, it is much more important when one considers that all the divorces obtained by other foreigners of all nationalities during 1923 amounted to only 151.

No special legislation governs the issuing of divorces to American citizens in France and none is in course of preparation.

After the Mc-Adoo Huger divorce in 1923, which caused some criticism, it being claimed that the existing laws had not been observed, the then Premier Poincare ordered an investigation to be made at the court house, "into the facility with which divorces were granted to Americans in France."

The inquiry proved that both McAdoo and Huger had legal domiciles in France and that a duly registered certificate thereof had been filed.

The present legislation in France provides that in the applications for divorces emanating from American citizens, the laws of the various states in which they live in the United States, shall apply.

COLLEGIATE WORK WILL BE AMENDED

Subsidies to be Increased for Purpose of Providing a Higher Education.

SARNIA, Jan. 22.— (Canadian Press.)— Supplementing of Collegiate courses so that they will take scholars to the end of the second year university work, the result being popularizing of higher education upon a far reaching scale and lessening of congestion at universities, was the educational projection which Premier Ferguson announced here to an audience in the Collegiate auditorium, which had been assembled to inaugurate Lambton county health week.

The proposal of the Premier, in brief, is that the Collegiate Institutes which shall maintain the required standard will have their subsidies increased for the purpose of providing higher education to the end of the second year in university. By this method the Premier hopes to solve the problem of wastage of youth which is caused by young people attending university only to find half way through the courses that they are not adapted to the work, but who yet cling to the end because of expenses already incurred by their parents. Another feature in university education which the new scheme is hoped to remedy is the present absence of personal equalition between student and teacher, which was declared by the premier to be so necessary to the development of the student. Study in their own homes was believed by the premier to provide promise for young students of greatly needed environment of personal stimulus so important to mental awakening.

During the course of his remarks Toronto University came in for frank criticism from the Premier, because of the lack of this element. "Sir Robert Falconer," he declared, "is, in my opinion, operating a big industrial plant and turning out a half-baked product."

DISARMAMENT PROTOCOL.

Whole Question of Ratification of Protocol May Be Settled in 1926.

LONDON, Jan. 22. — (Canadian Press).—Premier Baldwin yesterday circulated to his Minister a draft of a note to the Dominions regarding the British attitude toward the League of Nations arbitration and disarmament protocol adopted last year.

The note points out the Dominions rejected the British suggestion for the Imperial Conference on the subject in March. It then outlines three possibilities by which Imperial negotiations may be conducted—by cable, by leaving the whole matter to the home Government, or by leaving the whole question of ratification of the protocol, involving much wider issues, until the next regular meeting of the Imperial Conference, probably late this year, or even next year.

If the note is sent in its present form, the Dominions will probably choose the third suggestion.

NEW AMERICAN AMBASSADOR FROM GERMANY HAS GIFT FROM GOBLINS

By E. A. MATHIS.

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—(United Press) —Baron Ago von Maltzan, the new German Ambassador to Washington, can not only boast as a descendant of an old Junker family, of a coronet, a coat of arms, an ancestral castle and a family tree, but he can lay claim to a family legend, a family ghost and a fairy gift — a luck-giving pearl necklace.

In 1588, thus runs the story, Baroness Eva von Maltzan, who had just given birth to her first son, was lying in her oak-carved canopy bed. Suddenly she saw a itny little figure on the floor. It was a little man, quaintly clad, with a long white beard.

"You have heard of the goblins," he said, "who in olden days lived among men and helped them. Now mankind has become unkind and already for a century we are migrating northwards. We took a rest in this castle, and a few days ago my granddaughter gave birth to a boy. We live in the room under your bedchamber, and the oil of your lamp drops through the floor and falls on the bed of my grand-daughter. Will you kindly move your lamp?"

The next night she had the same dream. The third night the goblin returned again and said: "Twice, Lady, I have begged you to free my grand-child from the oil dropping on her bed. Now she and her child have fallen ill. For the last time, I beg you to move your lamp."

The goblin's eyes were filled with tears and he so impressed the Baroness that when she woke up she rang for her maid and ordered the lamp to be moved.

Eight nights passed, and on the ninth Eva con Maltzan again saw the goblin standing before her bed. Joyously he thanked her for her kindness, told her that his granddaughter and her child had recovered and that the goblins would now continue their migration.

"Accept this necklace," he said, "as a token of our gratitude. So long as these pass from son to son in the Maltzan family, they will bring luck to them. When a pearl chanes its color, it will indicate that the head of the family is going to die. Keep these pearls well. Should one be damaged, a misfortune will befall the family."

The pearls confirmed the words of the goblin. The Maltzans increased in wealth and power. In 1616, Joachim von Maltzan, Eva's husband, assembled his family to a large banquet. After dining sumptuously, he hit one of the pearls with his dagger and broke it. At that very moment a thunderstroke occurred and part of the castle was set on fire.

Since that day, the Maltzans never exposed the precious necklace to damage and kept it in the castle of Militsch in Silesia.

Hence, the new hostess of the German Embassy through displaying some beautiful jewellery, will not show her American sisters the mysterious pearls given by a goblin several centuries ago.

URGES RETURN OF POUND TO PARITY

NEW YORK, —Jan. 22 — "A free gold market for London is the surest guarantee for stability in world prices and for confidence, both of which are essential to good trade Frederick C. Goodenough, chairman of Barclay's Bank, Limited, one of the largest financial institutions in Great Britain declared in an address to the bank's stock-holders in London yesterday the test of which was made pubilc by the New York office of the bank.

He added that "it is certain that sterling will return to gold parity, the only matter of doubt being the precise date of such return." It will be necesary, he said, to provide sufficient safeguard against the possibility of having to revert to restrictions on gold, and also that there should be some means of avoiding unduly high rates for the protection of England's gold reserve. The return of a free gold market therefore, should not be unduly forced.

"Many people fail to understand why a return to a free gold market is as important," he asserted, "and are inclined to think that it would suit our manufacturers better for the country to maintain the internal purchasing power of the pound sterling at a higher level than its external value. We have to pay our debts abroad and purchase raw materials from abroad and if we are to provide markets for our manufacturers and promote the production of raw materialss for them to deal with, we have also to invest capital abroad. The uncertainty involved in dealing with these matters will be less if our currency is at parity than if it is at a fluctuating discount in foreign markets and these conditions outweighs any temporary advantage which might accrue to us through a depreciated currency.'

Mr. Goodenough estimated that the British have over three thousand milion of capital invested abroad not withstanding the great sacrifice of foreign investments which were made for the purpose of carrying on the war.

FIGHT ON FREIGHT RATES.

Forke Will Throw Progressives Into Crow's Nest Squabble.

VIRDEN, Man., Jan. 22.—(Canadian Press).—Robert Forke, leader of the Progressives in the Federal House, addressing a meeting here yesterday, announced that at the incoming session the great fight of the Progressives will be for a statutory enactment on the question of freight rates, no matter what the decision of the Supreme Court may be on the Railway Commission's order cancelling the Crow's Nest schedule.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

INCREASING ANTI-UNION MAJORITIES

Editor, Examiner.—Day after day as the returns on the Church Union vote come in from Presbyterian churches, it becomes increasingly evident that the tide has turned against Church Union. In yesterday's report five churcnes in Toronto and vicinity whose votes were given were all against Church Union. In Hamilton to date three churches have entered Union and ten have voted out. Today's reports show such important churches against Church Union as St. Andrew's of Kingston, St. John's of Cornwall, the Brampton Presbyterian Church, St. Andrew's, Niagara Falls, and others.

Another feature of the votes is that the majority against Church Union. Today's reports show Bonar hurch in Toronto, against Church against Union are becoming increasingly large. In St. John's Church, Cornwall, 28 voted for Union and 272 against; in St. Andrew's Church, Kingston, 47 for Union and 334 against; in the Welland Church for Union 38, and against 230; in Brampton, for Union 152 and against 288. At Knox Church, Bridgeburg, 16 voted for Union and 128 against.

Such figures prove that the objective of the early Unionists of a United Church entering Union has completely failed of realization. The result is that today Presbyterians are being forced to decide whether they will enter a new denomination which will not have the united strength expected for it ,or stand by the continuing Presbyterian Church which already numbers over 200 congregations from coast to coast and which number it is known will be greatly increased as additional returns come to hand.

WANTED A TENNIS PARTNER

Elsie Sukkan, 27, just loved to play tennis with Joseph Kleis of Cleveland. And to keep a "love set" going she married him—without divorcing her first husband, August Sukkan, also of Cleveland. Kleis caused her arrest on a charge of bigamy. A Detroit judge, where the complaint was filed, told Elsie to pick one of her two husbands and depart in peace. She chose Sukkan, her first love.

BOARD OF HEALTH SEEKING ECONOMY

A special meeting of the Board of Health yesterday endeavoured to thresh out a means to cut down expenditure on health administration in the city. It was suggested by Claude Rogers that the offices of Sanitary Inspector and Medical Officer of Health might be combined, making the M.O.H. a full-time salaried official, but his plan did not meet with much approval.

Dr. T. W. H. Young opposed any proposal to curtail the staff or efficiency of the Isolation Hospital. "You don't do away with the Fire Department," he said, "when there are no fires."

It was suggested that a man and his wife might be installed instead of the present caretaker and his wife, the man to be caretaker and his wife to do the laundry. At present a laundress is employed. Mr. Rogers' proposal to get a woman three days a week did not find approval, because of the danger of carrying out infection to the city, and because of the apprehension people would have even if there were no real danger.

Finally, Dr. Young was deputed to sound out the employees at the hospital with regard to a reduction of salary, and the question was allowed to rest for the time being. All of the members were agreed that it is necessary to save somewhere, since the appropriations for health and charity have been exceeded this year by some $7,000.

HASTINGS CURLERS LOSE TO LAKEFIELD

Northerners Too Much For Younger Men—Millbrook Wins One.

In the first round of the District Cup games played at the Curling Rink this morning, the old timers from Lakefield showed their superiority over the Hastings rinks when they won their both games easily. Charlton's rink won from W. Farmouth, of Hastings, by 20 stones to 12, and Ridpath defeated Wileman, of Hastings, by 25 to 11. On the morning's play Millbrook and Keene broke even ,each taking a game. In the first game F. A. Eason of Keene, defeated R. H. Edwards, of Millbrook, by 18 to 18 and in the second game, which was also a thriller, the tables turned and the Millbrook rink skipped by George Sayles, came out on top with a 17 to 13 score over F. Howson, of Keene.

Prohibition Menaces Now Peaceful Ireland

DUBLIN, Jan. 22.—A clash between the Dail Eirann and the Irish Free Stte Senate oevr a special provision of the government's liquor traffic control law, is leading various temperance organizations to consider insisting upon a referendum to the people. Such a step is possible because the Free State constitution gives the people the right of referendum in initating and recalling legislation.

The trouble arose over a clause providing that shops which sell liquor premises. The Dail defeated the clause by a substantial maority, thus permitting continuance of the practice, more or less general in Ireland, of having liquor sold at general stores which also sell food, clothing, agricultural implements and sometimes emigration tickets.

Shopkeepers declared the cost of alterations all over the country would be about $25,000,000, but the "dries" declared that the "wets" controlled the Dail. Later, however, the Senate reinstated the clause, and although this body has no real powers, its action in opposing the Dail is serving to hold up the bill for a legal period of 270 days.

Woman Writes Books About Some of Her Dogs, But Fails to Write About Her Former Millionaire Husband, Sir James Barrie.

BY MILTON BRONNER

LONDON, Jan. 22.—She has possessed world-famed dogs as pets and men of genius as husbands. But when, in her old age, Mary Ansell sat herself down to write— it was about the dogs.

And since none other than Sir James Barrie author of world repute, was the husband of her youth, there are critics who affected to find a slap hidden in the pages of "Dogs and Men."

The very pretty gray-haired woman laughed heartily at the suggestion of any bitterness. She received me cordially in her attractive flat, hidden in a quiet nook of London. Quite as remarkable in age as in youth is Mary Ansell. In the heydey of her youth and beauty she was favorite of the English stage. She left the footlights to be the first wife of Barrie. After their separation she married another man of talent—Gilbert Cannan. They divorced six years ago.

"Are men of genius difficult to live with?"

She smiled reminiscently at the question.

"It depends upon the age and experience of the woman," she replied. "An artist is sure to be full of his work. If he is to do himself justice it absorbs him. An older woman comes to understand that, after life has taught her many things. But a young wife doesn't see those things so clearly.

Returning to her book she went on:

"I have written a book about the dogs that Barrie shared with me, but I will never write one about J.M. These are things one simply doesn't do. One of them is for a woman who has been wife to a great man to write a book about him.

"The dogs were mine. They played a great part in both of our lives.

"Porthos, the St. Bernard stepped right out of the garden into the pages of Barrie's 'The Little White Bird, and Luath, the Newfoundland, found immortality as Nana in 'Peter Pan.' So I wrote my dog book out of loneliness, a sort of response to an ache for pets gone forever."

Taking up her book I pointed to certain passages and asked if she subscribed to the cynical French saying: "The more I see of men, the more I care for dogs." Among the passages were these:

"I loved only clever men. And clever men, it seems to me, are made up of reserves. It is out of their reserves they bring their clever things. The reserves of men are as helpless as a dog's lack of reserve is helpless."

"My dog lay there waiting for me to forgive him. He never thought of forgiving me. There's no such word in a dog's dictionary."

"A really nice dog only barks when he wants to express something. Very few people talk for that reason. Sometimes a dog is silent for hours. You seldom find a human so considerate."

It was in this portion that some scented a hidden slap.

"Before I sent my manuscript to the publishers, J. M. read it and approved it," she replied in denial. "He loved the dogs as I did. The very fact that J. M. fully approved of the contents of the book is proof that there was no sub-current or ill-feeling anywhere.

"He and I are good friends. He often comes to see me and we have long conversations. No, not about old times, nor about books, nor the theater. You'd never guess what we discuss. Politics!

"The shyness of J. M. so often spoken of in the papers is not exaggerated. He has always been shy of people, genuinely so. And he is a melancholy man, a sad man, largely because like one of the characters in one of his own plays, he laughs with difficulty.

"You ask whether he loves all children. No, he loves the children that he loves. It's just as unreasonable to expect him to love all children, because he has some wonderful ones in his books, as it would be to expect him to worship all mothers of men, because in his 'Margaret Ogilvy' he drew an immortally tender and true portrait of his own mother.

"But when he did care for children, he cared for them with his whole heart.

"I didn't suggest that Porthos, the St. Bernard, should be put into 'The Little White Bird,' nor that Luath, my Newfoundland, should be made into Nana in 'Peter Pan.' They were J.M.'s own ideas. And it was J.M's idea that for the first time in history a human actor should understudy a dog. The man who was to create the part of Nana in 'Peter Pan' came to our house to see Lauth. And in our dining room Lauth showed him hom to walk. how to show his feeling by various wags of the tail and also how to bark. The coat the man wore was modeled after Luath's and during the rehearsals Luath sat with J.M. in the stalls. He also saw a real performance. He took a curtain calls being led by Peter Pan. People thought they were looking at the actor. When they saw it was really a dog they raised a mighty yell. And Luath, after due reflection, barked back. That was a great time for J.M. and me."

COSTA RICA RESIGNS.

Membership of League of Nations Is Now 54.

GENEVA, Jan. 22. — (Canadian Press).—Costa Rica has resigned from membership in the League of Nations. This reduces the membership to 54.

No reason was given for the withdrawal but it is assumed the resignation was due to Criticisms voiced by members of the budget committee of Costa Rica's failure to pay its assessments. The cheque for back dues came to-day with the resignation.

MAYOR TURNER LOST TOBOGGAN

BIG CROWD OUT.

His Worship Mayor Turner was crowded off the first toboggan to use the new slide atfer its official opening last night when the seating space was hogged by Aldermen Phelan, McIntyre and Denne.

When the Mayor went to take his seat at the back of the toboggan he found that a space of three inches had been left for him on the toboggan, and so far as the Aldermen seemed to care he might drag behind.

However His Worship waved the frolicksome city fathers glad farewell and sent them whizzing down the icy surface that was just about as sudden and breath taking as waking up after a landslide on January first. And then he congratulated himself upon not having to haul the toboggan back after its lond slide to the centre of the James Stevenson park.

Officially Opened.

Mayor Turner, who has since his accession to the Chief Magistrate's chair been a consistent and continuous booster for playing places for the city's childr n, officially opened the new toboggan slide at the east end of the Hunter street bridge last night. There was a wonderfully good attendance considering the nature of the weather and the many other attractions. A couple of hundred people gathered around the platform and lined the slide and the bridge to see the ceremony.

Undoubtedly many expected to see the Mayor take the plunge, but were disappointed.

His Worship alluded to the healthgiving powers of outdoor exercise and expressed the belief that in no other way could so much benefit be obtained by the expenditure of the few hundred dollars needed for the construction of the slide. A man will be on duty every day and evening to regulate the sliding and make it as safe as possible, and the slide itself has been well constructed. He declared it open for the youth and beauty of the city, intimating that "youth" included everyone who is young enough to wish to slide, whatever the figures on his birth-certificate say.

HONOLULU, Jan. 22.— Every member of Hawaii national guard on Aahu island, where Honolulu is situated, will be called to active service to assist the Hawaiian department of the army in "repulsing" the American fleet that will theoretically attack the trritory during the naval manoeuvres next spring, if the chief of the militia bureau in Washington is able to appropriate approximately $20,000 for pay and allowances.

Colonel Perry M. Smoot, territorial adjutant-general, has asked Washington for the funds. If the request is granted, approximately 700 officers and men of the guard will be available.

POETIC TRIBUTE TO SWEET RIVER

Travellers Declare it to be Unsurpassed for Beauty and Lure.

AGE-OLD MY.STERY.

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala, Jan. 22.—(United Press).—Travellers who have visited all parts of the earth have proclaimed that nowhere have they encountered a river possessing the tranquil and alluring charm as that of the Rio Dulce (Sweet River) of Guatemala.

It flows into Amitique Bay, a little distance from the small picturesque Guatemalan sea port of Livingston; and while it is far less known than many of the larger rivers of universe, it never fails to make a lasting impression upon those who visit its winding source and gaze with solemn wonder upon its scenic marvels, which Nature has bestowed upon it with so lavish a hand.

For miles it flows tranquilly between towering cliffs covered with tropical verdure, festooned with orchids and brilliant, exotic flowers. The play of the sunshine upon its waters, the dark mysteries of the shadows along its banks, the reflection of white clouds in an azure sky overhead, entrance the visitor as he ascends its course, until finally it widens out abruptly into a great, shimmering lagoon which seems in the dazzling sunlight a sea of molten silver. Beautiful as is this great inland lake, still it is the narrow portions of the river, with its waters flowing as gentle and soothing as a mother's good-night kiss, that seem to impress to a greater degree those who come to behold and to worship at her mystic shrine. For it is in these narrow passes that her towering cliffs hold age-old mystery, and the sunlight upon her waters, the melting flame of youth, together weaving a spell so subtle and alluring that one can never behold and then forget.

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

Take Salts To Flush Kidneys If Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts.

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts can not injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

MODERN WOMAN NOT EQUAL OF HISTORIC

LONDON, Jan. 22.—(United Press).—Women have been criticizing the dresses of each other by several thousand years, according to Miss Claire Daudet, archeologist and lecturer at the British National Museum.

"In all ages women have always been—well, just women," said Miss Daudet. "The clothes, beauty and character of other women have ever been a choice topic of conversation for ages past. This fact we can easily find on record if we care to read the works of Theocritus, the Greek philosopher."

Although believing that the twentieth century women remain essentially "just women," Miss Daudet is inclined to think that they are not quite equal to those of some of the other civilizations. "During the reign of Khammurabi, the great king and lawgiver of Babylon," she says, "women occupied a very much superior position in the life of the

TOO MUCH JAZZ BAD FOR BERLIN

Cabarets and Theatres Clash With Each Other in Capital.

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—There are today so many places of amusement in the German capital that they intefere with each others' business, and but few of them do well financially. Most marked in recent years has been the development of the opera and the revue. While before the war Berlin had two operas, it now has four; while it boasted of one revue in 1914, six are now competing with each other.

Not included in the 51 theatres running today are the movie houses and the cabarets. There were hardly any cinemas in Berlin before the war; now there are 330 of them, supplying for the most part American films. In 1914 the idea of a caabret was associated with two institutions,the "Linden" and the "Black Cat." Now there are 62 of them. When a restaurant has difficulties in maintining itself, it promptly installs a cabaret in the hope of attracting guests.

Berlin counts also six vaudeville houses and 11 dance places.

French Boy Appears In Jackie Coogan Picture

PARIS, Jan. 22.—Eight years of age, four feet four in height, but already driving an automobile at 120 kilometers an hour, Albert Derancourt—Bebert to his intimate friends—leaves for the United States soon to appear with Jackie Coogan in a film.

"Do you know 'the Kid'?" some one asked Bebert.

"Sure," he replied. "Didn't I see him often in the cinema?"

The French boy obtained his chauffeur's permit at the age of six and one-half years and recently was granted a driver's license for autodromes. At the recently opening of the Monthlery speedway — which will be the scene of the 1925 Grand Prix— young Derauncourt drove his car for 50 kilometers at the average speed of 120 kilometers an hour.

"Do you know what sort of a film you are going to appear in over there?" the young prodigy was asked. "Will you drive an automobile?"

"Certainly," he replied, "otherwise I shouldn't go."

SOLDIER HAS RIGHT TO CUSS SAYS COURT

LONDON, Jan. 22. — (United Press).—The British "buck private" has inalienable right to cuss—provided such swearing is "a mere outburst of momentary irritation or excitement."

Brought before an Aldershot military court on a charge of using insubordinate language to his sergeant, a private of the Royal Dragoons, Shamrock Priest, claimed that the expression used by him was "common barrack-room language," and that he had no intention of resisting authority. In defending him his lawyer quoted to the court a paragraph from the Manual Military Law of the British Army. The paragraph reads as follows:

.."A soldier frequently uses violent language which is a mere outburst of momentary irritation or excitement without at all intending to be insubordinate. Allowances must be made for coarse expressions which a man of inferior education will often use as mere expletives.

On the strength of this paragraph the court acquitted Priest thereby giving him and his fellow "bucks" the legal right to let off steam when they intend no offense by such action.

HEART WAS WEAK NERVES ALL GONE

Mrs. J. H. Hallenbeck, 117½ Welland Avenue, St. Catharines, Ont., writes:—"I was in a gas explosion; it left me with a weak heart, and my nerves were all gone. I suffered everything; couldn't sleep, or endure any excitement, and when left alone I felt as if I could scream. I took dizzy spells, often falling and bruising myself. My mother read about your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and bought me a box, but having taken so many different kinds of medicine it just seemed that I did not have any confidence in any of them. I took one box of H. & N. Pills, and felt so much better I continued with them until I had used five boxes, and after I had taken them I did not need any more. I cannot praise, or recommend, Milburns Heart and Nerve Pills too highly after all they have done for me."

"Worth $100 to Me Relieved Eczema and Piles"

Mrs. Peter A. Palmer, Saltburn, Sask., writes:

"Dr. Chase's Ointment has completely relieved me of eczema and piles. I also used this Ointment for my baby, who broke out in eczema. A few applications were all that was necessary in her case. Dr. Chase's Ointment has been worth a hundred dollars to me,—before using it I had spent a great deal more than that in unsuccessful treatment from doctors. We have also used Dr. Chase's other medicines, the Nerve Food having restored my health after suffering from severe nerve trouble when a girl."

EXPENSES MORE THAN RECEIPTS OF CAVAN FAIR

Millbrook Agricultural Society Expended $1,600 on Improvements to Grounds.

RECEIPTS $1,265

H. A. Fallis Elected President at Annual Meeting—Lady Directors Appointed.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 21.—The annual meeting of the Millbrook Agricultural Society was held in the town hall on Saturday afternoon and was well attended, a spirit of enthusiasm prevailing throughout.

The retiring president, L. W. Smith, was in the chair, and reports presented showed a successful year during 1925. The financial statement was satisfactory, and showed that expenditures for the year, beside prize money and other necessary items, included $1,500.00 for repairs to grounds and erection of grand stand. Of this amount $900 was paid off during the year. The receipts from gate, grand stand and booths last fair day were $1,265.

The officers for 1925 are: President, H. A. Fallis; vice-president, H. Tate; second vice-president, G. A. Fair; secretary-treasurer, J. N. McGill.

Kelly, A. J. Henderson, L. H. Winslow, J. H. Paul, J. Whittington, G. Berry, Reg. I. Fallis, H. Seymour, R. McCamus, John Greer.

Lady Directors were added for the first time this year, the following being appointed. Mrs. C. Thorndyke, Miss May Needham, Mrs. G. F. Harrington, Mrs. J. W. Hamilton, Mrs. H. A. Fallis.

Auditors: D. Hampton and T. H. Collins.

The executive, finance and grounds committees were appointed at a directors' meeting held immediately after the annual meeting.

The matter of holding the annual Winter Horse Show came up for discussion and was left with a committee who are to canvass the local merchants, and if sufficient financial support can be secured, the event will be proceeded with. The extremely stormy weather which compelled a postponement of the Winter Fair last year, involving double printing and advertising when the event was held the following week, left the Agricultural Society with a financial deficit when all expenses were paid.

Field Crop Competition.

On motion, it was decided to enter the Standing Field Crop competition in Fall wheat, and the combined standing field crop and threshed grain competition in Banner oats, ths year.

It was also decided to engage six Departmental judges for the annual Fall Fair for 1925, the dates for the Fair being Thursday and Friday, October 1st and 2nd.

A. J. Henderson and G. A. Fair were appointed delegates to the Ontario Fairs and Exhibitions Association, which meets in Toronto on Wednesday, February 4th. N. Belch was named as alternate delegate should either one of the other two be unable to attend.

Speeches were made by the retiring president, L. W. Smith and other officers, and also by the president-elect, H. A. Fallis, who treated his fellow members to "smokes" before the meeting was dismissed.

Winnipeg Mother Finds Ideal Remedy for Colds of Children

A Vaporizing Salve which Relieves Colds Over Night and Croup in Fifteen Minutes. Nothing to Take—Just Rub It Over Throat and Chest.

Mothers everywhere will be interested in the experience of Mrs. W. Butterfield, 627 Carydon Ave., Winnipeg, Man. Mrs. Butterfield tried the new external remedy for colds, Vicks VapoRub, when it was first introduced in Winnipeg and writes:

"My three-year-old boy, William, became very sick with what seemed to me like a pneumonia cold accompanied with indigestion. He was a very sick boy for two weeks. One night I grew alarmed—he breathed so quickly and was so restless. I rubbed him with Vicks VapoRub and the result was gratifying. He breathed more easily and I was able to get a little sleep myself. The next two nights I again rubbed him with Vicks with still better results and he became as bonny as ever. I surely appreciate Vicks VapoRub and shall use and recommend it at all times."

Vicks is just as good for adults. It is the direct treatment for sore throat, tonsilitis, bronchitis, catarrh, head or chest colds. When rubbed over throat or chest, Vicks has a two-fold action. Internally it is inhaled as a vapor and at the same time, externally, absorbed like a liniment. This double action seldom fails to give immediate relief.

SOLAR ECLIPSE OFFERS THRILLS

SCIENTISTS BUSY.

TORONTO, Jan. 22 (By Canadian Press).—Long's Corners, to date famous largely as a honking place for motorists, five miles south of Hamilton, Ontario, on the Wentworth Highway, finds itself suddenly prominent on the maps of celestial spheres as the result of the impending capers of the moon on Saturday. Experts on astronomy, astro-physics, sky-reading and star-gazing have made that hamlet their Mecca or the purpose of observing the moon's eclipse of the sun.

Mysterious looking buildings, guarded closely by watchmen and barriers, have been erected on farm property near the corners. They might be mistaken for cow barns and chicken coops, but they have no such earthly purpose. They are full of long bellows cameras for photographing the eclipse—if the cloud conditions permit—and other equipment, very technical and very delicate, for the use of the scientists in the epochal grey dawn on Saturday.

In the Centre of Shadow.

Long's Corners was selected by the Canadian scientists for their important work on the eclipse, because that point is about the centre of the valley of the shadow of darkness to be created by the eclipse in Canada early on the morning of January 24. The shadow path cut varies from 100 to 167 miles in width and cuts a swath in the daylight from the Lake of the Woods, across portions of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Ontario, New York and Connecticutt, darkening considerable portions of the Great Lakes on the way. After leaving Connecticutt (the city of New York is on the edge of the path) the eclipse sweeps across the Atlantic, goes north of the British Isles, and at sunset says au revoir to the earth between the Orkney and Shetland Islands.

Magnificent Effects Promised.

Assuming that the sun and moon and other whirling orbits do their daily dozen according to schedule—and if they don't we had better watch out—there will be some thrills and startling effects for the scientists with all their paraphernalia, as well as ordinary folks with their smoked glasses or befogged films, to witness on the morning of January 24. That is, providing that they are in the shadow path and also providing that clouds are not. We are promised the "most magnificent spectacle the heavens have to offer." The moon, it seems, will obliterate the sun and the narrow strip of the earth affected will be for one minute or more in total darkness. Flames millions of miles in length, say the scientists, will be seen shooting from the sun, behind the blackness of the solid ball of rock and sand composing the moon. Presumably this flame broadcasting is all in the usual day's work for the sun but the obstructive tactics of the moon on this particular day will enable ordinary mortals to view these fire-flinging effects.

Partial Eclipse and "Totality."

On the edges of the shadow path there will not be a total eclipse, but some parts of the sun will be obscured, and some of the effects clearly discernible under good conditions. In Canada a line drawn from Goderich on Lake Huron to Niagara Falls will be the centre of the shadow path and the darkest of the total eclipse. The total eclipse will pass over this part of Ontario at the rate of 4,200 miles an hour, doing the trip from Goderich to Niagara Falls in one minute and 56 seconds. Partial eclipse will be in progress in this territory, however, for more than two hours.

Professor C. A. Chant of Toronto University has prepared the following table and programme of the event, which will apply, generally speaking, to most points on the "path of totality":

Programme of Spectacle.

7.59 a.m.—The moon will start to pass across the face of the sun. To the onlooker it will appear as though some huge mouth had started nibbling at the solar orb, leaving a crescent-shaped hole as it eats its way toward the centre.

8.57 a.m.—The sky is still clear but there are ominous signs o what appears to be an approaching storm. All that remains of the sun is a crescent so thin that one might be excused or thinking a puff of wind would blow it away. Daylight begins to all. And then come the amous "shadow bands." Queer-banded shadows move over the side o buildings.

9.06 a.m.—Now is the time to watch for the shadow. Far out to the west the horizon disappears, to be replaced by a line between twilight and daylight, rushing toward you at the terriffic speed of 4,200 miles an hour. The sun seems to break up into a series of bright beads—Baily's beads—as they are called after the astronomer who first observed them.

9.07 a.m.—All else forgotten in the appearance of the eclipsed sun itself, now completely covered by the moon. For the next minute and 12 seconds you will be able to examine the famed corona at comparative leisure, the moon is encircled by a strange, pearly halo, the streamers of which sometimes shoot out from its circumference, for a distance of several diameters. Sometimes the spectacle is made still more weird by blood-red prominences just visible at the edge of the moon.

9.08 a.m.—A crescent-shaped streak of sun will appear on the opposite of the moon to that from which it disappeared. The total eclipse is over, not to return to Ontario again until A.D. 2144.

9.08½ a.m.—Second phase of partial eclipse sets in.

10.22 a.m.—Second phase of partial eclipse ends.

Past and Future Eclipses.

Professor Chant has looked into the records and finds that the last previous occasion when the moon made such a blockade of the sun's performances in this part of the world was on June 16, 1806, when there was a total eclipse visible in Fort Frontenac (now Kingston, Ont.), Ogdensburg, N.Y., and Salem, Mass. There will be another eclipse on August 31, 1932, which will favor the eastern end of Labrador, Anticosti Island and possible parts of Newfoundland. Ontario will never see the like again, however, till the year 2144 when on October 26, at 12.34 p.m. to be exact—an eclipse similar to that of January 24 will sweep over the Niagara Peninsula to astonish our great-great-grandchildren of the 'steenth generation.

PRINCE PREPARING FOR TRIP TO SOUTH AFRICA

LONDON, Jan. 22. — (Canadian Press).—The Prince of Wales is conserving his energy these days for the strenuous five and a half months' trip to South Africa and Argentine, on which he starts at the end of March. His appearance at dinners and other public functions which ordinarily take up the greater part of his time, have been few and far between since his sojourn in the United States. Three or four days of hunting each week is getting him into fine physical shape to stand the strain of sight-seeing, smiling, speech-making and hand-shaking that he will have to undergo. Yesterday, at his own suggestion, the Prince made a public appearance in order to offer a toast of good health to the celebrated New Zealand Rugby team, the "all-blacks," at a testimonial luncheon given them as a farewell by the English sportsmen at the end of their triumphant English tour.

A GRATEFUL LETTER.

From a Lady Made Well by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"I wish from my heart I could persuade every person who is run down in health to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial." Thus writes Mrs. Louise Mitchell, Oak Point, Man., who further says: "About a year ago I was a weak woman, suffering from a run down system and impoverished blood. Any little exertion would cause my legs to tremble and my heart to throb violently. I could not sweep a room or walk fifty feet without being exhausted. Then I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after taking only six boxes I am as well as ever. I can walk, and run too, without stopping every few seconds gasping for breath as previously. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will be my stand-by in the future if ever my blood needs building up again, and I shall always find pleasure in recommending them to anyone needing a tonic."

There are many troubles due to weak, watery blood which can easily be overcome by a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The sole mission of this medicine is to enrich and purify the blood and when that is done all the varied symptoms of anaemia disappear, and good health returns. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box by writing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CANADIAN ROCKIES CATCH ENGLISH EYE

Mrs. Philip Snowden Says They Are Far More Beautiful than the Alps.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 22. — (Canadian Press)—Bolshevic Russia, Great Britain's experiment with a Labor Government and the criticism evoked in both the Canadian and British press by some of her recent addresses, were taboo as subjects for an interview by Mrs. Philip Snowden on her arrival here yesterday after her strenuous trip across the Dominion.

The beauty of the Canadian Pacific Rockies was the only subject on which the wife of the recent Labor Government's Chancellor committed herself, and, speaking of these, she said "the most extravagant expressions of delight could not half describe the glorious beauties of the Canadian Rockies. I am feeling anything but well yet. The twenty-four hours' trip from Calgary to the coast through such magnificent mountain scenery was a continuous source of enjoyment and relaxation. Compared to the Alps, your Canadian mountains are more huge, more intimate, less homely. I have indeed a delightful impression of the whole of Canada."

INCREASE IN RAILWAY TRAFFIC IS EXPECTED

MONTREAL, January 22. — Exceptionally heavy summer tourist traffic is expected in Canada by the Canadian Pacific Railway this year, with corresponding benefit to the country, C. B. Foster, passenger traffic manager of the company stated here to-day.

The railways of Canada and the United States expect to handle over 150,000 persons travelling to the Pacific coast of both countries during the season, the majority of whom will attend conventions in cities of that coast, including Vancouver and Victoria, Mr. Foster stated.

A round score of international conventions, many of which will be very large, are booking delegations via the Canadian Pacific and it is anticipated that at least thirty special trains will be required for these on the westward journey and as many for the eastward.

Great numbers will stop off at Banff and Lake Louise, which expect an unusually busy season.

Besides this indication of the phenomenal growth in popularity of the Pacific Coast, Mr. Foster said, there will ge a heavy eastward movement to conventions in Eastern Canada and the eastern United States.

FIRE IN CANNERY.

BRIGHTON, January 22. — At 11 o'clock last night fire broke out in the premises of the Spring Valley Canners, doing a considerable amount of damage and requiring the efforts of a corps of volunteer fire fighters, who labored until nearly three o'clock before the flames were finally extinguished.

The fire was noticed first by Mrs. George Frederick, who lives near-by. She enlisted the services of Mrs. Fred Round's telephone, and the alarm was sent out, bringing a large crowd of fire fighters to the scene.

The fire is supposed to have originated in a small stove in the labelling room of the factory, where the employees have bee engaged for some time past in labelling goods. The blaze ignited the sawdust, and was difficult to extinguish.

The chief damage was from smoke and water, and the loss is covered by insurance.

EARLIEST STONE BUILDING FOUND

Excavators Believe They Have Important Find Near Pyramids.

SEEK HISTORY.

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 22.—(United Press).—Excavating at the newly discovered stone chapels near the famous Sakkara pyramids will be concluded by early spring. High importance is attached to the find, made by the Egyptian department of antiquities while investigating the pyramidal ruins at Sakkara, fifteen miles south of here. The two royal tombs with their fluted columns and delicate design differ completely from the usual Egyptian architecture and may prove to be the earliest stone buildings in the world. The first Greek fluted columns were 2,500 years later, archaeologists declare.

Original inscriptions have not yet been found. But in hieratic writing on the columns are the names of Egyptian visitors in 1500 B. C., together with remarks on the beauty of the buildings.

Egyptologists associate the chapels with periods of the third dynasty. This would make them older than the great Pyramid of Gizeh of the fourth dynasty. The chapels are hard by the stepped Pyramid of Zeser, and are believed to be tombs either of the queens of Zeser or of princes of his family. History of the chapels may be revealed when work is completed on the pyramid ruins lying just behind.

MISSION CIRCLE HELD A MEETING

Millbrook Ladies Have Interesting Session—Business Transacted.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 22. — The January meeting of the "Golden Links" mission circle was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs E. S. Burnham, about twenty being in attendance.

The president, Mrs. J. McKnight, occupied the chair. After the business period ,during which the completion of the autograph quilt which has been under way for some time was discussed, Marjorie Sayles gave a reading, "How a young Japanese boy found the Light of the World." A solo, "O dry those Tears," with encore, "Keep on Smilin'," by Miss Ethel Richardson was much enjoyed.

"The Call,' a reading by Mrs. F. Smith ,brought a telling lesson of the need of workers in the Master's vineyard. A brief outline of "The Tide of Thought," from the study new book, 'China's Real Revolution,' was given by the vice-president, and the items from the Watch Tower were taken up those responding being: Jean Burnham, Marjorie Sayles, Marie Kenyon, Margaret Howard, and Marjorie Skitch.

Marjorie Skitch and Laura Crocker were appointed to collect the blocks for the quilt from those who are working names and have them in as soon as possible. Marie Kenyon and Margaret Howard agreed to be programme committee for the February meeting.

The treasurer reported about $25 in the treasury, the circle requiring to raise $50 each year as its share toward Miss E. C. Hawken's salary. Miss Hawkin represents the Auxiliary of the Methodist church here at the Wahstao Home and Boarding-School in Alberta.

Misses E. Richardson, H. Barnard and Etta Peel furnished piano solos durin~ the social hour at the close, home-made candy being the treat provided. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. G. E. Burnham, the third Tuesday in February.

Mr. J. Kelly is down from the West, visiting his brother, T. A. Kelly, and his sisters, Mrs. Milligan and Miss A. Kelly,on the home farm.

Child Injured.

Johnston Rowland, the seven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rowland, 4th line, Cavan, met with an accident on Saturday afteroon, his head being severely cut over the left eye from being kicked by a horse he was leading back to the barn after watering. The wound bled profusely and the child was unconscious for a time. Fortunately the horse was not shod or the result would probably have been fatal. His sister, Anna, was with him and summoned help at once from the house. Dr. H. A. Turner was called and by the middle of the week the boy has progressed satisfactory toward recovery.

District Cup Rinks.

The rinks going to Peterborough on Thursday this week to compete for the district cup are: G. W. Sayles, skip; A. McCory, T. H. Bradley, H.B. Allen, R. H. Edmunds skip; J. Steele, W. E. Ball, J. Lancashire.

R. R. Stevens, of Ancaster, was in the vicinity on Tuesday inspecting pure bred Holstein cattle for the cattle for the annual sale to be held in Bowmanville, next month.

The many friends of Mrs. Archibald Wood will regret to learn that she is seriously ill. Nurse Reynolds is in attendance. Reeve W. T. Wood may be prevented from attending the Counties' Council meeting at Cobourg next week, owing to the grave concern felt regarding his mother's health.

Mr H. Skitch and daughter, Miss Marjorie, were in Port Hope over the week-end attending the funeral of his cousin's wife, the late Mrs. Harry Skitch. Miss Mary Skitch, who was called to Port Hope last week, owing to the serious conditio„ of her cousin's wife, has not yet returned home.

Reeve W. T. Wood received official notice on Wednesday of this week confirming his recent appointment by the Ontario Governmnt as Justice of the Peace for Northumberland and Durham Counties.

BOMBAY CRIME RAISES STORM

Nautch Girl Was Favorite of Prince, Who is Immune to Arrest.

TWELVE ARRESTED.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—J(Canadian Press,)— The stabbing of the escaped Nautch girl, Mumtaz Begum, in the streets of Bombay, and the murder of her protector, Adbul Kadir Paula, has become a sensation in India rivalling that of Sir Hari Singh, (Mr. A.) of the London blackmail case.

The police net is closing around satellities of Maharajah of Indore, one of the most powerful of Indian potentates, who is said to have paid for the murder of Abdu and the mutilation of Mumtaz.

Captain Dighe, of the Indore Infantry, the Maharajah's aide-de-camp, was arrested by the British police at Indore with four other Indore officers and a state motor driver. The arresting officers have applied for extradition of the prisoners to Bombay.

Mumtaz was a favorite of Maharajah. She escaped during a train journey by throwing herself at the feet of a British policeman and begging for protection. Later her protector was murdered and one of the assailants slashed the pretty dancer's face. It has not been established whether the Maharajah's men meant to kidnap her or disfigure her for they were driven off by British officers.

It is believed the Maharajah himself is immune to arrest as he is a reigning prince and does not come under the jurisdiction of the British criminal laws.

Twelve persons are now in jail, however, in connection with the attack. These include the girl's father and sister, but there is some reason to believe they have been locked up to protect them.

OPIUM CONFERENCE RESENTMENTS GROW

GENEVA, Jan. 22 — (Canadian Press)—Viscount Cecil delivered yesterday a reply to Representative Stephen G. Porter of the United States, who had charged Lord Cecil with slandering the United States and insinuated that Great Britain had not lived up to the Hague Treaty.

The British delegate indignatly resented this insinuation. In persuasive and sincere speech he declared Great Britain is irrevocably committed against the United States proposals for suppression of opium smoking. He intimated his delegation will abandon the present opium conference if it attempts to discuss the measure the Far Eastern countries shall take to suppress opium smoking.

The United States programme calls for a reduction of smoking by ten per cent. each year, so that in ten years the habit will have been extinguished.

After this and other speeches, the conference adjourned, amidst a conflict of optimism and pessimism, until Saturday. All the delegates agreed to the recess in hope that a compromise will be worked out in private discussion.

PREMIER INVITES HELP OF QUEBEC

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson Points to Community of Interest in Two Provinces.

TORONTO, Jan. 22. — (Canadian Press.) — A strong invitation to Quebec to unite with Ontario in serving Canada in its present industrial crisis was extended last evening by Premier Ferguson in a brief address which he delivered at the third annual smoker of the Liberal-Conservative Business Men's Association, pointing out the community of interest which both Quebec and Ontario shared in the problem of national prosperity. The Premier recalled that it had always been the Conservtaive party which had led the country out of industrial depressions and he urged the citizenship of Quebec to unite with that of Ontario in securing another deliverance at the next general election.

PARKDALE WITH HARRY WATSON HERE TOMORROW

PADDLERS FAST

The brisk demand for reserved seats for tomorrow night's game with Parkdale indicates that there will be a monster attendance to see the Petes in action after their long list of away-from-home victories.

It has been a very peculiar season inasmuch as although the blue and white have won ten games so far they have appeared before a home audience only twice and Peterboro fans are naturally hungry for a good game.

They should see that tomorrow night for the Paddlers are full of confidence that they can stop the winning streak of the Petes and practically tie them for first place by a win here on Friday. The Parkdale crew has plenty of bulk and they figure that on a smaller rink, this factor and their hockey experience will offset the superior speed shown by the Petes against them on the two occasions when Parkdale were beaten in Toronto.

Under Pork Romeril's direction and with Harry Watson leading the attack the Toronto crew expect to give the Petes a busy hour. McAllister will likely play goal with Lou Harris and Mose Lount in front of him while Watson will be at left, Scotty Causkell in centre and Don Jeffrey at right. Just what pair of subs will be used has not yet been announced but Harrington and Sullivan are expected to get the assignment.

The game will start at 8.30 o'clock in charge of Referee M. J. Rodden of Toronto.

COUTU RAISES STORM.

Every Time He Argued, Up Went Penalty and Fine —Canadiens Defeated.

MONTREAL, Jan. 22 (Canadian Press).—St. Patricks defeated Canadiens here last night by 4 to 2 in an exciting game, marked by fast, open play and some rugged work, to say nothing of one costly talking episode. In the second period Bill Coutu, who was the storm centre of a near riot at Hamilton last Saturday, got two minutes for using his elbows. He argued and the penalty went up to ten minues. His remarks incensed Referee Smeaton who started clapping on fines; every time Coutu spoke the fine went up and finally totalled $13.

NEWS TO BELLEVILLE.

Professional Baseball League All "Hokum"—Lee Not There.

(From Belleville Intelligencer)

Despite rumors from Kingston that fans who formerly watched Central Ontario League amateur baseball might watch professional ball here next season, there appears to be absolutely no foundation for such rumors and stories in so far as Belleville is concerned.

In conversation with a prominent official of the 1925 C.O.A.B.L. executive, there is not the slightest intention of Belleville entering the professional arena, and furthermore, contrary to the story which appeared on the front page of Tuesday's issue of the Kingston Standard, no person has been in Belleville with a view of arranging such a league.

Though this newspaper states that "Knotty" Lee has been here and has made "splendid" arrangements for the entry of Belleville's team in this professional league, it has been officialy stated here today that the same "Knotty" Lee said last summer that there was not a man on the C.O.B.L. aggregation who could "catch" a professional team.

In so far as the Belleville end of this "mysterious" deal is concerned then, this story must be so much "hokum."

Every Resource of Major Baseball Association Available to Landis and Banton.

UMPS GET RAISE

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—(Canadian Press).—Assurances from both the National and American Leagues that every resource at the command of these two organizations would be placed at the disposal of Kenesaw Mounain Landis, baseball commissioner, and District Attorney Banton of New York in assisting the New York prosecutor in his investigation of the Dolan-O'Connell bribery scandal was made yesterday at the meeting of the baseball advisory council.

District Attorney Banton has asked the commissioner for the addresses of the principals figuring in the scandal, together with any data bearing on the case not already included in the published testimony. This will be promptly turned over to Commissioner Landis.

Yesterday's meeting of the advisory council was the first since the break in relations between Landis and Ban Johnson, president of the American League soon after Landis become commissioner. It was attended by President Heydler of the National League and Frank J. Navin, president of the Detroit Club, selected by the American League club owners as the representative on the council, after they removed Johnson from membership.

The major league umpires, after making several appeals, won their attempt to obtain more money for their services in world's and city series.

The council decided to recommend to the league that each umpire be given $2,500 for world's series services.

Each umpire assigned to a city series will be given $750 instead of the old salary of $500, if another recommendation of the advisory council is adopted by the two leagues.

The council also voted in favor of allowing the two clubs finishing fourth in the major league pennant race to share in the world's series receipts. Heretofore, this division of the spoils was restricted to the first three clubs.

SUDBURY DROPS OUT OF SERIES

FOLLOW JUNIORS

SUDBURY, Jan. 22.—(Canadian Press).—At a meeting of the executive of the Sudbury Hockey Club yesterday afternoon it was decided to default the series with the Soo Greyhounds and disband the senior team. Notice to this effect has been forwarded to the Soo Hockey Club, where it was not unexpected and last night members of the team were told that they were free to do as they please.

For the first time in Sudbury's Hockey histoy the juniors are holding the centre of the stage. Aurie and Faught who are starring in the lower series were originally slated for the senior squad, and would have made a big difference to the team but the juniors have caught the popular fancy and any suggestion to place these two outstanding players in the senior ranks met with a storm of public protest. With the two senior games played producing only a listless brand of hockey and no indication of the team getting anywhere with the Grey Hounds, in justice to the fans of Sudbury and the Soo it was considered only fair to default rather than make a farce of the game.

Thus the great winter game moves from the memorable struggles of former years between the Soo and Sudbury to the keenest rivalry in the junior series now existing between Sudbury and North Bay. It is with a great deal of regret that Sudbury Hockey Club is forced to lay down the gauntlet to their old-time, but honored rivals, the Soo, but it all comes in the cycle of time. The "pro" raids worked havoc in Sudbury Hockey circles during the past two seasons and junior hockey wold seem to be the only stabilizing factor for some years to come.

FANS! WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THIS

Suggestion That Rooters' Club Be Organized on Big Scale To Attend Group Play-Off in Toronto—Boost the Petes and Peterboro.

To the Sporting Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I'd like to ask the fans what they think about organizing a Rooters' Club to get behind the Petes in their next appearance at Toronto arena. Can Peterboro muster 300 supporters of the team for the play-off in their group, probably with Parkdale, drum up a couple of bands, engage a special train, parade from the Toronto Union Station to the Arena, occupy a solid block of seats and generally let the big town know we're there and that we think a whole lot of our team.

Of course the Petes have to qualify first, but surely we are within the bounds of modesty when with four victories and no losses we begin to feel that the Petes will be in the group play-offs.

We've waited a long time for the distinction in Ontario Hockey which the present team has already brought to Peterboro, and like the eclipse it may be quite a span of years before we are up there again. (Let us hope the team stick together for a while). We have a month until the group winner must be decided. That affords plenty of time to prepare for a little demonstration in Toronto.

Peterboro people are so constitutionally conservative and dubious, like the Missourians of the fable, that many of them are still pinching themselves to test the reality of their present sensations of pride and elation as Peterboro's senior hockey team piles victory on victory. Why not shake ourselves out of this daze and exploit with a splash the team's achievements and their chances to go away up the hockey ladder before Spring comes.

I should like to suggest that a meeting be called of those who intend to see that play-off in Toronto. Leadership is prerequisite. The Kiwanis, Rotarians, Belmont Club, any or all of these organizations could start the movement. It would soon become known how many will make the trip. Surely Peterboro can turn out 300 fans, young and old, from the factories, shops and offices. If Mayor Turner hadn't so many duties I'd like to suggest that he take hold. Of course, the fans might fail to get together, but if they do they don't deserve a senior and winning team. Havelock can run special trains for their Tweed games and take along more than a hundred fans. At that rate Peterboro should turn out 2,000 at least. That would be advertising the old town and its team.

Well, what about it? Everything would have to be done voluntarily. If a band, say the Rangers and Caledonians went along, their music would doubtless be free, and if the scheme found general favor the Male Voice Chorus might form the nucleus of a Rooters' Chorus, probably with a special song or two between periods. This may read like a pipe-dream, but it certainly can be fully realized if there are enough men in Peterboro who desire that such encouragement and publicity be organized. A special train at 5.45 p.m. or even 6 should accomodate everyone who wished to go without losing time from work. If you approve of this idea start something with the Mayor and Council, the Examiner or the Hockey Club management.

Let's go.

HAMILTON BEAT OTTAWA.

Five Seconds' Overtime Needed in Forwards' Game —Goalies Easily Beaten.

HAMILTON, Jan. 22 (Canadian Press).—Hamilton defeatetd Ottawa after five seconds of overtime play here last night, the final score reading 5 to 4, in a game featured by close checking and bad net tending. Three of the five counters scored by Hamilton came from far outside, the defence to beat Connel while Forbes was also guilty of being beaten by some easy ones. An injury to Frank Nighbor early in the second period robbed the Senators of his services for the remainder of the game.

GAUTEMALA MONEY ON A SOUND BASIS

Government Passes Measure Designed to Establish Finance Firmly.

GUATEMALA CITY, Guat., Jan. 22.—(United Press).—After twenty-five years of unstable and unsettled monetary conditions, the Government of Guatemala has just passed a new law designed to place finance upon a firm and unfluctuating basis. The new monetary unit will be the "quetsal," equal to an American dollar, and equivalent to sixty pesos of the present national currency. Coins will be issued in gold and silver, the later for an amount not exceeding two million dollars, U. S. currency. American dollars, both in gold and bank-notes, will be legal tender.

To redeem the present paper currency which temporarily will have legal tender value, a reserve fund of $2,800,000 will be created, to be paid in full in gold, and to represent 40 per cent. of the notes outstanding. An extra fund will be created, of twenty per cent. of the present circulation of notes, to be used as guarantee of the ultimate redemption of the notes.

The Central Bank of Guatemala will be incorporated, and it shall substitute the present currency with its own redeemable bank-notes. It is expected that within two years Guatemala's currency will be on a gold basis. In order to put the new law into effect, however, and to place the finances of the country upon a sound basis, a loan from the United States may be negotiated.

Artificial Sunlight Makes Patients Happy

LONDON, Jan. 22. — (United Press).—"Poems made to order while you wait" and "Every man his own poet" may become popular advertising slogans for physicians during the next few years if the accidental discovery of a London doctor can be commercialized.

Artificial sunlight treatment—the official medical name of which is heliotherapeutics,—it has been ascertained, has the peculiar effect in some cases of bringing patients into such a state of ecstasy that they cannot refrain from breaking into song. Even though the densest of London fogs is enveloping the city outside, as soon as the doctor has switched on the "sunlight current" one has the feeling of lying under sunny trees on warm spring days, of bathing in cool streams in midsummer, of sitting by a cozy fire when the thermometer stands below zero, etc.

It has not yet been discovered, however, whether or not the "poet making machine" can give a thirsty Canadian the sensation once furnished by the sight of a brass rail.

WEEKLY HIKE OF LOCAL SKI CLUB

Seventy-five Members in Togs of Many Colours Take Long Jaunt.

One of the most successful hikes of the Peterboror Ski and Snowshoe Club held this season took place last night when about seventy-five members turned out for a healthful and joyous tramp through the southern parts of the city.

The hikers left the old Westclox building on George Street South at 7.30 and proceeded east, via Romaine and Crescent Streets, to the Locks Bridge. Here they crossed the bridge and headed south on the River Road to a point opposite Rye's Boat-House, where they turned north, crossed the river and proceeded back to the starting point, where, until the small hours of the morning, the happy gathering took part in games and dancing. The following was the programme:

Piano solo, Miss Agnes Logan; reading, Mrs. Hazel McClelland; community singing; several dances, and supper, at which the waiters were Harold Yelland, Alex. Donnelly and Stewart Fleming.

The following members of the club acted as hosts and hostesses: Miss Elva Jackson, Mrs. H. Yelland, Mrs. G. McClelland, George Logan, Frank White and Fred. Green.

On Saturday afternoon the ski-ing members of the club will do their stuff on Armour Hill in East City.

Firpo is reported to be a speed maniac with his new car, and some of his friends fear he may have met with an accident.

Would Postpone Eclipse To Help Soccer Crowds

LONDON, Jan. 22 (United News).—British sportsmen are becoming panicy over the possibility of Saturday's eclipse interfering with Saturday's football. League football matches are weekly events in the fall and winter, and the crowds always compare favorably with a world's series baseball turnout.

If anything can be done about it, the British sportsmen would like the eclipse postponed. Failing that, they are clamoring for the starting time of the many games to be altered, to obtain illumination that passes of sunlight here.

ENGLAND NEEDS 27 RUNS.

ADELAIDE, Australia, Jan. 22.—(Canadian Press).—With A. E. Gilligan, captain of the team, not out, 29; Freeman, the Kent bowler, not out, 17, and the veteran Surrey wicketkeeper, Strudwick, still to bat, England requires 27 runs to win the third cricket Test match with Australia, and so remain in the running for the rubber.

Continuing their last innings of the match to-day, the Englishmen carried their overnight score of 133 for three wickets to 348 for eight. Australia scored 489 and 250, England replying in their first innings with 365.

Lawman May Be Hailed As Greatest Astronomer If He Happens To Catch Good Image of Eclipse In His Little Old Despised Two By Twice Camera

WILLIAMS BAY, Wis., Jan. 22 (Canadian Press). — Some layman or amateur may render valuable aid to science in observing the total eclipse of the sun on 24th January, according to Professor Edwin B. Frost, director of the Yerkes Observatory here of the University of Chicago.

It may happen that the only clear place for observing this eclipse," he said, "will be some little town. It may be just a small camera, in the hands of an amateur, that will catch the most successful picture. Of course, instruments of a large focus are desirable.

"If the camera is focussed so that it gives a sharp picture of the moon or of objects as distant as 1,000 feet, it will suffice, and both short and long exposures should be made.

"By long, we means those of 30 to 40 seconds by short, those of one to five seconds.

"It is recommended that experts with the brush living in the zone where the eclipse will be total, should have their colours ready at this eclipse, and make a record of their impression of the corona.

"Persons skillful in drawing should make a sketch showing the size and shape of the corona. To save time, a circle about two inches in diameter should be drawn in advance to represent the outline of the black moon exactly covering the sun, and then the sketch should be made by scale.

"Accurate statements are needed about the faint bands of alternate dark and light that appear on the snow before and after totality. They have never been accurately photographed, and descriptions differ. Estimates of the width of the bands, directions in which they are moving, and their speed should be recorded."

Scientists are anxious to know the exact limit of the track of the eclipse, and hope persons living along the edge of the shadow will record the shadow line and send the information to the local papers, through which it is hoped the facts will get to the astronomical societies.

Northern Lights May Providean Extra Big Turn When oMon Is Called To Stop Sun On Saturday

LONG'S CORNERS, Near Hamilton, January 22 (Canadian Press). — Will the Northern lights flash out as an eerie background when the moon dams back the daylight on Saturday morningg.

Professor C. A. Chant, who is directing the Toronto University observations here, thinks there is at least a possibility of the Aurora Borealis supplying an extra wing in the scenery when the moon is featured in the best extravaganza of many years in these parts—the total eclipse of the sun.

Incidentally the big celestial show travels from west to east, and thus all Provincial circuits will beat Broadway in seeing it—by some seconds.

"A cold, clear day will give us the best chance to make observations," Professor Chant said.

This is also the sort of weather in which the dancing streamers of the Aurora disport themselves. Hence a good day for the eclipse may mean also a matinee showing of the Northern lights.

MAKE SMOKERS PAY EDUCATION

Plan of Ma Ferguson Would Wipe Out Smoking or Learning.

AND PROHIBITION!

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 22 (Unitetd Press).—Governor "Ma" Ferguson wants to make the smokers of Texas pay for the education of the school children. In her legislature message which was read and re-read with interest throughout the state, the new woman executive proposed to tax cigars and cigarettes, and "if smokers are interested in the great cause of education all they have to do is to cut out smoking until such time as the desire for smoking would overcome opposition to education."

"Ma's" message demanded a sweeping reduction in tax expense and proposed a cut in Texas taxes, notably on automobiles, which she would reduce by more than half. At the same time, the governor would raise the gasoline tax.

As for prohibition, Mrs. Ferguson indicated that the "bone dry' efforts of her prédecessor, ex-Governor Neff, would not be maintained.

"Public officials are going to enfore the law on the proportion to popular demand for such enforcement," she informed the legislature.

She indicated that the Texas rangers would not be used to enforce prohibition. One of "Ma's" bitterest enemies during her campaign for the governorship was a prominent member of the Ku Klux Klan who owned a chain of drug stores. Without mentioning any names, the governor asked that "boot-legging" drug stores be driven out of Texas. Funds derived from auto licenses, the cost of which "Ma" would reduce from $16 to $6, she would use exclusively on Texas roads. Her proposal regarding gasoline was to raise the tax per gallon from one to three cents. The governor suggested a tax og $5 to $20 a thousand on cigars and a tax of $2 a thousand on cigarettes. Estimating there are 2,000,000 smokers in Texas, she figures that this will bring in a revenue of $4,000,000. all of which she would apply to the education of school children.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 22.—(Canadian Press).—The construction of the Hudson Bay Railway by the Provincial Governments of the Western Provinies is not favored by Premier John Bracken, of Manitoba, according to a statement he made in the Legislature here yesterday during the debate on the speech from the Throne. He declared it was not the duty of the Provincial Governments.

TELLS POLICE HE KILLED TWO

Man Confesses to Slaying Former Wife and Her Sweetheart.

CHILD WEEPS.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 22.—(Canadian Press).—Walking to Chene Street Police Station last night, Samuel Gell, 38, calmly told the officers he had shot his former wife and her sweetheart.

A few minutes later, the police found the woman and Alex. Hurkis, 28, dead on the floor of their home. Sobbing over the form of the woman was her 11-year-old daughter, Mary.

According to Gell, whose correct name is Alex. Diltosan, police say, he became separated from his wife and daughter 18 months ago.

The woman got a divorce without his knowledge, he says, and went to live with Hurkis, despite his pleas.

Gell declared that for months he tried to win his wife and child back, and said they might have returned had it not been for Hurkis.

A few weeks ago, he said, Hurkis told him to keep away and not to communicate with the woman or he would shoot him.

"I saw them through the back window and I entered by the back door," he told the police. "I again begged my wife to leave Hurkis and she turned away from me. I looked at Hurkis and said, 'You're going to kill me, are you?' and he said, 'Yes.' As he started toward me I fired and he fell to the floor. Then my wife started screaming and I fired at her three times."

BANKERS' HOCKEY.

Nova Scotia and Dominion Defeat Royal Union Team 6 to 1.

The Nova Scotia and Dominion Bank's team proved too strong for their opponents at the Brock street arena on Wednesday afternoon, placing the Royal-Union team out of the running for the first half of the schedule.

Both teams worked hard, and Hollingsworth of the Royals made several spectacular rushes down the ice, battering Sedgewick's goal, who with one exception, proved too much for the losers.

Kearney and Ackerman scored two goals. Heaney and Black each with a single, made up the total count, leaving the Nova Scotia-Dominion team in good shape to meet the winners of Thursday's game for the bank championship.

FAMOUS DOG ACTOR STARRED IN ANOTHER PHOTO-PLAY

Rin-Tin-Tin, Hero of "Where the North Begins," Has Role Written Especially for Him in "The Lighthouse by the Sea."

Rin-Tin-Tin, the famous "wonder dog" of the screen, is back in another picture, 'The Lighthouse by the Sea,' from the Owen Davis play of the same name. This picture is announced by the Regent Theatre management for three days and all who marvelled at this dog's amazing skill in "Find Your Man" are promised a still better treat in this Warner Bros., Classic of the screen.

Background and "atmosphere" are always wonderful assets for a human star oftentimes counting for as much as does his or her ability. The same rule probably applies in the case of a dog actor and, if it does, Rin-Tin-Tin ought to have the world at his feet. He has already proved that he has marvelous "ability"—and certainly nothing that lives or breaths could be possessed of more interesting background or atmosphere.

Rin-Tin-Tin is owned by Lieut. Lee Duncan, who served as a member of the 135th Aero Squadron, A. E. F., during the World War. He and his sister Nanette, were capturred from the Germans near Metz while they were very young puppies. The names given them are those of a pair of famous goodluck dolls made and sold by the French during the closing days of the war because of an interesting, if gruesome, incident of the great conflict. For many months they were the pets of the aero outfit, Lieut. Duncan caring for them as their master.

They were brought to this country with considerable difficulty and Lt. Duncan who had discovered the wonderful sagacity of the male dog, offered his services to motion picture producers on the Pacific Coast. Nanette, whose health was not of the best, probably because of her experiences in the trenches, was given to Mrs. Leo F. Wanner, of Hempstead, L. I., a well-known fancier of this particular breed of dogs.

Needless to say, in his picture work Rin-Tin-Tin is trained, handled, and directed by Lieut. Duncan who, by the way, is never seen on the screen. In the many pictures in which he has appeared the dog has given indication that there is nothing possible for a canine which he cannot be trained to do. The manner in wic e masters s in which he masters his "part" is almost uncanny. Not only does he seem to understand what is required of him but he seems to respond almost as rapidly as the humans with whom he works and who can be definitely and precisely instructed in the English language.

The cast of 'humans" is headed by Louise Fazenda, "Buster" Collier, jr., Mathew Betz, Chas. Hill Mailes, and others.

AT THE ROYAL.

FOR THE KIDDIES AT ROYAL.

Buddy Messenger, famous boy star in "What An Eye," is one of the comedies for the kiddies on Saturday matinee. Also another chapter of the thrilling "Fast Express," with William Duncan.

THE STRANGEST STORY YET TO REACH THE SCREEN, 'LEGALLY DEAD,' AT ROYAL TO-NIGHT.

Milton Sills Starred.

If you can imagine a man sentenced to hang, and after the execution back to life. Supposing the law of the land sentenced you to death, but you still lived. Would your wife be a widow? Could you marry again without committing bigamy? Could you be sued for debt? It is without doubt the most sensational situation into which a man could be thrust, and makes a moving picture story of intense interest and entirely different from anything that has ever reached the screen before. Milton Sills, of "Sea Hawk" fame, has the leading role, surrounded by a strong supporting cast, including Clair Adams.

This production is at the Royal to-night, Friday and Saturday, with usual daily matinees.

STORY BRANDED AS DREAM LAST YEAR NOW A HIT.

News value sometimes make the value of photoplays.

As an instance—take "Legally Dead," the sensational Universal production, now playing at the Royal Theatre in which an executed convict is brought back to life after hanging, by the aid of Science.

Charles Furthmann, former deputy district attorney of Chicago, wrote the story two years ago, after reading of some strange experiment physicians had performed in restoring life in bodies after the heart had ceased to beat.

"It's too fanciful—a pipe-dream!" said the producers.

Then—just a few months ago—the medical world was electrified by the news that life had actually been restored by the use of adrenalin—not once but a dozen times. News dispatches had borne out the prophesy in the attorney-playwright's story.

It was hurriedly produced from Furthmann's files, scientists sent for to check the details, and a big cast headed by Milton Sills and Claire Adams, engaged.

As the play went on changes were made almost daily as the news despatches brought new developments in the discovery of adrenalin's life-restoring properties.

Sills plays the man brought back to life. The actual operation, with adrenalin and pulmotor, conducted in an actual hospital and under the supervision of actual physicians, is an intensely dramatic climax to the remarkable story.

AT THE CAPITOL.

A feature picture in which the main interest lies in the delineation of emotions is "The Silent Watcher," now showing at the Capitol Theatre. The title is taken from a reference to the "Silent Watcher," the Unknown Soldier in Arlington cemetery, whose life was given for Loyalty, and the production centers about the loyalty of a young office clerk to his chief. Glenn Hunter is the Joe Roberts of the story, the romantic lad whose faithfulness to his erring employer leads him to prison and gets him in decidedly wrong with his young wife. The youthful actor gives a splendid characterization of a type which has a strong resemblance to that of Mark Sabre in "When Winter Comes," but it will be a long time before the latter delineation is ever equalled on the silver sheet.

Bessie Love makes a splendid foil for the young husband. As the emotional little wife, vaguely jealous of her husband's devotion to his chief, she falls an easy prey to suspicious fears when the finger of the law rests on her man, instead of on the real culprit. There is a strong scene when Joe is grilled unmercifully by a police lieutenant, anxious to extract the truth from the lad, whose loyalty and devotion keep his lips sealed. An indictment of modern political methods is suggested in this picture, but the plot is rather weak. It is carried to success by the splendid acting of the main characters, and the charming love story of the two young things who love each other. A different ending would have made it a remarkable production, but the producer evidently was satisfied to make its strong point the delineation of emotion of various types, making a mental conflict the basis of his story.

"Galloping Bungalows" is the title of a characteristic Mack Sennett comedy, with furious intervals in the runaway bungalow, afire, and chased by a fantastic fire-engine. The short reels which precede it include a jazzy bit of Hawaiian dancing, to the music of "Say it with a Ukulele."

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR

The great mistake of Christendon is, that God's general plan for mankind is the same as his plan for the "little flock." Since the time of the fall of man into sin to the present time, certain of God's favors have been restricted to special individuals, nations and classes; while in the next age, all the world will be invited to share the favors then offered, on the conditions then made known to all, and then whosoever will, may come and partake of the water of life freely. It is unreasonable to believe that God has been trying for six thousand years to convert the world and has failed. What is the position of the majority of the leading sects in respect to this? If God has attempted such a work (I speak with due reverence) he surely has failed. A casual look at the past and present, by any ordinary intelligent person is sufficient to cause him to come to this conclusion.

PIANO AND SOCIAL RECITAL.

Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park and Mr. Charles Peaker will give a brilliant programme of music at their recital in Knox Church next Monday evening. Music-lovers will be particularly pleased with the two opening numbers—the great D major prelude and fugue by Bach for organ, and the famous soprano aria, "Hear Ye Israel," from Mendelssohn's oratorio "Elijah." Two other pieces should receive special mention, viz., Kurt Schindler's arrangement of "Eili Eili," a traditional Jewish melody which is sung in various forms by the Hebrew race all over the world; Mrs. Park's splendid voice and dramatic temperament serve her well in this intensely powerful chant of a wonderful people. The other number, very rarely heard and probably played for the first time in Ontario, is a piece for organ by Gustave Samazeuih. This man was a pupil of d'Indy, Chausson and Debussy, and in this prelude we have a most unusual and poetic composition. Admission programmes at the nominal sum of 50c may be had from members of Knox Choir or at the Conservatory. They will, of course, be sold at the door on the evening of the concert.

COL. J. H. FESSENDEN, D.S.O.

News of the death of Col. J. H. Fessenden, D.S.O., of the British Imperial Corps, was cabled yesterday afternoon to Mrs. Fessenden, his mother, who had but recently returned to Peterborough from a visit with him and with her daughter in England.

Col. Fessenden was the second and elder surviving son of the late Cortez Fessenden, M.A., formerly Principal of the Collegiate Institute, and Mrs. Fessenden. While he and his wife were on holiday at Samaden, Switzerland, he had an attack of pneumonia, from which he died, in his 44th year.

As a soldier Col. Fessenden had a notable career. His military education was begun at the Royal Military College, Kingston, where he graduated with honour and soon after received his commission in the Imperial Army Corps.

He spent a year in England and then took active service in South Africa, where he married Miss Hilda Stayner, of Halifax, N.S. Then, as Captain Fessenden, he paid a happy visit to his parents in Peterborough. Upon his return to England he was assigned to Bermuda for three years; but he was in England when the Great War came on.

He was advanced from Lt.-Col. to the full rank of Colonel in the Imperial Army at the age of 34 and was the youngest officer in the British service to have received that distinction. Throughout the war he was attached to the General Staff, and was often mentioned in dispatches for distinguished services.

His record won him the Distinguished Service Order, and for notable work, as a member of the Allied Adriatic Mission, the King of Italy made him a "Knight of the Crown of Italy," and the King of Serbia conferred upon him the Order of the "White Eagle of Serbia."

After the war, for five years, Col. Fessenden was Senior Ordinance Officer in Northern India. Latterly he was Officer Commanding in the Royal Army Service Corps in England, Bulford, Salisbury Plains, being his last station.

DIED.

CITIZENS SO GOOD CITY LOSES MONEY

Peterborough Over-Ran Its Appropriations by $15,000 in 1924—How it Was Done.

If Peterboro people had not been so moral last year the city might not have gone in the hole to the extent of $15,000. There was added up in the expected revenue the sum of $1,500 which it was anticipated would be received in fines, but which was not forthcoming.

Of course there were larger items involved in the $15,000 discrepancy between what the Council thought it would spend, and what it really did spend. On the Board of Works it was found absolutely necessary to extend the storm drain in order to make that part built under the appropriation effective. That meant an overdraft of $7,000. And then health and charity administration overstepped the mark by another $7,000.

The $15,000 hang-over from 1924 represents one mill of taxes imposed for general purposes.

CHANGE MINDS ON O.T.A.

Sturgeon Falls' New Council Rescinds Order to Police.

STURGEON FALLS, Jan. 22.—(Canadian Press).—A resolution adopted by the Town Council last November, advising the Chief of Police not to enforce the Ontario Temperance Act, has been rescinded by this year's Council. The resolution now adopted also sets forth that the November resolution did not represent the public sentiment in Sturgeon Falls.

WEDDING BELLS.

COUSANS—LOWE.

COBOURG, Jan. 22.—The marriage took place at Hilton on Saturday at the home of the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Lowe, of their only daughter, Gladys Mae, to Mr. Thomas William Cousans, of Cobourg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Cousans, Harrogate, Yorkshire, England. From thirty to thirty-five guests were present to witness the ceremony, which took place under an arch of evergreen. Rev. Mr. Mutton officiated. Miss Phyllis Guymer played Mendelssohn's wedding march as the bride entered the room with her father. She looked lovely in a gown of grey embroidered crepe, and carried American Beauty roses. The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Cecelia Lowe, of Bowmanville, wearing pale pink georgette, and carrying pink and white carnations. Mr. H. O. Taylor, of Cobourg, was best man. The groom's gift to the bride was a white gold wrist watch, set with sapphires and chip diamonds; to the bridesmaid and pianist, gold bar pins, and to the grooms man, a gold tie pin set with pearls. In the dining-room, where a buffet luncheon was served, the decorations were mauve and white sweet peas. Mr. and Mrs. Cousans left for a trip before coming to Cobourg where they will reside.

Inherits $115,000 But Will Keep on Laboring

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 22.—Lorenz Kienig, 72, inherited $115,000 worth of negotiable securities from his son, Dr. Albert H. Koenig, who killed himself last Sunday, but will continue to stack shingles in the Omaha lumber yard for $28 a week.

"If I quit I would die," said the aged man, who has been a laborer all his life.

He said he would share the estate with the three remaining children.

MUSICAL PROGRAMME.

The "At Home" held under the auspices of the Women's Conservative Association of Peterboro in the G.W.V.A. Hall last evening was remarkably successful. The four hundred or more people who attended had a thoroughly enjoyable time. It was a very jolly evening, marked by good fellowship and the enjoyment of music, cards and dancing. At the conclusion of a very entertaining musical programme, interspersed with speeches, the report of which appears in another column, dainty refreshments were served. Dancing and card-playing followed, with tables of bridge, five hundred and euchre.

The programme included songs by Mrs. Ernest Kitney, Miss Marjorie Evans, Messrs. Pratt, Inman, D. G. Melton and the "Singing Scots," R. Hendry and J. Smith, who gave several selections in costume. Mrs. G. Evans rendered invaluable assistance during the evening at the piano.

The guests were received by the honorary president, Mrs. W. H. Bradburn, and the president, Mrs. H. T. Fallis. Mrs. R. Denne, the secretary of the association, was in charge of the publicity committee, Mrs. C. E. Jamieson of refreshments, Mrs. J. Mills of the social committee, Mrs. G. Evans of the musical programme, and Mrs. J. Holmes of the card tables.

DEMANDS OF U. S.

Louis Marin's Address Was Warmly Applauded by All Parties in France.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—(Canadian Press).—A speech delivered in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday on the subject of inter-allied debts by Louis Marin, former Minister of Liberated Regions, and now of the Opposition deputy, is received with enthusiastic comment by newspapers, regardless of party lines.

The substance of Deputy Marin's address was that it would be moral iniquity should France be compelled to pay the enormous sums demanded of her by the United States. Marin's speech was also warmly applauded by all parties in the Chamber of Deputies.

ATTRACTIVE MUSIC BY BIG ORCHESTRA

Special Attraction at Royal Theatre is Exceptional Quality of Music.

Anyone attending the Royal Theatre evening programmes is assured of hearing some excellent music. The seven-piece orchestra recently installed is one of the best theatrical orchestras heard here in some time. In their curtained enclosure, they play splendid music, which adds greatly to the attraction of the picture programme. A very interesting portion of the music for the first three days of this week was the famous "Floradora" overture, which the orchestra played in charming, soft-toned style. Incidental numbers throughout the picture programme make delightful accompaniments to the various portions. There is a quality of brightness to the playing of this septette of musicians that is exceptionally attractive. A well-balanced selection of orchestral instruments is apparent from the list, which includes Mrs. E. Foster, leader, playing first violin; H. Hartshorn, second violin; C. Gallegher, cornet; Reg. Dyer, clarinet; W. E. Lech, bass viol; George Chambers, traps, and Mrs. G. Evans, piano.

WINDFALL OF $560,000 FOR NEEDY FARMERS THROUGHOUT DOMINION

Surplus in Federal Treasury to the Credit of Defunct Canada Wheat Board to Be Distributed Proportionately to Quantities of Wheat Supplied.

ONTARIO TO RECEIVE 4.75 PER CENT.

OTTAWA, Jan. 23. — (Canadian Press).—For the immediate relief of distressed farmers in the various provinces, the Federal Government has recommended to the Governor-General that the sum of $560,000 now on hand in the Canadian treasury to the credit of the defunct Canada Wheat Board, be "distributed to the Provincial governments pro-rata on the basis of the quantity of wheat delivered by producers in each of the said provinces to the Board," and an Order-in-Council was signed Thursday by His Excellency, authorizing such distribution.

The percentage due to each province is as follows: British Columbia, decimal thirty-five per cent.; Alberta, 20 per cent.; Saskatchewan, 50.75 per cent.; Manitoba, 23 per cent.; Ontario, 4.75 per cent.; Quebec, 1.15 per cent.

Recommended By Board.

The Order-in-Council is based on a report from the Minister of Trade and Commerce, which says that the Canada Wheat Board's financial statement shows a surplus of $569,016.13 on August 11, 1921, and that on Aug. 16 of that year "the Canada Wheat Board in general meeting assembled strongly recommends to the Dominion Government that an amount of $560,000 be distributed to the Provincial Governments, pro rata."

The Minister of Finance is now authorized to distribute the specified sum to the Provinces. No mention is made of the balance of $9,016 existing between the sum authorized for distribution and the sum of the surplus on the Canada Wheat Board's handling of the wheat crop immediately following the war years. The reason given last year for the delay in allotting the surplus was that upwards of $3,000,000 was still due the Dominion Government on account of seed grain advanced to Canadian farmers.

BETTER HEALTH AMONG INDIANS

CROP REPORT

REGINA, Sask., January 23 (Canadian Pres). — Showing increased acreage under cultivation as compared with the previous year, but a decrease in production owing to the almost total crop failure in some Northern districts, the annual report on agricultural conditions of Indian lands in the three Prairie Provinces has been completed at the head office of the Department in Regina.

While the report deals exclusively with crops and stock on Indian lands officials of the Department report a marked improvement in health conditions among the tribes, a subject that once gave great concern.

The improvement is attributed to better housing, as the result of education and the work of qualified medical men stationed on or near each reserve, coupled with the work of a corps of trained nurses.

In 1924 the total production of grain of all kinds on Indian lands was 896,404 bushels. Of the total, 469,024 bushels were wheat.

In the same year the Indians raised 355,699 bushels of oats from 27,260 acres, 72,377 bushels of barley from 4,625 acres; 21,000 acres were summer fallowed, 6,105 acres were broken; 50,000 bushels of potatoes were raised, and 65,000 tons of hay were cut and put up for winter.

DYE INDUSTRY HELPED.

OXFORD, January 23. — Associated Press. — English weaving and dyeing, which have always depended greatly upon the ingenuity of foreigners, are now profiting by the simple methods of the American Indians.

Dennis Baker, of Stratford-on-Avon, whose hand looms produce some of the finest woollen fabrics now being made in England, learned the secrets of vegetable dye stuffs while surveying in the northwest woods, and he has greatly extended the possibilities of vegetable dyeing by combining the native American dyes with the older indigo, Persian and Oriental colors.

After the decline of village industries English textile making sank to a very low level, but it was revived by William Morris, the "poet-upholsterer," who discovered many of the secrets of medieval dyeing and weaving from old manuscripts, and who raised the craft of cloth making to high excellence.

Much of the work of Morris was for a time lost, for the textile industry has gone on with aniline dyes out the harshness and impermanence of most of the aniline colors is now leading several of the larger textile concerns to turn to the methods of Morris and Baker.

Lake, which was crushed in the ice and sank while on voyage to St. Pierre with Prince Edward Island produce. The crew barely escaped and saved nothing but the clothes the men were wearing.

LATVIAN LAW RESTRICTS SALE OF ALCOHOLIC DRINKS.

RIGA, January 23 (Associated Press). — The Latvian Parliament has passed a law forbidding the sale of alcoholic drinks at educational institutions ,at theatres, exhibitions, fairs, in provision shops, on board vessel in inland waters, on railway trains, and in railway stations.

Furthermore, the sale of alcoholic drinks is forbidden on Sundays and holidays in the exclusive shops where they may be obtained on week days.

COGNAWAGA RINK
NO SKATING TO-NIGHT

RADIO HELPED STUDENT ANSWER EXAMINATIONS

STRASBOURG, France, Jan. 23. —(Canadian Press).—Romance entered into an attempt by an over zealous young Alsatian medical student to overcome the difficulties of his examination papers by means of the "wireless."

Investigation by the stern medical faculty of Strasbourg University Thursday disclosed that he had installed a girl friend in his apartment at the end of a transmission post armed with medical works and dictionary while he, fortified with a self-made microphone non-chalantly carried in his left hand close to his ear, wrote the replies to the examination questions with his free right hand at the girl's dictation.

A rival for the doctor's degree undergoing the same examination exposed the fraud, the first time such deception has been attempted by wireless and the faculty expelled him. Now he and the girl have fled from Strasbourg.

SUSPECT WILL FACE ACCUSER

Escaped Prisoner Admits Alias, But Denies Knowledge of Hull Crime.

FARMER MURDERED

SUDBURY, January 23 (Canadian Press). — That Euclide Courville alias Leo Couville alias Dea Putvin, accused by James Carey at the inquest into the murder of Jos. Bouchard, aged farmer of Wakefield, Lake Creek District, near Hull, as the last person to be seen with the deceased, is the man Carey refers to, was established during a two-hour quiz at Sudbury Court House yesterday afternoon, by Chief of Detectives Lorrain, of Montreal, who was accompanied by Detective Dalpe of the Quebec Provincial Staff.

Courville, who was arrested at Pickerel on Tuesday by Sudbury Provincial Police, where he had been working under the alias of Putvin, admitted that the alias of Leo Couville, when he was committed to Burwash Farm, was camouflage. He assigned no reason for this. He admitted his real name as Euclide Courville, and there seems to be little doubt that this is the man whom Carey had in his mind when giving his evidence at the inquest.

Courville denies any knowledge of knowing Carey, and states that he has not been in the Hull district for the past four years. He answered every question of the officers in a straightforward manner,and his alibi is believed in by the officers.

However, Courville was being taken last evening by the officers to Montreal, and will face his accuser, Carey, to-day, where Carey is being held as a material witness.

The Quebec officers arrived in Sudbury in response to notice from the Sudbury Provincial Police that they had taken Courville into custody.

Following his rigid examination, Courville was taken before Magistrate Brodie, to whom he stated that he was quite willing to accompany the officers to Montreal to face Carey and confirm his alibi.

Since his escape from Burwash Prison Farm in April, 1922, where he had served one month of a six-months term for seduction, Courville states that he has been working constantly in the district, using the alias of Putvin to cober up his real name, and thus avoid re-arrest.

MASTER MIND JAILED.

Wanted For Using Mails to Defraud—Jumped His Bail a Year Ago.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(Canadian Press.)—Austin S. Montgomery, Jr., called the "master mind" of the defunct Community Finance Company of New York and Baltimore, which failed in August, 1922, for more than $3,000,000 and who has been a fugitive from justice for more than a year, was held in $150,000 bail yesterday by Federal Judge Winslow, following his capture on Wednesday night as he was preparing to meet several friends in this city.

Montgomery, who was indicted with four co-defendants for using the mails to defraud, vanished in September, 1923, on the eve of his trial. He had previously been at liberty on bail of $75,000.

WEDS DUKE

Margaret Clarke of Peoria, Ill., has become the bride of the Duke of Melito, Filippo Carraccioli. The ceremony took place in Florence, near where Miss Clarke and her mother have been living.

STERLING AT HIGHEST LEVEL IN TEN YEARS

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. —Heavy buying of sterling exchange in anticipation of an early resumption of the gold standard in Great Britain resulted yesterday in an advance of two cents in demand bills, bringing the rate to $4.80 1-2, the highest in ten years and just 1-8 cents below gold parity.

Last year sterling sold as low as $4.20 and in February, 1920, it established the lowest price on record at $3.19.

The sudden demand for sterling arose from widespread predictions of its early return to parity by the heads of London banks at their annual meetings of shareholders. Local foreign exchange dealers reported that buying of sterling was heavy both here and in London, the strength of the British currency bringing about a sympathetic advance in other European rates.

WIFE ATTACKED BY MASKED MAN

Bush Worker Arrested on Suspicion of Having Entered House at Portland.

BRUTALLY BEATEN

BROCKVILLE, January 23 (Canadian Press). — On suspicion of having been the masked man who last night entered the home of Stanley Heath, a merchant in the village of Portland, and attacked his wife, Hiliard Carbino, aged 25, a married man living in the same vicinity, was brought here last night by Provincial Constable Scott, and remanded to the County Jail for a week, after having pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Alone in the house, except for her infant son, Mrs. Heath, a young woman, was attacked by the man, who had his head and the upper part of his body covered with a bag, when she answered his rap upon the door, knocking her down,he stifled her cries, leaying his finger prints in her throat, and struck her two severe blows upon the face, one of which completely closed one of her eyes, as well as inflicting other injuries.

Carbino, who has served a term in Central Prison for theft, was arrested yesterday when at work in the bush.

Rubbers which he wore fitted tracks in the snow about the house.

No motive whateber for the attack is available, and so incensed are the people of Portland that the statement is made that, had they been certain of Carbino's complicity he would never have reached the jail here.

COLLEGE GIRLS OBJECT TO BAN ON CIGARETTES

Ballot in Vassar College Reveals 539 Chafing Under the Rule.

ROLL THEIR OWN

Families Approve, They Say, If Smoke in a Womanly Way.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Vassar College is going up in smoke—cigarette smoke, if half its students have their say.

This was determined when the Students' Association — remember, Vassar is self-governing—balloted secretly to determine whether its own ban against the filthy weed should be lifted.

The girls' own rule, made solemnly a few years ago, prohibits them from smoking in any place where Vassar's reputataion might be hurt.

They Roll Their Own.

But some are rolling their own, and walking a mile or so for their particular brands, just the same. In fact, 433 confessed on their ballots that they do smoke; 524 said they don't—and the remainder of the 1,200 refused to incriminate themselves.

Asked point-blank on the ballot if they wished the smoking ban modified in some manner, 539 enthusiastically wrote "Yes"; 278 meekly said the present ban was good enough.

Parents Object.

The parents of 400 future Daisy-chain girls object to their daughters smoking—so wrote the daughters on their ballot; 302 said their families approved. Several added this line:

"That is, if it's done in a womanly way."

The students will hold a mass meeting within a few days to determine whether this ban shall be modified, as the majority desire.

UNION VOTE IN TORONTO.

Churches Favor Union—Majority of Voters. Against.

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press.)—With reports in from two more Toronto churches last night, Parkdale and Davenport, each giving majorities against entering the United Church of Canada, the total of the Presbyterian congregations of Toronto voting so far was brought up to 38, and of these 20 have voted in favor of union and 18 against. The total votes polled in the city to date are: Unionist 11,527; anti-unionist 11,728, thus giving those against union a majority of 201 votes.

SCHOOL ASSOCIATION.

The regular monthly meeting of the Prince of Wales' Home and School Association was held in the school last night, with a fair attendance. In the absence of the president, Mrs. J. S. Peters, the chair was occupied by the vice-president, Miss Ellen Eagleson. A brief business session preceded an enjoyable programme. It was announced that the pennant this month was won by Miss Eagleson's room. Discussion took place on the holding of a Valentine party at the next meeting. The programme consisted of an interesting and informative address by Mr. James Dutton on "Bread," in which Mr. Dutton reviewed the history of bread and gave some good pointers to housewives on its making.

The musical programme consisted of a pianoforte solo by Fred. Parsons, several readings by Margaret Curtis, and a number of selections by the school orchestra. The Prince of Wales' School possesses an excellent orchestra of a dozen or more members, recruited from the youthful musicians of the school. Trained by Mrs. E. Foster, they play in very fine style.

MARIN SPOKE THE THOUGHTS OF FRANCE THAT SACRIFICES DISCOUNT WAR DEBTS

Press Unanimous in Indorsing the Speech Made Wednesday in the Chamber of Deputies — Moral Iniquity if Compelled to Pay Huge Sum to United States.

PARIS, Jan. 23. — (Canadian Press).—The chorus of praise indulged in by the morning papers over M. Marin's speech in the chamber of Deputies Wednesday on the inter-allied debts is continued by the evening papers. The former Under Secretary of State declared that it would be a moral iniquity if France were compelled to pay the enormous sums demanded of her by the United States and his remarks were received with unanimous applause indicating the French parliament's viewpoint on this momentous subject.

The Tempa expresses the view that it would perhaps have been better to have avoided treating this question "so long as our American friends do not seem disposed to consider it under its true aspect, which is that of moral and material solidarity between the allies and associates in the great war."

The Journal Des Debats says that M. Marin had the courage to say aloud what the entire country thinks silently and adds: "To the claims of our allies—claims perfectly correct under all the rules of arithmetic—he opposed the sacrifices endured by France. To the unquestionable and useful services rendered by loans of money he opposed services rendered by those who served as a covering army for the coalition and who in letting themselves be killed gave time for the allies to prepare for victory."

To the Paris Soir, a strong supporter of the government, liquidation of the war is "a business affair for kings of the dollar."

"The idea of justice," adds the Soir "inspires their decisions. They find no place in their accounts for the brotherhood of battlefields. M. Marin speaks to them in language they do not understand."

COSTA RICA OUT OF THE LEAGUE

Central American State Announces Withdrawal And Pays Up Dues.

REGRET EXPRESSED

GENEVA, Jan. 23.— (Canadian Press).—Costa Rica's resignation from the league of nations was announced Thursday. Costa Rica's letter resigning membership was communicated to all the members of the league just as was the German's recent note dealing with the conditions under which she would consider further her intention of joining the league.

The Central American Republic's communication was received at Geneva about Christmas time; it had been written December 24 by M. Peralta, the Costa Rican minister at Paris. He enclosed a check for back dues drawn on a New York bank ,and asked for a triplicate receipt together with a statement of the present position of Costa Rica with the league.

Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general of the league, acknowledged receipt of the letter and check but took no further action at the time. Officials yesterday explained the delay in making public the news by saying that they had not been able to agree on the form in which it should be made known. They finally decided to issue the text of the letter resignation which was sent to the league members on Jan. 16.

About a year ago Honduras informed the league that it might resign because of the membership costs. Subsequently they were decreased to $5,000 annually and Honduras remained.

Great regret is expressed in league circles over the action of Costa Rica and undoubtedly efforts will be made to bring that country back into the fold.

THE WEATHER

Another sudden change has occurred. Yesterday forenoon the temperature was up to 35 degrees; this morning it was down to 10 below zero. This makes 16 days already this winter with zero temperatures. Much has appeared in the newspapers lately regarding the eclipse of the sun, which will take place tomorrow morning. While partial eclipses occur quite frequently, a total eclipse only occurs every 18 years and 10 days, each time in a different parts of the globe. Not for 220 years will this section of Canada witness a similar event. The last one observed here was about 120 years ago. Peterboro, unfortunately, is a little too far north to be in the direct path of the shadow of the moon, as it sweeps with astounding speed from west to east, and we will not have the midnight darkness that will be seen—and felt—in some other places. This shadow, which is round (the shape of the moon) and over 100 miles in diameter, passes over Ontario from Goderich to Niagara Falls, with its centre near Hamilton. The sun in Peterboro will be obscured from 98 to 99 per cent. of its face. It is to be sincerely hoped the morning will be clear, so that everyone may have an opportunity of seeing something, that at one time, would have caused fear and consternation in the hearts of the people, but is now known to be the simple results of Nature's laws.—W.P.

BALDWIN TO HELP TRADE IN EMPIRE

Build Up Empire's Strength By Policy of Preference.

LONDON, Jan. 22.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—Lt.-Col. L. C. Amery, colonial secretary, speaking before the constitutional club here to-day, declared that the policy of imperial preference was not a monopoly. In a large measure, he said, preference already existed throughout the empire but no tariff acted as a wall.

The Australian duties did not exist for the purpose of producing revenue, Col. Amery said, but to give British industries and men opportunities for trade.

Figures were produced by the colonial secretary to prove the unreality of the talk of British trade being excluded by the dominions.

It would be a disaster to Great Britain, Col. Amery continued, if Canada became free trade. The dominions gave British preferences and therefore it was a clear case of Great Britain doing something in return.

The Baldwin government, Col. Amery said, was prepared, within certain limits, to carry out fully in every direction the policy of fostering mutual trade in the empire and so building up the empire's strength.

PROBATION FOR LUTHER REGIME BY OPPOSITION

VOTED 246 TO 160

Opposition Indicated Attitude of Toleration Depending Upon Govt.'s Achievements.

BERLIN, Jan. 23.— (Canadian Press).—Dr. Hans Luther's non-partisan cabinet, which has been the target of a heavy barrage in the Reichstag during the past three days, was accorded probational approval last night by a vote of 246 to 160. A motion approving the new government's official programme was actively opposed to 160 Socialists and Communists, while 39 Democrats and Facist deputies abstained from voting.

With the exception of Former Chancellor Wirth and several other members of his party, the Clericals voted for Dr. Luther.

Although the present majority of 84 votes assures the new cabinet a parliamentary basis of comfortable proportions, the outcome of yesterday's balloting reveals the doubtful nature of its standing in the Reichstag, in that it is entirely at the mercy of the clerical party.

Basis of Probation.

The clerical spokesmen in the course of the debate on the government platform left no doubt in the chancellor's mind that his cabinet will for the time being be tolerated only on the basis of probation. This attitude the Democrats share, and with the aid of the Socialists, it can be readily converted into one of decisive opposition.

The vote, which called for approval in place of the customary confidence, came at the close of a heated debate, in which the government was warned with varying candor by all the parties that its tenture of office depended upon its accomplishments. None of the opposing speakers were able to pick a flaw in Dr. Luther's programme, the central point of the attack being its politically multi-colored composition and the presence in the ministry of half a dozen avowed Monarchists.

Evacuation First.

Chancellor Luther and Dr. Stresemann, his foreign minister are thoroughly cognizant of the Reichstag's present temper, and they appeared pleased with the majority accorded them. The new government's immediate troubles will begin with its attempt to arrive at an early understanding with the allies on the question of the evacuation of the Cologne zone, and securing renewed assurances that the Ruhr would be vacated by the French and Belgians by August 15, the outside limit accepted by the London conference.

BUSINESS MEETING AT MURRAY STREET

Church Enjoyed a Year of Progress in All Departments.

On Wednesday evening, after having tea together, the congregation of Murray Street Baptist Church held their annual business meeting for the year 1924. The reports of the various officers and committees showed that the church is in a healthy condition and that gratifying progress had been made in all departments. The pastor's letter gave some indication of the strenuous nature of the life of a modern minister, including service on denominational boards, pastoral calls, sermons, prayer meetings and innumerable meetings of committees. The clerk reported that 57 had been added to the church during the year and that there had been a net increase of 37. The financial reports showed that over $12,000 had been raised for all purposes. This includes $7,200 for current expenses, $1,300 for the building fund, over $2,000 for missions, more than $1,000 raised by the Women's Association, and $550 by the Sunday School. The financial secretary reported that greater interest in systematic giving through the duplex envelopes had produced $780 more than in 1923. This was largely due to the intensive work of the finance committee.

The report from the Sunday School was very satisfactory, showing that over the year 1923 there had been an average increase in attendance per Sunday of six members and that 22 pupils had accepted Christ, been baptized and added to the church. This report also referred to the innovation which will be inaugurated next Sunday when the school, under the newly organized Board of Religious Education, will meet with the church at 11 o'clock, after which the pupils will separate into their various departments and classes.

After the election of officers for the year, a motion was enthusiastically supported to express appreciation of the services of the choir, which, with the exception of the leader and the organist, is a purely volunteer organization and, on all sides, were heard expressions of regret that Miss Bridge finds it necessary to resign her position as organist.

A hearty vote of thanks was then extended to the women of the church for the dainty supper which they had provided. But such a vote by no means expresses the full appreciation of the people of Murray Street for the services of this body of devoted women, whose activities permeate every phase of the church's work.

In view of the satisfactory progress, as reflected in the reports of the various departments, the church is entering the New Year with every confidence that, under Divine guidance and the efficient and consecrated leadership of Dr. Rose, they will be privileged to undertake wider service for the Master.

WORKMAN IGNORES FIVE-STORY TUMBLE

DULUTH, Minn., Jan. 23.—Falling five stories down the inside of a galvanized air duct at the new Hotel Duluth, now under construction, a workman, whose name the contractors refused to divulge, was not injured beyond a few bruises, they declare.

The man was working at the opening of the air duct on the fifth floor when he lost his balance. An "elbow" in the construction, five floors below, saved him from possible serious injury, it is said. After resting for an hour, the man returned to his work.

84-YEAR OLD BARBER STILL CLIPS NOBLEMEN

LONDON, Jan. 23.—At the age of eightyfour Charles Howlett still continues to be official royal barber to the Dowager Queen Alexandra's household at Sandringham.

He was the first barber to trim King George's beard, and since then has shaved or cut the hair of almost every important English royalty.

It is his proud boast that his hand is still as steady as when he first took up barbering.

He has carefully kept a collection of the locks of every royal person that he has attended.

FIRE DESTROYS BLOCK.

BROCKVILLE, January 23.—Fire at 2.25 this morning wiped out a number of buildings in the village of Lyndhurst, including the general store of George W. Jones, with his dwelling above it and outbuildings connected with the store; the office of Dr. S. O. Morris adjoining, and the store house and other outbuildings of Harold T. Webster, merchant.

Mr. Websters main store buildings were saved by a bucket brigade.

The fire is believed to have started in the residential flat of Jones, over his shop. He and his wife and four children escaped with difficulty in their night clothing. Robert, the youngest child, got separated from the others, but was finally rescued uninjured from the burning building. Jones lost everything, including his personal effects and a sum of money. All the buildings destroyed were of frame construction.

MILLBROOK LADIES' AID SOCIETY GAVE TEA AT MRS. LOCKE'S HOME

OTHER MEETINGS

C. Thorndyke Elected President of Presbyterian Church Managerial Board.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 23.—About thirty guests attended the afternoon tea given at the home of Mrs. Geo. Locke, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid, on Tuesday, from 3 to 6 p.m.

Mrs. Locke was assisted by her daughter, Mrs. J. McKnight, in receiving the guests, and the warm, cosy rooms, bright with flowers, were a welcome change to the cold, blustery air outside.

The work which each guest came provided with gave opportunity for an exchange of ideas along the line of various fancy articles, and, as usually happens, when fingers were busy conversation flowed readily.

Vocal and piano solos by Miss Ethel Richardson and readings, particularly appropriate to a Ladies' Aid gathering, by Mrs. F. W. Smith, added to the pleasure of the occasion.

Tea was served at daintily laid tables, and the guests seemed loth to depart, even after the ringing of the six o'clock bell gave warning of closing stores and the need of suppers in readiness at home.

Among those present were: Mrs. (Rev.) F. W. Howard, Mrs. C. Thorndyke, Miss Margaret Whyte, Dr. E. F. Gillott, Miss Estelle Hetherington, Mrs. C. C. Garside, Miss F. Kreiger, Miss E. Richardson, Mrs. A. J. Brown, Miss Jennie Brock, Miss L. Connell, Mrs. F. Smith, Bernice Smith, Mrs. T. H. Aiken, Mrs. G. E. Burnham, Miss May Duncan, Mrs. Barnes, Mrs. J. L. Byam, Mrs. N. Mullen, Misses Marjorie Skitch, Wilma Fallis, Leola Huggins, and others.

At Executive Meeting.

Mr. F. N. Alcorn was in Cobourg last week attending a meeting of the Bay of Quinte Conference Young People's League Executive. Mr. Alcorn is President of the Y. P. L. for Peterborough district and will occupy the chair at the district convention to be held in George Street Church on Friday. It is feared that the unfavorable state of the roads following the snow storms and high winds of the past few days will prevent many of the rural leagues being represented at the convention.

Church Managers Meet.

The Board of Managers of Grace Presbyterian Church held its first meeting in the new year on Tuesday afternoon. Rev. G. S. Gervan opened the meeting, and afterward resigned his office as Secretary of the board. The following were appointed for 1925:

Chairman—Chas. Thorndyke.
Secretary—Wilbert Thorne.
Treasurer—W. T. A. Deyell.
Finance Committee—Jas. Armstrong, John McKnight, Jos. Lancashire and R. J. McKnight.

A committee was appointed to wait upon L. C. Russell asking him to accept the position of Secretary-Treasurer for the church during the ensuing year, taking the place of W. E. Ball, resigned.

'Teen Age Boys' Meeting.

The annual meeting of the 'teen age boys of the Methodist Church was held on Wednesday evening, about fifteen being in attendance.

Owing to various reasons, it has been decided to again unite the Tuxis Square and Trail Rangers in one group, this plan having been successfully followed last year. The Tuxis programme is the one most closely adhered to, F. H. Alcorn occupying the position of Mentor, and C. C. Garside and the pastor, Rev. F. W. Howard, giving assistance in leadership as the occasion requires.

Wednesday's meeting was a most enthusiastic one, the reports being encouraging and the outlook for the present year of a promising nature.

The following are the officers for 1925:

Praetor—George Elson.
Deputy-Praetor—Russell Fallis.
Scriptor—Kenneth Skitch.
Comptor—Aubrey Todd.
Sponsor—Norman Caine.

The usual recreation period when an abundance of "eats" was provided brought an enjoyable evening to a close.

The boys' group, which numbers about twenty members, has recently purchased a new set of carpet balls, and has in view the holding of a basket social some time during the winter months, probably joining with the C.G.I.T. group for the latter event.

Studying Missions.

The Young People's League is finding very profitable the study of the first centenary of missions in connection with the Methodist Church in Canada, the pageant given on New Year's night having suggested the following of this theme during the winter months.

The attendance is not always as large as the excellence of the programme provided gives occasion to expect, but the many other organizations for the young people of the church have somewhat lessened the membership, but not the interest of the league work.

Miss Lottie Luxon and Rev. Mr. Howard gave interesting information on the life of Barbara Heck and some of her contemporary workers at this week's meeting.

EATS WITHOUT STOMACH.

Rare Operation at Johns Hopkins Hospital is Successful.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 23.—Minus a stomach, which was removed in an operation at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, a man is taking food regularly and is recovering, doctors announced yesterday. It is one of the few instances of such an operation being successful, they said, adding that only thirty-two ever had been attempted.

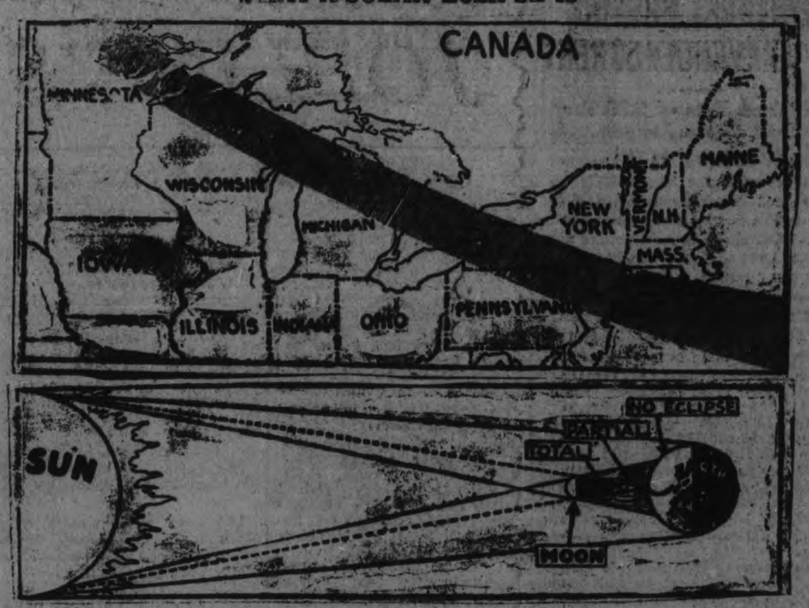
WHAT A SOLAR ECLIPSE IS



The path of the total eclipse is shown by the shaded band on the map running from northern Minnesota to the Atlantic coast. The diagram illustrates the how of an eclipse. The moon coming between the sun and earth throws a conical shadow, the trail of which is called the shadow band on the earth. Outside this band the sun will be seen only in partial eclipse, as shown by the shaded surface touching the earth. Outside this, no eclipse will be seen.

By ISRAEL E. KLEIN.

It all depends on the weather.

If the sky is clear, tomorrow morning, more people will be able to observe a total eclipse of the sun than have ever had this opportunity before.

This eclipse, beginning about 120 miles west of Duluth, Minn., will race over the populous area of northern Michigan and Wisconsin, southern Ontario, diagonally across New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Connecticut. Then it will go on, at the speed of 2,000 miles an hour, crossing the lanes of ocean liners until it will leave the earth at sunset a short way west of Scotland.

For 100 miles across this band, the sun will be blotted out completely by the moon, for an interval of two minutes. Outside, to the north and south, the sun will be seen only in partial eclipse.

This band of totality is nothing more than the shadow of the moon on the earth, like that of a cloud that momentarily shuts out the sun.

100 Miles Wide.

It is within this 100-mile band that helpful scientific observations can be made. Outside, the phenomenon appears only as a disk crossing part of the sun's face and partly shutting off its light.

Inside the shadow, this is only a preliminary to the real treat. It takes about an hour for the moon to cross the face of the sun, then two minutes for the time of total eclipse and another hour or so for the moon to slide off again.

At northern Minnesota, this preliminary movement will be unobserved, for daybreak will witness the complete eclipse already accomplished. At about one minute after 8 in the morning, central standard time, Duluth will be enveloped by this shadow.

The time of this totality will gradually get later as the sun rises and the moon's shadow races eastward, until about 13 minutes past 9, eastern satndard time, it will leave the American coast.

To Study Corona.

In the two minutes allotted them for observation of the total eclipse, scientists and other observers will be working fast to collect as many photographs and as much information as possible. Among the phenomena they will look for and study, in this connection, will be:

1. The sun's corona, a mysterious pearly light that seems to shoot off from the dark disk of the moon, but actually is a stream of burning gases and other elements reaching 2,000,000 and more miles away from the sun.

One of its mysteries is an element called "coronium," a gas that seems to refute the theory that all elements known to exist on the sun can be found on the earth. For though this is known to exist on the sun, by its presence in the corona, it has not been discovered on earth.

Shadow Bands.

2. Mysterious shadow bands seen about five minutes before and after a total eclipse are another source of scientific investigation. These appear as wavy bands of light and shadow on the landscape.

The light bands are about three inches wide and are separated by shadow bands of about a foot wide. They always have a wavy appearance, with a distance of about two feet between the crests of the waves.

These bands are not seen at every eclipse, and may not be seen tomorrow. No one knows what causes them, although the theory is that they are due to atmospheric motion.

Want Lay Help.

3. Exact time of the eclipse, especially at the northern and southern boundary lines of the shadow band, will be noted so that scientists may have more specific data from which to foretell future eclipses more exactly. For this the help of the lay observer who happens to be at or near the boundary of the shadow band is sought.

The American Astronomical Society, with headquarters in New York, has called for such reports from every one who happens to make this observation.

4. The diffused light of the sky, as a result of the total eclipse, its strength and extent, will also be observed by scientists. The light intensity of the corona will make part of this observation.

In addition to these major observations, there will be the Einstein theory to support or refute. It is his theory that the light ray of a star is bent as it passes the sun and is attracted by its mass.

Other Problems.

The chemical composition of the corona, whether it moves, whether it is a mass of matter held to the sun by a sort of electro-magnetic force or whether it is merely an explosive flame from the sun—these are some other points to clear up in the study of the eclipse.

The mystery of the atom, with its immense energy, may also be delved into through the study of coronium.

To learn all this is practically impossible in two minutes. Scientists have had only about 50 minutes altogether, to study the eclipse and its related phenomena, in the last half century.

But every additional minute brings them closer to a solution of the world's mysteries.

THE CORONA

Photo of the sun's corona taken at Green River, Wyo., June 8, 1918. It is only during the total eclipse that the brilliant corona can be seen. Its beams shoot out 2,000,000 to even 9,000,000 miles from the sun.

THINKING WIDELY SAYS A UNIONIST

Nothing Parochial About United Church—Antis Are Segregated.

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—"We are thinking Dominionly", said a prominent Unionist this morning in commenting upon the progress of the Church Union voting. "Any church that is formed of the congregations remaining out of the Union will be overwhelmingly an Ontario Church and particularly an Urban church." He pointed out that while a number of Ontario towns had voted "anti-Union", those parts of the country where Union had been tried or was needed had uniformly decided to enter the United Church.

Among the Urban congregations voting non concurrence yesterday were Cornwall, Welland, Kingston (St. Andrews), St. Thomas, Trenton and Bonar Church, Toronto. All of these were anticipated by the Unionists, since they were presided over by active anti-Unionist ministers, with the exception of Rev. Norman McEchern of Bonar Church who advised his congregation to vote out and remain independent. On the other hand, the Unionists claim victories in several places which they regarded as either lost or doubtful. These were Niagara Falls, Newsall, Fort William, Montreal West and St. John's Church, Vancouver. With this latter, the Vancouver churches are now all in the Union with the exception of one one small congregation with a membership of 240, and an augumented mission five miles from the city.

WATCHING THE ECLIPSE.

The warning that is being given by astronomers and scientists of the danger that exists in looking at the phenomenum with the naked eye should be carefully noted.

Especially should care be exercised when the moon is edging into the centre of the sun and leaving, and observers should protect their eyes by gazing through a piece of smoked glass or a strip of exposed camera film.

These accessories are easily secured, and they will enable the spectacle to be viewed with perfect safety.

People should understand that to look at the eclipse through ordinary telescopes or field glasses is to court total and permanent blindness.

Leading astronomers point out that there have been many cases of loss of vision as the result of other eclipses, and nobody can afford to take a chance of risking the loss of the use of his eyes when the precautions that will protect them are at hand.

MR. DRURY'S RETURN.

Hon. W. E. Raney's leadership of the Progressive party in the Legislature is regarded as a process of keeping the seat warm for Mr. Drury, who is to return to politics and again head the U. F. O. forces—if it is proper to use the term U. F. O. in connection with political activities.

There may be some calls for the former Premier's reappearance in the arena, but even Mr. Drury's friends must admit they are weak—and only perceptible to keen ears wide open to receive the message.

Frankly, the Crown Hill statesman did not make such a glittering success of his term in office as to cause the people of Ontario to yearn for his return from the obscurity in which the last election enshrouded him.

He had such bad luck in the selection of some of his Ministers that the majority of the citizens of the Province can be pardoned for being unwilling to think of his ever being in a position to choose another Cabinet.

However, if the Progressive members of the Legislature and the adherents of the Progressive party throughout Ontario regard the ex-Premier as the man to head a forlorn hope, it is their privilege to choose him.

It is not likely that either of the old political parties will have any reason to regret that the mantle is again to fall upon the shoulders of Mr. Drury—after the former Attorney-General has had his innings.

PETERBOROUGH'S OVERDRAFT.

The announcement that Peterborough had an overdraft of $15,000 last year, representing practically a mill on the dollar in taxes, will not be received with any striking manifestation of joy by citizens, who complain that the burden of taxation is already as heavy as can be carried.

That the appropriations made early last year were exceeded by such a large amount does not indicate most expert financing, and conveys the impression that, as the Examiner pointed out at the time, the estimates were under view, the pruning knife was used to a degree that was beyond the safety margin.

There is usually a more or less spectacular assault upon the estimates each year, and nobody will deny that popular opinion demands such an attack.

At the same time, however, the cutting must be done with judgment, and an overdraft of $15,000, to be met this year as a result of the failure of the appropriations of 1924 to meet the expenditure, is not a showing that Peterborough will care to have repeated.

The average citizen would prefer paying as he goes along to a policy that finds him called upon to make up this year what should have been taken care of last year.

Some allowance must always be made for unforeseen expenditures, and there is little to be gained by trimming the tax rate one year if an extra mill is required the following year.

MR. FERGUSON'S PLAN.

Speaking at Sarnia, Premier Ferguson made n interesting announcement regarding changes which he proposes to bring about in the present system of higher education, says the Border Cities' Star. He plans to relieve overcrowding in the universities by subsidizing the cost of additional courses in Ontario collegiate institutes. This means that students will be able to secure two years of university instruction without leaving their homes. It has many advantages to recommend it, provided it does not impose too heavy a burden upon the financial resources of the Province. Already the cost of education in Ontario is weighing heavily upon ratepayers in many municipalities, a fact that is chiefly attributable to the expensive school buildings and equipment called for under modern departmental regulations.

There is no doubt that action of the kind contemplated by the Premier will relieve the universities of congestion, and it is probable that it will also have the good effect of weeding out those students who are not fitted by ability or desire to continue along the tedious trail that must be traversed before enering the learned professions. At the sam etime, enthusiastic educationists should not lose sight of the fact that in most Ontario cities the proceeds of half the tax rate go to meet the climbing cost of education. That is the situation in Windsor, and it is causing civic officials a good deal of concern these days.

Don't forget to use smoked glass in looking at the eclipse. This simple precaution may save you much trouble later on.

THE LEMIEUX ACT.

The judgment of the Privy Council declaring the Industrial Disputes Act ultra vires of Federal legislation will not come altogether as a surprise to those who have paid close attention to the trend of opinions interpreting the British North America Act which have been delivered during the last few years by the highest tribunal of the Empire. This has been in the direction of a stricter adherence to the terms of the British North America Act in determining the fields of jurisdiction of the Federal and Provincial authorities. This trend, which has been observable since the war, may to some extent be regarded as a reaction of the conditions produced by the conflict which not unnaturally tended towards an assumption of greater powers by the Federal or central authority.

Whatever opinions we may hold of Lord Haldane as a politician, his eminence as a jurist and the weighty study he has made of the subjec tas evidenced by his thoughtful and carefully reasoned judgment is an assurance that so far as human knowledge permits, the finding is in accordance with the equities involved. Nor is the decision so startling as it appears at first sight. The question of the validity of the Act is, after all, a matter of legal technicality. It in no way interferes with the intrinsic value of the measure itself. It may limit and restrict its application until such time as measures similar to the Ontario Act of 1914 have been approved and ratified by the other Provinces, but this is a question which time can and, as a general rule, will adjust.

The Canadian Act for the maintenance of industrial peace in all public utilities, including mines, went into effect on March 22, 1907. It provided for the settlement of disputes by conciliation rather than by the outworn and more discredited methods of brute force which have been a serious danger to the preservation of order. The Act applies to industry, the basic principle that in cases of industrial dispute machinery is provided for the settlement of the differences by conciliation before the weapon of the strike or lock-out is called into use. It does not take away from employees the right to strike nor from employers the corresponding right to the lock-out, but it postpones the exercise of both until there has been an investigation, at the public expense, in all disputes involving transportation, mining and public utilities. It differs essentially from compulsory arbitration, its sole object being to postpone stoppage of labor in certain industries for a brief period and for a specific purpose. The publicity given to the boards of conciliation has been an effective check on arbitrary and unjust demands by either party to the disputes.

During the period of its operation hundreds of disputes have been settled without loss of a single dollar of capital, a day's wage to the worker, or an hour's inconvenience to the public. It has been generally praised in other countries and universally copied. It has been recognized as providing an effective instrument for the uncovering of industrial wrongs and the exposure of injustices.

Canada will be loath to abandon this Act, and there is no reason why she should do so. What remains to be done is for each Province to pass this or some similar act and for the Federal Parliament to pass some measure of legislation that will give the Provincial acts a co-ordinated and full measure of usefulness. The principle of the voluntary conciliation, which is the dignified expedient of honorable men, will not be abandoned because of technical error or from a baser motive.—Montreal Star.

TROTZKY DETHRONED.

Bolshevism is threatened with a crisis which may shake to its foundations the entire structure, built at such tragic cost in suffering and in bloodshed. Leon Braunstein, who assumed the more Russian sounding name of Trotzky when he became a pillar of the new movement, has been dethroned from his high estate and has been threatened with expulsion from the party.

Comrade Trotzky has always been a thorn in the flesh of the Moscow gang. He has never concealed his opinion, even in the heyday of Lenin's success, that he regarded the prospects of a world revolution as tenuous, and he foresaw the prospect of internal dissensions wrecking the movement before it had the opportunity of leading the great frontal attack on capitalism. At the time of the Brest Litovsk Treaty Trotzky boldly opposed his leader on his policy of "a peace at all cost," and he has always maintained that the only hope for ultimate success was a breaking through the iron ring with which Bolshevism was encircled in Russia before destruction from within corroded the movement.

Lenin, a deeper student of the ethics of government, but something of a dreamer, never approved of the direct actionist methods of Trotzky. He pinned his trust on the underground borings, the undermining of the morale of the Capitalist Governments, the continual dropping of Soviet solvent that was to wear away the stone. He spent millions on propaganda in every corner of the world where he thought that the destructive influences of Bolshevism would make an appeal and win converts to his creed of world revolution. Zinovieff and Kameneff, on whom the mantle of Lenin has jointly fallen, are upholders of the precepts and the methods of the master. Kameneff has gone on record within the last few days as saying that the primary duty of Moscow is "so to shape the course of events as to make Soviet rule a constant menace to Capitalist Governments and a source of strength to the revolutionary forces of the proletariat all over the world." "Our revolution cannot remain for ever isolated, for it is bound to develop sufficient forces to produce an upheaval on an international scale."

Every step made by the Allies for the settlement of their own problems and every joint action which shows a united front to their enemies is a blow aimed at the Soviets. What Moscow feared most was the interventjon of America in European affairs. They foresaw that America had the power to give material aid in dissolving the differences between France, Britain and Germany and that American gold could re-establish order in Europe.

Comrade Trotzky thinks that the struggle between Sovietdom and Capitalism in Europe is over and that victory has been won not by a revolutionary movement sprung from Moscow but from milliards of credit issued from New York. The disclosure of these internal differences, long rumored, gives the world an opportunity of getting a clearer insight into the aims and the objects of a force which threatened at one time to create world revolution.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The upset of the Lemieux Act by the Privy Council should be met by a revision of the measure that will retain the sound portions even in a modified form.

Peterborough is about as excited over the hockey stars of tonight as about tomorrow morning's eclipse.

The man who says that life is just one darn tax bill after another groaned again when he heard of Peterborough's overdraft.

A THOUGHT.

CONNECT IT UP.

The delightful or delectable part of life is not just to climb to the very peak of old age, but to find the trail sufficiently long and always a pleasant journey.

A writer cannot fully, nor perhaps favorably, describe the delicacy and flavor of a certain fruit half so well as to let the other fellow take a taste.

An experienced writer can warn his friends about true happiness and the way to walk (friends who have not ventured far into the apple orchard—friends who do not know from experience that green grapes are sour and that sometimes green grapes are sweet). The reader must taste for himself.

Perhaps I can impress you with this thought: The sins of commission (as regarded by the older age) are not so regrettable as the sins of omission. It is the chances you have had to do more good—to be right with yourself and with others—it is these opportunities that you have lost that weight like a ton of scrap iron.

We all admit that environment has much to do with our pleasure or pain, but the right heart and a level head can encompass or change environment.

FOR COUGHS, SORE THROAT, COLDS & BRONCHITIS

As you dissolve a Peps tablet on your tongue, certain healing fumes are released which are immediately taken with the breath down into the furthest recess of the lungs where liquid medicines cannot penetrate. These Peps fumes on their way bathe the whole of the breathing passages with their healing potency, soothing the throat, allaying inflammation in the bronchi, and relieving the chest. Liquid medicines are simply swallowed into the stomach and cannot act in this direct Peps way.

While Peps are an expensive remedy to produce, the demand has become so great that it has now been found possible to have the

Everybody's Friend

Life Insurance has taken on a new importance. Everybody needs it, most people want it,—it is everybody's friend. As a result, people are asking themselves today:

"Am I insurable?"

"How can I get sufficient life insurance?"

and the answer is found in the ever-increasing number of policies now being applied for.

There is a foundation for this success: The general public is rapidly coming to realize the solid basis upon which life insurance rests; that the business is subject to a rigid system of Government inspection; and that while Life Insurance is a form of organized sharing of each other's burdens, it is managed on a sound business basis.

EAST PETERBORO AGRICULTURISTS ANNUAL MEETING

Debt Contracted a Few Years Ago Has Been Reduced.

CROP COMPETITION.

Old Officers Showed Satisfactory Work by Being Re-elected.

NORWOOD, January 23. — The East Peterborough Agricultural Society held their annual meeting on Wednesday afternoon in the Council Chambers, Norwood.

The following officers were present:

President, P. M. Grover.
1st Vice-pres., W .C. Thompson.
2nd Vice-pres., Gilbert Elmhirst.
Sec.-Treas., John E. Roxburgh.

Directors, Col. R. E. Birdsall, John A. Rob, G. A. Brethen, M.P., John Scott, Wellington Burgess, W. G. Barrie, John F. Elliott, Thomas Dunham, Wm. Brackenridge and David Barrie.

The reports showed a reduction of $800 in the debt contracted a few years ago when the society paid every cent of prize moneys won, in face of the fact that bad weather had lowered the gate receipts.

A communication was read from the Hon. J. S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, in which he said he hoped to attend at some future time, as he understood that the East Peterborough Fair was one of the best agricultural shows in the Province.

Membership Bigger.

The society has increased its membership, which is now nearly 300. Its assets are over $5,250, and the debt is now only $390.0.

The secretary, John E. Roxburgh, gave a report of the convention of Fairs and Exhibitions held at Toronto, at which he was the delegate.

Standing field crop competitions in oats and fodder corn will again be held this coming summer.

It was decided to have a campaign to secure new members.

The old officers were all re-elected.

Annual Church Meeting.

The annual business meeting of St. Andrew's Church was held on Monday evening last, when splendid reports were given by all the societies in connection with the congregation. The report for the session was given by the pastor, Rev. T. M. Wesley. The treasurer, Jno. Rork, gave an interesting report and showed a balance over all expenses. The W.M.S. report was read by Miss E. Tedford, showing in the neighborhood of $280 raised for all purposes and one life member added.

Miss Stella Burgess read the report for the Y.W.A. $290 was raised by that society, and the amount allocated by the Presbyterial was over-reached. Four life-members were added during the year.

The Mission Band report was given by Mrs. Jno. E. Roxburgh, and this also showed that the leaders had been busy women during 1924. The total number attending was 42. The Ladies' Aid, who had a splendid balance from last year, gave a report of their work. New silverware and dishes had been purchased by them and the church redecorated at an expense of $950. Their total expenditure amounted to about $1,100, and this is all paid, but a very small amount which the ladies expect to pay in a very short time.

The Sunday School report was also a good one, showing that besides paying for the remaining expenses of the school for supplies, etc., $60 had been given for missions and still a tidy balance left on hand.

It was decided to hold the anniversary services in May, and a congregational social some time in February. Committees were appointed to arrange for each of these. The meeting closed with the benediction.

DATE CHOSEN FOR LAKEFIELD VOTE

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 23.—The annual meeting of the Presbyterian Church was held on Tuesday evening, January 20th, with a good attendance present. Rev. P. L. Jull occupied the chair. The reports of the various organizations were read and showed a healthy condition both financially and in point of membership.

The congregation raised $585 for missions during the year and the Women's Missionary Society and Mission Bands raised $255, making a total of $840 for missions. This is the largest amount in the history of the church.

The amount raised for local work was $2493, the Sunday School reported $106 during the past year.

The Ladies' Guild raised $291 which was very gratifying.

After the reports had been adopted and the business wound up, the question of Church Union was introduced and discussed. While both sides expressed their opinions, it was done harmoniously and it was decided to take a vote as to the opinion of the people regarding entering the United Church of Canada. The poll will be open one hour after each Sunday service: on Tuesday from 7 to 9 p.m., and on Saturdays from 4 to 6 p.m.

The poll will close on Tuesday, February 3rd, at 9 p.m.

A number of local Conservatives attended the At Home given by the Women's Conservative Club of Peterboro on Wednesday night. A much larger number would have gone, but the very bad condition of the roads made the trip impossible.

"GODMOTHER" WEDS ACE BLINDED IN AIR CRASH

Romance Began During War and Survived Mutilation.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—Before a small group of intimate friends the French air ace, Emile Picard, who a little more than a year ago declared to a friend he was "a hideous being who should have died—a being that must hide"—was married at Notre Dame de Lorette Tuesday to Mlle. Emma Bon.

Picard was dreadfully disfigured when he was nearly burned to death on the rocks Pantelleria, between Sicily and Tunis, trying to save his comrade, Pilot Mondon, when their machine crashed at the very outset of a planned round-the-world flight.

Mlle. Bon, who was the airman's "godmother" during the war, when their romance commenced, guided the almost totally blind hero by the hand to the altar steps.

CHEMICAL MAKERS FEAR DAWES PLAN

American Industry Has Perfect Right to Protest Against Plan.

Use of American money by Germany menaces the chemical industry of the United States, it is declared by "Industrial Engineering Chemistry," official journal of the American Chemical Society.

"The chemical industry," it is asserted, "is deeply interested in the Dawes plan, because the confidence which its operation has restored has enabled the German chemical industry to secure large private loans in America.

"A determination to make the synthetic organic chemical industry independent, coupled with fortunate circumstances, has placed our industry in a position to compete in quality and variety of products and to provide such quantities as might be required.

"The use of American money to rebuild plants, to extend operations, to support research, and to meet payrolls might be a surprise in view of our efforts to establish an industry, but present nothing alarming.

"But if this money will enable Germany to return to the former practice of long-time credit, occasionally extending over two or three years, then we think the American industry has a perfect right to protest, and that its protest should be heard. All else being equal, the long time credit without interest would be a deciding factor in the market.

"That American money should be used to give this advantage to our strongest competitor is obviously unfair, and the practice should be stopped unless the bankers will even the score by enabling American makers to offer the same priviliges."

BOSTON JURY IS REBUKED.

BOSTON, Jan. 23.—Judge Elias B. Bishop, of the Supreme Court, rebuked a jury, which, after brief deliberation, had returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of a man charged with drunkenness. Police officers had testified that the man was so drunk that he could not be booked at the station house until three hours after his arrest. Addressing the foreman, Judge Bishop said:

"I would put you out of here as quickly as possible."

Turning to the clerk of the court he added:

"Take these names back to Judge Broadhurst and tell him these men are unfit for jury service."

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto Montreal—Winnipeg

7-8 to 1¼ cents lift, and provisions ranging from seven cents decline to 15 cents advance.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Jan. 23—(Canadian Press).—There was some enquiry from New York exporters for Canadian spring wheat on the Montreal market to-day, and bids of 13 cents per bushel over the winnipeg May option were made for No. 2 Northern, f.o.b. Portland, for January shipment, with 13½ cents per bushel over asked. Continental buyers were in the market for wheat, and sales of some fair-sized lots of Manitoba No. 4, No. 5 and No. 6 wheat were made for January-February shipment. There was also some demand from local exporters for Canadian Western No. 3 barley and bids of 43-4 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f. bay ports, were made with sellers asking 5¼ cents per bushel over. The feature of the local grain market was the strength displayed in Ontario oats and prices were advanced 1½ to 2 cents per bushel, with sales of No. 2 white being made at 68 cents, No. 3 grade at 66 cents, and No. 4 grade at 64 cents.

Prices of winter wheat flour were advanced another 5 to 10 cents per barrel, which was attributed to the light offering of Ontario millers. The market for white corn flour was also strong and prices were marked up 30 to 40 cents per barrel, with sales being made at 38.10 per barrel. The spring wheat situation was unchanged.,

Prices for all grades of eggs were firmly maintained under a good trade. A weaker feeling developed in butter and prices were reduced 1 cent per pound and business was quiet. There was no change in the condition of the cheese market. Fodder No. I made goods being quoted at 19½ to 20 cents per pound and No. 2 grade at 18½ to 19.

Crop beans were steady at $2.90 per bushel.

Prairie provinces report a shortage on fresh receipts and practical exhaustion of storage supply. The situation is being relieved by imports of British Columbia fresh and United States storage.

Dear Mr. Follis,—It was with deep regret that we were called upon to accept your resignation as financial secretary after thirteen years' service. Your office has been one which you have filled with diligence, patience and good judgment. Your records and books show great care and painstaking efforts on your part in recording all records of the church's transactions during your term of office, and it must be with great satisfaction on your part that you turn over your duties to your successor.

We are glad that your services will still be on the Deacons' Board.

In The Morning Her Tongue Was Coated Had Bad Taste In Mouth

Miss Pearle L. Zinck, Barss Corner, N.S., writes:—"I was awfully troubled with my liver, and used to get such dizzy spells I would have to sit down while I was doing my work.

In the morning, when I used to get up, my tongue was coated and I had a bad taste in my mouth and often times, throughout the day, I was troubled with pains in my stomach.

I suffered in this way until a friend of mine who had used your MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS. told me of having taken them, so I decided to try them, and I can truthfully say that they certainly did me a lot of good.

I cannot recommend them too highly to all those who suffer as I did."

ANNUAL MEETING OF ALL SAINTS' LADIES

Healthy Condition of Organization Shown by Reports of Officers.

The Ladies' Bible Class of All Saints' Church held their annual meeting and tea on Tuesday evening in the primary room. The reports of the year were read by Miss Lang, the secretary and Mrs. Dummitt, the treasurer, whose reports showed a prosperous year. Mrs. Curtis the flower secretary reported that 75 flowers were sent out to the sick during the year. The Book of Revelations is being studied by the class with Mrs. A. Stevenson as teacher. Rev. Canon Troop, who was the special anniversary speaker on Sunday, and who remained over to address the class, stressed the point of the benefits of Bible reading in our lives.

Mr. Beck) from the Parish Hall to the sanctuary of the present church. The class undertook this work as a loving tribute to their teacher. Rev. Mr. Paterson also spoke to the class on their relationship as a Bible Class to the Sunday School. A social hour was then spent and the meeting closed with the singing of "Blest be the tie that Binds" and the benediction by the Rev. Canon Troop.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Funeral of Miss Jane Robertson Was Largely Attended—Social Events.

CAMPBELLFORD, January 23.—Miss Jane Robertson died at the home of her brother, Mr. James Robertson, Centre Street, on Monday night, at the age of 80 years 3 months. She was the daughter of the late Captain William and Mrs. Robertson, late of Burnbrae.

A few years ago she suffered from a fractured hip, and since then has been confined to her home, but it is only a few weeks since she has been confined to her bed. Her brother James is the only one of the family now living. The mother died when the children were all small.

The only surviving relatives are: Miss Alba Robertson, of the Conservatory of Music, is a niece of the deceased, and Mr. Elroy Robertson of Rochester, a nephew.

The funeral service was held at the residence of her brother, where she lived, on Wednesday afternoon, at two o'clock. Rev. C. F. McIntosh, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, had charge of the service, and preached a very impressive sermon, speaking of the deceased as a lady of exemplary piety.

The remains were interred in Burnbrae Cemetery.

Afternoon Tea.

The cooking sale and afternoon tea given by the choir of Christ Church on Saturday, 17th January, in the Parish Hall, Rear Street, was a splendid success. The total proceeds amounted to $45.00, and the choir will use the money to purchase extra music for choir work.

Those in charge of the cooking booth were Miss Gertrude Maynard, the organist, and Mrs. L. Gibson, Mrs. Lawrie, and Miss Ethel Bedford looked after the tea-room, with Misses Dorothy Peckett,, Elsie Southern, Agnes Moore, and Helen Bygott assisting.

Annual Sleigh Ride.

The Sunday School boys and girls of the Salvation Army will have their annual sleigh ride on Friday afternoon, and after the drive will be served with supper at the Army Citadel.

Mission Circle.

The young ladies of St. Andrew's Mission Circle met for their regular meeting in the Sunday School Room of the church on Tuesday night at eight o'clock. The president, Miss Verna Hay, was in the chair, and presided at the meeting.

There was not a very large attendance, owing to illness of some of the members.

Miss Bessie Locke and Miss Olive Hay gave splendid papers, the former's subject being, "New Year's Resolutions," and the latter's, "How Should We Use Our Mission Challenges?" These were much enjoyed by those present.

Demand Good Stock.

On Thursday of this week Mr. F. M. Rutherford, secretary of the Menie District of Ayrshire Breeding Club, received a leter from Mr. W. S. Stephens, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Ayrshire Breeding Association of Canada. In it he says Dr. Oscar Rice, secretary of the Development League, Eldersley, Sask., is organising seven Federal Government Ayrshire bull clubs, and that they are inquiring for pure-bred and high-grade Ayrshires, and also that they require several car loads of young cows, preferably due for calving early in the spring. This shows there is a great demand for the pure-breds and high-grades.

Farewell to I. A. Humphries.

A number of the business men of Campbellford met in the Ancient Order of Foresters' Hall on Friday to say farewell to Mr. Humphries before he left for his new home in Toronto.

Mayor A. J. Meyers was chairman for the occasion, and in his address spoke of the regret they all felt in losing Mr. Humphries from the town.

Mr. Humphries was then presented with a beautiful club bag and gold watch, Mr. A. L. Reindeau making the presentation.

Mr. Humphries, with deep feeling, thanked the friends for the many kindnesses extended to him since coming to Campbellford. He said he would miss the associations he had had in the business life, in the church life, in fraternal life, and in social and sport life. Though he did not like to leave Campbellford, the opportunity that had come to him could not be refused for the good of his family and himself. He had not solicited in any way for his new position, as inspector of legal offices, but he would do his best in his new work.

Among his friends present the following gave short addresses suitable to the occasion: Dr. H. B. Longmore, Major Bygott, J. A. Stewart, S. H. Neale, George Nicol, D. W. Douglas, J. F. McGregor, G. A. Kingston, R. S. Southworth, and R. J. Allan.

For the last week of their stay in Campbellford Mr. and Mrs. Humphries and family were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Archer, Booth Street.

Their many friends in town wish them every success and happiness in their new home and surroundings.

Mr. Humphries was an active worker in Christ Church, and was the People's Warden for the past year.

ART STUDY CLUB DISCUSSES COROT

Mrs. R. A. Brown Handled Subject Interestingly — Next a Paper on Millet.

A meeting of the Art Study Club was held last evening at the home of Mrs. J. B. Mann, with a good attendance. A splendid paper on "Corot" was given by Mrs. R. A. Brown, who handled the subject in interesting fashion.

The next meeting of the Club will be held on Tuesday, 3rd February, at the home of Mrs. J. John, when Mrs. F. A. Hodgson will give a paper on "Millet."

Mrs. Brown reviewed the life and work of the great French painter, Corot, who was born in Paris and lived to the age of seventy-nine years, half a century of which was spent in painting. Corot, who was practically self-taught, having had only two masters in his early years, neither of whom taught him for any great length of time, was the child of rich parents, and was noted throughout his lifetime for his charity to the poor. His personality, which is reflected to a great extent in his work, was so charming as to bring him hosts of friends, and both during his life and after his death, he was greatly honoured in his native land.

Although Corot painted several portraits, he was noted especially for his landscapes. His favourite presentations of nature on canvas were those gleaned from observation of her moods in early morning and twilight hours, and he painted as much within the doors of his studio as outside. He belonged to what was termed the Barbizon school of painters, who flourished about 1830 in France, and whose work represented a revulsion of feeling from the realist school which preceded them. Nature was the master of these painters, and they went to the Forest of Fontainebleau for their inspirations. Corot, however, drew many of his backgrounds from his summer home at Ville d'Avray. He was a painter rather of impressions gleaned from observation of nature than of the actual scene itself, and was known as the portrayer in paint of the essence of things. Two outstanding elements in his work were the fact that he poetised everything he painted, and he never used strong colours. His skies and water and trees were exquisite in their colouring, in their reflections ,and in their vague outlines.

Corot was termed an impressionist rather than a follower of any other type of painting. He was greatly loved for the joyousness of his work, the great imagination depicted in his paintings and the inexpressible charm of his pictures. He was said to have learned the art of giving the impression of a thing, rather than its strict outline, from the Italian school, having made three trips to Italy in his youth, and often using classical Roman buildings in his backgrounds.

HOME BANK WASN'T LEGALLY FORMED

A Statement Read at Hearing of Double Liability Claim.

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Sir Henry Pellatt, at the hearing of the appeal against double liability being made by certain shareholders of the Home Bank, stated before Charles Garrow, K.C., master of the Supreme Court, at Osgoode Hall yesterday afternoon, that he had obtained 750 shares of the Home Bank stock in exchange for his holdings of stock in home savings and loan.

It was further stated by Sir Henry that he had subscribed for 500 shares which he had not paid for. These he had accepted at Mason's request. The 500 shares had afterwards been transferred as follows:

200 Shares to Pellatt and Pellatt, 100 shares to Eugene O'Keefe, 100 shares to General James Mason, and 100 shares to R. B. Street, secretary of the bank. Sir Henry, while willing to admit that he has assumed a temporary obligation for the shares, said he had exercised no control over them, that he had not arranged their distribution or sale, nor had he ever had the certificates.

This evidence followed the contention made on behalf of the shareholders, who are pursuing action, that at the time the Home Bank applied for its charter, it was 1,000 shares short of $500,000 bona fide subscriptions for stock required by statute before the charter could be issued. Upon this contention, a further claim has been made that the bank was never properly constituted and that no legal meetings of directors could have been held. The hearing continues to-day.

WEMBLEY POWER PARLEY RETOLD

MANY NEW IDEAS

Fred J. Brown, B.Sc., , M.E.I.C. and Fraser S. Keith, M.E.I.C., were the speakers at the regular meeting of the local branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada, last night. The speakers were both delegates at the World Power Conference held at Wembley in connection with the British Empire Exhibition last summer. Mr. P. P. Westbye was chairman of the evening.

Mr. Brown was the first speaker. He dealt with the Power Conference proper. Its great success was due to the good work of the committee of British Engineers which had worked for two years drawing up the programme and arranging for papers. A great deal of credit was due to the British Engineering and Manufacturers' Association, and the success of the Canadian delegation is ascribed to Messrs. Challies and Keith who went over in advance to do preparatory work.

The Canadian representation was so well organized that there was no meeting at which a Canadian representative did not take an active part, either as a presiding officer, as a speaker or as a leader in discussion. Mr. Brown acted as chairman at one meeting at which 23 papers were read, and which was attended by 120 delegates from nine different countries. At the same time meetings were going on in two other halls in which other members of the party were taking part. Altogether there were present 450 delegates from 44 different countries and during the three weeks of the conference there were read 430 papers. The committee issued a closely printed pamphlet of 50 pages containing very little besides a list of the papers and their authors grouped under the various heads. Among them were such non-technical papers as "Health in relation to Power Development."

Inspection Tours.

After the three weeks of meetings at Wembley, the delegates went on tours of inspection to different parts of Europe. The party of which Mr. Brown was a member, went to a number of plants in Belgium, France, Switzerland and Italy. They viewed plants with a head of from 4 feet to 2500 feet, and producing anywhere from 100 to 400,000 Kilowatts. A noteworthy fact was the great superiority in architectural design of European plants over those on this side of the water, which are not built with any special regard for beauty. This raises the capital cost per horse power to as much as three hundred dollars. The delegates were also impressed by the great efficiency of the steam power plants, that at Stonebridge, near London, producing electrical energy at a cost of 6-10ths of a cent, a kilowatt. The conference had many excellent results. The members made many lasting friendships with engineers from other countries, and learned something about the other fellow's viewpoint. Nationally it resulted in the attaining of many new ideas and methods, and internationally it was a great step along the path to the establishment of a clearing house for scientific and technical information. One great lesson that the Canadian delegation learned was the economic suicide of exporting a country's raw material to build up another country's industries. This is illustrated in the case of Switzerland, whose power is running large French, German and Italian factories, while her own industries are short of power.

Views of Wembley.

Mr. Fraser S. Keith, Secretary of the Engineering Institute, brought with him a large number of slides illustrating the Wembly Exhibition. He gave a very interesting description of the buildings erected by the various Dominions and Colonies, 78 in all, and took his audience on a rapid trip around the world. He said that one great thing that had been proved by the conference and exhibition was that the Canadian Engineers was the equal of any in the world.

A vote of thanks was proposed by Messrs. W. E. Ross and B. L. Barns, and the audience expressed their concurrence by heartily singing "For They are Jolly Good Fellows."

VOTE THEIR OWN PAY CUT.

300 San Francisco Trolley Men Lose $60 a Month by New Law.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—Three hundred employees of the Municipal Railway here reduced their monthly wage from $150 to $90 a month as a result of the passage of a charter amendment which they put before the voters and campaigned for at the last election.

The unusual situation was revealed to-day when the men petitioned the Board of Public Works to hold inoperative certain provisions of the law, but that body ruled that all provisions must be carried out.

Under the new law, the men must conclude their workday within ten hours. This condition makes a rearrangement of schedules necessary and places 300 of the men on extra or "tripper" runs, which pay only $90 a month.

$1,700 FOR BURNS POEMS.

A manuscript of "Holy Willie's Prayer" in Burns's autograph was purchased by Mr. Walter Spencer for $1,700 at Sotheby's saleroom in London the other day. Mr. Spencer recently acquired the poet's manuscript of "Scots Wha Hae." "Holy Willie's Prayer" was written in 1785, and the manuscript sold a few weeks ago consists of two full folio pages, and includes the explanatory "argument" of the poet.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

ON CHURCH UNION.

Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—A good many members of St. Paul's congregation must have been surprised—as I was—on reading Tuesday's Examiner to find that our pastor, Rev. Mr. Pogue, had made use of the public press in an effort to discredit two elders of his own congregation, especially as these two elders have been known for years as two of the most loyal supporters Rev. Mr. Pogue has had in his church and whose assistance he has valued time and again in the past.

Surely Rev. Mr. Pogue does not intend to intimate that because any members of the Presbyterian Church have, at some time in their lives, belonged to some other denomination they are to be debarred forever after from discussing matters relating Presbyterian doctrine and government.

It seems to me that when a congregation like St. Paul's sees fit to retain in its eldership for years two such men as Mr. Cowan and Mr. Dutton, and even to appoint them to the position of representative elders, an honour which Mr. Dutton still holds, it is rather a late date for our pastor to raise the point he has. I understand that Rev. Mr. Gervan of Millbrook, as well as another Presbyterian minister in this Presbytery, both Unionists, were Congregationalists before they became Presbyterians. Does Rev. Mr. Pogue desire us to understand that these men also, for that reason, are not competent to discuss these matters?

Referring again to Mr. Cowan, I understand that, as a child, he attended a Congregational church with his parents, but he never joined it and has never belonged to any other church but the Presbyterian.

Rev. Mr. Pogue brands as untrue the statement that in the General Assembly the ministers were generally in a large majority. To support this statement, he describes how the roll is revised and other elders appointed to take the place of any not present. He states that the roll, thus revised, is composed of "an equal number of laymen and ministers."

The reports of the General Assembly do not bear out Rev. Mr. Pogue's statement, at least for the last two years. The "Blue Books" show that after the roll had been revised, in the manner described by Mr. Pogue, the General Assembly which met at Port Arthur two years ago, was composed of 306 ministers and 260 elders, or a majority of 46 ministers. Last year at Owen Sound, the Assembly, after the roll had been revised, was composed of 308 ministers and 250 elders, giving a majority of 58 ministers. These figures do not include a number of ministers, other than delegates, who hold office in the church or on committees who attend, but are not allowed to vote.

At the last meeting of Synod, in Toronto, out of a membership of 384 ministers and 381 elders, there were present 214 ministers and only 44 elders.

Surely such official figures as these justify the accuracy of the very statement that Rev. Mr. Pogue brands as untruthful.—Very truly yours,

J. H. SEDGEWICK.

CHURCH UNION IN PETERBOROUGH PRESBYTERY.

On Tuesday evening an Anti-Union statement appeared in The Examiner relative to the vote in the Presbytery of Peterborough at that date. The statement was evidently prepared by the local branch of the "Presbyterian Church Association," of which Mr. H. B. Cowan is secretary and publicity scribe. Moreover, the statement is false and misleading. It gave the total vote at that date as 625 for Union and 667 against Union, "a majority against Union of 42." The simple truth is that at the date mentioned the majority for Union was 360.

The congregation at Brighton decided at a congregational meeting some time ago, by a vote of 128 to 6, to enter the United Church; the church at Baltimore, with a membership of 150, decided unanimously to enter the United Church; Coldsprings, with a membership of 130, also voted unanimously to enter the United Church without a ballot. Thus it is seen that when the "Anti" statement was prepared and issued, the exact situation re decisions on Church Union in the Peterborough Presbytery was as follows:

For Union.

	For		Against
Brighton	128	....	6
Baltimore	150	....	0
Coldsprings	130	....	0
Keene	114	....	74
Westwood	45	....	42
Garden Hill	27	....	8
Knox, Peterborough	293	....	131
Against Union.
Colborne	16	....	88
Lakeport	6	....	20
Hastings	8	....	113
Millbrook	32	....	96
Warkworth	84	....	95
Totals	1033	....	763

Majority for Union—360

The "Anti" statement made out "a majority against Union of 42." The public can judge how much dependence may be placed in the statements of the Anti-Union leaders in the Presbytery.

The following additional facts will give further light on the real situation in the Presbytery:—

Of the seven churches which have decided to enter the United Church, not one receives or accepts any assistance from the Home Missions Board. They are all in self-sustaining charges. Of the five churches which have gone "Anti," three (Colborne, Lakeport and Hastings) are augmented or aid-receiving churches. They are unable to pay their ministers' salaries, and every year unblushingly extend their hands and accept grants of money from the Home Mission office of our church in Toronto to help them pay a meagre salary to their ministers. Instead of going into old and prosperous Ontario settlements, these grants of Home Mission monies should be sent into the newer and needier fields of New Ontario and the North-West. A fourth "Anti" church in the Presbytery—Millbrook—gave its minister last year only $1164 toward the minimum stipend of $1800. Garden Hill, the second preaching station in this charge, has gone into Union, or decided to do so.

The only remaining "Anti" church reported in the Presbytery is Warkworth, which voted out by a small majority of 11. As is now known, the strong minority in this church, including nearly all its church workers' staff, goes over into the Methodist Church, which will be the United Church of the village of Warkworth.

In view of all this, how can anyone escape the conclusion that each and every one of the churches which to date have gone "Anti" in the Presbytery will need financial help from some outside source to enable them to keep their doors open and carry on? No wonder the "Presbyterian Church Association," non-Presbyterian in its origin, methods and spirit, and surprisingly non-Presbyterian in its leadership, as far as Peterborough is concerned—is making desperate efforts to secure a few strong churches in the Presbytery to foot the bills for all these little "Anti's." A survey of the situation to-day, and a study of the fate of Anti-Unionist churches of former days, indicate the hopelessness of the Anti-Union struggle.

MUST SUPPORT ANY KIND WIFE

Law Makes Man Responsible for Even Drunken or Insane Wife.

COURT LENIENT.

LONDON, Jan. 23 (United Press).—"Your wife may be a drunkard, or insane, but you must support her" if you happen to be an English citizen. This is a "privilege" which a man cannot lose, according to a decision handed down in an Old Bailey trial here.

"Our harsh English law does not allow divorce for drunkenness or anything of that sort," said the judge in addressing a man who had been brought before him for marrying a second woman after his wife had been confined in several different institutions for sixteen years.

The accused plead guilty to the technical charge of bigamy, but said, in defence of his crime, that he had considered himself in reality to be a widower and therefore did not feel that he had committed any moral wrong. The court agreed with him, and imposed the lightest possible sentence—imprisonment for one day.

A Few Do's and Don'ts For Eclipse Observers

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press).—These do's and don'ts for eclipse observers were given yesterday by George Kronenberger, professor of astronomy at Manhattan College.

For a good general view: Choose a place from which you can see the sun and much of the sky around it. A little before the totality rest your eyes for a while by shutting out all light. During the totality remain quiet with eyes "unstrained, taking into view as large a part of the sky as possible."

Don't use badly smoked glass because it may admit too much light, and a card with a pin hole through its centre serves just as well, and is safer and easier to handle.

OLD MEN KILL EACH OTHER.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—A fierce battle between two old men who beat each other to death—one fighting with a fork and the other using a stick—was reported to-day from the little Riviera village of Tanneron, near Nice.

Charles Jussieu and Julien Augier, both octogenarians, had a quarrel concerning their children's interests. Augier's two sons are married to Jussieu's daughters. The dispute arose concerning Jussieu's farm, which is the daughters' dowry.

Angry words soon caused blows. The two vigorous and hardy peasants armed themselves with the nearest weapons they could lay their hands upon. The women vainly attempted to intervene.

Jussieu stabbed with the fork as Augier used the stick. Suddenly the former fell with a cracked skull and his adversary died later of loss of blood.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble, Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid" indigestion.

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis, accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

STEPPING ON IT WASTES TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT. OF GASOLINE IN YOUR AUTO

URBANA, Ill., Jan. 23 (United Press).—"This car sure eats gas," you observe to the filling station attendant, as he screws the cap on your gas tank after putting in five gallons. Then you pay him, step in, slam the door, "step on it" and dash away.

But did you know that when you step on it or speedy getaway one-fourth of your gasoline supply vanishes. Of course you didn't for this fact has just been established in the labortories at the University of Illinois as a by-product of an investigation to determine the amount of air and power required to ventilate the Hudson river vehicular tunnel. The tests also show that it is the wasted gasoline that forms the deadly monoxide gas.

"Perhaps you have never thought of it just that way, but in order to have the average car get away quickly when you 'step on it' you must waste more than a fourth of the gasoline you buy," declares Prof. A. C. Willard ,head of the U. of I. department of mechanical engineering, who revealed the automobile gas findings.

"The explanation is simple," he continued. "In order to burn gasoline in an automobile engine, the gasoline must first be mixed with air in the carburetor, as everyone knows. This mixing business is carried on to suit the driver who demands 'pep.' The greatest pep or maximum power is obtained from the average automobile engine when the mixture of air and gasoline is in the ration of about 12 pounds of air to 1 pound of gasoline. Unfortunately for our pocketbooks, this is not the most economical mixture we could use, since there is not enough air present to burn all the gasoline, is in the ration of about 16 pounds of air to 1 pound of gasoline, but such a mixture is too slow in burning to suit the average driver. Therefore, he sets his carburetor for a 12 to 1 ratio and throws away over 25 per cent. of the heat value of his gasoline in the incompletely burned products of combustion.

"But mere extravagance is not the end of it, as these partly burned exhaust gasses are made up principally of the deadly carbon monoxide gas, which has caused so many deaths. A study of the exhaust gasses from over 100 actual automobiles, which was made in order to determine the amount of carbon monoxide in such gasses supplied positive evidence to back up the statement in the first paragraph. This study, which was carried on in connection with the ventilation of the automobile tunnel under the Hudson river at New York city, showed that the exhaust of the average automobile carries approximately 6.3 per cent by volume of carbon monoxide gas. This condition corresponds almost exactly to a 12.4 to 1 air to gasoline ration, which provided the quick getaway but wastes at least 25 per cent of the heat value of the gasoline by producing the fatal carbon monoxide instead of its comparatively harmless relatibe, carbon dioxide."

NEW YORK GLIMPSES

Loneliness Curse of Big City Where Legions Are Friendless.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—She was a cute little trick, in a bright cranberry coat with gray squirrel collar and a jaunty green hat. Her shoes were of the latest style and her trim ankles were encased in flesh-colored silk. As I passed I turned to look at her face. She was 65 if she was a day.

He is a man of 60. He goes to the barber every day for shave, shampoo and manicure. He wears the best of tailored clothes. I see him about the hotel lobbies often. He is always alone, standing apart from the crowd, wistfully watching younger men with young women. He stands there for hours, speaking to nobody and nobody speaking to him.

And in the Flatbush section of Brooklyn there is a man of 35 married to a woman of 60. They seldom go out and they rarely have visitors. They seem to cling to each other to drive away loneliness.

Loneliness! That is the curse of New York. The centrifugal force of life here throws the lonely soul to the outer rim of the mad swirl. Let youth fade and romance becomes but a delusive phantom pursued by foolish women and assinine men.

There is little home life here, comparatively speaking. Life is lived in motion, in color, in passion. It is lived in a constant go, go, go. Once the pace becomes too fast or the step is broken, loneliness looms like the hand of doom.

Hotels are full of men and women living alone; men and women who once were "the tide of the party" now sitting aside like wallflowers, grateful for a passing glance or an hour's visit with an old friend.

Whist, played as long ago as 1500, was originally called "triumph."

LIQUOR GRAFT RING ALLEGED

Bootleggers Said to Have Made $100,000,000 in Bootleg Leak.

COOLIDGE TOLD

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23.—Big leaks in the withdrawal of alcohol were cited here by Major William G. Murdock, State prohibition director, to back up his assertion that bootleggers made $100,000,000 in the last year.

A huge liquor conspiracy is believed to centre in this city, with ramifications as far West as Wisconsin. The alleged plot is now under investigation by officials at Washington, where evidence has been forwarded that alcohol has been diverted to illegal channels after its shipment by several Philadelphia concerns authorized to denature the spirits.

Major Murdock, at a meeting of the Anti-Saloon League of Pennsylvania yesterday, startled all and angered some by declaring that illicit rum vendors are piling up tremendous gains from the traffic.

The State director said that in 1921, 490,000 gallons of alcohol were withdrawn, tax free, for special denaturing. In 1922, that total jumped to 1,175,000 gallons, in 1923 to 2,750,000 gallons and in 1924 declined slightly to 2,630,000 gallons.

Goes to Bootleggers

"There is no doubt in my mind," said Major Murdock, "that a large part of this alcohol withdrawn for special denaturing has been diverted to bootleggers."

In contrast with the fast mounting withdrawals of alcohol for special denaturing, Major Murdock gave figures of the total withdrawals of pure grain alcohol taken out for industrial purposes. The tax on this type of alcohol is $1.20 a gallon.

The total of pure grain alcohol withdrawn in 1921, he said, was 3,885,000 gallons; in 1922, 1,480,000 gallons; in 1923, 992,000 gallons; and in 1924, 1,024,000 gallons.

WEEKLY STEAMSHIP SERVICE TO ALASKA

Two Oil-Burning Steamers Will Carry Tourists to Far North.

MONTREAL, Jan., 22—Mr. J. E. Dalrymple, Vice President of the Canadian National Railways announced here today that in order to complete its facilities for tourists visiting the Pacific Coast, the system will establish this summer a weekly steamship service between Vancouver, Prince Rupert and Alaska.

"This service" said Mr. Dalrymple, "Will be inaugurated on June 22nd, at which time the first steamer will leave Vancouver for its northern destination, Skagway and each week, throughout the tourist season sailings will be made from Vancouver and Prince Rupert, the Pacific coast terminal of the Canadian National Railways. The oil burning ships "Prince George" and 'Prince Rupert' which have already established a reputation as being among the best appointed vessels on the Pacific coast, will be engaged in this new Alaska service.

"Going northward, the ships will reach Prince Rupert at 10.30 on Wednesday morning, following the the Monday of sailing from Vancouber, and tourists will be given an opportunity to see something of this new Pacific port as the steamer does not continue on its northern trip until four o'clock that afternoon After passing old and new Metlakatla and Port Simpson an old Hudsons Bay post, calls will be made at Ketchikan a typical Alaskan town built at the foot if the mountains proceeding from that point the steamships will touch Wrangel, beautifully situated near the mouth of the Stikine river and possessing many associations with the period when Alaska was a Russian possession. The next point touched on this this will be Juneau, the Capitol of Alaska and a modern city with good motor roads and many points of interest, including the Mendenhall glacier and mines which have made this country famous. On the way to Juneau from Wrangel, an opportunity will be given to see the grandeur of Taku inlet, and the famous Taku glacier, over a mile wide and ninety miles long.

"The ships will arrive at Skagway at 7 o'clock Friday morning remaining until 7 o'clock Saturday night thus giving ample opportunity for passengers to see this famous town and visit the Atlin Lake district.

"On the southbound journey the steamers will reach Vancouver at 0 o'clock Wednesday morning, making a complete ten-day round trip.

"In addition to this Alaska trip the triweekly service between Vancouver and Prince Rupert will be maintained, also a semiweelky service to Anyx and Stewart on the Portland canal, which service has been in effect for some time past.

"The establishment by the Canadian National Railways of the Alaska steamboat service will meet the demands of many tourists and will be a fitting climax to the famous triangle tour, comprising Jasper National Park, the Rockies, the coast range and the water voyage through the Norway of America."

BEST LONDON STREET SHOW IS OPENING OF PARLIAMENT

By DIANA BOURBON.

All Londoners hope to see the opening of a new Parliament at least once before they die. A gorgeous pageant it is, medieval in its trappings, typical of British respect for tradition ane ceremony, however boresome they may be, and it has the further distinction of being very exclusive. It is called "one of the hardest things in London to see," and is, consequently, worthy of every effort.

The recent opening was noteworthy because the great Conservative majority makes it unlikely that there will be a new Parliament for at least five years. Besides, there were exciting rumors of trouble to be made by Egyptian agitators. Members of the new Government had been going around several days under guard, and Scotland Yard was fearful lest there should be bomb-throwing or shooting.

Opening of Parliament.

But a hint of possible trouble never keeps a London crowd at home. On the contrary, it brings the people out in full force. And so police vigilance in this instance is doubled. In addition to police on foot and horseback and soldiers on foot and horseback—all of which is a commonplace of the State opening—there were an unusual number of plain clothes detectives mingling with the crowd everywhere.

The actual procession is not very remarkable, or rather it does not last long enough. The sight to be seen is what takes place in the House of Lords, and as this Chamber is even smaller than the House of Commons, that thing known as "influence" is needed to get one near it. Cordons of police keep the general public back some distance to right and left of the Houses of Parliament. Only peers and peeresses, a few privileged members of the press, and the holders of green tickets are allowed to pass that blue-coated barrier.

The Favored Begin to Arrive.

Quite early in the morning they begin to arrive. The red carpets are down everywhere, even along the pavement, within the police barrier, and a striped awning is out. Highly respectable charwomen—the charwoman is such an English institution that she can be dispensed with nowhere—are still sweeping them, making a hideous dust for peeresses and privileged commoners alike. The ushers are darting about in red coats and satin knee breeches. There is a huge queue of ticketholders outside in the street, waiting to be admitted to the windows of the House; there is no room for them in the Chamber itself. That will be full of the titled, their wives and daughters, the diplomatic corps, a few members of the House of Commons and the Parliamentary correspondents, who have the only gallery from which it is possible to see and hear quite comfortably.

Meanwhile a steady stream of cars is driving up, disgorging into the cold morning light bevies of peeresses in vivid evening wraps with diamond tiaras on their heads, and trains carelessly caught up at the back. Their husbands follow, accompanied by footmen bearing large red bags containing their robes. Up and down the pavement, like peacocks preening themselves before the admiring gaze of the multitude, stalk Field Marshals and Generals and Admirals in dress uniforms, with tunics covered with gold lace, orders and medals. Some wear shining helmets with white plumes, others support bearskins at least two feet high, and there are cocked hats, trimmed with feathers that seem to billow over them like sea foam. Their swords clank behind them as they walk, and terribly conscious they are of all the admiring looks around them, for in England it is permitted that a man shall be vain, if only he be not ostentatious.

Two of them, in particular, march up and down with gold-embossed straps on their helmets, talking in the particular "Aw-aw" English accent that is grown at Eton and perfected in the Guards, and that everybody thinks he can mimic perfectly, though it is really inimitable! They move stiffly, like mechanical toys, and their gold spurs give an added ring to their steps. Opposite, along the side of Westminster Abbey, a guard of honor from the Coldstreams is drawn up, in bearskins, adding enormously to their height, and with bayonets fixed and gleaming in a feeble London sun. Every now and again, when things are growing dull, their band strikes up a stirring tune.

Seats for Westminster Boys.

In the precincts of the Abbey seats have been placed, just inside the garden fence, for the boys of Westminster School, but they, instead of sitting in them, climb up the scaffolding of the workmen who are always making repairs there. It is rumored that the police have sharpshooters in that scaffolding, too.

All the time the steady flow of peers has not diminished. Perhaps two or three still have their State coaches; and now and again an old-fashioned one arrives in an open victoria, drawn by two horses, and with two men on the box. Milady is sure to have her hair screwed into a sort of tea-cozy knot on top of her head, and her tiara is worn as it was in the days of her youth. Some come in Rolls-Royces and some in taxicabs. Extremes meet here.

At the left is another guard of honor, from the Life Guards, dismounted, but in surely the most gorgeous uniform ever devised. And now, out from the Lord Chancellor's entrance, come the Beefeaters, four by four; delightful anachronisms, in their Elizabethan high ruffs, doublet and hose, shoes with rosettes on them, and long beards.

SCIENTISTS READY FOR THE ECLIPSE

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Such sections of Canada and the United States as are so fortunate as to be in the path of totality were ready and waiting to-day for the phenomenon which will come sweeping out of the east to-morrow morning to plunge them into temporary darkness. It will be the first total eclipse of the sun visible in these sections for 450 years.

Fair weather has been predicted for the hour of the eclipse, but of course, as scientists point out, one cloud, properly placed, may blot out the whole spectacle. To meet such an eventuality, plans have been laid to take observations from widely separaterd points and from both land and air.

The giant dirigible Los Angeles will sail aloft with a body of scientists, and other types of airships will sail above the cloud zone with scientific instruments aboard.

Although material collected during the eclipse may not be assembled for months, it is admitted there is a possibility of startling discoveries being made soon concerning the heavens which may revolutionize accepted theories.

REPUDIATE DATE FOR END WORLD

Adventist Church Object to Time-Setting Activities.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 23.—In view of the approaching date of February 6, set by some for the end of the world, the Executive Committee of the Seventh-day Adventist denomination at their headquarters in this city have put on record the following repudiation:

Whereas, a group of people having no connection with the Seventh-day Adventist Church have assumed the name of this organization, and have set a date for Christ's second advent, announcing February 6, 1925, as the time for this event, we hereby place officially on record in the minutes of our General Conference our repudiation of all time-setting, and record our protest against connecting the name "Seventh-day Adventist" with this propaganda. Anew we declare to the public that throughout our history our witness to the signs of the times that show Christ's second coming near at hand has ever been based on the Scriptural teaching that "of that day and hour knoweth no man."

NEW MARRIAGE LAW.

Bolshevists Have Decided to Raise the Age Limit in Russia.

MOSCOW, Jan. 23. — (United Press).—A wife of less than sixteen years isn't likely to make much of a wife and a husband of fewer than eighteen years probably would not amount to much either, the Bolshevists have decided.

A matrimonial law forbidding younger persons to marry will be passed just as soon as the legislators have finished talking about it.

The law will provide that the husband must support his wife unless he is unemployed, in which case the wife must support him.

The law does not envisage a situation wherein both husband and wife would be out of a job.

Both parties to marriage will retain their family names unless otherwise specified at the time of the ceremony.

MRS. HART MAY REJOIN BILL.

Willing to Relinquish Court Victory For Reconciliation.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 23.—Willam S. Hart, moton-picture actor, whose wife, Winifred Westover Hart, last Monday won her Superior court suit to break a separation agreement prohibiting her from returning to the screen, has gone to New York on a vacation trip.

On the eve of his departure he reiterated his determination to appeal the case, but a statement issued at the same time by Mrs. Hart lent color to rumors that a reconciliation, rather than further litigation, might be the outcome of the couple's Superior court tilt.

"I have no plans to return to pictures at present," she said. "If my husband files an appeal it may be a long time before I would have a right to.

"But I will give up the trust fund established for me by my husband and agree not to return to work at any time if he will let me come back to him."

Couldn't Find Donkey In Detroit For Noble

DETROIT, Jan. 23.— (United Press.)—Detroit— the Motor City of the world—has one claim to fame —it's also donkey-less.

None other than Madame Pavlowa is authority for this.

When the curtain rose for the first act of "Don Quixote," the majestic but befuddled cavalier, whose name titles the performances, appeared astride the raw bones of a shop-worn cart-horse. The audience wondered if Mme. Pavlowa wished to renovate the play for their edification.

Could they have glanced behind the scenes there would nave been no apprehension on Madame's willingness to conform to custom.

"What do you think," said Madame Pavlowa, "Detroit is a donkey-less city. It is the first time it happens in America, not nowhere in the city could we find a donkey. Every city we visit, we have no difficulty in obtaining a donkey. But in Detroit — hein —motor cars is all one sees. For two days before we opened our performance here, the manager hunted for a donkey. Everywhere he asks, 'A donkey for one night, please, it is very urgent.' But he comes to me one hour before the performance and gives the bad news. 'Madame,' he says, 'I have look everywhere. But a donkey?—Bah—It is impossible'."

Not very long before the performance was scheduled to start, one of the manager's assistants informed him that one which might answer the purpose was tethered in the alley in the rear of the theatre. The manager's face relaxed as the probability of the hunt for a donkey became apparent. He rushed to the alley and there, pawing the snow, was a Shetland pony.

"Um," exclaimed the stage manager, skeptically surveying the animal with a discerning eye. "I'm not so sure, Madame will have to be consulted."

The pony was brought in to Mme. Pavlowa. She gave the inoffensive pony just one look. "His ears— impossible! No—better a horse."

Peter was then brought in and Mme. Pavlowa, seeking in him a good likeness, cast him for the roll of Rosinante.

CHARCOAL AS SUBSTITUTE

Sweden Works to Make Charcoal Gas Into Fuel for Autos.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. — (United Press). — Swedish engineers are working hard to solve the problem of using charcoal gas as a fuel for automobiles, motors and railway locomotives, according to Horton, Norway, advices to the American Chemical Society.

"They consider the question of great importance since charcoal is very cheap in that country," says the report. It is estimated that there would be a saving of fifty per cent. in the fuel expenses of railways, as compared with steam engines.

"The experiments are based upon a German patent, using a small producer with accessories mounted on the motor car. These gas motors will be installed and given a practical trial in a series of locomotives on some of the Swedish government railways. A large truck manufacturing company intends to start similar experiments of its cars."

MADE A PRESENTATION.

Miss Greta McCall Honoured by Sunday School Associates.

At the close of the Sunday school service at Fairview Methodist church in Smith Township on January 18th, Miss Greta McCall was presented with a handsome club bag.

The address was read by Miss Anna Franks; the presentation was made by Miss Hilda Bell.

Although taken completely by surprise Greta thanked her kind friends in a few words.

Miss McCall, who makes her home with Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Payne will move with them to Lakefield in the near future.

The following was the address;

Miss Greta McCall: Dear Friend. —It is with regret that we think of your departure from our midst in the near future. During the few short years you have been among us we have learned to appreciate to some extent at least your faithful and willing service, both in the Sunday School and church service.

As a small remembrance we ask you to accept this gift, not for its real worth, but at a token of the high respect in which you are held. As you go to your new home we have our best wishes for a bright and happy future, and may God use and bless you through the years that lie before you.

Signed on behalf of the Sunday school and church.

AT THE ROYAL.

CHICAGO CRITIC CLAIMS SILLs STORY SPLENDID.

"Legally Dead," Universal's compelling thrillodrama, continues to meet with unstinted praise of press and public. Amy Leslie, talented staff writer of the Chicago Daily News, has this to say about the "U" production, starring Milton Sills, supported by Claire Adams:

"One irrepressible genius, all useful, is the Universal editor-in-chief, Charles Furthman. He has just released a unique sample of his skill as a scenario writer, grimly entitled 'Legally Dead.' The play has a breezy romance centering upon the activities of Claire Adams and Milton Sills as lovers, and a look into the secrets of the laboratory and clinic through the subtle testimonies of the new life essence, adrenalin. Mr. Furthman sweeps the gamut of adventure with her hero, Mr. Sills, and introduces him to prisons, bank presidents, canary birds, matrimony, love at first sight and a murder for which he hangs, though innocent as veal.

"Reprieve comes too late; but that's the time for adrenalin! The noose victim is brought to life by the witch-like invigorator and he lives to find his late wife divorced and married, his true love waiting, his job intact and roses in bloom. It is well written, splendidly photographed, finely directed by William Park, is beautifully acted in every respect and has that one vivid note of complete novelty which bespeaks success and a longer life than most films."

This picture is now playing at the Royal.

BAZIL BUILDING FAST.

Structures Based on Plans from American Cities.

By U. G. KEENER

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (By mail to United Press).—Although money is the tightest here it has been during the lastdecade, causing some banks to pay as much as ten per cent interest on short term deposits, the building boom in Rio de Janiero continues unrestricted.

Brazil's first skyscraper, an eighteen story moving picture theatre and office building, is now under construction on the Avenida Rio Branco—Rio's principal thoroughfare. This building, when completed, will be the highest edifice in South America, surpassing by four stories the famous Guemes Building in Buenos Aires. Within a radius of two blocks of this skyscraper, five other large office buildings are nearing completion. One of these latter is to be twelve stories high, and the others will all be over seven stories when completed.

The Sul American Insurance Company hasjust completed its new seven-story building and three bank buildings are now under construction.

The Government, to keep up its part in the building program, is constructinga new Chamber of Deputies, a four-story edifice covering an acre of a square block in the center of the city. A new Palace of Justice is nearing completion, and work is well underway on a new building to house the Federal Senate.

The residential building program of Rio de Janeiro is only equalled in South America by that of the City of Sao Paulo, Brazil, where residences are being constructed at the rate of one in every thirty-five minutes.

The tendency of architecture in the new building program in Rio de Janiero is toward American designs. Theoffice buildings are modelled after the United States skyscrapers, and all new dwelling houses are purely American in every detail.

A new apartment house, on the American plan, has just been finished on the Avenida Atlantico, overlooking the Atalantic Ocean, and others are now being constructed.

As a result of the intense building program, prices for urban lots have double and trebled during the last twelve months.

Fail To Find Right Poison For Weevil

WASHINGTON, January 23 (United Press). — The cotton boll weevil is causing experts of the Army Chemical Warfare Service many sleepless nights.

Seeking a chemical with which to destroy the boll weevil and prevent destruction of cotton crops, the Chemical Service has utilised 30,000 of the insects and tried out more than 200 different chemicals. But still no destroyer has been discovered.

At the present time more than 17,000 boll weevils are being held in cold storage for experiments in hothouses in South Carolina.

Investigations of possible chemical destroyers will continue, according to Brig.-General Fries, chief of the service, until 60 chemicals are experimented with.

"After these experiments," said Frieis, "we will begin the fact as to whether or NOT they injure the cotton plant, and whether raw materials are sufficiently available to be manufactured in proper quantities, and also the matter of distribution on the cotton plants.

"Our greatest difficulty is getting a powerful chemical into the boll weevil so he will die. The young weevil is always inside of the cotton bolls doing his work where we cannot reach him with a spray.

"The weevil hibernates in the winter in old stalks of cotton and lays its eggs in the puncture on the inside. These eggs hatch out in there before the cotton is mature. They multiply with extraordinary rapidity. The possibilities are for 12,000,000 in one year from one pair of boll weevils.

"The only way that question can be handled is to get a poison on the plant or on the weevil that will kill it before it lays the egs. There is NOT any way we can figure out by which we can get inside the boll and kill the eggs or the worm that eats the raw fibre. That is what we are working on now, to get a chemical that will kill the boll weevil before it lights on the plant and before it lays its eggs."

ARTICLE No. 16

The hand given in the last article as one on which no good players seemed to agree as to the proper bid, is as follows:

: Y :
: A B :
: Z :

Hearts — A
Clubs — 9, 7, 6, 5, 3, 2
Diamonds — A, 8, 7, 2
Spades — A, 2

No score, rubber game. What should Z as dealer bid with the foregoing hand? Four different bids have been suggested as proper with this hand. First: One no-trump on the ground that three aces always justify a no-trump. That is usually correct but in this case no trump would be a bad bid because of the distribution. The singleton ace of hearts is a weak spot and the fact that the long suit of clubs is only nine spot high is another. For these reasons, the writer considers a no-trump bid with this hand as incorrect. Second: No bid on the ground that the hand does not contain a justifiable no-trump or suit bid and therefore should be passed and the club suit bid on the second round of bidding. A pass or no-bid with this hand seems inadvisable. The hand contains three aces and is too strong to pass without risk of misinforming partner. Third: One club on the ground that the three aces are compensatory cards and more than make up for lack of tricks in the club suit. This is undoubtedly true if the hand is played at clubs but if not, partner is certain to be deceived by the club bid and will lead that suit with the chances of losing one or more tricks by doing so. In making an original bid without top cards in the suit bid, always try to imagine what will happen if partner opens that suit. It is always better to bid such suits on the second round of bidding and then you will not deceive partner and force him to open the wrong suit. Fourth: One diamond on the ground that it is a sound bid and in no way deceives partner. By bidding one diamond, you are almost certain to get another chance to bid and then you should bid the clubs. This bid seems to the writer to be the correct one with this hand and the one that will eventually produce the best results. It is a very interesting hand and will undoubtedly cause a wide variety of opinions even after this analysis.

Hand No. 1

Hearts — J, 10, 8, 3, 2
Clubs — J, 7, 3
Diamonds — 9, 5
Spades — K, 6, 5

: Y :
: A B :
: Z :

No score, first game. Z dealt, bid one no-trump and A passed. What should Y now bid with the foregoing hand? In the opinion of the writer, Y should bid two hearts. It is a hand that offers no help for the no-trump bid and has much better defensive value at the heart bid than at no-trump. With a weak hand of this type, it is almost always better to defend with a suit as trump than at no-trump. In the actual play, Y bid two hearts and lost his contract by two tricks. At no-trump, Z would have lost his contract by three tricks so the two heart bid was right, in this hand at least.

Hand No. 2

Hearts — 8, 2
Clubs — J, 9, 8, 2
Diamonds — 10, 2
Spades — A, 7, 6, 5,

: Y :
: A B :
: Z :

No score, rubber game. Z dealt, bid one no-trump and A passed. What should Y now bid with the foregoing hand? Y should bid two spades with this hand for the same reasons given in Hand No. 1. In the actual hand Y bid two spades and made five odd, game and rubber. At no-trump, Z would have scored but two odd as there was a set-up heart suit against him. Here again the take out proved the better bid.

Answer to Problem No. 7

Hearts — A, K, Q, 4
Clubs — J, 10, 9, 4, 3, 2
Diamonds — 7
Spades — A, 4

: Y :
: A B :
: Z :

Hearts — 10, 9, 5, 2
Clubs — A, K, Q, 7
Diamonds — 9, 6, 3
Spades — Q, 6

No score, rubber game. Clubs are trumps and Z is playing the hand. A opens the king of diamonds and all follow suit. He then leads the trey of spades. How should Z play the hand so that he can make game no matter how the remaining cards are distributed? Z should play the ace of spades for if B has the king and the hearts do not drop, he can lose game. After playing the ace of spades, Z should lead trumps, winning the first trick with the queen of clubs in his own hand. He should then lead a diamond and trump with the nine of clubs in Y's hand. He should then lead another trump winning with the king of clubs in his own hand and lead the last diamond, trumping in Y's hand with the ten of clubs. If the trumps are all out, he should lead the hearts, but if not, he should lead another round of trumps and then the heart suit. If the hearts are divided in the two hands, he goes game without any trouble but if not, after the second lead of hearts, he should lead the spades. Now, no matter which opponent has the king, he must go game. If the opponent who has the heart suit wins the trick, he must lead away from his jack of hearts and thus he enables Z to win four tricks in that suit. If the opponent who has no hearts wins the trick, he must lead either a spade or a diamond and as neither Z's nor Y's hand has a card of either suit, one hand can trump and the other discard a losing heart. In either case, therefore, Y-Z win the game. It is an interesting hand and should be studied by dealing out the remaining twenty-six cards to A and B and see how it works out.

DR. D. B. MARSH VIEWS THE ECLIPSE

The following from a Bermuda newspaper refers to Dr. D. B. Marsh, former pastor of the Springville Presbyterian church, and well known in Peterborough astronomical circles:

"The Bermuda members of the party which is to view the total eclipse of the sun from Newhaven, Conn., left by the Fort St George. They consisted of Dr. D. B. Marsh, Mrs. Marsh, Mr. Ernest Gauntlett, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Gauntlett, and others, to the number of six or seven altogether, though all are not finally selected, but one will be Mr. John A. Marsh of Hamilton, Canada, son of Dr. Marsh, who has consented to join his father's expedition as an expert on astronomical instruments.

Mrs. Marsh is the mathematician of the party and will give the time signals. Thus Bermuda will have the additional honor of having one of the few woman astronomers in the world in its expedition.

In an interview with Dr. Marsh yesterday he informed us that the party's equipment was most creditable to the Island. It will be placed on the Campus at Yale College University and that of Professor James Worthington alongside, in the midst of thousands of spectators.

"The instruments," Dr. Marsh said, "are equipped for the photography of both hydrogen and calcium. In all 18 photos will be taken, comprising different phases of the eclipse and 12 photographs of the totality."

Asked what expectations the astronomers had of results, Dr. Marsh replied, "An astronomer expects nothing but goes thoroughly prepared for every opportunity that may arise." "What benefits," he was asked, "have been derived from such observations?"

"In the world's history," he replied, "only a comparatively few dollars have been expended on the observation of solar eclipses yet through them the world is benefited annually by thousands and thousands of dollars. Helium, for instance, the gas with which the great airships are inflated was discovered from a solar observation, and renders them absolutely safe from the dangers of explosion.

Radium was first discovered by astronomers, also the properties of "Tungsten" and the new process of steel is due to their research. Wireless and other like processes are due first of all to astronomical observations."

Many of us owe a debt of gratitude to Dr. Marsh for his lectures and talks on the subject in which he is so proficient, and the whole of Bermuda fully appreciates the honour of being able to follow the observations of its own group of scientists at Newhaven, for in this regard we feel sure that Professor Worthington will permit us to include him.

We shall follow with the deepest interest the tidings from the expedition and hope to have an account of all its wonderful experiences from the leader, Dr. Marsh, to whom and to Mrs. Marsh, Professor Worthington and their assistants, we wish the fullest measure of success.

ECLIPSE IS ONLY FEW HOURS AWAY

Final Hints to Those Who Will View It in Peterborough—Worth Seeing.

Peterborough people have an added thrill in to-morrow morning's performance of the heavenly bodies in the fact that they do not know just what is coming.

In Toronto, New York, Hamilton—everywhere in the certain path of totality—the people have read and re-read every detail of what may be expected if the astronomical savants have called the turns right. But here, with Ottawa experts saying that Peterborough is to have ninety-nine per cent. totality and the observatory drawn maps putting the city just on edge of the total eclipse, citizens must wait and see for themselves.

There is one important point to be observed, whether the eclipse is partial or total here, or just half and half, and that is the protection of the observer's eyes.

The last minute advice of astronomers is "Guard the eyes." Eyestrain, temporary loss of sight, or even blindness, may result if proper precautions are not taken. And the scientists don't mean maybe. They have had experience in other cases, and cite instances where total blindness has resulted from viewing a partial eclipse without protecting the eyes from the intense glare.

Brown Paper Efficient.

If a smoked glass is unprocurable, brown paper with a pinprick in it makes a good substitute, and is just as effective. An exposed and developed photographic plate or film is excellent, while coloured spectacles such as are used by motorists are inefficient, since they do not shut out enough light.

Last minute advice to Peterborough citizens who intend to view this wonder of a lifetime to-morrow morning wouldn't be complete without a hint as to what to look for.

The moon will encroach upon the sun's surface at 7.59 to-morrow morning, nibbling at the top right hand corner, and the eclipse will be total at 9.07. Whether the wonderful shadow will swallow up Peterborough is a question that will be decided about 9.08 to-morrow morning, but in any event it should be clearly visible as a wall of blackness in the west from such a vantage point as Armour Hill.

Rest your eyes during the earlier phases of the eclipse so that the glories of the final moments will not be lost. And remember that there will not be another total eclipse visible in this district for 219 years.

Even 99 per cent. of this one is worth a little trouble to see.

MENU FOR FAMILY

Dinner—Pan-broiled sirloin steak, French fried potatoes, buttered brussels sprouts, head lettuce with Roquefort cheese dressing, fruit cup puddings, bran rolls, milk, coffee.

While French fried potatoes are not planned for the children under school age this vegetable will not be missed from their menu. Brussels sprouts are rich in mineral salts and vitamins and are comparatively easy to digest. They are an excellent vegetable for growing bodies and the very tiny-ness of them may attract in spite of their similarity to the more plebeian cabbage.

A sandwich and salad combined is a happy choice for luncheon. The salad on its bed of lettuce is served on thin slices of bread and butter, "open" fashion.

Vegetable Chowder.

Two cups diced potatoes, 1 cup diced carrots, 1-2 cup diced turnips, 12 cup diced celery, 1 sweet green pepper (optional), 1 large onion, 3 tablespoons butter, 3 cups boiling water, 4 cups milk, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper.

Mince onion. Remove seeds from pepper and parboil. Rub off thin covering and cut in shreds or mince. Put vegetables into soup kettle and boiling water and cook 20 minutes. Add milk, salt and pepper and bring to boiling point. Melt butter, stir in flour and cook, stirring constantly for five minutes. Add to vegetables and milk and cook, while stirring, three minutes longer.

Tapioca Grape Juice.

One and one-half cups grape juice, 1 1-2 cups water, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 2-3 cup sugar, 1-2 cup minute tapioca, 2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Combine grape juice, water and sugar in a smooth sauce pan. Put over the fire and bring to the boiling point. When boiling stir in tapioca. Season with salt and cook, stirring to prevent sticking until transparent. Remove from the fire, add lemon juice and turn into a mold to chill. Serve with or without whipped cream.

Roquefort Cheese Dressing.

Four tablespoons Roquefort cheese, 1 tablespoon vinegar, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 6 tablespoons oil, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon popper, paprika.

Work one tablespoon of cheese until creamy with oil, adding oil slowly. Add vinegar, well chilled, beating with a fork. Beat in oil and lemon juice. Add seasoning. Keep all ingredients very cold. Add remaining cheese coarsely crumbled and beat well. Serve immediately on sections of head lettuce.

CHINESE GORDON RELICS.

Possessions Lie Rotting Away in the Sudan.

The murder of Sir Lee Stack brings back memories of Chinese Gordon, and I am reminded (writes a correspondent) that in the lower rooms and courtyard of the Khalifa's abandoned house at Omdurman, just across the river from Khartum, many of Gordon's possessions lie rotting away, covered thickly with rust, or blistered by the tropical sun and beaten by the torrential rains of the Soudan. His piano his carriage, trophies from his palace, and heaps of intimate relics of that gallant figure are clustered there, decaying, surrounded by groups of the Khalifa's possessions—a pathetically interesting little museum. But the relics will not last much longer unless an effort is made to preserve them. There is still time to house them in a museum in Khartoum, and so preserve a collection which grows more valuable as the years roll on.

Sees Death of Her Child Flashed on Movie Screen

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press.)—One child is dead and two others are in a critical condition as the result of a fire in the home of Mrs. George Bekas here last night.

Mrs. Bekas was at a neighborhood motion picture theatre when the fire occurred and was not aware of the fatality until her name was flashed on the screen.

PRINCESS MUST PAY $40,000 FOR LOVE SHE STOLE

Titled Rival Defied Wife to Win Back Her Husband.

GONE TO BELGIUM.

New York Court Awards $40,000 in Suit for $100,000 Entered by Wife.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—"Princess Elizabeth de Ridder, of Belgium," known also in New York society as Mrs. Elsie Walter, must pay $40,000 for stealing the love of Edward J. Hutton, wealthy silk manufacturer, under a verdict given in the Supreme Court.

Mrs. Milly Hutton, who sued the Princess for $100,000 for the alienation of affections, testified that her rival defied her to regain the lost love and suggested that the wife surrender her spouse for his own happiness.

Mrs. Hutton said that on learning of the Princess's infatuation she talked with Hutton. He told her the Princess lived at No. 133 West Seventy-ninth street as Mrs. Walter because she was incognito in this country.

Protests In Vain.

The wife telephoned the apartment and protested against the friendship. Whereupon, she says, the Princess answered:

"It was very hard for me to win your husband's love. Now that I have it you will never regain it."

To this, Mrs. Hutton says she replied:

"I will leave no stone unturned in my effort to win my husband back. I will resort to the courts, if necessary."

The threat had no effect on the Princess, who, according to Mrs. Hutton, retorted:

"If you really loved your husband, as you say you do, you would give him up to me, because it would be for his happiness."

She Has Gone Abroad.

The Princess was not in court. Friends said she had gone to Antwerp, where she owns valuable property bequeathed her by Johannes D. R. M. de Ridder, famous art collector. Attorneys for Mrs. Hutton asked for judgment by default, asserting the Princess had promised six months ago to defend the suit, but had made no appearance.

Justice Wagner ordered that Mrs. Hutton's testimony be read to the jury, which returned its verdict in one and a half hours.

The wife said she was married in Switzerland in 1907 and came to America in 1916. Their name was abbreviated from Huttonlacher here for business reasons. The husband became manager of a silk mill in Bangor, Pa., and Mrs. Hutton moved to New Rochelle.

Absent Too Often.

Four years ago, the wife testified, Hutton's absences became so frequent and prolonged that she doubted the traditional excuse of business negotiations.

She traced him to the Seventy-ninth street house, she said, only after he became so infrequent a visitor to his own home that he called only to pack fresh clothing in his suit case.

The conference and telephone conversation followed.

Just where the Princess obtained her title was not revealed in the suit. It is said she received three-quarters of the de Ridder estate, though not directly related to the art connoisseur.

The other quarter of the property went to his brother, Stanislaus, with whom the Princess was involved in several court actions over the will.

TIMBER OWNED BY HOME BANK

TOOK OVER LIMITS.

TORONTO, Jan. 23. — Reasons for certain large timber areas in British Columbia coming into the possession of the Home Bank, were explained this morning at the trial of S. Casey Wood, Home Bank director, by C. F. Battle, a prominent Pacific Coast lumberman. Battle owned the limits originally and sold them to A. C. Frost. Mr. Frost was not considered a lumberman and was not successful in that business. Battle sold one limit to Frost for $85,000 and another for $200,000. Frost did not meet the payment and was sued by Battle and was given judgment for principal and interest. The Home Bank took over the limits and payments to Battle were made by it.

Mr. Battle said that Frost originally had purchased the limits on speculation as much as for the supposed coal deposits contained on them as for the timber.

FRENCH DEPUTIES MET IN DISORDER

PARIS, Jan. 23. — (Canadian Press.)—The Chamber of Deputies this afternoon was thrown into an unroar that lasted twenty-five minutes. And the session had to be suspended after Deputy Desjardines had criticized bitterly the action of the Chamber yesterday in refusing to order the posting of Deputy Marin's speech on Inter-Allied debts. It was a scene of such disorder as had never before been seen in the Chamber of Deputies.

Deputy Desjardines kept on shouting that the governmental majority was afraid to endorse Marin's theory of justice in dealing with the Inter-Allied debts because of the deplorable effect it had on the American Senate.

After President Painleve had jammed his hat on his head as a signal that the session was suspended the deputies continued thumping the desks, gesticulating and shouting. They quieted down somewhat, however, and the session was resumed. Premier Herriot took the rostrum. The Premier's supporters applauded him, but the Opposition greeted with cries of derision.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

168 Rubidge Street, City,
January 23, 1924.

To the Editor of The Examiner;

Dear Sir.—I see by a statement in The Evening Examiner of Tuesday, January 20th, that a stupenduous event took place in Peterboro. "Knox Church Enters Union." Out of a possible vote of 524, only 131 opposed Union. This church that a short year ago proudly boasted a membership of 637 and yet only 293 ballots were for Union (see acts and proceedings of the Fiftieth General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, Owen Sound, June 1924). Truly a stupendous event.

If 113 members have left Knox Church in such a short time, there must surely be something wrong. Where is it?

This church was reported to the Private Bills Committee at Toronto and Ottawa as being opposed to Union. This is quite true, as a vote was taken in 1923, but the General Assembly reported it as a Union Church. When that vote was taken, the members voted for conscience sake, not for pity sake.

I wish to extend to some of the members of Knox Church Session my heartiest thanks. If they never in their lives before obeyed the commands of the Great Master, they certainly obeyed someone's commands during the two weeks of the voting, going out into the highways and byways and coaxing them to come in and vote for Union. It looked as though they were more interested in the transfer of real estate than in the spiritual welfare of the people.

Yours truly,
ONE MEMBER who was refused a vote and who was entitled to one.

MORE CHURCHES VOTE AGAINST UNION.

January 23, 1925.

Editor, The Examiner,—To-day's returns on Church Union are again most gratifying to those Presbyterians who are working for the preservation of their Church. Two more Toronto congregations, Parkdale and Davenport, announced their votes yesterday, and both were against Union. The last five churches reported from Toronto as well as two suburban churches have voted against Union. The vote in Parkdale Church was 286 votes for Union and 713 against, giving a majority against Union of 407 votes. In Davenport Church 211 voted for Union and 388 against, or a majority against of 177 votes.

Total Toronto Vote.

In Toronto to date 37 churches have voted, of which 19 have voted to enter Union and 18 against Union. The total votes cast for and against Union now give a majority against Union of about 100. In Hamilton the vote against Union is about 3 to 1.

Other important churches which have voted not to enter Union include St. Andrew's, Belleville, which voted out by 44 votes; Grace Church, Calgary, where the vote for Union was 170 and the vote against 482; Knox Church, St. Thomas, 101 for Union, 585 against; St. Paul's, Victoria, 20 for Union and 123 against; St. Andrew's, Kitchener, 208 for and 321 against; St. Andrew's, New Westminster, B.C., 171 for and 175 against. The total number of congregations which have voted against Church Union to date is 255 as well as two missions.

Presbyterians point out that the Unionists claim that 820 congregations have voted for Union. Included in this list, however, are 319 in Saskatchewan, or about 40 per cent. of their total. Yet not 8 per cent. of the membership of the Presbyterian Church in Canada is in Saskatchewan. It is big congregations in Ontario and Quebec that are voting out of Union that are going to determine the success or failure of the whole movement. Already congregations have voted out in practically all the cities of Ontario, and in some cities, like Stratford and St. Thomas, all the churches.

Snow May Form Screen Hiding Heavenly Stage During Sun's Big Turn

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press.)—A variation of about fifty degrees between the highest temperature of yesterday and those of eight o'clock this morning, were experienced in some Eastern Canadian cities over night as a result of a cold wave sweeping down on the Great Lake regions from Manitoba. Prospects generally in the Great Lakes districts are for milder weather to-morrow with south-east winds and snow falls, promising possible disappointment for those cities which expected to get a view of the complete eclipse to-morrow morning.

GOVERNMENT SEEKS BEST FOR PEOPLE

St. Lawrence Development Has Many Difficulties, Says Hon. G. P. Graham.

OTTAWA, Jan. 23 (Canadian Press).—When the correspondence which has passed between the Dominion and United States Governments on the St. Lawrence River development is published within the next few days, it will be found that the Canadian government has been fighting hard in the interests of the people living along the northern shore of the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River.

This was the declaration made by Hon. George P. Graham to a delegation representing the Eastern Ontario Power Union, which waited upon Premier King and the members of the Dominion cabinet this morning.

The delegation came to Ottawa to urge development of the St. Lawrence river for power purposes, claiming that commercial stagnation has gripped Eastern Ontario as a result of electric power scarcity.

To the delegation Mr. Graham explained that the development of the power and the construction of canals on the St. Lawrence River was a matter which could only be undertaken after Canada and the United States had agreed on the course to follow.

Mr. Graham emphasized the point that the difficulties involved in power development on an international stream were not generally realized. The province of Ontario must get the permission of the Dominion government to proceed with the power development but the Dominion Government could not grant this permission until it was in agreement with the United States. At the present time a joint board of engineers was engaged in investigating the whole matter before preparing a report on the scheme.

The delegation was introduced by J. M. Campbell of Kingston.

FIGHT FIRE WITH SNOW.

Thirty Persons Driven From Homes Into Sub-Zero Weather.

RUMFORD, Maine, Jan. 23. — (Canadian Press).—Fire early this morning drove thirty persons from their blazing homes into the snow, while volunteers, with snow shovels, in the absence of either fire apparatus or water, fought a desperate and losing fight with the flames in sub-zero weather. Five houses in the mill settlement, including one worth $50,000, fell a prey to the flames. The total loss is estimated at $175,000.

PASTOR ACCEPTS CALL.

THE EXAMINER HAS NEW FEATURE

The Examiner has a new feather in its cap to-day. As a dispenser of service to the public, it has attained a new eminence.

This morning, a lady intent on taking a jaunt to the business district, and taking note of the frigid atmosphere prevailing without, called The Examiner on the telephone and inquired the exact temperature at the moment. She also volunteered the information that she had intended embarking on a shopping expedition, but feared it was too cold.

Being assured that "it' at the moment was very cold, she registered a change of mind, and rang off.

The Examiner makes no charge for mental helps of this sort.

SAY OYSTER TRADE IS HURT.

Maryland Dealers Declare 5,000 Are Out of Work Because of Typhoid Scare.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 23.—The serious situation in the oyster industry of Maryland, due to reports that the bivalve was responsible for an outbreak of typhoid fever at Chicago, was discussed at a conference here between Governor Ritchie, Conservation Commissioner Earle and representatives of the industry.

Oystermen reported 200 oyster boats tied up at Cambridge and packing houses there, Crisfield and other points closed, with approximately 5,000 persons engaged in various phases of the industry idle.

Commissioner Earle said reports from Virginia indicated a similar condition in that State.

So far, it was asserted, health officials have given Maryland oysters a clean bill of health.

HELD FOR DYNAMITING DAM.

Prisoner at Marion (Va.) Denies Causing Disaster That Killed 19.

BRISTOL, Va., Jan. 23.—Roy Patrick, 27 years old, is held without bail in the Smythe County Jail at Marion on a charge of having dynamited the dam at Saltville, Christmas eve, causing the death of nineteen persons and a heavy damage to property. He reiterated his innocence of the charge and maintained that he will be able to prove an alibi.

The authorities say they have evidence that Patrick planted several sticks of dynamite under the dam to dislodge the mountain of lime muck that swept down the Holtsein River valley near by and snuffed out the lives of residents as they were preparing for the Christmas holiday. Patrick was disgruntled, according to the authorities, and made threats against the Mathieson Alkali works, owners of the dam, because he could not obtain employment there. The prisoner is being carefully guarded on the second floor of the jail.

BURNS AS A VAGRANT FIDDLER

2460 Dollars For Autograph Letter by Burns.

A the property of the late Mr. William F. Gable, of Altoons, Pennsylvania, there was sold last month by the American Art Association, New York, a remarkable, nay, in its kind, unique autograph letter by Burns—namely, that on 3pp. 4to. written at Dumfries on April 22, 1791, to Charles Sharpe of Hoddam, and signed "Johnie Faa." It may be noted in passing that a facimile of the last 18 lines of the autograph, together with "Your most devoted humble servant," with signature and date, appears in the auction catalogue, so that there is now no question of the precise day on which the letter was written or of the exact spelling of the fanciful signature. For this notable letter the Rosenbach Company paid no less than 2460 dollars, the highest sum that such a Burns item has yet realised under the hammer. A propos it may be recalled that in the Morrison sale of 1918 the letter of August 16, 1788, to Mrs. Dunlop fetched $145; that to Dr. John Moore of February 28, 1791, £200, Dr.Moore's reply thereto bringing £7 10s; while the 1919 section of the Morrison collection included the letter of January 25, 1790, to Mrs. Dunlop, £132; and that to Gilbert Burns of January 11, 1790, £130. Again, the Burns Cottage Museum acquired the three following important letters in 1920-21:—The then unpublished letter of October 14, 1788, to Mrs. Burns, £130; that written to J. Johnson in March, 1795, giving instructions as to the publication of some songs, £132; and the draft letter of December, 1788, to Lady Elizabeth Cunningham, £100. The two last named were in the Gilbert Burns collection, whence the Cottage Museum also secured the "Big Ha' Bible" after it had brought £450 under the hammer. When sold in New York the long letter to Charles Sharpe of Hoddam was laid in a folio sheet water-marked "1824" and docketed on the front page "R. Burns to My Father" in the handwriting of Charles Kirkpatrick Sharpe, the antiquary and artist, whose biography in the D. N. B. contains a reference to the original autograph. On the back of the second sheet in another hand are the words, "To Charles Sharpe, Esquire." Chas. Kirkpatrick, born in 1750, assumed the name of Sharpe when, in 1769, a kinsman bequeathed to him the Hoddam estate in Dumfriesshire. He was an excellent violinist and a composer of music and verse. In Dr. Wallace's edition of Chambers's "Life and Works of Robert Burns," we read that the poet having heard one of Sharpe's airs, conceived the whimsical idea of addressing him in the character of a vagrant fiddler. The letter led to a temporary intimacy between the two; an alleged memorial of the friendship exists in a Masonic apron inscribed "Charles Sharpe of Hotham to Rabbie Burns, Dumfries, Dec. 12, 1791."

KIWANIS IDEALS TOLD AT LUNCH

Big Birthday Cake Marked Association's Tenth Anniversary Celebration.

GOODWILL MEMORIAL.

A huge birthday cake cut by District Trustee John A. McKone, marked the tenth birthday of Kiwanis today, when a special programme marked the memorable occasion. Chairman Charles Cook made a speech in which he told of the growth of Kiwanis to a membership of 100,000, and predicted a great future for the movement.

Kiwanian Walter Cox of Lakefield, formerly of the downtown Toronto Club, spoke on Kiwanis Ideals. "We have reached an age," he said, when we must drop our swaddling clothes and get into long clothes. The world has always had a number of dreamers and today we have to thank God for the dreamers who brought about this organization. The dreamers are the salvation of the world.

These are the days of big things, and today Kiwanis must give reasons for its existence. Business and professional men cannot afford to belong to an organization that is not profitable to them and their fellow men. Our objects are to give primacy to the human and spiritual rather than to the material values of life; to encourage the daily living of the Golden Rule in all human relationship; to promote the adoption and the application of higher social, business and professional standards; to develop, by precept and example, a more intelligent, aggressive and serviceable citizenship; to provide through Kiwanis clubs, a practical means to form enduring friendships, to render altruistic service, and to build better communities; to cooperate in creating and maintaining that sound public opinion and high idealism which make possible the increase of righteousness, justice, patriotism and good will.

"What have we got to say for ourselves at the end of ten years? I believe we have no reason to be ashamed of the results. The leaders and all of you have joined in saying Kiwanis must answer the challenge of the times, to make the world of men better than they ever have been.

Kiwanis has a message that will do it, and the world asks the delivery of the goods. We must show that the spirit of Kiwanis makes for better manhood. The programme for the year recognizes that endeavors to accomplish worth-while things are what count in fuzing men.

Emergencies are good for us. Kiwanis and Rotarians have had an experience the last few years in the emergency that arose after the great war. It was easy enough to get men who would go and fight and die for the country—to go with the band. But after that came the great emergency, the great call for men who were called to live for their country—to tackle the business—the chaos—that had arisen. They were called to make sure that such a thing as the great war should never occur again so long as men had their senses. Men were needed who were actuated by the same spirit that sent the boys to the front to work out their own salvation by saving others.

I believe honestly we have turned the tide. Keeping aside the material things, there is more humanity and more of the spiritual in people than ever before.

International Monument.

Kiwanian Walter spoke of the International Monument to be erected at Vancouver to the memory of the late President of the United States, Kiwanian Warren G. Harding. It is a beautiful plan, he thought, signifying the peace that exists between the two great countries.

ROBERT BRUCE AND ROBERT BURNS

Lecturing at Edinburgh University, Scotland, Sir Arthur Keith, F.R.S., o the Royal College o Surgeons o England, gave a learned disquisition on the skulls o Robert the Bruce and Robert Burns.

Dealing with Bruce, he said there was no doubt as to his racial type: one had but to look at the cast o the skull, disinterred in 1819, to recognize in him the kind of man who began to settle along the eastern shores of England and Scotland towards the close of the Neolithic Age—about 2000 B.C., bringing with them Continental forms of food vessels or "breakers" and spoken of as "Beaker men." They were men with massive, strong faces, frowning and burly supraorbital ridges, of great strength of body, and with peculiarly flattened occiputs. Their heads are said to be "rounded," because it happened, in most of them, that the width of the skull was 80 per cent. or more of its length. This was not quite the case in the skull of Robert the Bruce, but all the essential features of the "Beaker" head were to be recognized in it. The size of the brain was 60 cubit centimetres above the average man's and just a little over Dean Swift's. Unlike the typical "Beaker" skull, there was no deficiency in its hinder development. The skull of Bruce was of a size and strength which is but seldom seen amongst men; he was big brained.

The head form of Robert Burns was next dealt with. There was nothing of the "Beaker" type in the poet's skull. It was an exaggeration or prime development of the type which prevails in the West of Scotland and in Ireland. Burns had a massive brain. It mesaured at least 1680 cubic centimetres, 200 more than the average Scotsman, 140 more than Bruce, 150 more than Dean Swift, and 160 more than Sir Thomas Browne. What value were they to attach to volume of brain? If the brain were merely an intellectual organ it would be difficult to explain why the brain of Robert Burns was bigger than that of Dean Swift. One must infer that the brain is an emotional as well as an intellectual organ, and that such mass as is seen in the case of Robert Burns is connected with the intensity with which all emotions—all those primitive functions which have come down to us from an animal ancestry—are felt, realized, and enjoyed. A big brain may not signify the possession of high intellectual faculties or of genius, but only a capacity for appreciating and realizing the sources of emotional enjoyment.

Bail was accepted for Sherman in $5,000 with two sureties of $2,500 each. The bailsmen are David Lavigne and Louis Boldberg, the former a brother-in-law of the accused. The bail for Merson was fixed at $6,000 and two sureties of $3,000 each, his wife, who resides at 249 Euclid avenue, Peterborough, being one, and his brother, Morris Merson, of Montreal, the second.

R. R. Hall, K.C., was present as private prosecutor for J. T. O'Connell, one of the victims of the alleged fraud.

Merson and R. Sherman or either of them to pay the same, contrary to section 444 of the Criminal Code.

BRAZIL SPECULATING.

Presidential Possibilities for 1926 Arousing People.

By U. G. KEENER

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 22.—Although the Administration of President Arthur Bernardes does not terminate until November, 1926, political gossip in Brazil is already centering around 1926 Presidential possibilities.

The Constitution of Brazil does not permit its presidents to serve two terms in succession, therefore President Bernardes cannot be candidate for re-election.

It is generally conceded, however, that the candidate favored by the President, whoever he may be, should not have much difficulty in winning the election. President Bernardes, coming as he does from the wrong State of Minas Geraes, might look favorably upon the candidacy of two of his brother citizens of the State, Mello Vianna, the present governor of Minas Geraes, and Wenceslau Braz, former President of the Republic. Or he hight give some member of his actual presidential cabinet serious consideration. In the later case, Foreign Minister Felix Pacheco might be the next President of Brazil.

Sao Paulo, sister state of Minas Geraes, may present the candidacy of her two most eminent native sons—Carlos de Campos, actual governorof Sao Paulo, and Dr. Washington Luis, commonly known as the "Yankee of Brazil," which nickname he won for himself during a most industrious administration as governor of Sao Paulo.

STUDENT FLYERS AVOID MISHAPS.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Most aviation accidents are due to slight errors of judgment, according to a recent analysis made of more than 300 mishaps in the Royal Air Force.

It was found that of 60 per cent of the accidents, due to errors in judgment, but a small number befell pupils at flying schools, while a large number were caused by carelessness among recently graduated pilots.

NILE GREEN POPULAR.

Nile green is second after white as the popular color for evening. Shades of orchid and blue too are very much liked.

A FEW SNAPPY DANCE FROCKS WORN IN THE WINTER SEASON

By HEDDA HOYT

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(United Press).—New Year's Eve ushered in a variety of stunning dance frocks which will set the vogue for the remaining months of winter. Flared, full hem-lines were the dominate note and at the hotels and clubs about New York, age could only be distinguished from youth by her hem-line. Older matrons still seem to cling to the sheath-lined frock of beaded type.

The flared skirt is far more graceful than the straight-lined one when one is dancing. This year's flare begins at the knees in circular movements, ruffles, godets, etc., and theskirt is always very short. Chiffons and satin were chosen by the younger element, while the matron generally wore velvet or beaded crepe displaying clinging lines. White frocks beaded in crystal were lovely. Red corsages were those most in evidence. White satin frocks with just a suggestion of a waistline in the side-seams, attached godets of tulle at the knees to give the fluffy hem-line. Other white frocks used ostrich as a banding about scalloped hems. Geranium colored velvet was a new shade sponsored by several very smartly clad women. Among the other gay colors were light green, rose, orchid, orange and madonna blue.

Evening slippers are turning toward pastel shades, although the silver kid slipper is still the most popular. Gold kid is decidedly passe. Rose and silver brocade and a silverish blue brocade was also much worn. Several plain pumps of satin matching the shade of the frocks with which they were worn were noted. Blond satin slippers are not used much for formal evening wear, but are reserved for wear with dark colored afternoon frocks. Hosiery worn with the evening slipper remains a pale pinkish shade.

The on-the-shoulder corsage appears on almost every frock. Necklines remain rounding and simple and this has brought about the popularity of the corsage placed on one shoulder. New Year's Eve, however, the double corsage appeared on several frocks with one flower worn on the shoulder and one on the opposite hip.

Necklaces In Evidence

Necklaces are the most evident type of evening jewelry. In very few instances are they made of precious stones, since pearls are the popular chain and they are often as large as marbles. Clasps have grown until they are enormous and most of them have one huge immitation pearl or emerlad, from which dangle many smaller strands of pearls. The pennant is worn in front.

Several of the newer type of bracelets were worn. One well worth mentioning is made in link effect,after the fashion of lover's links. Each link is set with rhinestones and while the effect is very lovely, the price of these novelties is exceedingly low. Then there are the popular combinations of pearl and emerald, with the dangle of pearls at the clasp. These also come from the cheaper jewerly counters of the department stores.

Whether prohibition is responsible for wearing of long wraps at the tables of the popular clubs of New York or not, one hesitates to state. At any rate there were more women who wore their wraps into these places than those who left them in the dressing rooms. Fur wraps are just beginning to overshadow the lovely brocades and Spanish shawls which were worn a week or so ago. Many women, however, wore their shawls under the fur wraps, leaving the fur garments with the check girl. Spanish shawls, by the way, are growing smaller, as many women wore those which scarcely extended to the knees.

Hair ornaments again shift themselbes and we find them being worn at one or both sides of the bobbed head. Round cabashons or pearls are pinned flat to the ears with little whisps of short hair curling over the cheeks. Small flowers are worn in the same manner.

SPRING HINTS

Orchid will be one of the leading shades for lingerie this season. Many Fifth Avenue windows are displaying this shade made with lace which is also dyed orchid. Orchid is popular now owing to the vogue for fushia tones in costumes. Nile green is another shade that is sponsored and peach is replacing lighter flesh shades.

Envelope step-ins are not as popular as shirt and bloomer combinations and one of the newest combinations is the long chemise, which is worn with the short step-in drawer, the two being attached together at the waistline by ribbon through eyelets.

Brassiers shaped to fit the bust are growing more popular each day. These, of course, are best suited to the small-busted person since matronly figure are best fitted with the brassiere-corset combination of one piece.

Little Money From Landru's Loot Sale

PARIS, Jan. 22.—(United Press).—Landru's loot, consisting of furniture, clothing and trinkets of the women he was supposed to have killed, put up for auction at the Assize Court of Versailles, attracted a large crowd but small prices.

Landru was guillotined for the murder of eleven women whom he was supposed to have lured into matrimony and then killed, burning their remains. Landru saved the effects of the women. There were bedsteads, wardrobes, tables, chairs, dusty clothing, and even lace from women's underwear. A rusty rifle brought 200 franch.

BANKERS ASK LAW.

NEW YORK, (United Press).—The committee on state legislation of the American Bankers Association desires special legislation to protect the banks. As made public the recommended law provides that any person who, with criminal intent, breaks into any building and attacks a vault "by use of nitroglycerine, dynamite, gunpowder or any other explosive, shall be deemed guilty of burglary with explosibes." It also proposes punishment by imprisonment for a term of not less than twenty-five nor more than forty years.

NEW ATLANTIC CITY PIER.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Jan. 21.—With the purchase of a block of beach front land known as the "Wanamaker Estate," it is announced that a new pier costing $2,500,000 will be built.

The land lies between Chelsea and Monpelier avenues, and was sold for $1,000,000 by Redman Wanamaker to Charles R. Myers, owner of the Hotel Breakers. The property is one of the few remaining along the beach front which carries riparian rights, allowing the building of a pier.

Included in the site is the John Wanamaker villa at Chelsea and Pacific Avenues, which for years was the summer home of the merchant, and one of the show places on the island.

BUSTER KEATON'S "THE NAVIGATOR" AT CAPITOL TODAY

Frozen-Faced Comedian's Latest Picture Is Called Comedy Classic

Buster Keaton has gone down to the sea in ships.

Yup, he's 'way out in the briny open spaces where ships are ships and water is wet.

His latest Metro-Goldwyn feature comedy is called "The Navigator," and it is at the Capitol Theatre today and Saturday. To make it Buster hired an ocean liner and sailed to Catalina Island, where most of the scenes were made at anchor.

The star had the liveliest time in his life doing "The Navigator," and from advance reports, the picture is the liveliest of his career.

They put a sailor's suit on Buster, and when he wasn't swabbling decks, he was shoveling coal, tons of it, into the ship's many furnaces with their cavernous maws, as the latter are called in shipping circles.

Buster Kept Busy

Buster's ship is the "Buford," a 450-foot liner, and one of Buster's jobs was scraping 450 feet of barnacles off the "Buford's" hull. For this job Buster wore a diving suit and was trailed by a submarine which helped him fight off octopi, sharks and enraged swordfish.

Buster chartered the "Buford" for two months. And with life nets spread at the level of the royal yardarms he spent many pleasant days adjusting sky sails on the fore, main, and mizzenmasts. To say nothing of the other stunts he thought up for the new picture.

It is reported Keaton went to great personal risk for some of the scenes, so that audiences might have a real thrill. One thing is sure, future applicants for the job of deep-sea diving will decrease very much, for anyone seeing Buster don a suit and go down in "The Navigator" is likely to feel rather timid about trying it himself.

AT THE ROYAL.

BETTY COMPSON IS HONORED AT GAMES.

"Betty Compson Night" at the Hi-Li games in Hialeah was truly a gala occasion. It was announced in the Miami papers by the managers of the new "fronton" or stadium where the Spanish game is played that a certain evening had been dedicated to the star of "Ramshackle House," the photoplay then being produced in the Tilford studio in Hialeah, and that Betty herself would be present. Needless to say a great crowd turned out to see her.

Hi-Li is a comparatively new game in this country but is the national game of Spain and Cuba. It is a compromise between lacrosse and hand ball. It is played in a court having three high walls, the players throwing and catching a small ball in a long basket which is strapped to the wrist. The girls use racquets when playing because to manipulate the basket-like contrivance requires great strength and endurance.

"Ramshackle House" is the screen version of Hulbert Fortner great mystery novel. It comes to the Royal Theatre for a run next Monday.

"LEGALLY DEAD," DECIDEDLY DIFFERENT—NOTHING LIKE IT EVER SCREENED BEFORE.

Milton Sills Starred.

How many of us will die twice?

That question comes to the spectator's mind as he watches "Legally Dead" unroll vividly and dramatically on the screen of the Royal Theatre where the all star production opened yesterday.

"Legally Dead" presents a situation that two years ago would have been declared as "pure imagination." No one then would have given credence to it. To-day, thanks to a scientific marvel and the wide publicity given this marvel by the press, the story of adrenalin, the life restoring drug, is free from imaginative qualities.

Adrenalin as everyone knows, is a drug which causes a still heart to resume beating. It is injected directly into the heart, through a long needle, piercing the very centre of the organ. Then it is injected likewise into the tips of the fingers and the toes. If the heart action has been stopped only a few minutes, and was stopped by violent causes, it will be resumed under the powerful stimulant of adrenalin

But contrary to what some people might expect, "Legally Dead" is not all adrenalin and not all science. It is an intensely dramatic story; the hero, a newspaper man, with an obsession He believes to the point of fanatisism that a large portion of convicted criminals are innocent when they are convicted on circumstantial evidence alone. To study these "victims" and prove to his satisfaction that he is right he secures his own incarceration in the penitentiary by throwing a brick through a jewelry store window and hauling out the valuables.

What happens then is intense human drama, the drama of honest and dishonest souls. There is a girl of course—Minnie O'Reilly, "in" for her first offense and pardoned with the hero for good behavior.

Milton Sills plays the star role, with Claire Adams in the chief supporting part.

The musical end of the program leaves nothing to be desired. Music lovers have come to the stage when they expect good music at the Royal and they will not be disappointed in the program arranged.

"BUDDY MESSENGER" AT ROYAL FOR KIDDIES.

The children's favorite, "Buddy Messenger," is back at the Royal for Saturday matinee in "Oh, What an Eye," also Wiliam Duncan in the thrilling "Fast Express."

AT THE REGENT.

"THE LIGHTHOUSE BY THE SEA."

"The Lighthouse by the Sea," which opened at the Regent Theatre yesterday for a three-days' run, is by far one of the most interesting and exciting pictures yet presented.

From start to finish, both Rin-Tin-Tin, the marvellously sagacious canine who won laurels in "Where the North Begins" and "Find Your Man" and Louise Fazenda, the devoted and courageous daughter of the blind lighthouse keeper, give the photoplay depth, virility and reality because of her vivid interpretations. The dog thinks as clearly and effectively as humans do, and his unusual prowess in the picture is truly spell-binding, as he saves his master from drowning; jumps into the breach, when the treachery of the bootleggers almost brings disaster upon the lighthouse and its keepers; and finally brings two loving hearts together—for happiness.

The acting of Buster Collier, Jr., Mathew Betz, Douglas Gerrard, and Charles Hill Mailes was particularly commendable, and Mrs. St. Clair deserves considerable praise for the splendid direction that told a fine story smoothly and well. "The Lighthouse by the Sea" is a Warner Classic.

SOVIET MEDICAL MEN TO MEET.

MOSCOW, Jan. 23—For the first time since the Bolshevik revolution, a congress of the physicians and surgeons of all the countries comprised within the Soviet Union is to be held here next spring. With the congress there is also to be held an exhibition of medical progress.

This exhibition will consist not only of objects loaned or donated by Russian medical men, but medical museums and institutions in other countries also will be requested to loan some of their material.

CURING BALDNESS

NEWARK, N.J. (United Press).—The golf course of the Bradley Beach Golf Club at Bradley Beach, N.J., was as bald as one of its golf balls. Nature wouldn't be on the job for months, but club members wanted to golf and didn't want to wait for summer. So they secured 24 reflectors with 100-watt lamps and played the light on the greens continuously except for a brief "sleeping" period at night. In two months the greens were ready to use. Nature would have taken seven.

SAM MOORE'S STONE TO BUTTON PUTS CAMPBELLFORD IN PLAYOFF

Lakefield's Long Lead Pulled Down in the Last Three Ends.

SCORE 38 TO 37

Dick Cole's Big 7 and Moore's Final 4 Turned the Tide.

It looked like an extra end for the four finalists in the District Cup at midnight last night when Lakefield and Campbellford were tied with two stones to go. Then the veteran S. J. Moore of Campbellford, lying three and with his vice-skip calling for a long guard, came right through to lay a beauty on the button, and put his town one up. D. H. Charlton, skipping the opposing Lakefield rink, went off into space from a thousand-dollar guard and left the four stones for the triumphant Campbellford quartette.

That was not the only thrill of the series, for in the other half, ended by J. W. Ridpath of Lakefield and R. H. Cole of Campbellford at eleven-thirty, with Lakefield five up, the Campbellford rink tallied the rare count of seven in the seventeenth end, and was only robbed of another count in the eighteenth by the last stone.

Having won the group by one shot, Campbellford will meet the winners of the Fenelon Falls-Lindsay group in the play-offs.

P. C. I. TO COBOURG

Basketball Team Playing Exhibition Game Saturday.

The P.C.I. basketball team will journey to Cobourg tomorrow to play an exhibition game with the Cobourg Collegiate quintette. The Cobourg team will play a return game here next Saturday.

The local team have been practising for the past six weeks under the direction of Coach Richardson, and are now in the best shape for their games. This year's team is well seasoned and carries three of last year's players in Goheen, Ebbs and Ecobichon. Ken. Goheen, the captain, will play defence with Harry Ebbs, while Winter Ecobichon and Gordon Pogue as forward, with the rangy "Scottie" McLeish at centre, make a snappy attacking threesome. Harold Dormer, "Bim" Sturgeon and Winston Merrell will likely be the reserves.

ANKLE BONE SNAPPED

Alan Henry Turned Quickly in a Hockey Game.

Alan Henry, youngest son of W. J. Henry, City Assessor, broke his ankle while playing in a hockey game in the Junior Church League between Knox and St. James' teams at the Collegiate rink the other evening. It was done in a remarkably simple manner, when he tried to turn quickly while going at top speed.

He will be missed from his team as he was a consistent player.

He is a student of the P.C.I. and played outside wing on the garnet and grey rugby team, standing out for his flying tackles. During the rugby season he had the misfortune to have his nose damaged severely.

GROUP BY DEFAULT

Lindsay and P.C.I. Leave St. Peter's To Play Off.

St. Peter's School hockey team is the winner of the local group of the Central Intercollegiate Hockey League without having played a game.

The B.H.H. of the Collegiate were slow in getting started in their hockey activities and the hockey outlook was never taken seriously. Although with a squad of players who could easily be moulded into a team not to be despised, the Collegiate dropped out of the league.

Lindsay C. I. had difficulties, too. In Scogogville it is likely that the new rule regarding the fifty per cent. in examinations, linked with the financing of a team, proved too much for them and caused them to quit.

S.P.S. will play the winner of the Port Hope H.S. and Cobourg C.I. series. The maroon and orange are mentored by Bill Prindible, and they have a fast team, but are too light for comfort. Jack Lebarr between the posts is their big asset, and the lakeshore boys will find it hard to send the puck where his pads aren't.

SENATORS BATTERED IN GAME WITH TIGERS

Have Declined to Report Randall's Assault to League.

OTTAWA, Jan. 23. — (Canadian Press).—No decision has yet been reached by the Ottawa Hockey Association with regard to the proposal that they should report Ken. Randall of the Hamilton Tigers to the National Hockey League for his alleged rough play in Wednesday night's match at Hamilton. The Ottawas returned yesterday afternoon with Alex. Connell and Nighbor in bad shape. Nighbor is out of the game indefinitely, and Connell may not be able to play against the Canadiens Saturday night as his right eye is closed. The Ottawas admit that they too handed out punishment, and the only man against whom they have any complaint is Randall, whose attack on Connell they say was deliberate.

The Ottawa players are opposed to taking any complaint before the National League, and declare that they will take and give their bumps on the ice without resorting to any committee room tactics. Nighbor is unable to play Saturday night. Ed. Gorman will play centre, and if Connell is out of it, Joe Ironstone will get his chance in the nets.

DUFFUS TRIM EXAMINER

Both Teams Played a Good Brand of Hockey—Score Was 3-0.

Last night at the Brock Street Arena Duffus Motor Sales defeated the Examiner team in a fast game of hockey, by the score of 3-0.

Some nice rushing and stickhandling was turned in by both aggregations and the game was clean and hard fought all the way.

Although all of Duffus' team turned in a good game, Charlie Perry and Alf Johnson on the defence were the stars. Both of these players gave a stellar exhiibtion of stickhandling and rushing. Harry Ristow in goal for Duffus was the real star for Duffus. He turned in one grand exhibition of net guarding, stopping shots from all angles and he was mainly instrumental in giving Duffus a win.

As was the case with Duffus all the Examiner team were there. Dugan, Franks and Baker on the forward line and Swanston on the defence were the stars for the newspaper gang.

The game attracted a good crowd of spectators and they were treated to a fast, clean game. Duffus regisiterd twice in the first session and once in the last.

JOHNSON SAYS STORY OF CAREER A FRAUD

Asks for Injunction to Stop Publication of Series.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press). — Walter Johnson, veteran pitching hero of the last world's series, yesterday asked the Supreme Court to issue a restraining order enjoining the Thompson Feature Service, Inc., the Brooklyn Daily Eagle and other newspapers through out the country from further use of a series of syndicated articles purporting to be a history of his baseball career.

The star of the Washington twirling staff also served notice in the courts that he would sue for $50,000 damages and for an accounting of receipts from publication of eight of a projected series of twelve articles dealing with his life. The veteran pitcher alleges that the series is a "sham, a fraud and a fake."

NURMI'S BIG TEST

Will Attempt to Lower Four Records at Once.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press).—The supreme test of Paavo Nurmi's American campaign will be made in the Wilco A.A. games in the 13th Regiment Armoury, February 7, when he will attempt to break four world's records in a single performance.

The flying Finn is entered in the 3,000 metre special together with Joie Ray, Verne Booth, William L. Cox, and Eddie Kirby. In filing his entry for this race yesterday, Nurmi said he would better his own mark of 8.26 4-5, made in the Municipal games, and establish the mark at 8.20. En route to the 3,000 mark, Nurmi will attempt to break the one and three-quarter mile mark. At the conclusion of the 3,000 - metre race, Nurmi will continue on to the two-mile point and endeavor to shatter the one and seven - eights mile mark and the two-mile mark.

TWEED BOYS WON.

Game at Marmora Ended 3-0 Against Homesters.

A good game of hockey was witnessed on Wednesday in Marmora, when the Tweed boys have the honor of winning with the score 3 to 0. The last period was rather rough. Referee—M. J. Rodden, Toronto.
Game starts at 8.30 p.m.
Rink opens at 7.30 p.m.

With the sudden drop in the temperature, the one thing necessary to make to-night's Senior game at Brock Street Rink a thriller has been supplied, for the teams are sure of a lightning fast sheet of ice that will enable them both to display their wares to the best advantage.

It should be a lively tussle between two fast and clever teams. Although the Petes have beaten the Paddlers twice in Toronto, Harry Watson and his team-mates expect to make a better showing here, in fact are confident that they can take the measure of the blue and white to-night. Peterboro, on the other hand, are anxious to keep their winning streak intact, and to strengthen their hold on first place by another decision over Parkdale.

Owing to the cold weather the Rink will open at 7.30 o'clock, and it is announced that only 2,000 tickets in all will be sold. The reserved seat plan, new block and all, was wiped out early yesterday morning, and there was a wild scramble for paste boards, many out-of-town enthusiasts applying for seats.

ENGLAND AIDS AUSTRALIA

Will Advance Money for Immigrants Sent to Southern Colony.

MELBOURNE, Jan. 23. — The British government will advance Australia approximately $5,000,000 for every 14,000 immigrants sent to Australia from England, according to an agreement recently concluded between the British treasury officials and Australia. The money will be used for public improvements, such as waterworks, roads, railways, land clearing and housing in sections where the immigrants settle and in otherwise providing opportunities equal to those of the native Australians.

Great Britain has agreed also to contribute to the cost of receiving depots to be established in the various states Australia expects to borrow a total of $170,000,000 for migration purposes. The imperial government's agreement provides for the payment of $35,000,000 for interest charges, the money to be used for public improvements. The flotation of the loan itself will be undertaken by Australia and the borrowings will probably extend over a long period.

The New South Wales government has recently accepted the commonwealth government's offer of $2,500,000 for fostering immigration. This money will be advanced in London as required.

AUSTRALIA WON.

England Lost Cricket Test Match by Eleven Runs.

ADELAIDE, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Australia to-day defeated England in the third cricket Test match by 11 runs. Resuming their last innings of the match, the Englishmen carried their overnight score of 363, and went out with a total of 728, having made 365 in their first innings. Australia ran up 489 in their first innings and 250 in the second for a total of 739.

Hockey

The Unknowns' Hockey Team tasted their first sting of defeat last evening at the Mark street arena, when they lost to the fast Canadian National freight shed hockey club to the tune of 6-8.

The game was a fast and speedy battle from the gong to gong. The C.N.R. boys played a fast game their stick handling and back checking giving them the decisive victory.

The Unknowns checked doggedly and determinedly but lacked the necessary punch to put the disc in.

Many times the C.N.R. freight shed lads were in danger but by their brilliant team work they kept their citadel free.

Morphet, Rundle and King played the best for the invincible boys while Delehaye, McDuffey, Ferguson starred for the freight slingers.

The line-ups:

Goal: Payne; defence, Rundle and King; Wings, Chambers and Golden; centre, Morphet.

C. N. R. Goal, Delehaye; defence, McDuffey and A. Rundle; wings, Rowe and Ferguson; centre, Delahaye

SOME GOOD GAMES AT CURLING RINK

Besides the final games in the District Cup tournament, five scheduled games were played at the Curling rink last night. Although the weather was too mild yesterday afternoon for flooding, Mr. McIntosh gave the ice a light sprinkle early in the evening, and it was in perfect condition for the games that followed. Turner skipped his rink to victory over Moore in a close game, the final count being 13 stones to 12. This was the closest and most interesting game of the evening. Both teams were dead on and the winner could not be picked until the last end was finished. Morrow lost a hard game to Paynes' rink by 13 shots to 7, Walter Oke trounced Best to the tune of 17 to 12 and Lang ran away with Campbell's rink, coming out on top with a majority of 13 stones. Waddell and Medd also put on a nice exhibition of curling, the former winning by 15 to 10.

THE FAMOUS SOO SEXTETTE HERE MONDAY NIGHT

Allen Cup Holders Will Meet Petes in Battle at Brock Street Rink.

THE SEASON'S CLASSIC.

Famous Northerners Will Prove Attraction to Peterborough Fandom.

On Monday night Peterboro fans will have an unexpected treat when the famous Canadian Soo team, Allen Cup holders and amateur champions of Canada, will meet the Petes in an exhibition game at Brock Street Rink. The local management invited the northerners to drop off here on their way back from Quebec, where they defeated the Sons of Ireland team, 7 to 4, last night.

The appearance here of the Soo crew with the celebrated Flat Welsh in the nets; the clever Babe Donnelly and the speedy star Brown on the defence, and the renowned forward line, Bill Phillips, Gloomy Lessard and Johnny Woodruff, will be one of the outstanding events of the local hockey season.

The Petes beat the Soo in the final of the S.P.A. series by 3 goals to 2 after eighty minutes of lightning hockey, and the Allen Cup holders are out for revenge on Monday night, hoping to reverse the verdict here.

It will be a spectacular struggle that will pack the Brock Street ice box.

CHILDREN'S SIGHT POOR.

NEW YORK (United Press).—Of approximately 12,000 children undergoing vision tests conducted by the United States Public Health Service, 37 per cent. were found to have defective vision, according to a statement by the Eye Sight Conservation Council of America, which, analyzing the results, calls such conditions deplorable as constituting neglect of eye sight in the nation's schools.

SAYS TOKIO LIVING HIGHEST IN WORLD

TOKIO, Jan. 23.— Living costs are higher in Tokio than in any other city in the world, according to one of the leading Tokio newspapers, which made a survey of the situation.

According to these calculations, living costs in Tokio are now 120 per cent. above the pre-war level. London comes next with seventy per cent. and New York is third on the list with fifty per cent.

The fact that Japan is forced to import commodities far in excess of the volume of her exports is chiefly responsible for the high cost of living here.

FRENCH SOLDIER KILLED

TANGIER, Jan. 23 (Canadian Press).—A French sentinel stationed at the lighthouse on Point Malabat was killed yesterday by a bomb from an airplane. Newspapers have repeatedly protested against lack of control by Spanish bombers who are operating against rebellious tribesmen.

INFLUENZA TAKES TOLL

TOKIO, Jan. 23 (Canadian Press) —Forty-seven hundred persons are reported dead as the result of influenza epidemic in Greater Tokio.

THE PRIZE WINNERS
Prizes at the card party held last evening in the basement of the Sacred Heart Church were won by Mesdames Thos. Hickey, L. Riley and L. Smithson, and Messrs. Marchand, T. Drummond and A. O'Dette.

WHEN WILL TEA PRICES DROP?
A shortage in the world's tea supply, in the face of an enormous demand, is forcing prices up to very high levels. Tea merchants realize, however, that tea at a dollar a pound only brings the day of a drop in price so much nearer. Tea growers are making such tremendous profits that over-production is bound to come at any time.

CONSERVATIVE "AT HOME."
An inadvertent omission in the report of the musical programme given at the Conservative Women's Association "At Home," held in the G.W.V.A. Hall on Wednesday evening, was that of the orchestra, conducted by Mrs. M. B. Hoyland. The orchestra, whose efforts contributed largely to the success of the "At Home," and whose talents were very much appreciated, is composed of the following members: First violins Mrs. M. B. Hoyland, Miss K. Taylor and Mr. A. Wright. Second violins: Messrs. W. Gaskin and H. Murphy. 'Cello, R. Farthing. Piano, Mrs. G. Evans.

Society

Mr. and Mrs. Orland Draper and son, of Detroit, are the guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Draper, 571 Stewart Street.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hopwood have gone to Toronto for ten days.

A pleasant time was spent on Thursday evening by the choir of Knox Church, when they were kindly entertained by Rev. and Mrs. M. C. Mackinnon at the manse, following a skating party. Dainty refreshments were served by the ladies.

IN MEMORIAM.

WRIGHTINGTON. — In loving memory of Frederick Paul Wrightington, who passed away at Brooklyn, N. Y., January 23, 1924:
"Asleep in Jesus." Blessed God, Thy love and mercy, Oh, how great!
That Thou shouldst hide
Our loved one in the grave until Thy wrath
Be overpast!—Ah, yes, dear heart, sleep well,
Sleep well, no dreams disturb thy deep repose.

"Asleep in Jesus," undisturbed the while Earth's breast is rent by "Armageddon's strife,
And all creation travails in the pangs
That must precede her glorious "second birth,"
Sleep well beneath His overshadowing wings.

Sleep well, sleep well, until His kingdom comes,
"The ransomed of the Lord shall then return,"
And He shall bid thee waken out of sleep.
A Highway shall be there, a way of life,
And thou, dear heart, with joy shalt walk thereon;
Up, up, until perfection's goal is won,
When there shall be no pain, nor any death,
When God's dear hand shall wipe all tears away.
In this blest hope we laid thee down to rest;
Good night, dear heart, 'twill not be long, sleep well!

—Ruth L. Harper.

Peterboro Man Wants Work of Any Kind

A returned soldier with several years' active service to his credit has been out of work for over two months. This man would appreciate any odd job you might have to offer, even if it was only for an hour at a time, at your own price. Willing to do anything in garret or cellar, foundry or factory. The need is a worthy one and concerns a man who would rather work for the price of a loaf of bread than seek charity in any form. For further particulars, Telephone 2209 W, or leave whatever you have to offer in the way of work with Box 5336 Examiner.

SERVICE KHAKI FOR MILITIA AT OTTAWA OPENING

Department of Defense Exercises Economy in Ceremonial Dress of Military Units.

UNIFORMS OF WAR

Six New Members to be Introduced When Parliament Opens—Five Liberals.

OTTAWA, Ont., January 24 (Canadian Press). — Parade orders to the military units taking part in the opening of Parliament ceremonies a week from next Thursday, call for regulation war time khaki uniforms.

British regiments in the ceremonials conected with the Imperial Parliament have returned to the peace time scarlet and gold, and it was rumoured for some time that certain Canadian regiments were to return to dress uniforms for ceremonial occasions, but as a measure of economy, the Department of National Defence has seen fit to keep the troops in service uniforms.

The mounted escort to accompany His Excellency the Governor-General from Government House to the Parliament Buildings is to be supplied by the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards and the Governor-General's Foot Guards will provide the guard of honour and band at the main entrance of the Parliament Buildings.

The main entrance, under the Victory Tower, will be used this year at the request of His Excellency, instead of the Senate door at the east end of the building.

Upon arrival at the Building, the Governor-General will take the salute of the infantry and inspect the guard of honour.

Following the National Anthem, the salute of twenty-one guns from the First Brigade of Canadian Field Artillery will be given as His Excellency is received on the steps by the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, and proceeds to the Senate Chamber, accompanied by his aides-de-camp and staff in dress uniforms.

Guests in Senate.

The main body of the Senate will, as usual, be given over to the invited guests. His Excellency will occupy the Throne, surounded by representatives of the Privy Council in uniform and of the National Defence Headquarters staff.

Taking precedence, the members of the Supreme Court of Canada, in crimson and ermine robes of office, will sit close to the foot of the Throne.

The Commons, of course, will be summoned to the bar of the Senate for the reading of the Speech from the Throne, and, led by the Speaker, the Sergeant-at-Arms bearing the Mace, the Clerk and Assistant Clerk all in the black robes of their positions, the Commoners will leave their Chamber for the Upper House.

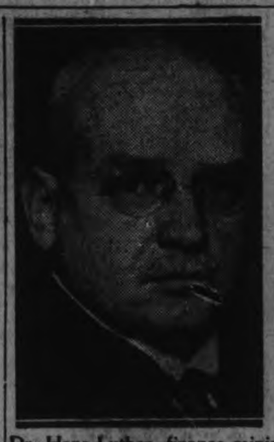
Six New Members.

Later the House of Commons will be the scene of the introduction of six new members. The Leader, together with a lieutenant, will accompany each newcomer from the bar of the House to the Speaker's chair, where he is formally introduced and welcomed before going to his seat.

Five of the new members to be introduced this year are Liberals and one is a Conservative. They are:

C. E. Hanna, Liberal, West Hastings; W. J. Rushton, Liberal, St. Antoine; Sir Eugene Fiset, Liberal, Rimouski; W. B. Snowball, Liberal, Northumberland; J. F. Pouliot, Liberal, Temiscouta; and Grote Stirling, Conservative, Yale.

The Commons will exert anccient privilege of considering another Bill before the Speech from the Throne. This ancient symbol of independence takes the form of a Dummy Bill, known as "Bill Number One." It is a routine matter, and is dropped from the order papers after second reading, and never heard of again until the opening of the next Parliament, when it is again produced as the perennial gesture of freedom from Royal prerogative.



Dr. Hans Luther, finance minister in the old Mar cabinet, is the new chancellor. The Centrists merely have approved his government for the "time being."

LAW SUIT OVER DEATH PRIORITY

Court to Decide Whether the Husband or Wife Died First in Accident.

$5,000 INSURANCE.

KINGSTON, Jan. 24.—Depending entirely on the question as to whether Mr. Joseph Roberts or his wife was killed first in a railway crossing accident on November 2nd, at Findlay Station, a most interesting case will be heard at the spring sittings of the Supreme Court, which opens at the Court House on February 3rd, the case being one in which the insurance of $5,000 carried by Mr. Roberts is claimed by relatives of his and also by the father of Mrs. Roberts.

Mr. Roberts' body was found some distance up the track, all life having flown, and apparently he had been instantly killed. The body of Mrs. Roberts was found across the front of the engine, and members of the train crew stated that they believed there was some sign of life in her. She was removed to the caboose, and a little later investigation disclosed the fact that she, too, was dead. His sister, Mrs. Minnie Peattie of Toronto, was named as administratrix of the estate, and Mr. John Bennett, father of Mrs. Roberts is now claiming the $5,000 on the ground that Mrs. Roberts outlived her husband, and was thus the heir to the money. On her death, he claims the money reverts to her relatives.

On the other hand, Mrs. Peattie claims that both Mr. and Mrs. Roberts were instantly killed and that the money, therefore, goes to her. Besides Mr. and Mrs. Roberts, their two children were also killed.

ATTRACTIVE MULES.

Very attractive mules are made of gold or silver kid and lined with satin to match the negligee.

TARDINESS PAID

Chief of Police Dan O'Brien of San Francisco and his captains have discovered it sometimes pays to be late. They were scheduled to meet in the chief's office at 10 a.m. But none got there until 10:20. At 10:07 a bomb exploded in a telephone booth, just 20 feet away from O'Brien's office in the Hall of Justice.

THE WEATHER

The lowest the thermometer got last night was 11 degrees below zero. At daybreak this morning it stood at just zero. The rise in temperature brought cloudy conditions with the likelihood of snow.—W. P.

$20,000 IN BANK NOT VICE GRAFT BY POLICE CAPT.

Argument of Counsel for Captain Sauve Before Mr. Justice Coderre in Montreal.

WAS A "TIGHTWAD"

Acquired $16,000 Between 1918 and 1923 as Chief of Morality Squad.

MONTREAL, January 24 (Canadian Press). — The source of Captain Sauve's fortune, amounting to $20,000—$16,000 of which had been acquired between 1918 and 1923—continued to feature the argument of defence counsel for that officer at yesterday's session of the inquiry into the affairs of the Montreal Police Force, now in its last stages before Mr. Justice Coderre.

Oscar Gagnon, representing Captain Sauve, submitted that the Chief of the Morality Squad was clear of any implication that he had built up his bank account on vice-graft.

Mr. Gagnon's address was punctuated by frequent interchanges between himself and His Lordship, who sought to know just how the $20,000 had been made up.

Counsel for the defence enumerated some of the items, horse race wagers, rents, witness fees, still and liquor fines, loan repayments, son's contribution to the family treasury —all added to the fact that Sauve had been branded a "tightwad."

Mr. Gagnon held that the petitioners were unable to establish that Captain Sauve had been guilty of misdemeanour in this respect, that he had failed in his duty, or that he had given protection to houses of ill-repute.

In the course of the afternoon, Mr. Justice Coderre endeavoured to obtain satisfactory evidence which would determine the source of the Captain's funds obtained from fines and such like.

Mr. Gagnon referred His Lordship to the Court records, but the Judge demurred, and suggested that since these records were available to the defence, he considered that the defence might have taken the trouble to obtain the proof themselves.

Allegations that Captain Sauve had proteges in Rose Latour, Madame Beauchamp, and Anna Lalonde were taken up in detail, Mr. Gagnon declaring that no proof had been adduced against the officer.

Taking all the evidence as it was found, Mr. Gagnon concluded that there was no proof or presumption that would implicate Captain Sauve.

ASBESTOS MERGER NEARING COLLAPSE

Once Promising Negotiations End in Failure, Montreal Star Says.

MONTREAL, Jan. 23. — The Montreal Star says to-day:

"It is understood that the asbestos merger efforts extending over a period of many months and sponsored by substantial banking interests is likely to immediately collapse, due to the inability to reach a final settlement with one of the principal Canadian companies.

"The termination of the negotiations, which at one time gave promise of bringing the industry out of its serious depression and substantially improving the position of investors will mean a continuation of these conditions, brought about by ruinous cut-throat competition and over-production. After the failure of this very serious attempt at consolidation of these various properties, it is most unlikely that any equally strong outside interest will attempt another merger, and all parties are agreed that nothing can be accomplished from the inside.

"The present increase of buying of asbestos fibre has been interpreted in some quarters to mean an improvement in the industry, whereas those in close touch with the situation are of the opinion that this temporary improvement is the natural result of the American and foreign manufacturers running to cover to buy fibre at low prices, before the merger was effected."

A MUSIC-MAKING.

LESS FARM PRODUCTS SENT ACROSS BORDER

Effect of U. S. Tariff Reflected in Decline of Canadian Exports.

OTTAWA, Jan. 24.—Canada's exports to the United States of farm products continues to decline. In December, 1924, the value of all commodities produced on Canadian farms and shipped to the United States was $7,116,334, compared with $8,443,098 in December 1922; $7,942,965 in December, 1921; and $33,591,441 in December, 1920. Figures for 1923 are not included in the statement published today in The Commercial Intelligence Journal.

For the past two months ended December 31 last, the value of such exports was $14,846,222 compared with $24,045,052 in the corresponding period of 1922; $25,576,106 in the two months of 1921, and $95,691,457 in the same two months of 1920.

PREMIER LAPP COMING.

Leader of Boys' Parliament Will Address Peterboro Rotarians.

Gordon Lapp, the Premier and Minister of Finance of the Fourth Ontario Older Boys' Parliament will pay a visit here on Monday 26th in the interests of C.S.E.T. work and the Parliaments Bond Selling Campaign.

The boys in electing Lapp Premier, did themselves a real honor, for Lapp is an all-round level-headed, clear thinking leader.

He hails from the little town of Brighton, where for two years he has been managing editor of the Brighton Ensign. Mature beyond his years he has for sometime back been filling a real man's size place in the life of his community.

GORDON LAPP, Premier and Minister of Finance, Fourth Ontario Older Boys' Parliament.

He is Secretary of the Midland Press Association, a member of the local Canadian Club, the Mentor of a very successful Trail Rangers' Camp and Secretary of the Local Baseball Club and the League with which it is affiliated. He is an excellent administrator, a good speaker and makes a favorable impression upon those he meets.

Lapp tells the following joke about himself.

"Hanging in a convenient place to see, I have a picture on the walls of my bedroom of the Members of the Third Ontario Older Boys' Parliament. When I awake in the mornings and find it difficult to resist a desire to lie in bed, I take a good look at the rising generation and then get up."

Lapp being Minister of Finance as well as Premier, he is touring the province at this time in the interests of the Parliament's Bond Selling Campaign to raise $8,500 for provincial-wide co-operative boys' work.

He will speak at the next Rotary luncheon.

CITY SOLICITOR AT OSGOODE HEARING

Represent City in Campbell Mill's Application for Injunction.

City Solicitor Joseph Wearing last night asked and obtained from the Legal Committee authority to attend at Osgoode Hall for argument in the Campbell Flour Mills Co. application for an injunction to restrain Judge Huycke and the City Council from proceeding with the inquiry into the power accounts of the company.

Mayor Turner maintained that the inquiry should be proceeded with on the day set unless official word is received from Toronto in the meantime, and with this Mr. Wearing agreed.

Alderman Crowe moved the resolution authorising the City Solicitor to go to Toronto to represent the city in any argument on the proposed injunction.

CHILE OFFICERS TAKE PALACE IN MILITARY COUP

Government Headquarters in Santiago Surrounded by Armed Force on Friday.

DEPOSE CABINET

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 24.—By a sudden coup late Friday afternoon, a contingent of young army officers occupied the Moneda Palace, headquarters of the government, and surrounded the palace with armed forces.

The officers have made it known that they intend to depose the "Junta" government with a view to bringing about "neutrality in politics."

The main cause of the movement is described as a "growing belief that the government is supporting the National Union party."

Chile went through an overturn in her government last September, when the army officers caused the political cabinet then in power to withdraw, and what was termed a non-political ministry was installed.

Since that time the government has been conducted by a military junta, which only recently announced plans for the holding of a presidential election next May.

A cabinet crisis occured in December last, featured by a number of army incidents which brought about the shifting of the commanders of several regiments. There was considerable stir over the removal of Colonel Ewing from his command of the "Carabineros" or military police. A new cabinet, headed by Rafael Luis Barahona took the oath of office on December 19.

It has been known that junior army officers recently held several meetings to consider the situation in Chile, and it has been predicted that a protest by these officers might be undertaken with serious consequences.

FLAG INSULTED BY YOUNG FOREIGNERS

School Children at Drumheller, Alta., Refused to Stand for Anthem.

CALGARY, Alta., Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Hearty endorsation of the action of the Drumheller School Board in respect of recent happenings in the schools when children of foreign parents refused to sing the National Anthem or salute the flag of Canada, was contained in a resolution passed Friday at the meeting of the Drumheller Canadian Club.

Under present arrangements the School Board requires that the children, who recently refused to sing the National Anthem, at least stand up when the anthem is being sung, even if they do not join in the singing.

The resolution stated that the Club was ready to support further actions of the School Board along similar lines in this matter, and copies will be sent to the School Board, to the Minister of Education, the Minister of Justice at Ottawa, Solicitor-General at Ottawa, E. J. Garland, M.P., and to the press.

The local branch of the Great War Veterans' Association at Drumheller has passed a strong resolution protesting against the refusal to do honor to the Canadian flag.

HEAVENS' GREATEST SPECTACLE BLOTTED OUT BY LOWERING SNOW CLOUDS IN PETERBOROUGH BUT VISIBILITY IS GOOD IN SECTIONS OF U. S.

City Was Thrown Into Shadow While Hundreds on Armour Hill Awaited Sign.

CHANT PACKS UP.

Scientists Were Not More Than Ten Seconds Out in Their Calculations.

Small thrill met the citizens of Peterboro this morning during the period of the total eclipse, when low-hanging snow clouds hid all view of the magnificent spectacle that was being enacted in the higher heavens. Only a short period of darkness showed the watchers on Armour Hill and throughout the city that they were living in an epochal moment, and then the shadow swept into vast space from which it will not return to Peterboro for over 200 years.

About three hundred people gathered on the long stretch of Armour Hill around the Westelox factory and up to the crest of the rise. Some were there before eight o'clock and did not leave until what seemed a dazzling light succeeded the darkness of the eclipse at nine minutes past nine. From this vantage point the deep shadow could be seen crossing to the west. It enveloped the city in its darkest folds at seven minutes past nine, throwing every electric light into prominence, swept the crowd on Armour Hill in an ethereal light that was neither of day nor night, and passed on to the east of its huge arc.

The Joker Was There

The crowd on the roadway outside the Westclox factory was amused by the efforts of the employee to supply the deficiency in the celestial spectacle. A big arc lamp was flashed from a window and a piece of cardboard manoeuvred in front of it in an effective imitation of the eclipse.

A score of cars and a big bus brought their quota of amateur astronomers with their smoked glasses and cameras—and bore them disappointed away again. Several business places, including the Canadian Nashua Paper Co. and J. J. Turner & Son allowed their employees to remain out during the eclipse, and buildings throughout the city had their quota of watchers.

The Shadow Passes.

The following reports by United Press show the passage of the moon's shadow across North America:

At the moment when the slate-colored disk of the moon, watched by millions, completely covered the face of the sun, a pale shadow was thrown on the earth, visible where the skies were clear, moving at a speed of 4,200 miles an hour.

Over the round covered by this shadow, conditions resembled night for the few moments of the eclipse totality. The shadow was first visible at a point west of Duluth, Minn. and flashed eastward to Monuk Point, N.Y., where it disappeared out to sea.

Duluth, Minn., 9.02 a.m. — The eclipse of the sun became total here a few minutes after 9 a.m., eastern standard time. Overcast skies interfered with scientific and general observation.

Bellaire, Mich., 9.03 a.m. — The sun's disk disappeared completely behind the moon in a total eclipse, totality lasting one minute and 52 seconds.

The skies were overcast.

Iron Mountain, Mich., 9.04 a.m.— Despite fog and generally cloudy conditions, the sun was in complete eclipse here, almost on the exact scheduled forecast by scientists.

Hamilton, Ont., 9.05 a.m. — Overcast skies hampered this city's observations when the total eclipse was recorded shortly after 9.00 a.m.

Poughkeepsie, N.Y., 9.08 a.m. — The eclipse was observed by scientists at Vassar Observatory at its moment of totality here this morning.

Long's Corners, Ont., 9.09 a.m.— The total eclipse is over and the partial phase is returning. Scientific cameras here snapped, but it is not thought that pictures of importance were recorded, as deep clouds obscured the eclipse. Important magnetic observations were made, however.

New Haven, Conn., 9.12 a.m. — Right on schedule, the moon's shadow, thrown by a total eclipse of the sun, passed over the Observatory here and was recorded. The eclipse was total for two minutes.

SHE CARRIES ON FOR CARRIE!

Carrie Nation is dead—but her ax, like John Brown's soul, goes marching on. Mrs. Myra McHenry, who began crusading with Carrie back in 1902, still carries on for her. She's fighting bootleggers, cigaret vendors, crooked politicians and all other "evil doers" in Kansas as strenuously as Carrie fought them 22 years ago. Myra's been at it ever since she had a row with her husband over a prohibition article she had published in a paper in which he was a stockholder a quarter of a century ago. On Carrie's death she inherited the hatchet its illustrious wielder used in demolishing bars in Wichita and other cities.

DEATH THREATS BY INSANE MAN

WAS OVERPOWERED.

LINDSAY, Jan. 24.—Constable Conquergood of Lindsay, who is in his seventies, had an adventure with a demented man near Manilla on Thursday, which he will not forget for many moons.

On Thursday afternoon, Chief Umphrey received a phone message from a woman in the vicinity of Manilla, who stated that a man in that section, aged between 45 and 50 years of age had been acting strangely. He left for Toronto on that day, but warned his friends that on his return, he would kill them all. The matter was turned over to the county authorities, but as Provincial Officer Storey was busy on other work, Constable Conquergood, who is also bailiff, was delegated to go to Manilla.

The demented man returned from Toronto, and true to his threat started to make trouble. His first victim was the station agent, whom he is said to have used roughly. Constable Conquergood proceeded to do his duty when the man turned on him and started to beat him up. Other men came to the rescue and the demented man was finally overpowered after a desperate struggle. After the handcuffs were placed on him, his feet were bound, and he was brought to Lindsay on the flier. He is at present in the county jail.

FOURTEEN HOMELESS.

Mother and 13 Children Lose Home and Bakery.

BAIE ST. PAUL, Que., Jan. 24.—Mrs. Arthur Drolet and thirteen children were driven from their home Friday night as the result of a fire which broke out in a bakery which Mrs. Drolet conducted.

No household effects were saved, but Mrs. Drolet was able to rescue a sum of $200 which she kept in the home. Three hundred sacks of flour in the bakery were destroyed.

Mrs. Drolet is a widow, whose husband was drowned in the floods of last September.

CHINESE TORE UP $4,000 ROLL

On Way to China After 20 Years' Toil in Toronto Laundry.

IN PADDED CELL.

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 24 — Money was one of Jim Lee Quong's least worries, and just to prove that it was more of a burden, the Chinese cooly tore up his roll of nearly $4,000 Thursday night, before a surprised group of onlookers in a Canadian National Railway train, a few miles from Winnipeg.

Quong, an old-time resident of Toronto, was en route to China, where he had planned to settle down to a life of ease and comfort. He had worked hard in a Chinese laundry for 20 years, during which time he had saved up a small fortune.

Yesterday, the impetuous Quong is gloating over his deed from the inside of a padded cell in the provincial jail, while the authorities are doing their best to piece together the shattered fortune which they believe may come in useful to the Chinese, if he ever "pulls through."

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Arthur Fallis Is Putting Up a New Barn—Sleighing Party Was a Success.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 24.—Arthur Fallis will complete the building of his new barn, 100 x 40, in the spring, the foundation walls having been finished last fall. The metallic roofing for the building was recently purchased through the local agent, W. E. Ball. Mr. Fallis now owns and occupies the farm on Fallis Line, which was formerly the Leith homestead.

Owing to the blocked state of the roads, and the numerous cases of mumps and whooping-cough among the young people, Mrs. O. Williamson, superintendent, was obliged to postpone the meeting of the "Sunshine" Mission Band, which was to have been held on Friday evening. Announcement will be made on Sunday when the gathering will be held.

Mrs. G. W. Sayles was the guest of her sister, Mrs. E. Kenyon, in Peterboro on Thursday.

Dr. A. Jemison is in Toronto for a few days this week.

Miss Pearl Lamb is visiting her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. R. McBrian, Maple Lake, Northern Ontario.

George Elson was the delegate from the Young People's League at the district convention in Peterboro on Friday, others going from here including Rev. F. W. Howard, Mr. and Mrs. P. Stinson, Miss Estelle Hetherington, and F. N. Alcorrn.

Lawrence Winslow entertained a number of his school friends at a delightful sleighing party on Wednesday evening, the high wind and wintry atmosphere in no way interfering with the enjoyment of the young folk while the drive was in progress.

Games, music and dancing were indulged in after returning to the house, Mr. and Mrs. F. Winslow doing all in their power to make the party as merry within doors as it had been in its out-of-doors features. Appetites were well sharpened for the supper which was presently served, and ample justice was done the abundance of good things provided.

The guests included: Marie Kenyon, Marjorie Sayles, Margaret Howard, Phyllis Brown, Elizabeth Russell, Kathleen Fowler, Thelma and Aileen Armstrong, Jean Burnham, Mabel McCarthy, Lawrence Ingram, Ernest Burnham, Nelles Rowland, Lynden Russell, L. Winslow.

The "Brotherhood" meetings for all the men of the church recently inaugurated by Rev. F. W. Howard, are proving popular and inspiring. The attendance has been remarkably good at the two meetings held so far, Friday at 8 p.m. being the day and hour for the gathering, which is held in the League room of the Methodist church. "The Man, Christ Jesus," and a book on "Christian Economics," both recent publications by reliable authors, constitute the line of study followed, one or two of the men being responsible each week for the chapters taken up, an open discussion coming after the material has been presented.

The meetings are an innovation here, and the men are responding in increasing numbers to the invitation to attend. Organizations will be effected in the near future.

The weekly meeting of the A.Y.P.A. of St. Thomas' church on Thursday evening took the form of a debate, "Resolved that ambition does more harm than good." Gertrude Gray and Muriel Lang represented the negative, winning over the boys, Lynden Russell and R. Shaw, who upheld the affirmative, by three points.

The judges were: Mrs. M. Williams, R. Stone and A. H. Barnes. These debates are arranged with the idea of helping the young folk to speak in public without embarrassment, increase their store of information on various subjects, and develop the reasoning faculties, application "invigorating the mind as exercise does the body, both being benefitted by the requisite toil."

The series of A.Y.P.A. district debates, which has proved so helpful and interesting the past three seasons, has not yet been arranged for this winter. Mr. R. Stone, district president, expects to call an executive meeting in the immediate future, when the schedule will be drawn up. Only four of the branches have so far signified their intention of participating — St. George's (Peterborough), Lakefield, St. John's (North Cavan), and Millbrook. The local A.Y.P.A. had the honour of winning the cup last year.

A back game in the local competition for the Allen cup, was played off at the rink on Thursday evening:

Daddy (just finisng a long talk and stern rebuke)—"Now, you quite understand what I say?"

Dirigible Above Clouds Sees Glory Of Eclipse

ABOARD U.S.N. DIRIGIBLE, LOS ANGELES, Over Montauk Point, N.Y., January 24 (By Radio to United Press). — The weather is perfect for the eclipse of the sun.

The great golden disk came soaring over the horizon shortly after 6.30 a.m., when we were off Coney Island at an altitude of 3,000 feet, cruising north-east at 70 knots, with five engines going.

We passed clouds 2,000 feet up, but these disappeared in the higher altitude.

The scientists aboard say that our eclipse observations will be made under perfect conditions.

Valuable Book On Internal Baths—FREE

Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell always claimed his life was saved by Internal Baths — chronic constipation was his bane. After internal baths had made him well, they kept him in excellent health for many years.

This is not hard to believe when physicians tell us that most human ills are caused by accumulated waste in the lower intestine and no medicine has ever been found which would keep it free from such poisons.

Dr. Tyrrell wrote a book which tells why and how his perfected J. B. L. Cascade has freed many thousands of progressive Canadians from constipation, rheumatism, appendicitis, sick headaches, indigestion, hardening of the arteries, and other illnesses which follow if the pernicious poisons are not cleaned out of the colon or lower bowel.

Simple warm water, scientifically administered, will take them out and keep them out. The J. B. L. Cascade is the invention of Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell, of New York, for modern Internal Bathing. It is now being shown and explained at Warne Drug Company, Peterborough.

'Phone or ask them for free booklet telling all about Internal Bathing, or write Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute, 181 College Street, Toronto.

UPROAR FORCED SUSPENSION OF PARIS CHAMBER

Government Refused to Adopt Marin's Theory as to France's Debt to America.

GREAT DISORDER

Herriott Gives Reasons for Deciding to Withdraw Ambassador to the Vatican.

PARIS, Jan. 24.—The Chamber of Deputies yesterday was the scene of the greatest disorder that ever had been witnessed there.

The trouble arose over the failure of the chamber to vote an order for the posting of the recent speech on the subject of inter-allied debts made by Deputy Marin.

Bitter criticism was launched against the government majority by Deputy Desjardins, because of its refusal to adopt the theory of M. Marin with regard to France's debt, and after twenty-five minutes of uproar, President Painleve suspended the session.

Nevertheless, the excitetd deputies remained at their desks shouting and gesticulating, until finally Premier Herriot ascended the rostrum. He was greeter with a mixed reception of applause and shouts of derision. When a degree of quiet had been obtained, M. Herriot said that he would not discuss the debt question, but would take up the matter of the suppression of the French embassy to the Vatican.

In the course of a three-hour speech, the premier laid before the deputies his arguments for having decided to withdraw the embassy. Complete independence of the state from the church, the Holy See's singular neutrality" during the war, failure of the embassy to the Vatican to prove of any benefit to France's exterior politics and alleged interference by the church in France's internal affairs, were the main lines of M. Herriot's argument in the suppression of the embassy.

HER NERVES SO BAD SHE COULD NOT SLEEP

Mrs. Grace Kitchen, St. George, Ont., writes: "After having a severe attack of pneumonia I was left in a weak and run down condition. My nerves were so bad I could not sleep nights, and in the day time I had terrible fainting spells, caused by my heart being weak. Finally I got so bad I had to take to my bed for weeks at a time, but one day I read about so decided to try them.

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

After taking one box I felt a slight improvement. I have now taken five boxes, and have gained 35 pounds in weight. I am now more than able to do all my own housework as well as considerable outside work. I cannot recommend Milburn's H. & N. Pills too highly for those suffering as I did."

CANADIAN CROP VALUES HIGHER

Last Year's Production Was Less Than 1923, But Prices Were Better.

ALMOST A MILLION.

OTTAWA, Jan. 24. — (Canadian Press).—An interesting feature of the report of the bureau of statistics, fixing the value of Canadian crops in 1924, is the fact that while crops were much reduced in bulk from the production of 1923, the aggregate value of all field crops in 1924 is $996,257,900, an increase of $97,091,700 over the market value of the whole crop of 1923. Higher prices per bushel for grain on smaller yields and the increased value of grain hay in Alberta is the reason for higher returns. Grain hay in Alberta last year is valued at $43,695,000 compared with $12,562,000 in 1923. Last year's wheat crop in all Canada is valued at $320,362,000 compared with $316,934,700 in 1923, and $356,873,800 for the five year average, 1919 to 1923.

Potato Production.

The total yield of potatoes for 1924 is estimated at 56,648,000 cwt., from 561,628 acres, as compared with 55,497,000 cwt. from 560,942 acres in 1923, and with 66,258,736 cwt. from 709,952 acres ,the five year average.

The total yield of hay and clover in 1924 was 14,960,300 tons from 9,874,907 acres, as compared with 14,844,900 from 9,725,602 acres in 1923, and with 14,077,180 tons from 10,263,379 acres, the average. The yields per acre were 1.51 tons in 1924 1.55 tons in 1923 and 1.37 tons, the average.

Grain hay is estimated to have yielded in 1924, 4,983,000 tons from 2,486,899 acres, an average yield per acre of 2 tons.

VERMIN POISON KILLED CATTLE

Thos. Donaldson, Near Centreville, Lost Six Head After a Poison Dip.

ROADS BLOCKED.

BAILIEBORO, Jan. 23.—A short time ago Mr. Thos. Donaldson, a farmer residing two miles north of Centreville, used a dip to poison the vermin on his cattle. Unfortunately the poison went through the pores of the skin into the blood, and as a result six head of fine, big, fat cattle have died, two more in a very critical condition, and seven more that have been seriously effected, are now starting to take some nourishment, and hopes are held for their recovery.

Roads Blocked.

The recent snow falls which have prevailed in this part of the country during the past week, have blocked many of the quarter lines, making it quite necessary to break the roads through the fields.

Up until a few days since, a few cars have been travelling the provincial highway between Port Hope and Peterborough, but during the past couple of days motoring is impossible on any of the highways.

On Wednesday one of the caterpillar cars owned by the Duffus Motor Sales of Peterborough made its way through the snow from Peterborough to Bailieboro.

It will take several fine days before the highway will be dug out in order that cars will be able to travel on.

Many Winter Ills.

There seems to be a considerable amount of sickness throughout this district this winter. There are numerous cases of whooping cough and mumps, several cases of diphtheria have also been reported, while almost everybody in this locality has had a nasty cold, which seems almost impossible to get rid of.

Croup at Night No Longer Feared by Canadian Mothers

Direct Treatment with Vaporizing Salve Immediately Reaches Congested Air Passages.

Many Canadian mothers, who in the past have worried over croup and children's cold, are delighted with the "external" remedy for colds, Vicks VapoRub.

You just rub Vicks over throat and chest for croup, children's colds, bronchitis or deep chest colds. When so applied the body heat releases the ingredients as vapors which are inhaled directly into the affected air passages, loosening the phlegm and reducing the inflammation.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed and stimulates the skin like a liniment or plaster and thus aids the vapors inhaled to break up the congestion. Croup is usually relieved in 15 minutes.

There is no dosing in using Vicks. Nothing to upset the delicate stomachs of small children. You just "rub it on".

MAYOR TURNER SETS EXAMPLE FOR FANS WILL PAY PIPERS' EXPENSES TO TORONTO

His Worship May Even Don the Kilts to Head Parade in Toronto—If the Fans Will Go—And if the Team Reaches Play-offs.

Mayor J. J. Turner has enthusiastically taken up the suggestion made in Thursday's Examiner that Peterborough should be represented in force at the group play-offs in Toronto if the senior team reaches that stage in the series.

His Worship told The Examiner last night that he will pay the travelling expenses of the Pipe Band if the members will donate their services. He believes the Band would make a hit in Toronto.

The Mayor, always a bear for publicity for the city, expressed the opinion that just such a celebration as the "Four Bit Fan" dreamed of is needed to put a fitting period to the successes won by the Peterborough Senior O.H.A. team.

If he thought it would add any to the worth of the occasion, he might even don kilts, and lead the parade from Union Station to the Arena as drum-major.

All that is needed is the co-operation of the fans—and their suggestions. Let 'em all come!

WOMAN'S HEALTH WHEN FORTY-FIVE

A Critical Period When Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Are a Real Blessing.

At special periods a woman needs a medicine to regulate her blood supply, or her life will be a round of pain and suffering. It is at such times that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are worth their weight in gold, for they make the new rich blood that banishes the symptoms of distress that only women know. The better blood that comes with the use of these pills strengthens every vital organ and brings womanly health and happiness. This is fully proved by the case of Mrs. G. Witthuhu, Arcola, Sask., who says:—"I am one of the many for whom Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done wonders. About three years ago I was so weak that I could not do my housework, or even go about without feeling utterly worn out. The doctor suggested that an operation was the only thing that would help me, but this I refused to undergo, and I returned home almost in despair. My trouble was all due to the lingering change of life. At this stage I read an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to try them. By the time I had used six boxes there was no doubt they were just what I needed, and under their continued use for some time my health was fully restored, and since that time I have been in the best of health. I am writing this letter in the hope that it may induce some other suffering woman to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and regain her health."

These pills are sold by medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50c a box by writing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BOBBIE BURNS.

Peterborough's Scots right royally celebrated last night the anniversary of the birth of one whose name will always be sweet in Scotch ears—Bobbie Burns.

The actual anniversary is to-morrow, Jan. 25th, but the Burns Night festivities took lace last night.

The tenacity with which the poet keeps his place in the hearts of Scots everywhere is demonstrated by these annual celebrations that take place everywhere that a few people from the Land o' Cakes come together.

Other races have their yearly rallies but the Scots are the only people who make the birthday of a poet the occasion for a celebration.

COL. J. H. FESSENDEN, D.S.O.

The death of Col. J. H. Fessenden, D.S.O., will be deeply regretted by the many citizens who remember him in his boyhood days in Peterborough and by the many more whose recollection of his father, the late Cortez Fessenden, former principal of the Collegiate Institute, is still fresh.

"Jack" Fessenden gave his life to a miltary career and died in the service after a splendid record that carried him to a full Colonelcy in the British army at the early age of thiry-four years.

He was one of the many splendid young Canadian officers turned out by Royal Military College, Kingston, who gave themselves over to the miltary service of the Empire and have served with rare devotion and courage, not only in the World War of 1914-18, but in so-called peace years in distant outposts of the British Empire.

Officers of the type of "Jack" Fessenden have helped to win a greater distinction for the name "Canadian" by reason of their gallant bearing and their courage and resourcefulness in tight places.

They are everywhere in the British army and their worth is recognized.

Peterborough should not fail to remember with admiration and gratitude the name of one of her native sons who won honours for himself and his home city by his career as a soldier in "England's Contemptible Little Army."

PAYING FOR HEALTH.

The effort of the Board of Health to reduce the expenditure on health work, especially in connection with the Isolation Hospital, will be commended by the citizens.

If there are ways in which a saving can be effected without decreasing the city's protection against disease, then by all means let them be put to use.

At the same time the tendency, not only in Peterborough but generally, is not to spend too much on health safeguards but rather to spend too little.

Our governments make larger appropriations to assist in breeding better pigs than they do to help in producing better babies.

They spend more money protecting cattle from disease than they do to protect human beings form the same enemy.

And municipal councils lavish funds on other projects of far less importance in the long run while they carve at the outlay necessary to maintain a health department.

In fact it is usually the latetr department that is first starved.

The cost of the Isolation Hospital—about $300 a patient last year—seems high and it may be possible to effect a material reduction.

Yet viewed in the light of a protection against epidemics and taking into consideration the outlay that would be involved in a serious outbreak, the expenditure may not be so much out of proportion after all.

CANADIAN AIRMEN.

An unconfirmed rumor that Major Stuart MacLaren, the British airman, has secured the backing to attempt another world flight, draws attention to the comparative lack of opportunity given Canadian flying men to compete in the greatest sporting ventures of peace times, says the Ottawa Journal.

Major MacLaren is a very gallant gentleman. Even his failure to encircle the globe by air last year was splendid and drew the world's applause. It was one of the nerviest single-handed feats undertaken by an airman since the armistice.

But flying in England and on the continent is a different matter from a round-the-world flight including hops acros the Himalayas, Northern India, the Straits Settlements, the coast of Asia, the Northern Pacific, across Canada and the North Atlantic. The British flying man today can always find a hangar at night with mechanics to tune up his engine.

There are half a dozen flying men in Canada today, some inthe Royal Canadian Air Force and some in civilian flying, who are better equipped to undertake the hazards of round-the-world or long distance flying than some of the men who have undertaken spectacular flights since the armistice. Every summer pilots of the Royal Canadian Air Force take off on fire patrols and aerial surveys which keep them away from their air stations for weeks at a time. These men encounter and overcome mechanical and natural difficulties which the European fliers never meet. These Canadian men take their machines out in the early summer and never encounter a hangar, a tool shop or a mechanic. They and their machines are practically self-suficient. Their work goes on quietly month after month and in the autumn their reports are filed with the Department.

Active flying men of Canada are confident that if given the necessary backing there are Canadian airmen who could shater world records in long distance trials.

Canadians had a magnificent and unforgotten part in the war and in the air from the early days until the armistice. Canada produced the finest flying blood—and it is still here, awaiting opportunity to accept an equal chance with the fliers of the world.

BOOSTING PETERBOROUGH.

The suggestion from a hockey enthusiast that Peterborough should organize a demonstration in connection with the next appearance of the Peterborough Hockey Club in Toronto that would show the people of Toronto how much the city appreciated its hockey team is worthy of consideration.

The hockey club, by its own efforts, has given Peterborough much valuable publicity.

It is up to the community at large to augment that publicity by a programme such as was outlined in our correspondent's letter.

So far the Peterborough team has played seven games in Toronto this season, winning them all, and following up their capture of the S. P. A. Trophy by three victories in the O. H. A. series.

Yet they have received but comparatively little support from their home community, usually but a score of fans accompanying the team to Toronto, and it is noticeable that on most occasions the make up of the retinue is about the same.

GETTING MR. HOEY'S NUMBER.

Our suspicion that Mr. R. A. Hoey was less a Louis Riel, the second, than a wary politician with his eye on the next election and the Progressive leadership, is more than shared by the Edmonton Bulletin, says the Ottawa Journal. The Bulletin, which is on the ground, and which knows Mr. Hoey and the West, thus sizes up his speech at Brandon:

"It may be that the Progressive leader will hoist the flag of revolt. But he will not get very far with the enterprise. In fact, there is internal evidence in his speech that he does not contemplate getting very far with it. Toward the end of the address he grew confidential and let the delegates know what it was that was really troubling him. As he forecasts the trend of public opinion the Progressive party is likely to fare badly at the coming election. He has traversed the West somewhat thoroughly, and his conclusion is that when polling day comes round the western voters will send to Ottawa contingents representing the Liberal and Conservative parties, and a decidedly attenuated group of Progressives. Western sentiment is returning to the two-party system and stable government. That is what gripes the Progressive leader. To avert the catastrophe to his following he proposes to launch a campaign of sectionalism, enlivened by threats of secession. He does not really want a revolution. But he does want to keep the party from collapsing. To which end he threatens to preach revolution, knowing that nothing can come of it and hoping that it will catch some malcontent votes. Mr. Hoey does not aspire to be a second Riel. He is only posing as one for political effect."

A fair-sized representation for either or both of the old parties from beyond the Great Lakes at the next election would be a good thing for Canada.

STREET SIGNS.

The mater complained of by the writer of the letetr printed below should not be unfamilar to Examiner readers, as this paper has on more than one occaion drawn the attention of the authorities to the need of new street signs.

Mr. Taylor's letter covers the situation thoroughly and his communication should not be passed over by the City Council.

It is undoubtedly true that few of the old signs are in evidence and while the names of the streets are marked in the pavement at intersections, they are buried out of sight during the winter months and a stranger has usually considerable difficulty in locating the particular street he is seeking.

Writes Mr. Taylor:

The Editor, Examiner, Peterboro', Ont.

Dear Sir:—

It is some twenty-three years since I last visited Peterborough and I find it greatly improved, in many respects, as a manufacturing centre. You are in the front ranks and no city of its size in Canada can compare with it in beauty. Your streets are wide and your residences substantial but notice you have no street signs. What's the idea of this small town stuff?

Peterborough is no longer a village but a large important city. It seems ridiculous that in a city with over 20,000 people that a stranger has to pull doorbells and bother citizens to find out the name of the street.

I have had occasion to be on a great many of your streets in Peterboro during the past ten days and the only street signs I can remember seeing are two on the Corner of King and Stewart. Both look as if they had been hung there sometime during the Dark Ages. If any alderman can read the King Street sign without standing on his head I will give him a front seat in the New Union Church.

It may surprise your aldermen to know that many citizens in Peterborough do not know the name of the street that they are living on. I called at a house to inquire the name of the street and the lady of the house said: "Really I don't know. I have only been living here two years." But, however, I understand the street names are on the pavement. If this be the case, I would suggest that the City Council appoint a committee during the winter months to meet all trains and present each visitor to your city with a pick and shovel. This, no doubt, would help them to locate the street they are looking for without bothering busy citizens.

Wake up! Come out of it, Mr. Mayor and Aldermen and put away for all time that village look from this beautiful city of Peterborough by placing street signs at all intersections.

Thanking you for your valuable space.

79 Willow Ave., Toronto F. D. TAYLOR.

It is a matter that this year's Council should look into with a view to action; certainly the need has been manifest for years.

At least the eclipse served one useful purpose. It got the astronomers on the front page.

A THOUGHT.

KINDNESS—

is The Goldren Rule put into practice; therefore, the eternal obligation is to be always kind.

Frendship cannot be true, nor will it last, without—Kindness.

Charity will prove a mere mockery of good intentions when there is no—Kindness.

Acquaintanceship only adds greater numbers who will not like us if we lack—Kindness.

Loyalty to family or to friends will fail in its mission without—Kindness.

Co-operation is unworkable and Business will go bankrupt without—Kindness.

The wisest are those who are kind to the most people. The strongest are those who surround themselves with the support of the most people who are Kind.

The mere statement of these truths carries their own conviction. They are truths that were true before they were spoken and would ever remain true though they had never been spoken.

Life has so many ways that wind and wind, but my simple plan is to be always Kind.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—The market opened on Monday with a moderate run of just over 4,000 cattle. Trade was not by any means brisk, especially in the butcher section. Outside of a very small proportion of choice butcher steers and heifers, the bulk of the offering was of poor quality, half warmed up butcher stuff, for which there was a very slow and draggy market. Except for the very best finished butcher heifers, and good export quality butcher steers, the market was weaker, barely holding steady at the decline of the latter part of the previous week. Conditions showed no improvement during the week and prices for the bulk of the common and medium butcher cattle closed a good 25 cents lower than the opening. A few odd choice heifers and butcher steers continued in good demand and firm at from $6.50 to $7, with too few of the latter class offering.

In the export section there was a moderately active market for about 500 cattle at about steady prices. The total exports for the week were about 900 cattle, including fat steers, stores and bulls. There has been some curtailment of vessel space for the export trade of late, which has given rise to rumors and alleged cornering of space by certain interests. Enquiry revealed that there was no ground for the space cornering rumors, but that several vessels had temporarily been out of commission for repairs. As conditions improve and more vessel space again becomes available, there is every likelihood of a continued good active demand for export cattle.

It is pointed out that the month of February usuallyy sees some falling off in the quality of cattle marketed. There is some apprehension that this condition is in danger of being more in evidence than usual during the coming month, due to the high prices of feed, and the general reluctance on the part of farmers to use their feed as liberally as they otherwise might. The result it is feared, may be markets overloaded with half-finished cattle, which can command only the lowest prices. Shippers are urged not to overload the market with this latter class of cattle.

With light runs, the small meats have held firm and strong during the week, closing 50c to a dollar higher than the opening.

Hogs have more than held their own, advancing 25c.

Export cattle, choice and heavy steers, $7.50 to $8.25; bulls, $4.50 to $5; heifers, $6.25 to $7.

Choice butchers, $6.25 to $7; medium $5.25 to $6; common, $2.50 to $3.85; baby beeves, $8.50 to $9.

Choice fat cows, $3.50 to $4.50.

Stockers and feeders, choice short-keep feeders, 1,000 to 2,000 lbs., $5.50 to $6; stores, 900 to 1,000 lbs., $5 to $5.75; choice stockers, 800 to 900 lbs., $4.25 to $4.75; light western stock, $3.50 to $3.75; choice western, $4.50 to $5.

Calves strong.

Sheep and lambs steady.

Hogs steady at $10.50 f.o.b.; $11.50 off cars; selects, off cars, $12.17 per head extra.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, Jan. 23. — (Canadian Press).—The easier feeling in the fresh egg market continues due to increasing receipts but as yet prices show very little change. In parts of the West, some United States fresh firsts have arrived, which are jobbing at $20.50 per case and retailing at 75 cents per dozen.

Toronto fresh specials 75, extras 65 to 70, storage extras 56 to 57; firsts 53, seconds 47 to 48.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23. — (Canadian Press).—Wheat ran up wildly here to-day as high as $1.96 a bushel, May delivery, but heavy selling to realize profits led to a sharp re-action at the last. One of the reasons given for the fresh advance was a report that values of wheat in Argentine were jumping quicker than the market in Chicago, regardless of the fact that wheat and rye even more so, had established a spectacular new top record again to-day. The wheat market here closed unsettled at 3-4 cent net lower to 1 cent advance. May 1.93 3-4 to 1.94, and July 1.69 3-4 to 1.70, with corn 2¼ to 3¼ cents down, oats 3-8 to 1 1-8 cents off and provisions varying from 12 cents decline to an equal upturn.

Emphasizing the news from Argentine about rapidly rising prices for southern hemisphere wheat was a report that labor troubles were spreading in Australia, one of the chief other countries competing with the United States. With prospects thus apparently opening for increased European demand for wheat from the United States and Canada, general speculative buying here took on huge proportions. Some observers expressed an opinion that the total volume would prove to be the largest on record.

STERLING RATES.

Sterling demand, $4.80 5-8.

Sterling cables, $4.81.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, Jan. 23.—(Canadian Press).—There was a further demand from Continental buyers to-day for Canadian spring wheat, and a little business was done, but exporters generally stated that the trade with the United Kingdom was dull. New York exporters were also in the market for wheat, and they bid 18⅛ cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option for No. 1 Northern and 2 cents per bushel over for No. 4 wheat, f.o.b. Portland for January shipment. There was some demand from local buyers for Ontario malting barley and sales of car lots were made at $1.09 per bushel, ex-track. A stronger feeling prevailed for Ontario oats and prices were advanced another 1 cent per bushel. Canadian Western oats were unchanged.

Owing to the continued upward tendency in wheat prices, the market for spring wheat grades of flour was stronger and prices scored a further advance of 20 cents per barrel. The winter wheat flour trade was inactive.

There was no change in the condition of millfeed. The demand for rolled oats was fair.

A good business continues to be transacted in all grades of eggs, and prices were unchanged. The undertone of the butter market continues easier but prices showed no further change. The tone of cheese is firm, with No. 1 fodder made goods quoted at 19½ to 20 cents per pound, and No 2 grade at 18½ to 19 cents per pound.

Crop beans were quoted at $2.90 per bushel.

GIN PILLS FOR THE KIDNEYS

Those Dear Little Kids of Yours

LOOK at your little boy tonight when you go home and see the way he imitates you. Tries to walk like you, tries to talk like you; imitates your little mannerisms. You are his hero—that's why. He thinks you are one of the greatest men in the world.

Your little daughter does not care if you are the greatest man or not. She thinks you are the nicest—and she loves you anyway. Is there anything in your power you wouldn't do to make sure of their health, their happiness, their safety, and their future success in life?

Yes, there is, and you know it. And every day you wait makes it harder and riskier. Think it out, right now.

How long would the insurance you carry keep your little boy and your little girl and their mother if they had to depend upon what you have provided? Could they maintain their accustomed shelter, the comfort, the standard of living to which you have accustomed them—for more than one year?

Figure it out, right now. And then make up your mind to do one simple thing. Call the Mutual Life Agent tomorrow morning, or tomorrow evening—whenever you can best arrange it. Make a point of it to-morrow for sure. Do not let another day go by.

Mutuality is co-operation. The only Canadian insurance company doing business on the mutual plan is the Mutual Life of Canada. This company was organized to give its policyholders insurance protection at actual cost. Our agent will advise you as to what policies are best adapted to your requirements. He will not press you. You may consult him frankly. Write us for "The Mutual Book" to-day.

Burns Night in Peterboro

Last night was the night of nights for Peterboro Scots, being the occasion of the annual "Burns Celebration." A goodly representation of local Caledonians assembled in Victoria Hall to keep the memory of Auld Scotia's great poet, and the room resounded with the praises of Burns in song and story.

In opening, the Chairman, Mr. Andrew Jackson, past-president of the Caledonian Club, read a telegram from Mr. John Moyes, now of Chatham, first president of the club, "With you all in spirit to-night."

The toast to the King was then duly honored and grace pronounced by Rev. W. S. Edgar. Piper W. Petrie then bore in the haggis, escorted by Piper A. Milne, and Mr. W. Anderson addressed the ancient Scots dish. The good things prepared by the ladies were then served and later the literary feast was started.

A song, "The Lea-rig," with encore, "Robin Adair," by Miss Pattison, began the programme, followed by another solo, "The Auld Scots Songs," sung by Mr. G. Reid.

In replying to the toast, "Bonnie Scotland," Rev. W. S. Edgar said that while Scotland owed a great debt to Burns, the poet owed a great deal to his country. He inherited the Scots character and got inspiration for many of his great poems from the beautiful scenery of "Bonnie Scotland."

Mr. G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., in reply to the toast, "Our City and Province," said that while no place could supplant one's birthplace in one's heart, that Peterboro and Ontario were a progressive city and province worthy of the love of all whose lot was cast there.

Mr. Grierson's Address.

The next was the really important part of the programme. In proposing the toast to "The Immortal Memory," Mr. Jos. Grierson began by quoting:

The Burns anniversary address by Mr. Joseph Grierson follows:

Hail Scottish hearts that still uphold
Our hame-lands fame and glory;
This night we meet, a Bard tae greet
Weel kenned in song and story.
Wherever Scotia's sons may stray,
The hame-land loves around them,
And on this ever hallowed day,
The songs o' Burns has bound them.

Mr. Chairman, fellow-countrymen, —And ye doubly honored Scottish wemmin folks:

Again the Natal day returns,
Again we meet to honor Burns.

I say of the Scottish women folk they are doubly honored because we cannot meet to sound the praises of Robert Burns without remembering that the Scottish maidens inspired our Bard with those poetic gems which, woven into song, are sung from one end of the world to the other.

Burns was, as some poet has said,
The linnet in simplicity,
In tenderness the dove,
But far beyond them all was he,
The nightingale in love.

And Scottish hearts know well how sweetly he sang of:

Love's golden hours on Angel wing
That wrapt him and his dearie.

There is no National Bard who lives more intimately, truly and constantly in the hearts of his country-men. The young, the old, the gay, the thoughtful, than Robert Burns, the ploughman poet of Scotland. Perhaps none are better fitted to measure the worth of Burns than the humble peasantry amongst whom he was born and reared, and for whose lot he ever felt so keenly. These were his friends in the early struggles of his career as a poet, they were the ever delighted patrons of his muse, the ploughmen and shepherd, the delvers and ditchers and dykers, the toilers in country and city, they knew well what it was to endure, to yield, to enjoy, and to suffer, they felt themselves lifted into a new environment of worth, and dignity under the genius of their inspired countryman, and for this their love went out to him in unstinted measure. They would hear of no dishonor to his name, and to this day the memory of their Bard is hallowed among them as a religion, for even clearer than ever to-day we can see:

The patriot love and pride,how much
He taught his country to uphold,
And beautiful beneath his touch
Does Scottish peasant life unfold.

When Scottish folks are met on this memorable date to do honor to our Bard and more especially if that gathering is held,

From Scotland's heath clad hills afar
Where Scotchmen follow fortune's star.

On such occasions we love to dwell with tender feeling on the humble birthplace of our poet and in our mind's eye to vision the auld clay biggen, wie its but an' ben, its cosy ingle nook, its plain but useful furnishings and presided over by the parental virtue, love and moral worth, which our poet has so beautifully pictured to us in the Cotters' Saturday Night.

We see within this humble dwelling the parents
Who their secret homage pay.
And proffer up to heaven the warm request
That he who stills the raven's clamorous nest
And decks the lily fair in flowery pride,
Would in the way His wisdom sees the best
For them and for their little ones provide,
But, chiefly in their hearts, with grace divine preside.

And it was the picture of deep religious feeling in the lowly homes of the peasantry of Scotland which gave our poet this inspired verse which no Scottish lips can recite without a thrill of patriotic pride:

That makes her loved at home, revered abroad;
Princes and Lords are but the breath of kings,
An honest man's the noblest work of God.

The world pays homage to our poet for the sublime dignity with which he has invested the humble tiller of the soil. But while he can give us in inspired poetic language the domestic virtues within this auld clay biggen he can also sweep our heart strings wi' his pawky humor in writing of his own advent on January 25, 1759.

There was a lad was born in Kyle,
But whatna day o' whatna style,
I doubt it's hardly worth the while,
To be sae nice wi' Robin.

Our monarch's hindmost year but ane,
Was five and twenty days begun,
'Twas then a blast o' Janwar' win'
Blew hansel in on Robin.

The gossip keekit in his loof,
Quo' she, wha lives will see the proof,
This waly boy will be noe coof,
I think we'll ca' him Robin.

He'll ha'e misfortunes great and sma'
But aye a heart aboon them a',
He'll be a credit till us a',
We'l a' be proud o' Robin.

Such is the introduction Burns has given us of his entry upon life's journey in this Ayrshire peasant home, a humble, but we will not say a poor home, for if real riches be the moral and intellectual worth of the individual, and Burns all through his writings, with no uncertain note, has sought to emphasize this. He was welcomed into the arms of parents who were peculiarly fitted to preside over the spark of genius that was to fire such tender emotions in the Scottish peasantry for all time.

Let us look for a moment at the thrifty, plain, unassuming William Burns, the revered parent of our poet. He was gardener at Doone-Home House when his son Robert was born, and had with his thrift and probably extra hours of labor erected this humble clay cottage, which was called "New Gardens."

But we find him ambitious and so far as his powers of body would take him, striving to become more independent, and to wrest from the soil a sustenance for his growing family. Moving from the auld clay biggin,we find him the guid man at the farms of Mount Oliphant and Loch Lee.

But while we see this severe exertion on the part of William Burns, in wresting from the farm grounds the living necessary for his self and family, we are more interested watching his conduct as the guardian of Scotland's future bard. We love to think of the kind words of Murdoch, the school master:

"I have alawys considered William Burns, he says, by far the best of the human race that ever I had the pleasure of being acquainted with, and many a worthy character I have known."

Of his father, Robert Burns wrote in later years: "I have met with few who understood men, their manners and their ways, equal to him."

William Burns was a tender and affectionate father and sought by his own excellent example to lead his children in the paths of virtue and righteousness, and herein do we find him seeking to exercise his life in a measure devoid of offense towards God and man. It is questionable if anywhere amongst the Scottish peasantry we could have found one more suitable as a guardian of Scotia's poetic genius.

Let us take tender farewell of this noble and upright man in his son's own touching lines:

O, ye, whose cheek the tear of pity stains,
Draw near with pious reverence and attend,
Here lie the loving husband's dear remains,
The tender father and the generous fr iend;
The pitying heart that felt for human woe,
The dauntless heart that feared no human pride,
The friend of man, to vice alone a foe,
For e'en his failings leaned to virtue's side.

We cannot pass from this casual glance at the home in which our poet was growing to manhood without expressing our regard for that one creature who is really the essence of love in the home, the Mother.

We know that the domestic burdens were many at Mount Oliphant and Loch Lee, that those who were privileged to be entertained there remarked the kind and loving care, the devotion to husband and children, and left the firm impression with those observers that affections closest ties untied all.

Robert Burns, we are told, resembled his mother, and probably much of his tenderness of heart was the birth-right portion she bequeathed him.

It is from the atmosphere of this pious home life we see Robert Burns, our national Scottish bard, advance into public favor as the literary genious of the Scottish muse. There have been many who never studied the early life of Burns, and who had not the ability to measure the spirit of the man behind his own self-condemnation, who have preached to the world sensual sins and profligate wantonness that Robert Burns was never guilty of. Whatever views society may have to-day of the social manners and customs of a bygone generation we do not wish them to visit the weakness of .ion upon the life and actions of our national poet.

In Scottish and English towns at that early date it was customary to pass a convivial hour or two in a respectable tavern or inn. The worthy citizens did not always foregather there from the love of liquor, but more from a desire to converse on affairs of the day, join in debate on parliamentary, municipal or social affairs and hear the latest news from the few publications which were then available. Can we wonder that we find Burns among those groups, gathering news for his keen mind to dissect, and soul of the company in conversation on all subjects. These gatherings may have witnessed some dissipation by the weakness of an over drouthy cheil, but Prof. Wilson tells us in his life of Burns, not a man in Dumfrees after the death of our poet could be found who had ever seen him intoxicated.

He kept his honesty and truth,
His independent tongue and pen
And moved in manhood and in youth
Pride of his fellow men.

His lays have seared the tyrant heart
Like flaming bars of hottest steel
And raised the poor to know their right
To think as men, as men to feel.

How much there is in the correspondence of Burns that we would like to bring forward to show his sentiments on religion. His reverence for what was truly noble and good, and his scathing contempt for the false or hypocritical.

Burns viewed the Creator chiefly in his attributes of love, goodness, and mercy. An avenging God he had no desire to contemplate. Benevolence and piety were deeply rooted in his own being and well he knew the loving Father could extend in more bountiful measure to the pleading suppliant than the poor inhabitant below could bestow on his fellow creatures.

"I despise the superstition of a fanatic, he said, but I love the religion of a good man.

To Burns, the poet, we must turn for a short review and towards Loch Lee let our thoughts be directed, for here we see him breaking into manhood with that pure love passion in his breast which has given us those beautiful lyrics composed to the memory of his Highland Mary.

Ye banks and braes, and streams a' roon
The castle o' Montgomery
Green be yer woods, and fair your flowers
Your waters never drumlie
There simmer first unfaulds her robes
And there the longest tarry
For there I took the last fare-weel
O my sweet Highland Mary.

But even more beautiful are some of the other poems written to the memory of this simple artless maiden.

Powers celestial whose protection
Ever guards the virtuous fair
While in distant climes I wander
Let my Mary be your care.
Let her form sae fair and faultless
Fair and faultless as your own
Let my Mary's kindred spirit
Draw your choicest influence down.

Make the gales you waft around her
Soft and peaceful as her breast
Breathing in the breeze that fans her
Sooth her bosom into rest.
Guardian Angels, O, protect her
When in distant lands I roam
To realms unknown while fate exiles me
Make her bosom still my home.

Surpassing even these beautiful compositions are the immortal lines addressed to Mary in Heaven, woven in the vanquished soul of the poet lover on the anniversary of his sweetheart's death. Let this beautiful lyric be read by those who in their own sordid nature would seek to brand this man as a debauched voluptuary. Too many Scotchmen there have been and even more numerous they are today who can interpret the feelings and emotions of their fellow countryman to allow any slander to dim the lustre of one who could suffer in those conflicts of body and spirit as Robert Burns had to do.

This is perhaps the most touching of all the love songs Burns ever wrote:

Thou lingering star, with less'ning ray,
That lov'st to greet the early morn,
Again thou usher'st in the day
My Mary from my soul was torn.
O Mary! dear departed shade!
Where is thy place of blissful rest?
See'st thou thy lover lowly laid?
Hear'st thou the groans that rend his breast?

That sacred hour can I forget
Can I forget the hallowed grove,
Where by the winding Ayr we met,
To live one day of parting love!
Eternity will not efface,
Those records dear of transports past;
Thy image at our last embrace;
Ah! little though we 'twas our last!

Ayr, gurgling, kissed his pebbled shore,
O'erhung with wild woods, thick'ning, green;
The fragrant birch, and hawthorn hoar,
twen'd amorous round the raptured scene;
The flowers sprang wanton to be prest,
The birds sang love on every spray,—
Till too, too soon, the glowing west,
Proclaimed the speed of winged day.

Still o'er these scenes my mem'ry wakes,
And fondly broods with miser care!
Time but the impression stronger makes,
As streams their channels deeper wear.
My Mary dear departed shade!
Where is thy place of blissful rest?
See'st thou thy lover lowly laid?
Hear'st thou the groans that rend his breast?

Numerous indeed are those other beautiful love songs of Burns but time is not at our disposal to quote them. To the Scottish heart they are well known. "Flow Gently Sweet Afton', "I Have Heard the Mavis Singing" and the many sonnets addressed to His bonny Jean. To Jean Armour, Burns gave his love in the stormiest seasons of his passions and through life he proved deserving of it for in his later years she soothed his sorrows, forgave his errors, cheered his heart, inspired his songs, was dutiful as a wife and mother, and revered his memory when parted in death. We love to know that in his courting days he had written: That day and night his fancies flight Was ever wae his Jean.

Let us to the other efforts of his muse and it must only be a grief note here and there as we hasten on from Loch Leo to Mosgiel thence to Edinburgh back to Ellisland and in solemn sadness follow the funeral procession through the streets of Dumfrees and watch the early remains of Scotlands beloved poet laid to rest in St. Michael's church-yard.

We hear to-night two of Burns' well known poems recited which are held in their own class to be of surpassing merit. "The Cotters' Saturday Night" and "Tam O' Shanter!" To those born in rural haunts of Scotland the home life pictured in the Cotters' Saturday night is so true to life that Mrs. Dunlop's old servant said, "He couldna' weel hae writen it otherwise." In Tam O' Shanter, Burns has embodied some of the old Scotish superstitions but through this poem runs a deep moral lesson. None can equal Burns in singing the praises of conviviality and good fellowship. But they come from a good, clean healthful gushing heart and clear intellect.

One more poem must we review. What Scotchman has not heard time and again those lines which make him straighten his toil-stiffened back and with fire in his eye look the world in the face.

Is there, for honest poverty,
That hangs his head and a' that;
The coward slave, we pass him by
We dare be poor for a' that
For a' that and a' that
The rank is but the guinea's stamp
The man's the gowd for a' that.

What though on hamely fare we dine,
Wear hodden-gray, and a' that
Gie fols their silks, and knaves their wine,
A man's a man for a' that
For a' that, and a' that,
Their tinsel show, and a' that;
The honest man, though e'er sae poor,
Is king o' men for a' that.

Ye see yon birkie, ca'd a lord
What struts, and stares and a' that;
Though hundreds worship at his word,
He's but a coof for a' that;
For a' that, and a' that
His riband, star, and a' that;
The man o' independent mind,
He looks and laughs at a' that.

A prince can mak a belted knight
A marquis, due and a' that;
But an honest man's aboon his might—
Guid faith he mauna fa' that!
For a' that and a' that,
Their dignities, and a' that,
The pith o' sense, and pride o' worth,
Are higher ranks than a' that.

Then let us pray that come it may,
As come it will for a' that
That sense and worth o'er a' the earth,
May bear the gree, and a' that.
For a' that, and a' that
It's coming yet, for a' that
The man to man, the warld o'er,
Shall brothers be for a' that.

HISTORY OF STREET LIGHTING.

NEW YORK, January 24 (United Press).— The first street lighting on record was in 1558, when the people of Paris, France, were ordered to place lighted candles in front of their houses. In 1788, pitch or resin bowls were substituted for the candles.

The first use of illuminating gas for street lighting was in London in 1809.

In 1821, Baltimore, Md., used illuminating gas for street lighting.

The first electric arc lights made their appearance in New York City in 1881, while gas mantle lights did not appear for street lighting until 15 years later, in 1896.

NEWEST HATS.

The neewst hats are narrow of brim but very high of crown, but the crowns are so deftly crushed or built up so smartly there is no sense of disproportion.

PINS FOR TURBANS.

Very small pins are worn in the newest turbans, and usually they are large pearls.

DAN COLE WAS FIRST SETTLER BAY OF QUINTE

Died on 5th August, 1836 at the Advanced Age of 105 Years.

THE FIRST U.E.L.

Married Sophia De Long of New York—Raised Family of Ten.

COBOURG, Jan. 24.—There died at Adolphustoun, on the 5th of August, 1836, Daniel Cole at the great age of 105 years, he being the first settler in that township, and not only that, but also the first U.E. Loyalist to take up a land grant in the Bay of Quinte district. Born in Albany, New York, his life was one of thrilling interest. After the outbreak of the American War of Independence, Daniel Cole and his family found their way as Loyalists to the City of New York. He enlisted with the Loyalist Army—probably the second battalion of the King's Royal Regiment, New York—and acted as a spy and a carrier of confidential messages to his commander during a part, at least, of the war. These despatches were placed in a thin steel box, which was inserted in the sole of his shoe. Notwithstanding all this precaution, his life was many times in danger. Previous to resorting to this novel method of carrying despatches, historians state that he was caught upon one occasion. A summary trial followed and Cole was ordered to be hanged, and that immediately. The rope was placed about his neck and the end thrown over the limb of a tree. Cole seized the opportunity when something had for an instant diverted the attention of his captors, and springing from their grasp ran. Shot after shot was fired after him, but he escaped. The Coles were a devout family, and his son, John Cole, telling the story to Dr. William Canniff, said: "God Almight jwould not let the bads hit him."

Daniel Cole and his wife Sophia de Long, of Albany, N.Y., had a family of ten children. They made their way as Loyalists to the City of New York, where they found a refuge until the leaving of Major Van Alstine party for Sorel, Quebec, in the autumn of 1783. There they remained in tents and barracks with other Loyalists during the winter of 1783 and 1784, and in June of the latter year came, with many others, to Adolphastown.

A son of Daniel Cole, John Cole, was ten years of age at that time, and in later years placed on record this description of that memorable trip.

"The brigade of batteaux from Sorel was under the command of an officer named Collins. At Kingston, which they passed, old Mother Cook kept tavern in a hut, consisting of two rooms. One of these was occupied by the man of any travelling party who landed there, the other by the women, all sleeping upon blankets laid on the floor about an open fireplace. From Kingston onward they saw no buildings or tents—all was a complete wilderness. Arrived at Adolphastown they hauled their boat to a block oak tree, which overhung the water." (Later Daniel Cole built a small wharf at this very point.)

Daniel Cole and his party went ashore, but his family numbered two less than when they le't Sorel, for two little children had succumbed there to the rude exigencies of an alterred family life, and were left to sleep in a quiet God's Acre in the French town.

It was the afternoon of a June day in 1784 when the Loyalists went ashore at Adolphustown. The tents of linen were set up and these men and women, who were refugees for the love of King and country, for conscience sake, set up the family altar in a strange new land. John Cole records that these early settlers, in the few years before any man of God or missionary arrived among them to preach the gospel, used to assemble on Sunday afternoons for public reading of the Bible and for prayer.

The Loyalists, after reaching Adolphustown, had to wait in their canvas tents while the sawyers completed their work. In personal notes prepared by Mr. T. W. Casey, of Napanee, for the late Mr. C. C. James, deputy minister of agriculture, it is stated, that the company of loyalists agreed that as Daniel Cole had the largest family he should be allowed to settle at once upon the first lot. Then all turned in and helped him to chop away a small clearing and build a log house. Daniel Cole had brought a scythe with him from New York, and this was used to cut marsh hay or flags with which they constructed a covering for the house. He had also brought with him a few seed potatoes, and so managed to raise a small crop of these that year.

In this way did the first family in the Quinte district enter upon pioneer life in a new world.

In Mr. T. W. Casey's personal notes on these early settlers, it is stated that Arva Ferguson had a farm in Fredericksburg, and that he was a well educated and able man. It is supposed that he drew up the deed for the first Methodist Church, which is stated to be "an able bit of conveyance as regards its composition and penmanship." It is quite probable that he is the man referred to by John Cole who read the Bible to the first settlers in the few years that intervened before the coming of the first missionaries and circuit-riding itinerants to Canada.

It was from the home of Barnard Cole, a son of Daniel Cole, and from his boat, that "the great drowning" took place in front of the Methodist church at Hay Bay in June, 1819. A boatload of eighteen young people were precipitated in the water when their boat suddenly sprang a leak. Eight young women and two young men were drowned, and for many years there was sorrow and lonliness in many homes about the Bay. Four of the Cole family were in the party and one was drowned. This incident was woven into rude verse, and were it available to-day might well be characterized as a Canadian folk-song.

How To Blast Stumps Safely, Effectively

Do Not Attempt to Rid Your Land of Stumps and Roots Until You Know How to Blast.

SET PRIMER LAST.

Different Charges Should be Used for Uprooting Stumps of Different Kinds of Wood.

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 24.—Any farmer can use explosives to clear his land of stumps, without any danger to himself—if he knows how.

The "how" of it is simply system and care in the use of the tools and explosives required for the blasting process.

A complete explanation for farmers who have never even seen a stick of dynamite has been prepared by John Swenehart and W. A. Rowlands.

Low grade and cheaper dynamites do stump work as well or better than higher grades. Due to the slow heaving action rather than a quick shattering action, better work often can be done with the low grade dynamites.

A common No. 6 blasting or detonating cap is dangerous when not properly used. Handle it carefully. The copper shell is filled with sensitive shattering explosive. It is exploded by fire or heat, by friction or by shock.

Keep the caps dry and do not leave them in direct sunlight as they may get hot and explode.

Care in Preparation.

Safety fuse comes in a package of two fifty-foot rolls, one wrapped inside the other. Clover Brand is probably the best all-round brand. It burns at a rate of about 40 to 45 seconds per foot. Crescent and Anchor Brands are good, but burn at the rate of 30 seconds to the foot. Poorer grades of fuse should not be used for agricultural blasting.

Fuse must be kept dry. When cold is should be handled carefully so as not to break or injure it. In very cold weather it may pay to keep it warm. Sharp bends should be avoided.

If fuse becomes pinched or kinked, cut out that portion. Damaged fuses mean miss-fires or hangfires, a dangerous thing in blasting. A good cap crimper should always be used. It promotes both safety and efficiency.

Priming.

Priming consists of placing the cap and fuse in the charge of dynamite. This is usually done with one cartridge.

Cut the fuse squarely with the fuse cutter on cap crimper or with a sharp knife. Trim off an inch or so at the end and throw this away as the end may have become damaged or wet.

Fuse cut off squarely is easily inserted in the cap until it touches the charge. Fuse should not be twisted or forced into the cap.

Cap Crimper Safe.

Carefully secure cap to fuse with a cap crimper made for that purpose. Pinchers, pliers, jack knives or other makeshifts are inefficient and unsafe.

Make hole in the side of the cartridge with the handle of cap crimper so that cap will lie lengthwise in the cartridge (Figure 1 in accompanying illustration). Soften the cartridge if necessary by rolling between the hands.

To fasten cap and fuse to cartridge, first make four or five wraps with a coarse string about 20 inches long, around fuse a little above the cap. These wraps should cover the end of string so as to grip tightly (Fig. 2).

Wrap string tightly (Fig. 4).

Next wrap the loose end of string around both cartridge and fuse above cap three or four times, finally drawing the end under between fuse and cartridge (Fig. 5). Draw the string tight. Ane extra turn about the fuse will help hold the end more securely.

Effect've Po'nt.

Place the centre of the charge of explosive directly underneath the holding part of the stump. If a stump has a uniform root system, the charge can be placed under the centre. If the stump is more firmly rooted on one side, the explosive should be placed nearer that side.

PLACE CHARGE UNDERNEATH CENTRE OF TREE, AS AT LEFT, IF ROOTS ARE UNIFORM; OR TOWARD THE MOST FIRMLY ROOTED SIDE, AS AT RIGHT, IF UNEVEN.

It is impossible to get one charge under the centre of a taprooted stump except with a boring outfit to bore into the taproot. Otherwise, place a large load close against the taproot so as to cut it off and release the stump.

Push wooden tamp stick down in borehole to locate any obstructions. Then prepare cartridge for loading Slit each cartridge wrapper with th point of a knife so that the cartridge will pack solidly in the bottom of the hole.

After the cartridge has been slit, pressure with tamp stick breaks it and packs it tightly in the hole, forcing out all air which might act as a cushion.

Put the primer in last. Do not slit the primer. To do so might cause the cap to be misplaced or removed.

The cap should be kept pointed toward the main part of the charge. Press the primed cartridge down firmly but avoid jarring.

Put two or three inches of moist earth, preferably clay, on top of the primer. Press this down carefully, then tamp the hole full of moist earth. Sod, leaves or dry sand are not good.

Put in a little at a time and tamp well, but keep small stones or pebbles out of the hole. Thorough tamping prevents escape of gases. Careless tamping is one of the most common sources of loss among explosive users. In dry or sandy soils, water with the tamping will help.

Slit end of fuse for lighting. Slit should be made one-half way through on upper side sopowder cannot fall out (Fig. 7).

Scratch the match and then quickly force the head into the slit end of the fuse just as the match flares up. The melting red hot head of the match fires the powder. Do not try to hold the flame under the end of fuse. When the powder in the fust lights there is a spit which can be seen and heard.

A hang fire is a charge which fails to go off at the proper time when fuse is lighted, but later does explode.

To avoid hang fires:

Prime carefully, using approve method oda. Use good fuse that has been kept dry. Avoid bending, pinching, otherwise damaging fuse. Use cap

Do not investigate hang fires until next day. By that time they will be misfires.

Avoid removing a misfire by placing a second charge as this may only throw unexploded cap out in field where it may be walked on or otherwise be accidentally set off.

To remove misfire, carefully dig out charge following fuse and gradually work soil away with hands or piece of wood until charge is reached. This should be done very carefully, however, taking plenty of time to avoid exploding of the cap by friction or impact. The charge can then be removed, or if the explosive is still dry, a new carefully-primed cartridge can be put in, hole tamped full, and load fired.

WORLD'S GREAT MINING FIELDS ARE IN ONTARIO

More Than Half of This Province is Underlain With Rich Minerals.

RICH OUTLOOK.

Development of Mineral Wealth is Encouraged by Provincial Government.

The province of Ontario comprises 407,262 square miles of territory; more than half of this is known to be underlain by rich mineral deposits. Seventy per cent. of these mineral lands are in the pre-Cambrian shield area, one of the richest metal producing formations known in the world. Ontario has the greatest and almost the only important nickel deposits in the world. It has developing gold fields that are promising to challenge the great fields of the Rand. It has silver mines that have long been an important factor in the world's silver production. It produces, in addition, a quarter of the copper mined in the Dominion, that is, one of the most important world sources for this mineral; and it produces also 100 per cent. of the Cobalt. In addition, there is found and mined in Ontario, all the economic minerals with the exception of coal and tin. In one year alone, 1923, its mines produced to the value of $79,916,836.

The development of Ontario's mineral wealth is encouraged by the Provincial Government in many ways. A trained staff of geologists is maintained, and reports and maps on new areas, as well as the remapping of old, form part of the Department's programme in aid of both the prospector and the miner. Publications are distributed free of charge. An assay office is maintained at Toronto for the free identification of minerals, and for free assays under the provisions of the Mining Act, as well as for general assay work. At Cobalt the Department of Mines operates an assaying, ore sampling and testing laboratory for gold and silver ores. Shipments of gold ore from 100 pounds up are also accepted, and after sampling and assaying and deducting treatment charges, the shipper is paid for the gold. This is an aid to prospectors and also those who have a new operation in its preliminary stages.

Federal Farm Facts

Livestock prices during 1924 did not keep pace with increased production costs. The relatively short corn crop and resulting high prices had a slightly stimulating effect on prices, but these drove hogs to market in unprecedented numbers and materially reduced the number of cattle on feed.

April was the best month for cattle men, as prices went. By the end of June, prices fell below those of 1923 and continued lower to the end of the year, except for two or three weeks in summer.

By Dec. 1, 1924, only 86 per cent. as many cattle as a year earlier were on feed in the principal feeding areas. Slaughter percentages increased accordingly, showing a tendency toward liquidation.

Production of all types of tobacco grown in the United States was smaller in 1924 than a year before. Total crop was 1,243,000,000 pounds, as against 1,515,000,000 pounds in 1923.

Sheep men fared best of all in 1924. Their industry liquidated in 1921, world shortage of sheep and wool in 1923, a brisk demand for lamb and mutton and a protective tarruff of 31 cents a pound on wool, all helped the good year along. Thousands of unborn lambs and millions of pounds of wool, which won't be shipped for another four or five months, have already been contracted for at favorable prices.

The average pig litter costs $16. If the sow saves four instead of eight you pay dearly for incorrect management.

PROPER WAY TO CARE FOR EWES IN THE WINTER

Breeding Ewes Should be Fed on Alfalfa Hay—Clover Hay Also Good.

PLENTY OF WATER.

Small Amount of Grain Each Day Will Strengthen and Fatten Them.

If ewes are to produce good lambs they must have good feed and plenty of exercise. This does not mean that they should be fat. The aim should be to keep them in good thrifty condition. If plenty of roughage is available, the ewes, as a rule, will not need grain feed until about six weeks before lambing. Alfalfa hay is one of the best feeds for breeding ewes. The clover hays are also good and should be used when alfalfa is not available or they can be mixed with the alfalfa to very good advantage. The run of a stalk field in the fall and early winter and the use of corn stover or sorghum and similar fodders will help to lower the cost of winter keep, but as these feeds supply only a small amount of growth materials, the ewes should not be forced to subsist on them alone, as weak lambs will likely be the result. Used in connection with alfalfa or one of the clover hays, however, they make a very good winter ration.

Watch the flock closely, and if any of the ewes begin to get thin in flesh, start feeding those ewes a small amount of grain each day. All the ewes in the flock ought to be put on a light grain feed about six weeks before lambing. About a half pound a day of a mixture of about two-thirds oats and one-third corn or barley for each ewe is very good for the grain ration. If one is fortunate enough to have a good wheat or rye pasture available, the ewes should have access to it at all times when weather conditions will permit. No other winter feed gives quite such good results.

A supply of good water at all times is an important consideration. If the water can be heated in very cold weather just enough to remove the chill, it will be better for the ewes.

Many sheepmen make the mistake of housing their flocks too closely in tight barns during the winter. A good dry place is all that is needed. It is very important to keep sheep from getting wet in the winter. A mature sheep does not need much protection from the cold as its fleece will keep it warm enough. A food shed, open to the south, will serve the purpose of winter shelter very well. If this shed, or the yard surrounding it, opens into a large pasture, the run on the pasture every day will add to the health and thrift of the flock.—Turner Wright.

EASY TO KEEP ICE.

Small House Will Store Cooling Blocks For 50 Cows.

It only requires a house 18 by 12 feet, 12 feet high to store 50 tons of ice. Fifty tons of ice will keep cool milk from 50 cows during the summer. Ice is a boon to the farm; there are many good things that may be had where there is ice. Ice cream and iced drinks are appreciated in the heat of mid-summer. A double wall building with the space between the walls filled with chopped straw will keep the ice.

COSTBOOK SYSTEM WILL MAKE FARMERS MORE BUSINESS LIKE

System Advises Farmers to Raise Stock That Will Bring Big Returns.

DON'T WASTE TIME.

Ex-Farmer Completed Plan That Should Make Farming More Successful.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 24.—Henry O. Nickel, Chicago accountant, is out to make a business man out of the farmer.

He has devised a farm cost-book system, different from others that have come out, and so simple in operation, he says, that the farmer needs no one to help him keep it.

Nickel's system is a product of a farming experience that took him through practically every step of agricultural activity. He had eight years of practical farming in Montana, where he engaged in diversified agriculture and raised livestock. The experience brings him to this conclusion:

"If the American farmer could get some idea of what it costs him to produce his crops and his livestock, he would soon be on a business basis and free from many of the troubles he has experienced in the past."

His bookkeeping system is a result.

How it Works.

The farmer under this system, explains Nickel, keeps track of what his labor either that of himself, his family or his hired men, is on each ob each day At night he can jot down, on the page provided in his cost book, the amount of labor put in on each job each day. With this down the farmer can forget his books until it is convenient to work out his costs.

The cost system provides for keeping track of the amount of farm produce consumed by the family and the animals during the year. It provides for the depreciation on farm equipment, all worked out over a period of eight years by Nickel.

At the end of the year the farmer takes his final sheet, his profit and loss account and can make up his income tax in an hour, can tell at a glance where he made and lost money and just what each operation cost. From this he can learn, also, what short cuts can be used next year to cut operation costs.

Least Effort.

"My cost book is a workable accounting system that any farmer can master with the minimum of effort," explains Nickel. "I am of the opinion that most farmers are in the same boat that I was in. I didn't know what to raise to make the most money for my inventment and effort and later found that I was on the wrong track in raising cattle.

"If every farmer could only learn what to raise to make the most money, the prosperity of all farmers, and consequently the nation, would be greater.

"There are no great secrets connected with my system. I want the farmers to have it. I want to help. I have suffered on a farm because of misdirected effort and low prices and I have a great sympathy with the man who is losing money I have been through that, too.'

Better Corn Yield By Growing Clover

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 24.—Six times as much corn was produced, to each acre, on land where clover was plowed under on one North Carolina farm than was obtained from similar land that had had no clover.

From this and similar experiences, H. C. Blair, extension agronomist for North Carolina State College, advises farmers throughout the corn belt to plow their land under with clover.

Not only does this increase the yield, he says, but it permits of better drainage during wet weather and of greater moisture-holding capacity during dry spells.

On the land where Blair made his experiments, he got 30 bushels of corn to an acre on wet land where clover had been plowed under, to five bushels an acre on similar land that had no clover. Both fields were fertilized with 400 pounds of acid phosphate and the one with no clover received an additional application of 50 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre.

The great difference in yield, Blair points out, was caused by the moisture of the land. The clover also helped in giving air to the soil and in promoting better drainage.

In Nebraska, Blair also shows, two years of sweet clover is expected to increase the corn yield that follows by 68 per cent. Similar results could be shown in other parts of the corn area.

YOUNG FARMERS' SOCIAL AFFAIR

Short Course Students and Junior Club Enjoy Evening at Centreville.

VARIED PROGRAM

BAILIEBORO, Jan. 23. — The South Monaghan U.F.Y.P.O. club and members of the South Monaghan Agricultural short course held a joint entertainment and social evening in the hall at Centreville on Wednesday evening.

A good programme was provided and when the hour for commencing arrived the hall was crowded with an attentive audience of members of the short course, and of the club as well as the parents and friends of both.

Willard Waterman acted as chairman, and proved to be a most capable leader, while the programme consisted of "group singing by all," "class yell by the girls," "an appropriate speech by the chairman," readings by Miss Gertrude Benson, a member of the girls' sewing class, violin solo by Wilfrid Johnson, piano accompaniment by Miss Grace Johnston, piano duet by Misses Bernice and Florence Barnard, solos by Wesley Bradshaw, short addresses by Rev. A. H. McConnachie, Mrs. Ailsworth of Toronto, instructress of the girls' sewing class, and Mr. Fraser Ross of Fort William, instructor and chief lecturer of the young men's agricultural class. Roy Rutherford, a member of the U.F.Y.P.O. convention, which was held in Toronto a couple of weeks ago. The speaker's report deal especially along the lines of the various methods that might be taken to strengthen a club, to increase the membership, and of the various ways in which the club meeitngs might be made interesting, and educating so that the members would always be anxious to attend the meeting, and to derive the benefit that could be obtained from such instructive meetings. This talk was especially well rendered, and the members of the club were immensely pleased by the report brought back by their delegate. At the conclusion of this part of the programme, Mr. Ross had the moving picture machine present and showed the delighted audience a half hour picture comedy of Charlie Chaplin' on an ocean voyage. The class orchestra, consisting of six pieces, made up by Miss Viola White, Messrs. Herb. Cardwell, Clifford Wood, James Wood, Clifford Emberson and Wilfrid Johnston, provided excellent music throughout the evening, both during the programme, picture slides and for a couple of hours' dancing at the conclusion of the programme, everyone engaging in the latter part of the programme which was kept up until midnight. During the evening home-made candy was provided, and everyone reported an excellent time.

Personal Mention.

Miss Williams has succeeded Mrs. Ailsworth of Toronto, as instructress of the girls' class at Centreville. The next fortnight under the supervision of Miss Williams will be entirely on household science.

Miss Kathleen Isbister and friend of Peterborough, were guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Isbister, Centreville.

Miss Charlotte Barnard left on Thursday last for Lindsay, where she has entered Ross Memorial hospital, and will train for a nurse there.

The Trail Rangers and Mission Band of the Methodist church are planning to hold an entertainment on February 14th.

FARMERS' OUTLOOK FOR 1925 BRIGHT

Prices For Hogs, Beef Cattle, Sheep and Wool Will Be Higher.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 24. — "The outlook for agriculture in 1925 is more rosy than it has been for some time," is the prediction of Andrew Boss, economist of the University of Minnesota experiment station here.

"There is good statistical foundation," he says, "for the belief that prices for hogs, beef cattle, sheep and wool will be higher in 1925 than they were in 1924. There is strong prospect for a shortage of breeding hogs and a known shortage of wool.

"Apparently the cattle business has been completely deflated and better prices seem sure to follow. Present prospects are that prices for dairy and poultry products may hold steady or increase slightly, provided there does not occur a business and industrial depression which will deprive city laborers of much of their buying power.

"Present high prices for wheat and rye indicate a world shortage of breadstuffs. This shortage is not likely to be made up in the crops of 1925. It is likely therefore that profit-bearing prices will be paid for wheat and rye.

"Flax seed should bring good prices in 1925 and corn will be in strong demand. The shortage of corn is reflected in a stronger demand for oats, barley and other feed crops.

"The farmer who weeds out wasteful practices, develops efficient methods of production, and a good system of business management has nothing to fear either in 1925 or in the years to follow."

ALFALFA ON HEAVY SOIL.

The best plan of handling heavy gumbo soil which is well drained is to seed it to alfalfa and leave it in a crop like alfalfa, which requires no cultivation, for as long periods as possible. Sweet clover and the addition of manure will also cure heaviness of soil.

GET BEST FERTILIZER.

It pays the farmer to get only the ghg analysis fertilizers this year. Such hoods save freight, save cost of handling, do not require so much filler and are made from the best materials.

FARM ENGINEERS.

Agricultural engineers are wanted throughout the country more than ever before. Power companies especially want men with a farming background to handle the distribution of their electric power work.

ANNA PAVLOVA'S WELL KEPT SECRET

Married for 17 Years Without Her Friends Ever Suspecting.

ONE WHO KNOWS HER.

Anna Pavlova, the dancing idol of Kings and Commoners, has thrown up her brilliant future for a domestic career at a moment when the whole world is literally at her feet. "I have always wanted a home with a kitchen," she declares. "No matter what is said to the contrary, such is the genuine, heartfelt desire of every woman."

With her natural penchant for setting the world agog with speculation, however, Pavlova has ended her dancing career with a first-class shock to her admirers. Not even her closest friends suspected that she had been secretly married for seventeen years. According to her American passport, for she has a naive habit of letting interesting facts slip out by "accident," it is stated that she has been wed to her accompanist, Mr. Andre Dermide, for that time, and it is now her intention to live in Paris in quietude, and adopt a family of fifteen Russian refugee children.

The secrecy surrounding her marriage is due to Pavlova's highly sensitive temperament. She has always held the view that while her dancing belongs to the public her husband does not, and regards him as her own private property, with which the public have no concern.

Pavlova's present tour in America, she states, will be the last, although it remains to be seen whether she will be able to refuse the tempting baits from the various promoters to bring her back.

Tragic and Conquered Career.

Knowing her as I do, I do not believe she will ever return to the dancing platform once she takes up "private life." For nearly twenty years she has looked forward to settling down in happiness where she could forget her somewhat tragic and chequered career. The theme of Pagliacci—the artist who charmed the public with a heart burst with grief—never had a truer reflection than in the case of Pavlova. Time and again, she has said—"I shall never know real happiness until I retire."

I remember on one occasion when she was due to go on the stage at the De Montfort Hall, Leicester, that a telegram arrived from a friend announcing that the whole of her family had been murdered in Russia. But she could not disappoint her audience. She did her swan dance trembling and in tears, but with her usual incomparable technique, and the public cheered vociferously, evidently thinking that her apparent grief was part of the performance. Nobody guessed the truth. When she left the stage, however, she had to be carried to her dressing-room. The news, however, turned out not as sad as the wire indicated, as she subsequently met her mother in London.

Anna Pavlova was born in St. Petersburg, where her mother was a washerwoman and laundress. Happily, she was also a woman of sterling character, who was devoted to her only daughter, and did her utmost to give her good upbringing.

A memorable event occurred in little Anna's life when she was eight years of age. This was her first visit to the theatre. The little girl was enraptured, particularly by the dancing. At once she determined to become a ballerina!

When Anna reached home she shared her secret with her mother, who, yielding to her demands, secured her entrance two years later to the State-aided Imperial Conservatoire at St. Petersburg, where the dancers who took part in the Imperial Ballet were trained. Anna was seventeen years of age when she made her debut. At once she leapt into the forefront. Joining a troupe, she toured all the principal countries of the Continent. Everywhere she received enthusiastic receptions. For instance, in Stockholm the King of Sweden attended the performances, and thereafter she was escorted to her hotel by huge crowds of delighted admirers, who gave vent to their feelings in songs and shouts of admiration.

The Dancer's Motto.

Not yet accustomed to such demonstrations, Pavlova asked her maid the reason of such enthusiasm. "You make them forget for an hour the troubles of life," was the reply.

This simple explanation impressed itself on the mind of the dancer, and ever afterwards she adopted it as a sort of motto. Her life work was to make wearied workers forget the troubles of life.

After a memorable visit to Paris, Anna came to Britain in 1910, and was so charmed with the country that she chose London as her second home. She acquired a house with spacious grounds in Hampstead, and to the "house-warming" she invited about 600 guests, including members of the aristocracy and leading lights in the world of politics, arts, and the sciences.

She has probably made longer tours than any other dancer, on one occasion travelling twenty-seven thousand miles in six months, performing at a different town every day. To appreciate exactly what this means is to recall the mild sensation she created in London by her arrival with over three hundred large boxes and cases, which kept a whole army of porters busy for hours carrying them to her hotel. She had the reputation of being the "luggage" dancer because she carried more than anybody, and must have spent thousands of pounds on carriage expense.

Many of these boxes were crammed tight with silken dancing shoes of white, red, and gold, which in themselves represented a small fortune. She always estimated that it cost three pairs a performance, as she would never dance in a pair which had become stretched or even slightly soiled. And there was never a shoe in London to suit Pavlova. She tried at all places to get stocks but the samples were unsuitable, until eventually she made a contract with a Milan manufacturer to send a huge box of shoes once a fortnight to whatever part of the world where she was dancing. She kept a small factory going exclusively with her wares.

Pavlova thinks that Great Britain should be the world's dancing centre. "The British people," she once said to me, "are born dancers and do not know it, especially Scots girls. I would love to start a school." She did eventually institute one at her Hampstead home, where she trained seven girls. Here she caused another of her sensations by dancing with her pupils around the lake of her Hampstead garden with bare arms, and feet only covered with silken slippers. The garments were the lightest drapings, exhibiting bare knees and legs.

She trained them on the principles of her own tuition. The teaching lasted seven years before they were allowed to appear on the stage, when their salary was assured, and at the end of their dancing careers they were to receive pensions. The school, however, broke up when Pavlova took her most promising pupils to America with her on tour.

On the fateful first day in August, 1914, when war was declared by Germany against Russia, Pavlova was seen weeping at the railway station in Berlin. The German authorities allowed her to leave Berlin, and never again did she return to that city.

Her Pet Swans.

At her London home Pavlova keeps several beautiful swans, to which she is devoted, in memory of her first great success as the "Dying Swan." Unhappily, when she returned to London, after touring for several years in America, the swans failed to recognize her, and showed their displeasure by shrieking and attempting to bite her. It was indeed an unaccustomed and ungracious greeting for the "poetess of dancing."

Yet, despite the bouquets and presents she has received from Royalty of every country which must exceed that of any living dancer, Anna Pavlova prefers the kitchen. It is no new desire. After her most successful nights in London, Paris, and New York I have heard her remark—"Yes, it is wonderful; but I envy the girl with a nice, cozy home. That is my idea of real happiness." "You should marry," I suggested. "Ah," she replied, stretching out her arms with a gesture, "there is no husband for the artist. I belong to the public. How can I dance and keep a happy home? No, no, it is quite impossible."

And from that I gathered she would never marry until the day came for retirement. She now announces, in view of the revelation of her marriage, that Pavlova the dancer and Pavlova the wife are two different persons, and "I mean to keep them separate."

STORING CAR FOR WINTER

By HAROLD F. BLANCHARD.

Are you going around the world this year? Or, following the example of the birds, are you planning to winter in the South? Is there any reason—whether it be travel or merely the long, cold winter—which will induce you to put your car away for an extended period of time? If so, in the interests of economy, it is wise, indeed, to properly prepare the automobile for its long retreat.

It really takes very little time to put the car in condition, and once the proper precautions are known, there is no excuse why everyone should not follow them. At the same time, there will always be some motorists who will be anxious to get by without spending even this minimum of effort. To these it should be said, that if just one thing is to be done to the car that one thing should be the removal of the storage battery.

A storage battery does not take kindly to idleness; it is a chemical machine which thrives on action. Therefore, the proper thing to do, just before putting the car away, is to take it to a batteryman and have him store the battery for you. Whether the battery is stored "dry" or "wet" may be left to the judgment of the batterymen.

Next in importance to removing the battery is the thorough cleaning of the car. Dirt and mud especially have the power to destroy varnish and paint, and spots of mud which are allowed to stand for months will surely leave marks that cannot be eradicated. Therefore, before the car is laid up it should be carefully washed and dried.

All metal parts, especially nickeled and brass parts, should be carefully polished and then coated with vaseline. It is sufficient to rub the vaseline on the parts with a soft rag, but care should be taken not to get any of the vaseline on the varnish. Any metal parts not protected by paint, and therefore liable to rust, should be coated with vaseline.

It should be remembered that all liquids in the car have more or less sediment in them, and that if this sediment is allowed to lie for months it is likely to become quite firm, causing various troubles depending on the construction. In the cooling system, for example, after the car has been in operation for several months there is certain to be a muddy sediment in the bottom of the radiator. If this is not cleaned out it may become so hard after several months as to seriously interfere with, if not actually shut off, the circulation of the water. Therefore, just before putting the car away for the long rest, it is advisable to fill the radiator with a solution of washing soda, using about a pound of soda to a gallon water, then running the engine for perhaps half-an-hour, or at least until the solution becomes thoroughly hot. The cooling system should then be drained and flushed with clean water.

It is not advisable to leave the engine, transmission or rear axle with oil. Racing the engine is the simplest way to be sure that the pistons and cylinders are covered with oil. Failure to cover the pistons with oil may result in rusting of the pistons.

The gasoline system should be drained. The first step is to drain about a pint of gasoline from the carbureter thus drawing off any sediment in it. Then the drain plug in the bottom of the gasoline tank should be removed, and the fuel drawn off. Incidentally, it is a good plan to drain the rear tanks once a year, whether the car is put away or not, in order to remove the dirt. It is surprising how much dirt will be found.

Tires are susceptible to oil, light and moisture. It is therefore advisable to jack up all four wheels and place small horses under the axles so that the tires will be off the floor. At the same time, it is a good plan to deflate the tires as the strain on the fabric of carrying sixty or eighty pounds pressure per square inch over a period of several months is avoided. The spare tires, of course, should not be overlooked.

The car should be protected from dust and light by covering it with a cheap cotton fabric or paper. Paper covers are more economical and are made in various sizes to fit various cars.

MENTAL LAZINESS IN THE PRESENT AGE

Matters of Secondary Importance Seems to Control the Mind.

One of the besetting sins of our age is a refusal to think—steadily and without prejudice. Memory is trained and strengthened. Facts are supplied and stored in the recesses of the mind. But the power of sustained thought, is by no means, a characteristic of our time. If a choice were offered a man of becoming a member of a debating society on the one hand or a member of a dancing club on the other hand, is there any doubt that in the majority of cases the choice would be made in favor of the latter? It is a grave reflection on our times that the things (such as betting and gambling) that claim most interest in many quarters are just the things that elicit least thought and demand the smallest amount of mental concentration. Judgments and conclusions proffered by others are accepted with avidity and without question. Mental laziness and indulgence prevent men from forming decisions on their own responsibility. The search for truth is too tedious and troublesome to bother about it. Thinking is done by proxy. Independent thought is done by the few. The newspaper, which is in reality a provider of news, has to a large extent usurped the function of the individual's reasoning powers in this respect—and there is scarcely a protest.

Moreover, when the energies of the mind are exercised it is generally on matters of secondary purpose. The questions of the hour are such as these—"Can I secure shorter hours of labour?" "How can I get higher wages?" "How can I swell my banking account?" "How can I bring the other fellow down to my level?" "By what means can I have more pleasure?"

It is reasonable, then, that there should be an appeal for solid thinking of higher themes. Religion is one of the noblest subjects which the human mind can devote itself. It is really the greatest instrument that we know that can help to clairfy the mind, restore perspective and ennoble the mind. There is nothing which will so readily banish prejudice and destroy petty jealousy as the study and practice of religion. It is the custom for unthinking people to decry religion and its representatives, to sneer at its so-called pretensions, and to deride its message. Now there have been times when religion was encumbered with superstition and the Church with idolatry. Even yet some of these may still survive. But when all is said that can be said by destructive critics against religion there still remains the fact that religion has been the great determinative, regulative, and constitutive power in the history of the human race. It is still the only force that can bring order out of chaos and harmony out of discord. It is still the only thing that will enable men to realise national and social ideals, and to establish the utopian world. It is only an unthinking world that would leave God—the Maker of history and the Author of religion—out of account.

What, then, is man's first duty in the present age? It is this—think Think about the highest things Think about religion Think about God The supporters of religion have no cause to fear the thoughtful man. They welcome him. They know he will be a decided asset. Think Think on the noblest themes, and this will make thinking on lesser themes easier and more accurate.

A DANGEROUS SEASON FOR THE LITTLE ONES

Winter—with its extreme changes of temperature—one day warm and bright, the next cold and stormy, is decidedly dangerous to the health of little ones. The mother is afraid to take the children out for the fresh air and exercise they need so much. The children are cooped up in overheated, badly ventilated rooms and in consequence many of them are seized with colds or grippe. What is needed to keep the little ones well is Baby's Own Tablets. They are a sure regulator of the stomach and bowels and in this way drive out constipation and indigestion and break up colds or grippe. By their use baby will be aided in getting over the winter season with perfect safety. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SOME HAIR HINTS

True Facts on This Important Subject.

The Girl with Regular Features.

should dress her hair close to her head, the front hair being brushed straight back, and arranged to fall in ripples on each side of the forehead.

The Older Woman

looks distinguished if her hair is dressed elaborately and high, fancy pins or a handsome comb giving a finishing touch to the coiffure.

Ugly Grey Hairs.

Hair of this description may be given a beautiful silver white tone by using the whites of three eggs beaten to a froth, and mixed with one teaspoonful of salts of tartar. Then rub into the hair some soapsuds, and rinse with several waters into which a little borax has been put.

Hair Requires Light and Air.

It is very beneficial to the hair to give it a sun bath—taking it down and sitting at an open window where the sun will stream down on it. Also, the hair should not be crushed for long periods under hot, tight-fitting hats. If you wear a sports hat of felt, a few holes can easily be made in the crown of it, which will give at least a little ventilation. These can be made with a stiletto such as is used for needlework, making the holes very small, of course.

Baldness.

Comparatively few women suffer from baldness, and the number is less than thirty or more years ago, when every matron considered she was not properly dressed at work or in her leisure unless she donned a cap, which not only confined her hair, but heated it unduly, and induced gradual decay and falling. Some authorities ascribe baldness to the presence of a microbe; usually it may be traced to a want of tone in the scalp or hair follicles, but so long as these are not diseased there is a hope of fresh hairs springing up if care and stimulating means are employed under reliable direction. Men are much more prone to baldness than women—a fact which may be accounted for by the almost continual wearing of tight, hard, unventilated hats. Some one has pointed out that a bald-headed Red Indian is unknown, and points the assertion with the moral that if we foreswore headgear and foorwear we might retain our natural hirsute adornments very much longer than is usual in civilised communities. A hair specialist, in discussing this subject with me recently, averred that the baldness from which many men suffered was the result of their sitting directly under the rays of a gas-jet or electric light, the heat of which burned up the hair in much the same manner as a broiling sun scorches grass.

SHORT CUTS TO BEAUTY.

Milady Can Make Her Own Toilet Needs.

A Discoloured Neck.

The neck sometimes becomes discoloured as a result of wearing furs. Try this cure:—Take a handful of parsley and pour over it a teacupful of boiling water, add a teaspoonful of borax, cover, and allow to stand till cool, strain into a bottle, and apply to the neck, night and morning, allowing it to dry on.

Keep Your Hands Soft.

During the colder weather there are many whose hands "chap," and are a source of great trouble and discomfort. The skin requires to be nourished, and the following cream will be found beneficial:—Take 6 tablespoonfuls of melted mutton fat, 1 tablespoonful glycerine, the juice of a lemon, ½ teaspoonful borax, and 6 drops simple tincture of benzoin. Beat with a silver fork till cool and creamy, and pour into a jar. Apply nightly, and wear a pair of loose kid gloves.

A Lotion for the Hands.

Take ½ oz. glycerine, ½ oz. witch hazel, ½ oz. rectified spirits, ½ pint rose water, and 1-8 oz. gum tragacanth. Mix well, bottle, and massage a little into the skin of the hands after washing.

Bath Crystals.

Take 2 lb. sodium bicarbonate crystals, ½ drachm of oil of rose geranium, and 1 drachm of oil of lavender. Mix the two oils together, then take a wide-mouthed bottle and put in a layer, 2 inches deep, of the crystals, over this sprinkle ½ teaspoonful of the mixed oils, shake thoroughly, cork, and allow to stand for two days, continue this till the crystals are used up, then allow to stand for a month, shaking occasionally, and keeping the bottle tightly corked. The crystals will then be ready for use, in the preparation of 1 tablespoonful to a bath of warm water.

The Eyes.

When the eyes are tired, a pinch of boric acid should be put into the eye bath and this filled up with warm water.

Enlarged Knuckles.

Sufferers from rheumatism, or even those with a tendency to rheumatism, directly the cold weather appears, complain of enlarged knuckles, which are most unsightly. A little colourless iodine applied two or three times a week, the knuckles being well massaged with cold cream each morning.

For the Dance.

Naturally you want your neck and arms to look beautifully white when you are going to a dance.

Wet a piece of cotton wool in hot water, squeeze out a little of the moisture, dip it in the powder you use for your face, and apply evenly over neck, shoulders, and arms. When almost dry, smooth over with the powder puff, and you will be charmed with the result.

"How curious it is," remarked Algie to Ethel, "that all your sisters are fair and you are a brunette!"

"Yes," she replied. "But that's easily explained. I was born in a flat where children were prohibited, and had to be kept dark!"

EBB OF GOLDEN TIDE MAY MEAN SOUNDER MONEY

Forty Million Dollars Left Europe in the First 27 Days of December.

IMPORTS HEAVY.

United States Holds Two-fifths of All the Monetary Gold in the World.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24 (Associated Press).—Year-end figures make available today a clearer picture of whether Europe's mortgaged pre-war gold on deposit here has definitely begun to go back home, and if so, to what extent.

A remarkable outbound movement of the yellow metal amounting to $40,242,000 in the first 27 days of December produced the first surplus of exports over imports in a single month since August, 1920. More gold went out during the entire 12 months of either 1923, 1922 or 1921. Its impetus obviously developed under the cumulative pressure of foreign loans amounting to $1,623,696,000, which American banks turned back into depleted but premium-paying reservoirs abroad in 1924 some $350,000,000 of which were arranged in the last three months. Whether foreign loans in the new year of 1925 will take up at the extraordinary rate the old year left off is expected to determine whether this new export phase in gold is to be continuous and permanent.

Some bankers would reserve decision and, for the time being, average the closing month's spirited ebb tide with the 12 months as a whole. Comparison of 1924 and 1923, with figures for 1924 as yet approximate, reveals:

	Exports	Imports	Balance
1924—	$62,226,478	$315,684,387	$253,457,909

Thus, it is seen that where the United States received across the international counter in 1923 11 times as much monetary gold as it paid out, in the year 1924 it received only five times as much. Export shipments for the past 12 months are seen to have doubled. Net imports fell off one-seventh.

Meanwhile the United States still holds two-fifths of all the $10,000,000,000 in monetary gold in the world. This stock according to some financial observers, is twice as much as is required to support the credit and currency facilities adequate to trade needs. They would like to see gold continue to ebb in proportions sufficient to take up the slack.

They further welcome a growing gold demand abroad as an earnest of increasing sound money sentiment among other nations. This would bring them out of the wilderness of paper money and depreciated currencies and back under the gold standard. It would also save the United States from the threat of any general repudiation of gold, of which it holds the greatest single portion. Were the world at large to turn its back upon gold as a basis for monetary systems it would leave the United States with its gold stock like a white elephant on its hands; a stock with lessened use and correspondingly lessened value.

HAD BOILS ALL OVER HIM

There is only one way to get rid of boils and that is by going right to the seat of the trouble—the blood—as the bad blood must be made pure before the boils will disappear.

BURDOCK

cleanses the system and removes all the foul matter from the blood in a way that few medicines will do.

Mrs. Chas. Rankin, Bulyea, Sask., writes:—"A few years ago my husband had a terrible time with boils. On one arm he had 16 between his elbow and wrist; five on the back of his neck, and several more on different parts of his body. He tried everything he could think of, but got no relief until he took Burdock Blood Bitters, and to his surprise it completely relieved him of his boils in a very short time."

SOCIETY AT UNION STATION

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 24 (United Press).—"Ed, I should have worn my plug hat! We've walked right into the governor's inaugural ball."

Such exclamations are common around Kansas City's union station. Tired, sleepy-eyed and weary travelers arriving in this city in the early hours of the morning are greeted with queer sights. The union station is the rendezvous for the city's society revelers.

Travelers from all over the country have been astonished at finding the fashionable restaurant and the spacious lobby of the station crowded with young men and women dressed in evening clothes and in a genial party mood.

From midnight until 3 o'clock in the morning the rush of travel and business in the building is transformed into a parade of wealth.

Few persons are to be seen in the lobby except in evening dress. The odor of perfume and cosmetics mixes with that of smoke and sweeping compound. Shrill laughter is heard in place of low mumblings of weary wayfarers.

In the restaurant every table is taken. Costly furs line the racks. Silver cigarette and vanity casesflash. Occasionally silver flasks are also seen as "spirits" are added to the parties.

Friends screech greetings across the house as the hours grow later. Gay singers strike up popular airs. A group gathers around the table and the singing gets louder.

The very common food of wheat cakes or cinnamon toast takes best with those who visit the station restaurant in the early hours.

Shortly after 3 o'clock the crowd begins to thin out. The costly evening wraps and coonskin coats sweep languidly through the lobby, the wearers singing happily or doing intricate jazz steps on the smooth marble floor.

Scores of expensive motor cars jam up to the entrance and the couples step into them and speed away.

The after-the-theatre and after-the-dance pilgrimages to the union station has become the distinguishing mark of those "who know what is done" in Kansas City society.

GOOD ADVICE BUYING AUTO

What is it Going to Take to Run It and Can You Afford Expenditure.

AVOID OVERHANG.

By MOTOR MECHANIC.

In a recent article, I indicated how the potential buyer might avoid some of the more obvious pitfalls he is likely to encounter in his search for the car he wants at one of these exhibitions. I want now to discuss some points in connection with car buying, which are not always so well appreciated as they might be, in the hope that some of the hints may be useful.

In the first place, as to price, I should say that is a question which everyone must decide for himself according to his means. There are, however, two considerations which should not be disregarded.

It is always a sound policy to buy the best car one can reasonably afford. The cheapest car is often the dearest in the end. And the second point is, that people who leap before they look; in other words, people who rush in to buy a car without having first calculated (a) what it is going to take to run it, and (b) whether they can comfortably afford that expenditure, are likely to rue their bargain.

Furthermore, in reckoning what a car costs to run it is inadvisable to place too much reliance on the 3 cents or 5 cents a mile stories which the agents "hand out."

Sit down and in cold blood work out what the cost is going to be for, say, 5,000 miles a year, using oil and petrol at such and such a rate and price, and making liberal allowances for the cost of garaging, insurance, repairs, etc.

You can't buy a motor car in the same breath as you buy a hat. It costs you nothing to wear a hat, except perhaps your reputation.

Don't forget that as a rule the more expensive the car the better the material used in its construction, and the more carefully it is made. Depreciation and the annual repair bill ought, therefore, to be correspondingly less.

Accessibility Considered.

If you are looking out for a fairly expensive type of car which you intend to keep for five years or more, don't hesitate to buy a chassis and get a really first-class coachbuilder to put a body on it. It is expensive, but worth it in the end. But if you intend to sell after one or two seasons' running, then certainly forget that there is such a thing as a coach-built body.

My next point is in connection with accessibility.

Designers are now much more considerate of the wants and wishes of the owner-driver than they used to be.

At last we are getting oil fillers of sensible size and shape, filters which can be removed without the owner combining the accomplishments of acrobat and miner, brakes which can be adjusted without one having to grovel on the garage floor for half an hour, and oiling and greasing arrangements which can be carried through in ordinary wearing apparel.

Some cars still leave much to be desired in the way of accessibility, however, and a potential buyer is well advised to make out a short list of possible "snags," and to see in how far they may be applied to the cars he most fancies.

If you like a car with right-hand gear change don't be persuaded into buying one with central change. It will worry you until you get rid of it.

Avoid Overhang.

A type of car to avoid is that in which a fairly long body is accommodated on a short chassis.

Such a combination simply cannot give passenger comfort.

Rear overhang is really quite a common fault in small cars. In a case where the rear seat overhangs the back axle, road inequalities are bound to be more severely felt by the passengers than if the seat were over or in front of the rear axle.

And besides making for discomfort, as far as the passengers are concerned, overhang tends to make the steering heavy on corners.

Ample leg room is advisable if not absolutely essential, but if ample leg room is to be gained by increasing the amount of body overhang then I think I prefer the car in which I can't quite stretch out my legs as much as I would like.

I am often asked whether it is necessary to go for a trial run on a car before definitely deciding to buy it. My answer is generally in the negative, except, of course, where an entirely new model is under consideration.

I think it is far more important to have a good look at the demonstration car. Lift the bonnet, look between the floor boards, and generally "size up the car. Having ascertained the mileage the car has done it should not be difficult to estimate how well or how badly a new model is going to wear.

There are two kinds of demonstration models—the "works hack" and the car which will be sold later as "practically new, just run a few miles on demonstration." I sometimes prefer a run on the former because if I am going to buy one of these cars I know that this is what my car will be like in so many months if I am equally neglectful of it.

Cars used for trial runs often give a much higher performance than the ordinary selling model, and it is well to make allowances should the performance be abnormal for a car of that particular type.

ROCKNE TO HAVE 12 SQUADS.

Notre Dame Wizard Will Issue Call as Soon as Snow Melts.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 24.—As soon as the snow melts from Cartier field Knute Rockne will begin his 1925 gridiron campaign, he said recently. A call will be issued for candidates for next season's football team, Rockne said, and he expects at least a dozen squads.

The famous cantering back-field stars—Layden, Miller, Crowley and Stuhldreher—and Adam Walsh, captain and center of the 1924 team, will assist Rockne and his coaching staff in developing the new men.

SMOKE NUISANCE PROBLEM SOLVED

Device for the Elimination of Smoke at All Times.

A Glasgow scientist has achieved a simple and effective solution of the problem which is very much to the fore at the moment—the smoke nuisance.

At a demonstration held in his home in Bridgeton, Mr. Charles M. Macnamara, M.A., B.Sc., C.E., satisfied a mara, M.A., B.Sc., C.E., satisfied a committee of experts from H.M. Office of Works, British Government, of the efficiency of his device for the elimination of smoke in domestic and industrial consumption. His invention has been adopted by the Commissioner of Works.

It seems peculiarly appropriate that this achievement should fall to the credit of a Glasgow man. It is on record that fully fourteen thousand tons of soot fall in the municipal area, and is responsible for the incalculable harm to health, to buildings, and to plant life.

Following the failure of Professor Enke, the German engineer, to have his idea patented by the British Patent Office in 1921, Mr. Macnamara concentrated upon the problem. The genisis of his theory was suggested by the simple paraffin lamp. When a paraffin lamp is lighted, and before the globe is adjusted, there are dense fumes, but immediately the globe is adjusted the fumes disappear.

A S'mple Exped'ent.

Mr. Macnamara realized the possibility of adapting this principle to coalfires. But the application of the theory proved a difficult proposition, and it was only after exhaustive and expensive experiments that Mr. Macnamara evolved his device, which is now being taken up by Government officials and large firms.

Elaborating the principle of the paraffin lamp, the inventor introduced into the back of the fireplace a series of funicular bricks of sepcial design. The tubes give access to a combustion chamber, and, by a system of air draughts from underneath the grate, and the employment of the hot gases, the smoke is consumed, and only the harmless gases, which is not possible to eliminate, escaped into the atmosphere.

The fire, except through the combustion chamber, is deatched from the flue, and this accounts for a feature in the device which will appeal to housewives. There is a complete absence of the common nuisance, "blow down."

B'J Bo'Aburgh Bakery.

In addition to being endorsed by the order from the Office of Works, the invention is to be introduced into the furnaces and ovens of M'Vitie and Price's biscuit factory, Edinburgh, Scotland, on the recommendation of Sir Alexander Grant, who was very much impressed with the idea.

ARGENTINA FINES ARMOUR.

Invokes Meat Control Law on Charge of Complicity in Buying.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 24 (Associated Press).—The Argentine law enacted last year for the control of the meat industry was invoked for the first time when the Government recently imposed a fine of 2,558 pesos on Armour & Co. and 1,279 pesos each on two sheep brokers for operations alleged to have been in violation of a section of the law prohibiting discrimination among live-stock producers or the taking of unique advantage of them by purchasers of their products.

It was alleged that the brokers bought sheep from a rancher at below the day's market price and sold them next day to Armour & Co. at above the market price, making a profit of 40 per cent. This was described as a "fictitious manoeuvre" which could not have been effected without "the negligence, tolerance or complicity of Armour & Co."

The total fines represent four times the amount the owner of the sheep was alleged to have lost by the operation.

Here It Is—The Old Favorite

No Treatment for Coughs and Colds Was Ever So Satisfactory

All these years Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has held its place in the family medicine chest because there has been nothing to equal it.

It holds the confidence of all as the most certain relief from Croup, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough and Asthma.

Bronchitis

Mrs. Fred. Barlow, Crystal Hill, via Spring Valley, Sask., writes:—"My little granddaughter always had bronchitis every two or three months ever since she was a baby, and as the nearest doctor or druggist is twenty-seven miles away, it was very difficult for us to get medical aid.

"I decided one day to send for some of Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine, and when I received it, began giving it to her. She has not had the least symptoms of bronchitis since taking that one bottle, and she is now five years old. The neighbors all notice what a difference there is in the child.

Whooping Cough

Mrs. Athaden Barclay, Chesterville, Ont., writes:—"At the age of three weeks, my baby boy contracted whooping cough from the other children and got so bad that we had little hope of saving him. Knowing the value of Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine, we gave it to him freely, and as a result the cough did not last long and the baby was saved."

Stubborn Cough

Mrs. Jos. Hall, Wyoming, Ont., writes: "I contracted a cold and had a severe cough for 19 long months. I had tried many medicines and was finally advised by two friends to try Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. Before I had finished the second bottle, the cough had left me."

PONZI PLAN NETS A LOSS OF $400,000

Moe Turman Crashes After Ten Years of Frenzied Finance.

By CHARLES S. HAND.

An amazing story of frenzied finance involving $1,300,000 in unsecured loan accounts, forged notes totalling $150,000 and net losses of $400,000, all centering around the activities of a self-styled Napoleon of big money, was unfolded to Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora. Moe Turman, only twenty-seven, of No. 1047 President Street, Brooklyn, is under arrest as the financial juggler.

Turman, a chunky youth, was denounced by the victims of his operations as a second Ponzi and another 520 per cent. Miller. They accused him of having lured them into schemes in which they had been promised interest returns mounting as high as 300 per cent.

Apparently indifferent to the fate that awaited him and anxious to "take my medicine," as he put it, Turman proclaimed that he was the victim of apparently respectable money lenders, who had advanced him large sums at usurious interest charges.

Blames Woes on Usury.

Turman dispassionately related that more than ten years ago he borrowed $100 to provide food and clothing for his widowed mother, his three brothers and two sisters. He was obliged to pay $30 interest upon this when the loan matured. He obtained a second loan at an interest rate of 50 per cent. And so his indebtedness grew.

Through ten long years of mental torture, Turman insisted, he obtained increasing loans on notes until about three months ago he was confronted with the staggering prospect of more than $1,250,000 in outstanding loan accounts.

Admits Forgeries.

Faced with the necessity of meeting these, so Turman told Mr. Pecora, he began to obtain money with which to meet maturing loans and interest charges by forging notes in the names of reputable concerns which he picked from the telephone book.

In interest charges alone, asserted Turman, his obligations ran not less than $5,000 a week and more often touched $10,000. Ten days ago, according to his story, he became desperate and decided to go west and avoid arrest, following the crash that was bound to come.

Decided to Surrender.

Turman left notes with his wife at the modest home which they rented in Brooklyn. These were addressed to his uncle, Samuel Naitove, and Naitove's sons, of the Equity Finance & Service Company, of 725 Broadway, of which Turman had been the credit manager.

In these letter Turman unburdened himself, saying he was going away never to return. Then the District Attorney was notified. After visiting several cities, Turman, when he reached Kansas City, decided to come back and "face the music," as he expressed it.

Surrendering on Tuesday night, he was locked up. He spent twelve hours with Assistant District Attorney Pecora, sorting suit cases full of cancelled checks and spurious notes, asking for no attorney to represent him and seemingly desirous to start his prison term with despatch.

Story Amazes Pecora.

Describing the explosion of his financial balloon, Turman remarked at the outset that he had tried to be a Napoleon of finance, but like many others he had failed. Mr. Pecora observed:

"If the story Turman tells is true—and it is the most remarkable I have ever encountered—he did start with a loan of $100 and erected a pyramid on its apex. This balanced itself, with Turman's assistance, for for more than ten years. And all during that period he was borrowing in increasingly large amounts at tremendously usurious interest, to clear what was originally a debt of $30.

"Turman says his salary with the Equity Finance & Service Co. was only $6,500 and that despite that he handled two millions and more during a decade, he used only about $20,000 for his own purposes. He declares he had documentary proof of this. Of course we shall investigate the other side of the story."

Turman's story was not accepted by District Attorney Banton or Mr. Pecora at its face value. Yet it was evident to them that if Turman could make it stand up it would appear that much of the loss to be sustained by the victims of Turman's operations represent what he paid in usurious interest to persons who loaned him money and exacted interest running as high as fifty per cent.

Split With Merchants.

The other side of the narrative as it reached the ears of the District Attorney in piecemeal fashion, was that Turman first conceived the idea of obtaining loans at ordinary interest from friends and business acquaintances. With the money thus obtained he would finance merchants and business finance merchants and business men so that they could pay spot cash for their goods. Then he would share fifty-fifty with them in the discounts they obtained.

Having built up an impressive book aspect for his business, Turman's accusers said, he was instrumental in organizing the Equity Finance & Service Company, which so far as its other officers were concerned, conducted a similar service along entirely legitimate lines.

Visions of higher financial altitudes to be attained, said the self-styled victims of Turman, led him to represent to persons that if they entrusted their money to him he could make them almost inconceivable earnings. Their assertions was that he said he had direct connections with Wall Street which enabled him to make enormous profits in stock transactions.

It was charged that one of his most valuable contacts was ex-Judge William L. Ransom, law partner of ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman and counsel for the Consolidated Gas Company. Ransom who repudiated Turman, was represented to have tipped Turman off on the rise of gas stocks.

Forged Important Names.

Some of the forged notes in the possession of the District Attorney carry these names and amounts: T. Crawford Stevenson, president of the Westchester Title Company, $32,000; R. S. Schrader, of A. Schrader and Sons, Inc., $35,000; Jacob Ratt, president of the Eety Piano Company, $35.000.

According to Morris J. Jounger, attorney for residents of Brooklyn, claiming to have invested money with Turman, other individual losses included the following:

Lizzie Wilsker, No. 915 Forty-ninth street, $34,000; Moses Laidhold, No. 1654 Fiftyfourth street, $90,000; Aaron S. Laidhold, No. 1932 Daly avenue, $32,000; Jacob Bernstein, No. 1259 Forty-eighth street, $79,795; Sidney Smith, Rockaway Park, $30,000, and Benjamin Kass, No. 1674 Forty-eighth street, -32,000.

Arraigned as Forger.

Turman was arraigned late yesterday before General Sessions Judge Koenig on an indctment for second degree forgery. It was based upon a forged note for $6,000 with the name of Meyer Barash, president of the Barash Mfg. Co., No. 445 Broadway.

Mr. Steuer, attorney for many of the firms in whose names notes were forged, agreed to a nominal bail of $5,000 which was furnished for Turman. Bail was not made higher because Turman has shown every disposition to help the District Attorney.

Turman staunchly denied he had ever played Wall Street. He put more than 1,000 cancelled cheques in the District Attorney's hands. His bank account showed a balance of about $14.

BURNS NIGHT IN PETERBOROUGH

The scenes for Burns is changed. We look at our poet now not in his pastoral haunts of Ayr or Nithsdale but as a literary lion in Scotia's capital city, Edinburgh. How does he behave himself under this attention and patronage? Let us read from one of his letters to Mrs. Dunlop:

"You are afraid, Madam, I shall grow intoxicated with my prosperity as a poet. Alas! I know myself and the world too well. I tremble for the consequences. The novelty of a poet in my situation has raised a partial tide of public notice which has borne me to a height where I feel absolutely certain my abilities are inadequate to support me and too clearly do I see the time when that tide will recede and leave me perhaps as far below the mark of truth."

These words from Burns are significant. He knew that much of this popularity was of a passing nature, and when the novelty wore off they would seek some other favorite for their smiles. Just one more passage from this letter and let those who think his head was turned with the honors confered upon him at Edinburgh study these words:

"You will bear me witness, Madam that when my bubble of fame was at the highest I stood unintoxicated with the inebriating cup in my hand looking forward with resolve to the hastening time when the blow of calumny should dash it to the ground, with all the eagerness of vengeful triumph."

Was not Burns a seer? He is done now with stately Edinburgh and again is with his fellow-men in God's green fields beneath the winds of heaven. He is in his beloved haunts of Nithsdale, from which he soon moves to Dumfries as an excise officer.

Let us remark the deep sincerity of Burns in his friendly attachments. To those in higher rank as well as the commoners of air, he held those friendships faithful to the last. To those in higher station who showed him kindness he could be warmly affectionate and grateful. As for instance the Earl of Glencairn, who lauded his genius to the Caledonian Club and persuaded them to purchase guinea copies of his volume of poems. How well Burns repaid his benefactor we have proof in the lines entitled, "The Lament for Glencairn":

The mother may forget the child
That smiles sae sweetly on her knee,
But I'll remember thee, Glencairn,
And a' that thou has done for me.

And to Graham of Fintry he owed much for the unceasing fight this true friend waged to keep our poet's good name before the excise board, and warmly did he defend him against the insiduous lies of his detracters. Burns could not restrain his feelings on liberty and would fiercely declare himself at all times, and this sometimes excited strong displeasure and disapproval by his superiors. His political expressions were often adverse to those then in office and who sought to uphold the government.

From such a man as Burns these outspoken sentiments were not permitted to pass without censure by the Excise Board. Burns had sounded his approval of the uprising of the French people against the despotism which had ground them into slavery and despair. This the aristocracy could not tolerate. And soon from a certain class of political parasites lies were springing up like paddock stools from a midden head. All that those enemies could gather from Burns' domestic or convivial lapses were brought into the limelight, but led them to their falsehoods. Robert Burns, though saddened in spirit, can still stand before the world, the true inspired representative of the independent Scottish muse.

He is still the man who wrote: "Scots, wha hae wi' Wallace bled, Scots, wham Bruce has often led, Welcome to your gory bed, Or to victory.

"Wha will be a traitor knave? Wha can fill a coward's grave? Wha sae base as be a slave? Let him turn and flee!

"Wha for Scotland's king and law Freedom's sword will strongly draw, Free-man stand, or freeman fa' Let him on wi' me!

Burns' premonition of an early death was alas to be realized. We find him gradually weakening. He could speak fearlessly of the coming dissolution and his only sad thoughts were for those dependent upon him. To Mr. Clark the school master in Forfar, he writes, "As to my individual self I am tranquil and would despise myself if I were not, but Burns' poor widow and his half a dozen dear little ones, there I am weak as a woman's tears, 'tis half of my disease.

From the Brow-well, where he had gone to seek strength in sea bathing, Burns returned to his home in Dumfrees, where he quietly bade farewell to this earth on July 21, 1796.

His funeral was a remarkable imposing procession by the voluntary attendance of a vast multitude of all rank from every part of the surrounding country and there in St. Michael's church yard, beneath the Mausoleum giftde by his fellow countrymen, repose the earthly relics of Scotia's gifted Bard and patriot.

And I have stood beside the pile
His monument that tells to heaven
The homage of earth's proudest Isle
To that Bard peasant given.

And read the names that know not death
Few nobler ones that Burns are there.
And few have won a greener wreath
Than that which binds his hair.

Friends and fellow countrymen
I ask you to rise to the toast of the evening—
To Robert Burns, our Scottish Bard
Who sang so sweet and tender
Your hearts unchanging warm regard
I ask you now to render.

In the absence of Rev. Monsignor McColl, Mr. W. Anderson proposed the toast to "The Absent Ones," mentioning those who have passed beyond the veil, those who have packed their kits to go to other scenes of labor, and most important, the mothers and dads, the relatives and friends in the Old Land.

Speaking to the toast, 'Our Club,' Mr. Bob Hendry gave a brief resume of the history of the club since its inception in 1913.

"To the Lassies."

Mr. A. D. Clark proposed the toast to "The Lassies" in the song, "Green Grow the Rashes, Oh," and the ladies present joined in singing "For They are Jolly Good Fellows."

During the intervals between toasts vocal numbers and readings were rendered by Miss Pattison, Mr. R. Hendry, Mr. J. Smith, Messrs. Grieve, Milne and Clark, Mr. Reid, Mr. Clark and Mr. Wm. Thompson. Miss Cathie Buchanan was a very able accompanist.

The meeting broke up with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

WHEAT AND RYE IN PRICE RACE

May Wheat Touched $1.96 and Rye Jumped 7 1-4 Cents.

SOME RECESSIONS.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Wheat yesterday outbid itself in smashing high price records, but rye took the palm away even from wheat. Enormous speculative trading here in both the bread grains was accompanied by a jump of 7¼ cents a bushel for rye. The extreme advance took wheat to $1.96 a bushel, May delivery, and carried rye to $1.76 for the same month.

Friday's big new wave of wheat buying came about largely from reports that Argentine, Australian and Canadian wheat was moving faster upward in price than wheat in the United States. Besides, word that the dock strike in Australia was becoming more severe appeared to imply greater curtailment of breadstuff supplies from the southern hemisphere with corresponding increased demand from Europe for shipments from countries north of the Equator.

Rye was specially affected by reports that 5,000 tons of rye flour had been bought in Germany for Russia. The only available surplus stock of rye left at present is said to be in the United States.

Owing to profit-taking on a huge scale, the wheat market finish was at a sharp reaction from top prices, 3-4 cent net lower to one cent advance, with May 1.93 3-4 to 1.94. Rye closed 4 3-8 to 5 1-4 cents net gain. May 1.73 1-4 to 1.73 1-2. At $1.96 a bushel, the May delivery of wheat was up 15 3 4cents compared with the lowest price here last week.

"ONLY 40 MAGNATES CROOKS"

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Jan. 24.—There were only forty dishonest millionaires out of 4,043 in the United States, Dr. Russell H. Conwell, president of Temple University, Philadelphia told the convention of executives of the J. C. Penney Company.

"It is of these forty," he said, "that you are always hearing. They are always in the newspapers.

"By far the majority of rich men whose lives I have investigated are honest and have got their wealth honestly; 8,780 of them were poor boys and began wthout a dollar."

CHAPTER I.

Game But Nervous.

Dan Morgan stood with his shoulders against the top rail of the corral fence, apparently asleep on his feet. The sun had a persuasive warmth, which was good for kinks in the system. He never could decide whether it melted or baked the twinges out of him; butr he knew it for an emollient of power and virtue. His figure dropped somnolently. His pipe hung loosely from a corner of his mouth. His eyes were half closed.

But Dad Morgan was not asleep, nor were his half-closed eyes idle. They were watching two riders descend the slope on the far side of the wide coulee in which the ranch buildings sprawled. There was a piebald horse ridden by a girl and a sorrel ridden by a man. They were still somewhat distant for disclosure of these details, but Dad Morgan knew who was coming. The pace of the riders was a walk, and Dad understood the meaning of it.

"I expect he's got himself all chafed up," he mused. "But he'll put it on his nerves; see if he don't. Nothin' ever happens to him regular and natural, except maybe swearin'."

The riders were out upon a green level, and the piebald horse broke into an easy lope. The sorrel followed, then checked and settled down to a restless walk. The girl in front turned in her saddle, glanced backward, brought her mount to a stop and waited. When the sorrel had come abreast, the two horses walked again in the direction of the ranch. Dad Morgan grinned, shifted his position against the fence and began filling his pipe.

He was smoking lazily when the riders came to a pause at the corral gate. The girl swung off with an easy sweep and waved a gauntleted hand.

"Hello, Dad."

"Howdy, Sally? Howdy, Wreck?"

The man on the sorrel made no answer, for he was engaged in a task. With both hands gripping the pommel, he raised himself in the stirrups, tightened his lips, and scowled. Then, very slowly, he fetched his right leg across the sorrel's back. As he did this he flattened himself forward until the pommel burrowed into the pit of his stomach and his arms gripped the sorrel's neck in a tense embrace. Then he slid crabwise to the ground. He stood there for several seconds, looking at his legs, which had retained the posture necessary to enclose the barrel of a horse. Slowly he straightened them, one after the other. There was a groan in his look, but he did not give it speech.

He turned a savage and challenging eye in the direction of Dad Morgan.

"I'm fine," he said.

"You're lookin' real well," observed Dad. "Had an idea you might of got lamed up some, but I can't say as I see any signs of it."

The rider of the sorrel stumped stiffly forward half a dozen steps.

"Who—me? Lame? What would I get lame for?"

"Come to think of it, Wreck, I'm durned if I know. I reckon anybody who can set on a flivver for fifteen, hundred miles, maybe sixteen hundred is kind of acclimated. Anyhow, the sheriff says——"

Dad Morgan broke off at a slight but peremptory gesture from the girl, who had opened the corral gate and was accelerating the piebald horse through it with a gentle flick of her quirt.

She was a free, loose-limbed girl, brown in the cheeks and neck, clear and serene of eye—a girl of the open spaces and the rolling range. The wide calm of the big country somehow found its expression in Sally Morgan. But the look that went with the gesture, while it never broke the calm, checked Dad as surely as though it had been an order from Ma herself.

The rider of the sorrel watched his mount follow the piebald into the corral, then straightened his shoulders, set his teeth and stepped off briskly in the direction of the house. He stumbled once, pulled himself together with a wince and hastened his step. Dad watched him until his figure disappeared through the doorway.

"Now, I'm wonderin' which nerves——"

Sally stopped him again. "Let him alone, Dad. He's game, anyhow."

"I ain't sayin' anything he can hear, Sally. 'm jjust wonderin' which nerves is responsible. We ain't allowed to lay it on the sorrel, or on the saddle, or on any of the failin's of human flesh. It's got to be nerves of nothin'."

"Well, don't plague him about it. If he wants to blame it on his nerves, why should we care? And I don't think he likes to have you call him 'Wreck.'"

Dad viewed his daughter with a glance of surprise.

"He ain't ever said so," he remarked.

"And would you expect him to? He's a guest."

"He's payin' eight dollars a week to Ma. I ain't sayin' we asked him for it. Ma didn't want to take nothin'. But when a man's payin' he's got the rights of free and unlimited speech. And if he don't like——"

"He's a guest, just the same," repeated Sally. "And so long as he stays here we're under an obligation to treat him right."

"I'm treatin' him all right, ain't I? There ain't a single thing about life in these wild and irrevelent parts I haven't told him, any time he asked me. Why, all I been doin' the past two weeks is easin' education into him."

Sally smiled.

"And I've picked up considerable about nerves, which sort of makes it an even split," added Dad. "He don't mind my callin' him 'Wreck.' If he was goin' to squeal about it, why would he lay claim to bein' such? You heard him say it. 'I'm a nervous wreck,' he says, sort of proud."

"Oh, well, don't rub it in, Dad."

"Ain't rubbin' it in. Ain't goin' to," Dad looked up suddenly. "Did you say something about his bein' game?"

Sally smiled again and her glance wandered to the crest of the grassy slope and seemed to go beyond it.

"It was awfully funny," she said, "but I was scared for a minute. We rode over as far as the second ridge; I wanted him to see a real piece of range country. He wouldn't admit he'd never been on a horse before. But he did pretty well, although the sorrel was getting nervous from the way his mouth was pulled."

"It's catchin', maybe."

"Perhaps. At any rate, we were standing there, right close to the edge, when a bee lit—on the sorrel. You know what happened. The way he went over that horse's head you'd have thought he'd learned to fly. It carried him over the edge, too, and he went down about twenty feet before he grabbed hold of a bush and stopped himself. I thought he was going all the way."

"I expect you roped him?" observed Dad.

"He wouldn't let me. He got mad as fury when he saw I was going to. He said he guessed he could climb back without any help, and he did. And he wouldn't let me catch the sorrel either. It must have taken him twenty minutes at least. And then it took him another five minutes to get on. I can't describe exactly the way he did it. It was like shinning up. Of course, he was pretty well scratched and mussed, and his temper was in a frightful state."

"Any language?" asked Dad.

"No; he was too busy, I think. Coming home he nearly fell off twice, trying to ease himself in the saddle. But he never squealed. And he says he's going out riding to-morrow morning. He won't make it, though; he'll be too lame to move."

Dad nodded with understanding. Any dude would be too lame to move under equal circumstances. Yet he was not entirely certain that the Wreck would fail to move, even though too lame; for he had a way of playing the game according to his own rules.

"I'll put on a house dress, I believe," said Sally.

"Sure," agreed Dad. "Bob's here."

She paused for an instant, a look of surprise in her eyes.

"When did he come? I didn't expect him until to-morrow morning."

"He came a while back. He ain't goin' to be able to go with you to-morrow, as near as I can make out."

Sally frowned involuntarily, then shrugged and continued her march toward the house. Dad settled back against the fence and resumed his musing. Sally would be mighty disappointed if she did not get to the train to-morrow; she was all packed and expectant. But he knew that she would not say very much; she was not much of a hand at complaining. Still, it seemed, even to Dad, that it was too bad to postpone everything right at the last minute. He would not mind riding over with her himself, but it was too long a trail for people with twinges and kinks. Sometimes he wished the ranch was a little mite nearer the railroad. But Sally never even complained about that.

There had been no railroad at all when Dad Morgan came into the range country; at least, none within a couple of hundred miles or more. Now there was a main line north of them, only about thirty-five miles on a good trail. It seemed very near to Dad when it first came; but when Sally began going to school in the East, and there were seasonal goings and comings, with the necessity of maintaining communications between city and ranch, Dad realized that it was not very close after all. So far as he and Ma were concerned, that made no difference. But Sally had grown up, and she had an education, and she knew the ways of places far beyond the range, and—well, Dad understood. Still, even Sally was quite satisfied with the range country, provided she was not quarantined there.

It was not a very large ranch that Dad Morgan surveyed through half-squinted eyes, nor was it a busy one. The air of idleness was everywhere about it; idleness, but not decay. It was simply a ranch taking a long and honorable rest. The busy years were behind it.

"I ain't got any kick," mused Dad. "I got mine; enough, anyhow. Let the rest of 'em hustle. They haven't come into their rheumatism yet. Only I'm sure sorry that Sally's goin' to miss her train."

So was Sally. But, true to Dad's mental prediction, she did not say much about it, even to Bob Wells, who had ridden twenty miles to explain and would have to ride back again that night. Bob was the sheriff. He was other things besides sheriff; things that were much more important in a material way. He had cattle of his own, and a couple of mining claims that promised, and he owned a general store at the county seat. Dad Morgan said there wasn't a more likely young hustler in all Montana than Bob Wells. And when Bob took to calling on Sally, Dad felt that the future was working itself out in a proper and prosperous fashion.

As nearly as Dad could figure it out, in the absence of direct information, Sally was going East to see about things for her trousseau. Anyhow, the sheriff seemed to be certain enough about it, and Sally made no denial. She had known Bob Wells since she first rode her own pony, as a little wild thing raised on the Bar-M, and she did not encounter any surprise in the idea of marrying him.

"I reckon," said Dad, as he glanced up from his supper, "that Bob's got more to lose by your missin' that train than maybe anybody else around these parts."

The sheriff winked as he reached for the coffee pot and helped himself to another cup. He was a large, healthy and well-pleased young man, with a slightly boisterous air, even in moments of repose.

Ma Morgan nodded, but made no comment. Ma was never very talkative; ordinarily she contented herself with confirmatory nods, the opinions and conclusions of others usually being sufficient for her.

"If is wasn't for the fact that there'd be no way of getting the horse back, I'd ride over alone," said Sally.

"No chance," declared the sheriff.

"Pooh! Why not? Why, Bob, I've done it. I rode as far as the railroad last summer and I know every inch of the trail. And it's only about thirty-five miles."

"Well, I wouldn't let you ride alone. Besides, there'll have to be a pack horse to take your grips. You can't manage everything, Sally."

Sally thought she could, and she felt a faint resentment at the contrary implication. Bue she had no intention of arguing it with Bob; he was always positive about things.

"Did you want to go to the railroad to-morrow?"

It was the Wreck speaking. All through supper he had been eating with a silent voraciousness that caused Dad Morgan to wonder if there were any nerves in the stomach.

"Why, I'd planned to go," said Sally, "but it seems we can't make it."

"Certainly we can make it," declared the Wreck, with sudden asperity in his voice. "Why not? I'll take you."

The sheriff laid down his knife and stared. The Wreck never failed to amuse him, but this was their third meeting. So the Wreck would take her to the train, would he? The sheriff glanced at Dad and grinned.

"On a horse?" he inquired.

"In a machine," answered the Wreck, shortly.

"Oh-h-h!" It was spoken with gusty good nature but it carried a volume of scorn. So the Wreck thought at any rate for he glared through his horn-rimmed glasses and pushed his plate back.

"Want me to drive you over in the machine?" he demanded switching his glance to Sally. He flung it out as a sort of sweeping challenge that included even Ma.

"Why it would be lovely" said Sally.

The sheriff took plenty of time to laugh. He rather expected Dad to join but Dad merely remained quizzical. Ma and Sally were watching the Wreck.

"Yes it sure would be lovely," said the sheriff, easing down for speech. "Going to put a flivver over the trail eh? What are you figuring to do? Run her on two wheels?"

The Wreck made an irritable movement of his shoulders and ignored him. He was still looking at Sally.

"Isn't there a road?" he asked.

"It's a road part of the way," said Sally. "A good part of the way. Yes, it is, Bob; you can drive a wagon over it."

"And what do you do when you come to the mountain?" inquired the sheriff, smiling. "I haven't noticed any road there yet."

"But it connects up with some other road before you get that far; I'm certain of it." Sally was getting interested. "And the other road must go somewhere. There were some people from the north who came through in a car only last spring."

"Well, it's a long, roundabout road, even if you located it," said the sheriff. "I know the people you mean. They had a car."

Still the Wreck ignored him.

"Is it country like this around here?" he demanded. "All open and plain sailing?"

"There's plenty of open country," answered Sally, with a faint smile.

The Wreck amused Sally, just as he did the sheriff. But she found something more than amusement in him. There were times when his assurance fairly startled her. Besides, she still liked the idea of making her train.

'Road part way and open country the rest of the way," observed the Wreck. "Anything the matter with that? You don't hear me yelling?"

"I'll hear you yelling if you try to make it in a flivver," remarked the sheriff, and he coupled another laugh with it.

Sally was musing over it, and found the idea slightly exciting.

"Bob, I don't see any reason why it can't be done," she said, slowly. "And if we had to turn back, why there's no harm, anyhow."

"Turn back!" echoed the Wreck. "What for? You want to catch a train, don't you. Well, when I start catching trains, I catch 'em. Want to go?"

"Why, I——"

Sally looked at the sheriff. He shook his head authoritatively.

"Can't be done, Sally. I know what I'm talking about. And besides——"

He paused to observe the Wreck, who had pushed his chair back from the table and risen. Sally nibbled at her lip; there were times when she wished Bob would not be so sweepingly authoritative.

"Any time to-morrow that you're ready, I'm ready," said the Wreck, regarding her with a stare that was almost belligerent. "And anybody who tells you it can't be done is suffering from arrested mental development."

He limped out of the room, but there was something absurdly aggressive in his gait. Dad Morgan eyed his back appraisingly and then looked at the sheriff.

"Wreck's kind of saddle sore," he observed, mildly, "but he certainly keeps chipper."

"He's a nut," said the sheriff. "He can't do it in a million years."

"But he might, Bob," Sally had a look in her eye that boded a desire for discussion.

"What? In a flivver?"

"I've heard," said Dad Morgan—"not that I've got personal experience—but I've heard that folks can go 'most anywhere in them things, except in society."

CHAPTER II.

The Two-By-Nothing Prairie.

The ranch buildings were miles back of them; how many, Sally could not exactly tell, for there was no speedometer on the flivver. But they weret fifteen miles from the ranch, at least, and the railroad was still more miles to the north. By the trail, which wound high along the eastern flank of Black Top, it was about twenty miles, as nearly as Sally could figure. They could not follow the high trail, of course; somewhere a road branched, which they must take, and Sally was intent on watching for the road.

It was an odd sensation, bumping over the trail on wheels; it helped her to forget that there had been words with the sheriff the night before, just as he was saddling to ride back to his job at Fisher.

Once she remarked the fact to him that is was a pretty bad trail, after he had navigated a detour that carried them around a boulder.

"Bad trail?" he echoed, almost sharply. "You don't call this bad, do you? I call it a boulevard."

He was obsessed with a resolve to make the task so childishly simple that the sheriff would eat his words and be overwhelmed with mortification.

The Wreck's name was Harry Williams, and he belonged considerably farther east than Sally had ever been; as far as Pittsburg, in fact. His coming to the Bar-M had been without specific premeditation; it was merely an incident, it appeared, in a great plan. They first sighted him in the middle of a forenoon, two weeks back, coming furiously up the coulee, with a radiator that boiled like Old Faithful and a carbon knock that sounded like the crack of doom. He brought the thing to a stop in the dooryard, introduced himself, asked for water, tarried for lunch, tinkered with the car, stayed for supper, and then kept on staying.

"I'm a nervous wreck," he told Dad Morgan and the family. "I've got insomnia and things like that. I look healthy, but don't let it fool you—I'm a wreck."

It seemed that his doctor, back in Pittsburg, diagnosed him, and he believed the doctor. He had been working too hard; he was on edge all the time. He was not very old, but the city was killing him. Anything that savored of excitement was in a fair way to put an end to him.

"What you need," said the doctor, "is a long trip somewhere, by yourself Cut out the cities; dodge the towns. Buy yourself a flivver and strike out for the wild west. That's the only place where a man can lead a quiet life in these days."

Dad Morgan allowed that the doctor was right; but the Wreck said no—the doctor was a liar. The west had not been nearly so quiet as promised.

But it seemed that the Wreck liked the Bar-M. He stayed and stayed, and appeared to think they ought to be grateful to have a paying boarder. Dad and Ma and Sally were, in fact, glad to have him, for, outside of the sheriff and a few other natives, visitors at the ranch came seldom. Besides, the Wreck was something of a curiosity, and when he did not talk about his nerves he could tell interesting tales of the east, which nobody but Sally believed. She had been as far as Chicago, so that she had something to judge by.

And now the Wreck was taking her to the train, mainly because everybody but Sally said it could not be done in a flivver.

The trail got worse, as most of them do. It wound and climbed in a tortuous fashion, simple enough for a horse, but most of it never intended for a contraption with a 56-inch tread. Ordinarily, at the top of the rises, Sally was wont to check her horse long enough for a sweeping view of billowing range, bench land and the stern figure of Black Top, which was their nearest mountain. Black Top was not a very high mountain, but, standing curiously alone in the range country, was a useful mark for reckoning. Nearly everybody who traveled the neighborhood took bearings from it, even though they chanced to be strangers.

But to-day Sally took no sweeping views when they reached crests in the trail. Rather, she drew deep breaths, looked down ahead of her and gripped the seat; for the Wreck had a trick of taking the down grades with a swoop, they being the only stretches of trail which offered chances for speed.

They had come to the end of a long, twisting descent, which he volplaned with amazing abandon, when Sally ventured a comment.

"How do you get it up again when it turns over?" she asked.

It was a look of annoyance and disappointment that he gave her.

Men! Don't Come Home Fagged Out by Hard Work

DOCTORS say that in an enormous number of cases when men come home physically and mentally "all in," nervous and cranky, the real cause is not hard work, but thin, pale, watery blood, deficient in strength-giving iron. Once this iron is restored to the blood it is often astonishing how quickly these men gain new strength, nerve force and endurance.

But be sure the iron you take is organic iron—Nuxated Iron—and not the old-fashioned liquid medicines and pills made by the action of powerful acids on ordinary mineral iron. Nuxated Iron is a natural organic iron, like the iron in your own blood, and like that in spinach and lentils. Does not injure teeth nor disturb the stomach. So remarkable are the effects of Nuxated Iron that thousands of weak, nervous, fagged out men and women have often increased their strength, energy, and endurance in only two weeks' time.

Try Nuxated Iron just two weeks. Money back if not delighted. But make certain you get genuine guaranteed Nuxated Iron tablets with the letters N I on every tablet. At all good druggists.

ST. JOHN'S CHOIR ANNUAL MEETING

Members Endorse the Work of Mr. F. G. Mann and Others—A Year of Progress.

(Contributed).

At the close of the regular weekly choir rehearsal held Thursday evening, the choir of St. John's Anglican Church held their annual meeting, at which a large number of the choristers were present. The Rev. Dr. Blagrave and Mr. E. S. Martin, Vicar's Warden, also being present.

The president, Mr. H. W. Morphet, occupied the chair, and in his opening remarks, briefly alluded to the present condition of the choir and also what they had accomplished during the past year.

He said that the reports which would follow called for especial attention, and expressed himself as being well pleased with the progress which they had made, both musically and financially under the painstaking direction and leadership of Mr. F. G. Mann, A. Mus., the organist and choirmaster.

The first report to be given was that submitted by the secretary-treasurer, Miss R. Quartermain, who showed from the data which she furnished that she had been "much alive" to her duties and has contributed no small portion to the progress which has been made. The financial statement was indeed in a very "healthy" condition, and although a considerable quantity of new anthems and other music had been purchased, a balance of over $86.00 was still in the treasury.

The manner in which Mr. F. G. Mann, the choir leader, when offering a review of the year's work, was received showed very clearly the friendly and harmonious feeling which the choir has for him. He stated that he could not recall during any part of his career, whilst occupying the organ stool, when he had obtained as much pleasure in the performance of his duties as he had during the comparatively short time he had been at St. John's. They met harmoniously, worked harmoniously. What more could be expected of any musical body?

That they had progressed was without doubt, for during the year, aside from the cantata presented on Good Friday and the concert given shortly after Easter, they had rendered twenty-three new anthems and furnished much choral work from their new Cathedral Psalters. This meant a considerable amount of study and training, and he felt safe in saying that although much smaller in numbers, the music in St. John's was almost identical with that of some of England's cathedrals and there was no reason that with earnest endeavors, they should be able to attain the same degree of perfection.

He alluded to the loyalty of the choir and particularly the splendid record of attendance, one member, Miss R. Quartermaine, having attended every service and choir rehearsal.

Mr. Mann also drew attention to the work of the boys and of his successful efforts to introduce the game of cricket to them. Thanks to the generosity of some of the members of the congregation, who had donated sufficient money for the necessary equipment, he had been able to arrange a number of games, and from arrangements already made with outside schools, there was every indication of the game flourishing and the interest of the boys being quickened thereby.

Dr. Blagrave said that he derived particular pleasure at being present at this meeting, more so because of the happy spirit which prevailed. He dwelt at some length on the cordial relationship existing between the choir and congregation, and felt that he could not adequately express his personal pleasure in the manner, both musical and devotional, in which the choir performed its work. It augured well for the future and he was content that under the capable direction of Mr. Mann, they could expect big things.

Mr. Martin, in a few well chosen words, expressed his pleasure at the work which had been done, and assured the choir that from the many kind expressions which he had heard from members of the congregation that the efforts which they were putting forward were, on all sides, more than appreciated.

The election of officers then took place, and the following ladies and gentlemen again kindly consented to give their services:

Hon. Pres.—Rev. R. C. Blagrave, D.D.
Pres.—Mr. H. W. Morphet.
Vice-Pres.—Mr. G. Coleman.
Secy.-Treas.—Miss R. Quartermaine.
Choir Mother—Mrs. J. J. Howden.
Librarian—Mr. Bert Hayter.
Asst. Librarian—Mr. H. Lloyd.
Social Committee—Mrs. A. L. Amys and Mr. W. W. Gray.

The business meeting was then adjourned and followed by refreshments, provided by the ladies, after which the majority then spent a social half-hour in dancing and games.

THE JAMES HORN KNITTING COMPANY

Pure Yarn Hosiery direct from the Factory to the Homes. This is our plan, and it has been such a success, we are doubling our selling staff, and turning out entire production through this gateway. In a short time we will have representatives in every city and town in Canada.

In these modern times, when all attentions are centred on cutting down cost of Ready-to-wear Garments, the plan usually adopted is to reduce the quality of the goods. This is done by substituting cheap and inferior raw materials, and in the second place the process of manufacturing is neglected. We absolutely will not reduce the high quality of our goods, and to prove this we have adapted a trade-mark, "Select-Knit," which is stamped on every pair of Hose manufactured in our plant, and further we are selling direct to the consumer, which is a proof that we are standing behind our product, and in this way are selling a high-grade Hosiery for the price of inferior lines. Why can this be done? Because our customers purchase their Hose at first cost.

Our plant is new and modern in every respect, which enables us to produce goods at least possible cost.

The yarn that goes into our Hosiery is especially selected, and only skilled workmanship is employed.

Our direct representatives are a part of this organization, and are trained and instructed to give you courteous service.

We cordially invite our customers to visit our plant and see the process of manufacture from beginning to end.

REPLY TO ANTI-UNION LETTER NO. 2 TO THE MEMBERS OF ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

To the Members of St. Paul's Church:

I. The anti-union letter says:

(1) That Presbyterians who vote to enter the United Church of Canada "vote to cut themselves off from Presbyterianism."

Answer:

(1) The Pan Presbyterian Council, representing the world-family of Presbyterian Churches, with complete and cordial unanimity approve the Basis of Union and welcome the United Church as a member of the Presbyterian family of churches. Of the United Church the Eastern section of the Presbyterian Council meeting at Glasgow declared: "Presbyterian principles are sufficiently preserved in its constitution to justify the alliance in admitting the church to its membership." The Western section says: "The Basis of Union satisfies the conditions of membership laid down in the constitution of the Alliance, namely: in regard to the authority of the Scriptures and the doctrine and polity of the Reformed Churches, and we would recommend the admission of the United Church of Canada."

(2) The Assembly of the United Free Church of Scotland met in Edinburgh last summer passed the following resolution without one dissenting voice: "The Assembly of the United Free Church of Scotland, at present convened, learn with the profoundest interest and satisfaction of the union now happily effected between the Presbyterian, the Congregational, and the Methodist Churches of Canada."

(3) The Moderator of the Established Church of Scotland says: "Here, in Scotland, we are watching your movement with intense interest. You are setting an example to the whole Christian world."

(4) The world famous Scottish preacher, Rev. Dr. Sclater, who succeeded to the saintyly Dr. Drummond's Church in Edinburgh, says: "In the United Church of Canada, you will be related to the mother church in Scotland precisely as you are now Scotland is eager to see such a union consummated."

Who is right, the Pan-Presbyterian Council, the General Assembly of the United Free Church of Scotland, the moderator of the Established Church of Scotland and the Reverend Dr. Sclater, all these—or the writers of "Letter No. 2" to the members of St. Paul's Church?

II. The Anti-Union letter says:

"The Presbyterian Church, also, is not going to enter Church Union without loss of identity."

Answer:

(1) The "Rules and Forms of Procedure, Presbyterian Church in Canada," sec. 122, page 30, says: "The General Assembly being the supreme court of the church, its decisions are final."

The Presbyterian Church in Canada acting through its General Assembly has declared that it has the right to unite with other churches "without loss of its identity," and so does in entering the United Church of Canada.

(2) The Parliament of Canada recognizes in the act incorporating the United Church of Canada that the negotiating churches, including the Presbyterian Church in Canada, have "the right to unite with one another without loss of their identity." The Parliament further declares that "the United Church has the right to unite with any other church or religious denomination without loss of its identity." See Act, sec. 28 (c). When Parliament recognizes this right for one church it recognizes it for all.

(3) The British Parliament in the "Church of Scotland Act, 1921, sec. 7, acknowledges the right of the Church of Scotland to unite with other churches "without loss of its identity."

Who is right, the Presbyterian Church in Canada, speaking through its highest ecclesiastical court, the General Assembly; the Parliament of Canada, the highest civil authority in Canada, and the British Parliament—all these—or the writers of Letter No. 2 to the members of St. Paul's Church?

Furthermore, Rev. Stuart Parker, noted anti-union leader, in an address before the Private Bills Committee, Ottawa, declared: "We are extremely worried and anxious about our name . . having the name, you have the identity of the church." Well, the Dominion Parliament declared that non-concurring, or "anti-union" churches cannot use the names "The Presbyterian Church in Canada," because the church carries its name and its identity with it into the United Church. See Act, section 10 (c).

III. The anti-union letter says:

Our Unionist friends . . . inform us . . . that Presbyterian Churches will continue their form of church government, order of church service, etc. The letter goes on: "What guarantee can they give of this? Absolutely none." Then they quote sec. 22, clause B. of the Act.

Answer:

(1) The Act guarantees—Part II., Basis of Union, the Pastoral change, A.—Charges existing previous to the Union (i.e., St. Paul's), that all churches entering the United Church "shall be entitled to continue the organizations and practices . . . enjoyed by them at the time of the Union."

The anti-union letter says: "It all depends upon what action the General Council may take after Church Union goes into effect."

(2) But the Basis of Union, chap. V., on "The General Council," sec. 24 (2a), says that the powers of the General Council are strictly limited. Before any rule or law relative to doctrine, worship, membership and government of the church can become a permanent law, it must receive the approval of a majority of the Presbyteries, and if advisable, pastoral charges also." This is a stronger safeguard against change than we have in the Presbyterian Church. See "The Barrier Act," in Rules and Forms of Procedure, where no mention at all is made to consulting the people.

(3) Section 22 (page 18), clause B. of the Act, quoted by the anti-union letter gives the General Council no power to interfere with the courts of the United Church as provided for and safeguarded in the Basis of Union. A careful study of this section and its marginal title shows clearly that it refers only to the "Interim Exercise of Powers." It deals only with the period of transition, until the courts of the United Church—Session, Presbyteries, Conferences and General Council—have begun to function. These courts may begin to function at different times in different Provinces, owing to the differences of Provincial legislation.

(4) The necessity and purpose of this section may be seen readily when you consider, for example, the Synod of Toronto and Kingston. In the United Church this synod will become the "Conference of Toronto and Kingston." Possibly its boundaries may be changed in the readjustment. When setting up this Conference the General Council must have the powers given it by this section. Otherwise two rival organizations, a synod and a conference, covering the same area and having similar functions might continue to exist.

Or consider the Presbytery of Peterborough. In the United Church there will be a Presbytery of Peterborough. This Presbytery will be comprised of all United Churches in Peterborough and vicinity, including Presbyterian, Methodist, and Congregational Churches in the area covered. If when this Presbytery begins to function the General Council of the United Church did not have the powers of section 22, B., we might have two Presbyteries of Peterborough operating, the old one stubbornly maintained by a few opponents of Union who might keep the books and documents of the now existing Presbytery of Peterborough in sheer defiance of the General Council.

This section so subtly manipulated in the anti-union letter is another reminder that the Presbyterian Church in Canada goes into the United Church of Canada with its name, organizations and traditions, and that churches which vote out vote themselves out of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, and out of all her courts.

IV. The anti-union letter says that: "In the Presbyterian Church no court of the church has any power to make an obligatory assessment upon a local congregation."

Answer:

(1) Presbyterian Churches today are regularly assessed for Synod and Presbytery Funds. How is this done if Presbyteries have no power to levy an obligatory assessment?

(2) Presbyteries regularly allocate congregational assessments for the Budget or schemes of the church. It is a poor Presbyterian Church that refuses to recognize these assessments as obligations resting upon it.

"Rules and Forms of Procedure, the Presbyterian Church in Canada," section 381, on "Schemes of the Church," (including Benevolent Funds), says: "It is the duty of all congregations to contribute to these schemes."

In the same book, page 152, are found: "Regulations For the Management of the Ministers' Widows and Orphans' Fund," adopted by the General Assembly, June, 1909. Rule 1 says: "This fund shall be sustained by annual congregational contributions, ministers' rates, donations and bequests."

(3) Mr. G. W. Mason, K.C., prominent legal counsel of Toronto, states there is nothing in the Basis of Union or in the Act incorporating the United Church to justify the anti-unionists' contention that allocations for the aged and infirm ministers' fund might be levied by legal process against the property of congregations.

V. The anti-union letter says:

"In the United Church this power (control of the ordinances of worship) is taken from the Session and given to the minister."

Answer:

(1) The Act and Basis of Union says that congregations existing previous to the Union "shall be entitled to continue their organization and practices" as at present. (Pastoral Charge, A4.)

(2) Even in charges formed after the Union the Session shall have the oversight of: "The administration of the sacraments"; "The order of public worship, including the service of praise and the use of the church edifice," etc. See page 29, sec. 15—(3), (5), etc. This is exactly the duty of the Session in the Presbyterian Church: "to determine all matters touching the order of public worship, including the service of praise." (See Rules and Regulations, page 17, sec. 50.)

VI. The anti-union letter says re "Outside speakers": "In the Presbyterian Church the Session has power to decide who shall and who shall not speak from the pulpit of the church." The writer complains that "in the United Church the minister will have power, without consulting the Session, to invite into his pulpit "any minister of any other religious denomination." The implication is that in the Presbyterian Church the Session can control the minister's conduct in inviting other ministers to occupy his pulpit.

Answer:

(1) The "Rules and Forms of Procedure" declares that in the Presbyterian Church "matters touching the conduct of the minister must be dealt with by the Presbytery." The Session has no power to control the conduct of the minister in the matter of inviting other ministers into his pulpit or any other matter. The Presbytery has such power. In the United Church the Presbytery has the same control over the conduct of the minister. The Act and Basis, page 30, sec. 20 (11), says it shall be the duty of the Presbytery "to have the oversight of the conduct of ministers within its bounds."

(2) Furthermore, in quoting the Act (page 40, schedule B., clause 4a.), the anti-union letter omits the important clause of "clause 4": "to permit, in conformity with the doctrines, discipline, by-laws, rules and regulations considered by the Presbytery; and, furthermore, the Presbytery may and sometimes does decide contrary to the wishes both of the minister and of the congregation calling." Section 269 of "Rules and Forms of Procedure, Presbyterian Church in Canada" says: "The Presbytery, if it sees fit, puts the call into the hand of the minister." Section 75 says that the Presbytery has the power "to moderate in calls given to ministers, and to receive, sustain, or set aside the same."

IX. The anti-union letter says that "the Settlement Committee will have full power to impose a minister who denies the fundamental doctrine of our faith . . . upon our congregation."

Answer:

No minister who denies the fundamental doctrines of our faith can be a minister of the United Church. (See Basis of Union: "Doctrine," p. 21, page 34: "Training for the Ministry" and "The Relations of Ministers to the Doctrines of the Church," pages 35 and 36.)

X. The anti-union letter says that in case of a vacancy through illness or death, the congregation "will be unable to immediately proceed to the choice of a successor," . . . and that during the interval thus occasioned, "it must be content with such supply as the Presbytery can furnish."

The Basis of Union says that in such an emergency, the Presbytery concerned shall confer with the charge itself" relative to supply. There is nothing in the Basis to prevent a congregation, in such circumstances, hearing at once ministers with a view to calling.

A careful study of the anti-union letter thus reveals that it is a harmful and dangerous document, calculated to mislead the members of St. Paul's Church into voting non-concurrence. To vote not to enter the United Church would be to vote St. Paul's out of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Such a course would be fraught with peril to the future of St. Paul's. Let us go forward with the Presbyterian Church in Canada as she enters the United Church.

FIRE IN 'OLD CURIOSITY SHOP'

Little Damage Done, However, to Dickens Building in London.

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 24.—The quaint little house in Central London known to thousands of American visitors as the reputed original of Dickens' "Old Curiosity Shop," was endangered by fire Thursday.

The house is at present untenanted and workmen are repairing it. Apparently they left a fire burning and rubbish on the floor became ignited. Smoke poured through the windows, but it was seen so promptly that firemen were able to quench the flames before much damage had been done.

Although there is considerable evidence against the tradition that the picturesque building was the original home of Little Nell, Londoners like to believe the legend painted on the front of the house affirming its identity, and its destruction would cause widespread regret.

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH.

The Junior Auxiliary Had a Year of Progress.

The Junior Auxiliary of St. Luke's Church held their annual meeting yesterday afternoon, when reports of the year were read by the Junior officers, showing splendid work accomplished. All pledges were met, a contribution was made to the Clergy Christmas Fund, and a bale of Christmas gifts and clothing for infants sent to the Mission at Kinmount.

The rector, Rev. G. J. Bousfield, spoke a few words of encouragement to the Juniors.

The following are the officers for the year: Secretary, Norah Gemmell; treasurer, Audrey Heap; Dorcas secretary, Margaret Whittaker; Lookout Committee, Muriel Davis, Margaret Scott, Eleanor Bothwell, and Dorothy Mason; organists, Muriel Davis and Eleanor Bothwell.

Those in charge are Mrs. G. J. Bousfield, assisted by Mrs. E. Heap and Miss Lillian Rogers.

The president of the senior branch, the Women's Auxiliary, and several of the members, were present at this meeting, which closed with a Mission Study, conducted by Miss Clara Adams.

INSURANCE FOR DAMAGE CLAIMS

Legal Committee's Recommendation to Council Was Prompted by $2,820 Paid Last Year.

ONUS ON CITY.

Peterborough's Legal Committee last night made two important decisions, the first to combine with other municipalities in appealing to the Government for radical changes in the legislation affecting claims against the city for falls on icy pavements and the second to provide immediate protection for the city by taking out a public liability insurance policy.

The debate arose out of the reading of a number of claims and complaints from citizens of falls and resulting injuries sustained on icy sidewalks.

It will be remembered that the city last year paid $2,820 in claims for damages, thus throwing it further into the overdraft on the year, since no provision was made in the appropriations for this contingency.

The recent decision at Belleville, it is found, practically wipes out the word "gross" in front of "negligence" in the statute, leaving the city liable for practically any accident occurring in its streets.

The injustice of this, the city will claim, lies in the impossibility of protecting all sidewalks at all times, in view of changing weather conditions and the great area to be covered. Many of the recent cases, the city engineer reports, could not have been avoided by the City Council.

At the next meeting of the City Council a petition will be framed for presentation to other municipalities seeking their co-operation in bringing the mater to the atention of the Government with the object of obtaining fairer protection to towns and cities.

Protects Itself.

In the meantime the City Council will protect itself by taking an insurance policy immediately with the Zurich Insurance Company. For $760.00 a year the company will assume liability for accidents on Peterborough streets up to $10,000 for any one accident and $5,000 for any one person, assuming all cases that occur, however many that may be.

The policy will be put into effect immediately, and the city's responsibility will then cease. All claims for damages arising out of accidents on the streets will be paid or fought, according to their merits, by the insurance company.

Just One Solution

"Inspection and pasteurization solve the milk problem," says Dr. M. J. Rosenau, Dean of the School of Preventive Medicine, Harvard University. "We need inspection to keep milk clean, and pasteurization to make milk safe. Inspection goes to the root of the problem and helps bring us cleaner, better, fresher and safer milk. Inspection, however, has limitations. These limitations may be guarded against by pasteurization. It is certain that a milk supply which is both supervised and pasteurized is the only satisfactory solution of the milk problem.

Think What Pasteurization Has Accomplished

"Scientists show that the decline in the death rate among infants during the last fifteen years, and especially in cities like New York, Toronto and Chicago is due, for the most part, to the decline in mortality from summer diarrhea, and Freeman states that 'the general adoption of pasteurized and sterilized milk for infant feeding is by far the most important agency.'"

VISCOUNT CECIL OF CHELWOOD SURVEYING WORLD, HOLDS HIGH HOPES FOR AN ADVANCE

Winner of Woodrow Wilson Peace Prize Finds That Temper of Europe Has Much Improved.

LEAGUE IS STRONG.

He Believes That Another Disarament Conference Is Almost Certain to Come Within a Brief Period.

By P. W. WILSON.

The world today is still disturbed by the aftermath of war. There is peace; but the question is whether peace will be permanent. Hence the interest taken in the visit of Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, just concluded. He came to the United States to receive the first Woodrow Wilson Prize; and it was thus in an unofficial capacity that he was welcomed. But, in public and in private, he has spoken with a frankness which has, at times, recalled "the blazing indiscretions" attributed to his father, Lord Salisbury, when he was Prime Minister. And in presenting certain of his views, not only on the League of Nations but on the international situation as a whole, I have had to draw a distinction between what may and what may not be directly quoted. Lord Cecil's point of view, however, is, I hope, sufficiently indicated.

Lord Cecil is today the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster. That is an ancient office, without exacting duties, and the Chancellor of the Duchy may be described as "a Minister without portfolio." But he is in the Cabinet, with full responsibility, and there is no statesman in the Government of Britain who today can claim a closer acquaintance with Geneva and the League. Viscount Cecil has seen President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes. And he has mingled freely with representative men and woman, including the correspondents of the leading newspapers. One may assume that his impression of opinion in the United States will be of great interest to his colleagues in London.

In my conversation with Lord Cecil I put to him the question whether there is any likelihood of the Conservative Government leading Britain into the paths of imperialism. His answer was a reference to the League of Nations.

"I will not deny," he said, "that during the formation of the Government I was myself not wholly certain of what its attitude would be. But my association with the Cabinet has convinced me that the Government is as sensible as any previous Government of the value of the League. It is obvious to the Government that it is through the League that Britain must work for peace."

Finds Strength in League.

"Will you be the British spokesman at the next Assembly?"

"Nothing is decided. But as Foreign Secretary, Mr. Chamberlain has been attending the meetings of the Council of the League at Rome; and with my most hearty concurrence. A Foreign Minister who is, as it were, his own representative on the Council, can take decisions without reference to the department at home; and these decisions are not likely to be challenged at a later stage. One of the symptoms of the League's growth is the importance of the statesmen now taking part in its deliberations. At the last Assembly there were, I think, at least six delegates of Prime Ministerial rank and several times that number of Foreign Ministers.'-

"Is not the League of Nations calculated to disintegrate the British Empire?"

"On the contrary, it has, I think, eased relations within the empire. The British Commonwealth consists, as you know, of nations which are sovereign without seeking entire independence. The League offers them a field for sovereign initiative which does not in any way militate against their friendly comradship with the mother country."

Viscount Cecil mentioned the discussions of the Opium Conference, in which Canada and Ireland supported the United States, while, on certain aspects of the case, India took a different line, leaving Britain and Australia neutral.

"Still," I said, "there is the case of the Irish Free State desiring to register with the League its treaty with England. Has not Mr. Chamberlain raised an objection?"

"He has. But on what grounds? The treaty, as it is commonly called, was really an agreement which created the Irish Free State. When the agreement was made there was no Free State in existence. Ireland may have been in rebellion, but, diplomatically, Ireland was British. Whatever may be the position today, the agreement at that time was clearly internal and domestic."

"And Egypt?" I asked.

The Question of Egypt.

"Whatever you may think of the action taken by the British Government after the murder of Sir Austen Stack, one thing is clear: The League was not involved one way or the other. As a result of the war, Britain declared a protectorate over Egypt. This was followed by the grant of independence, with certain subjects reserved for negotiation. Until a further agreement was arrived at on those subjects, they remained as much a part of the national responsibility of England as if the protectorate had continued, and any question such as that raised by the murder was, as far as the League was concerned, a domestic question. But you should clearly understand that at Rome my colleague, Mr. Chamberlain, offered to give the Council of the League a full account of British action in Egypt if any member member of the League requested him to do it. No such request was in fact made."

I reminded Lord Cecil that Egypt is holding elections and asked him whether there might not arise a difficult dilemma if a Parliament were chosen which would support no Government ready to work with Britain.

"That," he said, "is a contingency which might require careful examination in London. We have given pledges to Egypt and we have undertaken responsibilities in Egypt to the world as a whole. We must seek to reconcile, as far as we can, our pledges and our responsibilities."

"But Singapore," I said. "Is not the revival of the proposition to fortify Singapore a distinct reaction against the more pacific attitude of the Labor Government?"

"I am well aware that the proposal to establish a base at Singapore is a topic of acute controversy," Viscount Cecil replied. "I gather that it is regarded with misgivings by some thoughtful Americans. And I need not say that I have been grateful for their views. On the strategic value of Singapore, I have, of course, no information. But it is, I suppose, an elementary fact of naval science that your battleships, however numerous and elaborate they may be, cannot operate except from a base. Moreover, you must remember that in this matter Great Britain is not acting alone. There is Australia, and there is New Zealand to be considered. You know without my telling you that the views of those Dominions have been constant and insistent and wholly independent of the question what Government was in power in London."

Struggle of the Races.

"Here, I suppose, we are up against the race question."

"That is an element which obviously enters into the situation. And I must the Australians and New Zealanders in their attitude on immigration."

"But does not that question greatly embarrass the League of Nations? Let us suppose, for instance, that there were Asiatics entering the United States in large numbers through Mexico. That might cause an acute negotiation. And yet each nation—that is, Asia, Mexico and the United States—might be legally in the right."

"You are putting, of course, a hypothetical case. All I would say about it is that it does not, so far as I can see, affect the League of Nations. If any such question were ever discussed by the League, it would be with a view to avoiding trouble—not with a view to avoiding trouble—not with a view to avoiding trouble—not with a view to

From this answer I drew the conclusion, not that the race problem is negligible or completely solved, but that the inclusion of East and West in one association for many common objects is a safeguard against sentiment getting out of hand.

"A nation," said Lord Cecil, "which presses its point of view too far finds that the atmosphere is distinctly cool."

France and the League.

"But can you say that France, still anxious about her security, puts her trust in the League?"

"I would say of France what I say of my own country, that there is not today any considerable section of French opinion which does not eagerly support the League. That statement is true of Millerand and of Poincare, as well as Herriot. In fact, at the last Assembly France was represented by a former Prime Minister, Briand—one who, in course of time, might be again Prime Minister—and by M. Loucheur, a French statesman of great distinction — with others of scarcely less eminence."

"And Italy?"

"It might be supposed that the psychology of the dominant party in Italy is hardly the psychology that favors a League of Nations. But I understand that the Council of the League, when meeting in Rome, was treated by Signor Mussolini with marked sympathy and consideration."

"Would Germany be welcome in the League?"

"Certainly, she would be welcome."

"As a full member of the Council?"

"Yes, I think I may also say that. It is, at least, my opinion."

"Then why has not Germany joined the League?"

"She has delayed. And I confess that personally I regret her delay. Her extreme Nationalists seem to dislike the idea of that conciliation for which the League stands. That is a dangerous position to take up and it may result in the increased isolation of Germany."

The German Stipulations.

One may here interject a reference to the kind of subjects which Germany has advanced and—as her critics would say—used as reasons for delay. There was the claim first to a seat on the Council and then to a permanent seat. Then there was the question whether Germany's entrance into the League would commit her to a reaffirmation of the Treaty of Versailles. And there was even talk about the return of the German colonies. Recently, a new point has been raised by the letter in which Herr Stresemann demurs to accepting responsibility for international order as defined by the covenant of the League—this on the ground that Germany is disarmed and can be attacked from every side. These are not matters on which it was possible for Lord Cecil to express an opinion. But one gathered that he holds today as strongly as ever his well-known view that it would be well for the world if Germany were inside the League of Nations.

"Is it becoming more difficult or less difficult for Germany to enter?"

"Well, you know the saying in Shakespeare about the tide in the affairs of men which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune. There was, three years ago, what Gladstone would have called a golden moment when Germany might have joined the League. Had that opportunity been seized, we might have avoided many of the difficulties and embarrassments which have since taken place."

"What importance," I asked, "do you attach to the reports of Germany arming? Do you think that she is really becoming in any military sense a menace to other nations and to peace?"

"She is not at this moment a military menace. The question is what in the future she might become. In Germany there is an extreme Right wing, which does not accept all the terms of the Treaty of Versailles. One cannot overlook that fact."

"Will Russia enter the League?"

"Not under her present administration."

Here, again, one may, perhaps, interject a comment. The situation in Russia is today gravely uncertain. Whether Trotsky be, as reported, in the Crimea or in a prison within the Kremlin, the Red Army is apparently causing anxiety to the Soviet Republic. Europe is watching developments with a close and anxious attention. And no one can say whether Russia will develop a stable republic or constitutional monarchy, a military relationship or a disintegration into chaos.

I mentioned the prospect of Turkey entering the League and so passing out of Russia's influence. Lord Cecil agreed as to the fact, but I gathered that, in his opinion, Russian influence in Turkey has ceased already to be a serious factor.

"Do you advise the United States to join the League?" I asked.

"I am glad," he answered, "that you put the question so plainly. I do not advise—I have never advised the United States, either to join the League of Nations or to adopt any other policy. It would be gross presumption for me to offer any advice to the United States."

"But if it is not your purpose to advise the United States to join the League, why have you given such elaborate explanations of what the League has accomplished? If the United States is not interested, why talk about the League over here?"

"A nation may be outside the League and may yet be interested in its work and intimately concerned in its aims. If I may give you an illustration, the United States was not a party to the Anglo-Japanese alliance, but no subject was more discussed, so I believe, in the American press. And, in due course, the relations of the United States to the alliance were adjusted, as was the alliance itself."

"You say that Americans are interested in the League; what would be your evidence of that?"

"Well, take the presence of Americans at Geneva when the League is sitting Not only do they crowd the galleries but they go away, in many instances, with an entirely new conception of what the League is doing—a conception also entirely favorable. Again, I am much impressed by the friendly attitude of the press toward myself. I owe a debt of gratitude to newspapers, even to those described sometimes as anti-British. The press here has been extraordinarily good to me in every way."

"Still, I do not quite understand what the United States has to do with the League unless she joins. Either she is outside or she is inside."

"Surely, it is not quite so simple as that. There are many matters that come before the League which the United States desires to see settled. For instance, there is the opium trade and disarmament, to give two instances that occur at once to the mind. Even if the United States does not join the League, she can co-operate."

Co-operation of the United States.

"Is there such co-operation?"

"You must know well that there is. For instance, the present conference on the export of arms includes the United States, and, in its deliberations, there is suggested a permanent authority to supervise this matter."

Lord Cecil recalled the services rendered to the world by distinguished American citizens like Judge John Bassett Moore of the International Court; George W. Wickersham, who will assist in the codification of international law, and Henry Morganthau, who has been dealing with refugees in Greece.

"Can the League succeed without the United States as a member?"

"It can succeed without the United States and it is succeeding. If the United States were to join, the League's success would be even greater."

"But, Lord Cecil, is that really the whole truth? In England herself, are there not opponents of the League?"

"In England there are opponents of everything in heaven and earth. And some people, here and there, oppose the League. But who are they? The extreme reactionaries, on the one hand, and the extreme Communists, affiliated with the Third International at Moscow, on the other."

"But Europe"—so I persisted—"is she not still rent by national rivalries and surrendering herlf to the prospect of the next war?"

Europe's State of Mind.

"That is not what I have observed. There seems to me an immense development of a genuine belief that among nations the common interest should prevail. Certainly that is true of Europe."

"Is it more true of Europe today than it was before the war?"

"Yes. I am convinced that it is. After all, the war has taught us what war means. We must find an alternative."

"But has there not been already certain mobilizations without reference to the League?"

"In the covenant of the League there is nothing to prevent a nation mobilizing either in its own defense or to preserve internal order. Early in 1920 Poland did so mobilize against Russia, and on the attempt of the Hapsburgs to return to Hungary, Czechoslovakia took precautions, while Hungary herself moved troops. But all this happened in the early days of the League. And as the influence of the League grows it is less likely to happen."

"You mention an alternative to war. But what alternative? Here we have had the protocol, which was presented by the League as an alternative and yet it seems to have been abandoned."

"Abandoned?" asked Lord Cecil. "What do you mean by 'abandoned'?"

"I mean the general impression. At Britain's request the protocol has been postponed and with it, I suppose, the disarmament conference which was to have been held in June. Is not that rather discouraging?"

"Let me tell you first and with the utmost candor," he replied, "that the protocol has not been abandoned, that no decision in respect of the protocol has yet been taken by the British Government, and that, if there has been the postponement you mention, it has been due simply to the change of Government in Britain and to the fact, as stated, that the new Cabinet has had no time whatever in which to examine the far-reaching implications involved in the protocol."

"Then you still expect a disarmament conference?"

"Certainly. It may be or may not be this year. It might be or might not be next year. But I believe that, within a comparatively brief period of time, it is bound to come."

"In Washington?"

"I cannot say. That is not a question for me. Nor is it a question for Britain, except as one power among many. But disarmament in the large sense is on the table."

"Would the disarmament conference be called by the League?"

"That again is for the future. My personal opinion is that the League will wish to call it and will, of course, extend to non-members the most cordial invitation to take part."

"But do you see at present any chance of the nations accepting the proposal for compulsory arbitration which is included in the protocol as a condition precedent to disarmament?"

"The protocol is actually under the consideration of the Governments concerned. And I fear that I cannot discuss its terms. As you know, Constitutions increase in difficulty as you reduce them to writing. What can be said is this: If you want limitation of armaments and, still more, if you want reduction of armaments, you must pay the price, which is taking measures of security. How high the price and how low the price is a matter for discussion."

Perhaps one may here recall the fact that Viscount Cecil has usually been in favor of working this covenant, as far as possible, as it stands. His attitude has been the fewer changes the better.

German Evacuation Problem.

"There appears to be a suspicion in some quarters over here that France is using the discovery of arms in Germany as a pretext for the Allies avoiding an evacuation of occupied territory on Jan. 10. Americans do not always understand on which grounds of public interest M. Herriot has ordered the prosecution of the French newspaper l'Eclaire, which printed the report on the subject without authorization. And why was the report withheld until the eve of the above date? Why was it not published when it was received?"

Lord Cecil made this reply:

"This matter arose since I left Europe, and I only know what has appeared in the press. But I take it that the report in question was made to the Interallied Commission and was thus fully known to the allied Governments. To that extent, at any rate, it cannot be said that the report was kept private. Again, it was only a report. It was not a decision by the Interallied Commission, which, of course, must consider all evidence before arriving at a verdict on evacuation."

"But is not certain that evacuation will be postponed?"

"Rumor indicates that a postponement is probable. But, again, I ask, what has that go to do with the League of Nations? The question of German armament would only come under the League at a later stage. At the moment, then, the League has nothing to do with them."

"And despite these symptoms of unrest in Europe you are of opinion that the Continent is achieving a permanent peace?"

"I think that the temper of Europe has much improved and will continue to improve as the League gains in influence."

Liberal Party "a Suicide."

In my conversations with Lord Cecil there were, of course, other questions discussed. For instance, I could not resist, as an old Liberal, the temptation to ask him, as a formidable Conservative, what he had done with the political party to which I belong.

"Your party," said he, with the utmost urbanity, "has committed suicide"—which ended, as it were, that particular topic.

It was, indeed, strange to contemplate the scene at the house of Thomas W. Lamont, where Lord Cecil has been staying, when "the press" arrived to subject the guest to the process of amicable martyrdom, which, since the days of St. Lawrence, has been known as "the gridiron." Mr. Lamont's house may be described as late medieval. It is the style of Hatfield, transported across the ocean. The linen-moldings, the rough-hewn panels, the stained glass, the capacious fireplaces, the wrought-iron—it is all remote from our own century. And, finally, in that library, was a portrait of Queen Elizabeth, calmly surveying the scene in which Lord Burleigh's descendant was the chief actor. Coiled in a vast armchair, Lord Cecil greeted his tormentors with a charming smile. As the cross-examination proceeded his face—at first pale—flushed, not with irritation, but with the sheer effort of a keen dialectic. His smooth utterance began to reveal the hesitation which is a trait of his family—always precise in the use of words. And, at times, he gathered himself together and hit back—quite in the combative manner so familiar to the House of Commons. And the deep-set eyes glowed with a touch of passion, not against his questioner, but for the League.

Here, one thought, is democracy come into its heritage. Even the Cecils must reckon with the people. And as the company of writers gradually dispersed one and another of the representatives would chat with the British visitor, awaiting his overdue tea, but courteous and hospitable.

"May I ask you one question?" inquired a seeker after truth.

"Certainly," was the answer. "What is it?"

Why Britons Have Their King.

"Why does England still have a King?"

Queen Elizabeth almost winked her watchful eye.

"Well," said Lord Cecil genially, "we've always had a King. And we like ito think that we still have on the throne the same kind of person that we had in the time of William the Conqueror. We are fond of old familiar institutions.

"Our King symbolizes to us patriotism, love of country, the nation. In our reverence for the King we are loyal to what he represents."

Queen Elizabeth smiled again. Things had not changed so very much after all. She was a long way from Windsor, but she still had her Burleigh.

BALLOT FIXER ADMITS CRIME

Says Alderman Goaded Him Into Doing Deed—Did It For Money.

WAS POLL CLERK.

KITCHENER, Ont., Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Serious disclosure and dramatic climax were the features of the re-count of Kitchener's Aldermanic vote at the last municipal election. There is strong probability that the election for the Council will be upset. As a result of the developments in the dying stage of the investigation of the second day, one deputy returning officer, William H. Gottfried, who acted at poll 39, Park, is in custody, following the admission that he had marked a number of ballots himself for Alderman Hahn.

Applicants for the recount took exception to 29 crosses for Alderman Hahn on the ballots of poll 39, at which Gottfried acted.

Gottfried immediately admitted they were not made by the voter but resolutely declared he did not know who had put them on the ballots.

Finally pressed by Judge Hearn to take courage and face the situation, he said, after considerable diffidence and a moment of contemplation, "Well, I guess I just as well might tell the truth. I did mark some of them."

When asked for whom he marked the ballots, he said, "For Hahn."

When questioned as to whether he had acted on his own initiative in marking these ballots, he said Alderman Hahn had requested him before the election to help him in this way. "He told me that we always had been friends in politics, and that I should do him the favor, and that he would make it right with me." The Alderman in question is ex-Mayor, and since he returned to public life a few years ago, has been securing an increasing vote from year to year.

A VARIETY PRICES ON LOCAL MARKET

Lots of Meat and Chickens Offered—The Basket Section.

The open section of the farmers' market had few vendors this morning. Outside of a large number of wood carts and a baker's dozen of sleighs which favored meat in their exhibits, the offerings were very light. Even the fish-man had deserted his usual post, and his canvassed enclosure was replaced by a parked automobile. In the lower entry, the fish-man's dark-eyed, cheerful wife dispensed her frozen wares.

Wood was plentiful and could be bought at a wide range of prices. Anywhere from $8.50 to $12 would purchase good-looking loads, cut and split, mixed and pure hardwood. Long cordwood lengths were priced at $10 and $11.

Pork was 16 and 18 cents a pound, generally. Beef was 8 to 10, or 9 and 12, according to the quality. A few pails of honey were on sale at 60, 75 and 80 cents for five-pound pails of mixed, amber and clover.

Several bushel baskets of apples were selling at 55 cents a peck for Tolman Sweets, and 60 cents for Ontarios.

In the basket section, eggs were not very plentiful. They sold at 53 and 55 cents a dozen. Butter was generally priced at 38 cents a pound and cream was 25 cents a pint.

There were plenty of chickens, at 25 and 30 cents a pound, the latter milk-fed. Geese were 22 cents a pound and ducks 30 cents.

A young lady had a big tin pail full of large cucumbers, pickled in brine, and selling for 20 cents a quart.

In the exhibit of basketry at the entrance, where dainty little things in reed and cane can be purchased, there was a "bootlegger's tray," a varnished brown tray for glasses, priced at $1.10.

TORONTO MAN SLAIN.

Three Men In Custody as Material Witnesses in Case.

TORONTO, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press).—One man is dead of a fractured skull and three men are in custody as material witnesses and facing a more serious charge. The victim is Charles J. Pogue says he was called to the Gibson Hotel to pick up a fare and found a man lying unconscious in a lane near the hotel. Two men were standing near and asked him to drive the helpless one around awhile until "he sobered up."

The taxi driver did so, and later, when discovering the man was dead, he drove to the police station. Ferguson and O'Dell were arrested two hours later at their homes.

General Sir Ian Hamilton stated that there were still at least 800,000 men out of work, and this was an increase of about 40,000 over the number last year.

A WOUND IS AN OPEN DOOR

Absorbine Jr. enables you to shut the door quickly.

The skin is Nature's own protection against germs. When it is bruised, broken or cut, that protection is withdrawn. The door is open. As quickly as possible Nature closes it by forming what we call a scab and renders you comparatively safe against infection. But this scab sometimes takes days to form and until it has fully sealed the wound, even until the wound has thoroughly healed again you must furnish the required protection yourself.

A few drops of Absorbine Jr. in the water will give you an antiseptic wash that will kill all possibility of infection and help nature to heal the wound. As well as being a very powerful germicide, Absorbine Jr. will draw out the inflammation and bring instant relief.

Absorbine Jr. is antiseptic, germicide and liniment in one container—handy to keep always in the house; easy to carry around if you travel.

PETES MEET FIRST REVERSE IN SEASON'S ELEVEN GAME BY 1-0 SCORE AT HANDS OF PARKDALE

Paddlers Broke Up Peterboro Attacks by Consistent Close Checking and Worked Inside Frequently—Visitors Were Aggressive And Fast.

CAPACITY CROWD SAW PETES HUMBLED

Game Was Decided on Forward Line—Petes' Wing Division Off Color—Harry Watson Injured and May Be Out for Month.

(By F. D. C.)

Parkdale Canoe Club, twice beaten by the Petes in Toronto, unexpectedly stopped the winning streak of Peterborough Hockey Club Seniors after it had reached a total of ten victories, by beating the blue and white by the narrowest possible margin at the Brock Street Rink last night.

The Toronto Paddlers got the only goal of the game two minutes after the third period opened, and that counter was enough to settle the argument, for the Petes, in spite of a strong rally in the last fifteen minutes, were unable to storm through the massed ranks of the visitors for the tally that would have tied up the game.

Their forward line worked their heads off breaking up the Peterborough attacks, while the defence pair, encouraged by this great support from the line, checked most effectively, and Ernie Collett performed spectacularly in the nets, with the result that the Petes were entirely shut off from the scoring sheet.

The factor that was chiefly responsible for Peterborough's two clean-cut victories in Toronto was the speed of the blue shirts, who skated the Paddlers into the ground on the Arena cushion.

Forwards Better.

That factor did not enter into last night's game, and the Paddlers, by closer checking especially on the part of the forwards, who outplayed the Petes' attacking division in this department of the game, and by more finish to their attack, were enabled to grab off a win that puts them practically on even terms with the homesters for the group leadership.

The margin of victory was not big, but the Paddlers were the better team on the night's play, and deserved to win.

They had more close-in opportunities to score than the Petes, and on their work in the second period might easily have won by a bigger majority. True the Petes gave them many an anxious moment in the dying stages of the battle, but most of their shots were from outside, and the great checking of the Paddlers made it almost impossible to work in on the top of Collett for a clear shot.

The victory may have been bought by the Parkdale crew at a heavy cost.

Watson Hurt Shoulder.

Half way through the first period, Harry Watson, star of the Canadian Olympic team last year, and Parkdale's outstanding player, crashed into the end of the rink while circling the net, and tore a ligament in his shoulder. He was off for the rest of the period, but returned and finished the game, incidentally scoring the Paddlers' million dollar goal, but the chances are that the injury will keep him out of the line-up for some time.

Watson played under difficulties for the balance of the game, but despite the handicap, he showed the fans what a brilliant hockey player he is, doing some great checking and stick-handling.

Don Jeffrey went great guns all night for Parkdale, and Lount was dangerous on every rush. Harris, his defence mate, did not have as much sucess on the attack as Lount, but defensively he turned in a most effective game, and the Petes' attack was foiled by him with monotonous regularity.

Watson, Lount, Jeffrey, and Harris, with Collett, were the Parkdale stars. The former Olympic goaler was at the top of his form, and he was helped because of the tendencey of the Petes to whale the rubber right at him, instead of picking the corners.

The game was really won and lost on the forward line. Parkdale's advance guard checked more consistently than the blue shirts' line and in addition they showed more system on the attack. Their victory was earned by the difference up in front, for while Jeffrey and Watson were working smoothly and got plenty of help from Sullivan and Campbell, the Petes forwards with the exception of Bailey were below their usual standard. Ranger has been under the weather since Tuesday, and was handicapped as a result, while neither Collins or Rose showed their customary speed or effectiveness.

Bailey skated himself weary trying to stem the tide and he engineered a score of dangerous attacks that might have succeeded.

Defence Was Steady.

Dwyer's work should have been an inspiration to his team mates. While Collett may have handled more shots, the Peterboro net guardian had to deal with much more difficult situations, and he foiled the attack four or five times when a goal seemed certain, besides blocking everything from outside with his usual skill. McLeod was the more effective of the defence pair on the attack. He got away for some fine sallies, especially in the first period, that deserved a better fate. Parker has seldom been checked so close. He was a marked man and every time he started out there were two or three Paddlers draped around him.

A huge crowd, the largest for several seasons, saw the game and pulled frantically for the Petes to grab off the honors by a last minute rally.

Referee Mike Rodden handled a hard fought game in good style, although some of the fans did not seem to think so.

He was especially strict on the interference rule and it would be just as well for some of those who booed his decisions, to study that section of the rule book.

Referee, M. J. Rodden.

The Scoring

There was no scoring in the first two periods. The Petes had a shade the best of the argument in the first twenty minutes, with McLeod and Bailey leading the attack, but Parkdale's defence was not easily drawn out and Corlett saved nicely when the Petes did get a chance to draw a bead on him. Half way through the period, Watson was hurt and the Petes had a chance to sew up the game then and there. They could not turn the trick, however, and Parkdale lost a glorious opportunity when Bas. Harrington took a pass close in only to have Dwyer flop to the ice and pull of a sensational stop.

The visitors with Watson back had the edge in the second period, and they out-checked the Petes, who were rarely given a chance for a shot close in, while the Paddlers, using a two-man combination effectively, gave Dwyer a lot of work and the Petes' goaled did well to hold them scoreless during the period.

The Only Goal.

Two minutes after the last session opened, Watson scored the only goal of the night. Mose Lount worked in close after a nice rush but Dwyer saved nicely and when Lount tore in for the rebound, Dwyer bodied him and both went down. The rubber had carromed in back of the net and Watson, seeing the opportunity, flashed in, recovered the puck and bringing it out in front flipped it in before Dwyer could untangle himself from Lount. It was quick thinking on Watson's part and it won the game for the visitors.

The Petes rallied and for the balance of the game did most of the attacking, but the Paddlers checked with rare effectiveness and Collett refused to be beaten. The minutes sped fast as the blue shirts tried everything they knew to grab a counter and tie up the game. Parkdale were bottled up and for the last five minutes kept shooting the rubber down the ice to kill time and relieve the pressure. And they still had that one goal lead when they skated off the ice.

Summary.

First Period—No score.
Second Period—No score.
Third Period—1. Parkdale. Watson, 2 minutes.
Penalties. — Parkdale: Campbell, 4; Sullivan, Jeffrey. Total 6.
Peterboro—Bailey, McLeod, Rose, Ranger. Total 4.

FIRPO FLUSTERED

By Being Listed Below Weinert and Romero.

PARIS, January 23. — Luis Angel Firpo, the visiting heavyweight from the Argentine and points west, when shown clippings to-day from recent New York newspapers reporting that he had been placed seventh in Tex Rickard's list of the world's best heavyweight fighters, said:

"I place Mr. Rickard first in the list of the world's promoters. Perhaps I will get very little money from Mr. Rickard if I fight for him again, because I am only the seventh best heavyweight in the world."

Firpo did not complain about the choice of Dempsey, Wills and Gibbons, but the mention of Weinert made him smile. When he caught sight of the nae of Domero as number five in Rickard's list, the "Wild Bull" roared: "Romero can't fight!"

WARSAW OUTCLASSED.

ALLEN CUP HOLDERS TO PLAY PETES ON MONDAY

Famous Soo Greyhounds at Brock Street Rink—Rare Chance for Fans.

On Monday night Peterborough fans will have a chance of seeing Canada's amateur hockey champions the famous Sault Ste. Marie team, in action against the Petes at the Brock Street Rink.

This game was made possible only by the fact that the Soo were persuaded to drop off here on their way back from a tour in Quebec.

Had the Petes not beaten the Northerners in the S.P.A. series, ther would have been little chance of seeing the Allen Cup holders perform on local ice.

They are coming principally because they hope to wipe out that defeat by a victory right on the Petes' own ice, and they will have their full line-up in action, with Walsh in the nets, Brown and Donnelly on the defence, Phillips centre, Woodruff and Lessard wings, and Burke and Campbell subs.

M. J. Rodden, of Toronto, will referee the game, which will start at 8.30 o'clock.

The reserved seat plan will be open on Monday morning, subscribers having had their innings to-day.

It is seldom Peterborough has had an opportunity of welcoming a Canadian championship team, and the famous Soo outfit will get a big reception on Monday.

CAR STARTING

By HAROLD F. BLANCHARD.

Hard-starting troubles are particularly in evidence at this time of the year, since cold weather affects the ease which the engine takes hold, although it should not be forgotten that some hard-starting difficulties may also occur in warm weather.

Easy starting, fundamentally, is secured by a rich mixture, a hot, fat spark, and tight valves. With these requirements met, your engine must start readily; without them, it is likely to balk.

All three requirements are in a measure affected by slow cranking. Therefore the first point to check up is the cranking speed. If it is adnormally low, have your battery tested, and repaired if necessary. Although if lights are bright and horn is normal the battery may not be at fault. If lights become very dim when starter switch is closed, the trouble is probably in the battery.

Whether the battery fails under suspicion or not, it is a good plan first to examine the cable connections between starter and battery. The most trifling amount of dirt or looseness may cause slow cranking. Clean and tighten all terminals, including battery ground connections, and be sure that the connections are tight—don't guess.

Slow cranking may also be due to tight bearings and excessive friction in other engine parts. If trouble continues after following the suggestions given, the starter should be examined by an experienced man. It is usually a waste of time for an amateur to attempt starter repairs.

If cranking speed is O.K., see that the carburretor is correctly adjusted and that the choke is in good working order. Quite frequently it will be found that the choke parts are worn or that some part of the choke mechanism has slipped or broken. Few, if any, modern cars will start readily, even in the warmest weather if the choke is defective. Hence the importance of examining it most carefully.

On the other hand, if the choke is used too much, especially in warm weather, hard starting may be experienced.

Next, try the compression by cranking the engine by hand. If all cylinders offer more or less resistance to cranking, the compression is not the cause of the trouble, but if all cylinders are rather weak, the valves should be adjusted if necessary, and if compression is still weak, valves should be ground.

If hard-starting continues, clean the spark plugs and adjust the points to 1-32 in. Examine the breaker mechanism and note whether the breaker points are about 1-64 in. apart when fully open. This figure varies somewhat with different cars. However, if reducing the gap slightly cures the trouble it is plain that the points were too far apart. Inasmuch as this is a it made by an expert unless you are confident of your ability. The breaker points should be smooth and meet squarely. If the points are ragged they should be smoothed on an oil stone, and if pitted the mound should be ground from the point by rubbing on an oil stone. The pit need not be removed unless it occupies more than 25 per cent. of the area of the point, in which case it should be ground down until the area is less than 25 per cent.

In some cases hard starting may be due to a distributer cap which is dirty inside and out, to a worn distributer brush, to rotted high-tension insulation. If the insulation comes under suspicion it is advisable to replace the wiring. Oil-soaked low-tension wiring or slightly dirty or loose connections in the low-tension circuit may also cause starting difficulty.

Finally, hard-starting may be due to a slightly defective coil or condenser. If all other parts are in good condition, it is advisable to have coil and condenser examined by an electrical expert.

In below-zero weather hard-starting is to be expected. In many cases the trouble may be avoided by pouring about a tablespoonful of gasoline into each cylinder, or by draining the cooling system and filling with hot water—although the latter plan is hardly advisable if the system is filled with anti-freezing liquid, or by wrapping hot wet cloths around the carburretor.

In extremely cold weather the engine may refuse to start on gasoline, in which case it should be primed with denatured ether, obtainable at almost any drug store. In exceptional cases filling the carburretor float chamber with ether is more effective than priming.

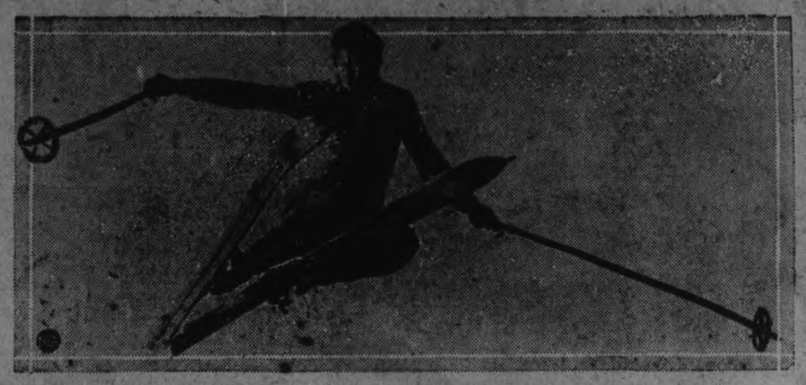
SKI-JUMPER SKIDS



But figure out for yourself if this ski-jumper up in the air at Mur ran, Switzerland, is going to land right-side up.

A COMMON COLD AND CATARRH

Best Medicine, Fresh Air — Infection and Danger Signals.

It is the most common thing in the world to meet someone with a "cold." "How are you?" you ask your friend in the street. "Oh, I've got a rotten cold," is quite an ordinary reply. You yourself often feel out of sorts this variable weather; and sometimes you find that you have "cot it"—or you know you are "going to have it."

Well, it is a wretched feeling—and it is a wretched ailment. For a common "cold" is as definite an ailment as is smallpox or measles. In other words a "cold" is due to an infectious disease germ—or a mixed variety of germs—and, like any other germ, they cause your blood to become poor and unwholesome. If allowed to get the upper hand, it may pave the way for all sorts of further trouble.

A Misleading Name.

And the worst of a "cold" is that its popular name is so misleading. It has little or no connection with cold. The sufferer often feels hot and stuffy. Or, if he feels poorly he thinks that as he is suffering with a cold he must warm things up by shutting out his best medicine—fresh air. So all the windows have to be closed, and the germs of infection get a better grip than ever. No; a cold is not due in any way to cold air. The thing is unknown on an Arctic Expedition—except when somebody gets in contact with the germs which have been carried from a warmer climate in clothes or stores. It would be better if we abolished the term "Cold" and substituted that of "Infectious Catarrh." For that is what a cold really is.

Infection.

Now, having referred to infection, let us say this: a sneeze carries infection for many yards, so does a cough. Therefore, we should all make free use of handkerchiefs when suffering from either. These are disinfected by boiling. Paper is better still—this can be burned. We "catch cold" long before we know it. Perhaps the symptoms never develop. But the germs have a knack of lying in wait at the back of the nose and throat. And they are waiting for the time when we have been slightly neglecting ourselves, when we have been going short of sleep, or eating and drinking wrongly, or overworking, or getting chilled and damp. Any of these causes lowers the vitality. Then the cold gets us in its grip.

Danger Signals.

We always know the advent of a cold through a husky throat or sore chest, or a roughness at the back of the nose and throat, or an increasing running at the nose and sneezing. These symptoms are the most usual. What should be done when these danger-signals occur? For all these symptoms gargle—and again gargle; night and morning with a teaspoonful of common salt and one of bicarbonate of soda in half a pint of tepid water. Snuff it up the nose, and rinse the mouth and throat. This is a fine cleanser and preventive.

Let us without fail take a cold seriously. It will shorten the trouble. It may not be possible to stay at home; one can go about with a cold, but it isn't a charitable thing either to oneself or to one's neighbour. If you can stay at home, sit where your feet are thoroughly warm, but where your lungs get plenty of fresh cool air. They say, "Feed a cold but starve a fever." This is doubtful advice. A fever will have to be starved, as the patient's appetite is usually gone. But it is safe to say that with a thorough cold the diet should be plain and moderate, soups, broths, milky preparations, and plenty of cold water drunk between times. the bowels must be kept open. If the cold has settled on the chest, plenty of flannel on the back and front of the chest is advisable; and good toffee is one of the finest things to eat if you fancy it; it's a good lubricant. A day's rest in the conditions described will work wonders.

If your "cold" leads to shivering fits—go straight to bed; you may have developed influenza. You will know how you are the next day and can act accordingly. But don't resist nature's warning. The shivering fit tells you of a rise of temperature; and nobody can afford to ignore that. You are no longer suffering from a "cold" in these circumstances.

The Benefit of the Open Air.

But if you wish to avoid colds spend more time out of doors and do a little work with your muscles every day—breathe deeply then. The more you get in the open air the hardier you will become. The more you coddle and pile on wraps and coats the more sensitive to chills and changes of temperature. Let us always bear in mind that Providence has created us each one his own physician. The doctor merely helps Nature out.

RECORDS MADE IN 1924

The statements submitted at the Annual Meeting of the Excelsior Life Insurance Company, presided over by the First Vice-President, Alex Fasken, K.C., show that 1924 was in several respects the best year experienced by this purely Canadian Company.

The amount of new business issued, and the increase in premium income, were the largest on record, whilst the mortality rate was the lowest of the past ten years.

The Insurance in force now amounts to $57,782,140.05. Assets, which include over $3,000,000 of Government and Municipal Debentures, total $10,063,407.92. To policyholders was paid during the year, or set aside for their protection, $1,789,907.41.

The year was another good surplus earning year, the unalloted surplus increasing by $189,033.38 to $1,327,122.88, evidence in itself of the strong financial position of the Company.

The earnings of the investments average 6.86%.

It was announced that these favorable results had been attained with a decrease in expense ratio of 5%. Policyholders will be pleased to learn that a substantial increase in profits to policy holders was announced.

In Central Ontario the Excelsior's interests are ably handled by Mr. A. J. McClellan.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

TODAY'S CHURCH UNION REPORTS

Today's reports on Church Union votes in Presbyterian congregations show that a number of additional important Presbyterian congregations have voted to remain Presbyterian, and in most cases, by large majorities. These include Knox Church, Guelph, which voted against Union by 153 to 563; St. Andrew's, Sarnia, by 83 to 406, and Collingwood by 130 to 396. The Presbyterian Church at Norwich has also voted to remain Presbyterian.

PETERBORO BRANCH,
PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
ASSOCIATION.

CHURCH UNION IN PETERBORO PRESBYTERY.

An unnamed correspondent in your Friday's issue disputes the claim that a majority of the votes cast for and against Church Union in Peterboro Presbytery to date favor the Presbyterians as against the Unionists. Our statement was intended to imply (as the list of congregations indicated) to those congregations which had voted by ballot. As such it was correct. In the voting to date in the Peterboro Presbytery, where ballots have been taken as provided by the Act, the total votes for Union have been 625 and the votes against 667. This gives a majority of 42 for the Presbyterians.

Your correspondent claims the right to include votes of the Brighton, Baltimore and Cold Springs congregations. We would point out that these congregation did not conduct a ballot. We understand that some form of open vote was taken at their meetings. This means that the votes that these congregations have taken may be upset before June 10. All that is necessary to upset the votes is to secure a small number of names on petitions in each congregation asking for a vote by ballot, and new votes will have to be held. This is what happened recently in Chalmers Church, Woodstock, which voted at a congregational meeting to enter Church Union but when a petition was circulated a few days later for a vote by ballot the first vote was disallowed and another congregational meeting was held at which arrangements were made for a vote by ballot.

Members of a considerable number of congregations which were led to vote in favor of Union in the early days of the voting, under the claim that the Presbyterian Church was entering Union almost unanimously, have been astounded to find that this claim was not based on facts, and that already 260 Presbyterian congregations have decided not to enter Union. The result is that in many congregations which our Unionist friends are claiming have entered Union by open votes, new votes will be required by ballot. The Woodstock congregation is not the only one which, after holding an open vote at a congregational meeting, has decided to hold another vote by ballot. It is not safe, therefore, for our Unionist friends to include such congregations with congregations which have voted by ballot as their final attitude will not be known until after June 10 next. That is why they were eliminated from our first statement.

Your correspondent last night, whom we presume to be a minister and that is why he does not give his name, ridicules some of the smaller congregations in this Presbytery on the grounds that they are not self-supporting congregations. May we ask what the Unionists intend to do with the several hundred small non-supporting congregations in the West which they claim have voted for Union and which hitherto have drawn their support largely from the big Presbyterian Churches in Eastern Canada, such a large percentage of which are now voting to remain Presbyterian? Why do not the Unionists in their statement of votes show what percentage of the congregations they claim have entered Union are real congregations and what percentage are pastoral charges and mission station Were they to do so, it would be found that they have not half as many congregations as they claim and that most of their congregations are pastoral charges and mission stations receiving help from the older congregations of the East.

Narcotic Conference Saved From Break Up

GENEVA, Jan. 24. — (United Press.)—The International Narcotic Conference was again saved from a break-up when the conferers unanimously adopted the Finnish project providing for the appointment of a joint commission not only to consider the entire American proposal, but also all conciliatory projects.

The committee will recommend a solution of the impass brought when Great Britain refused to accept the American programme.

Both Viscount Cecil far England and Congressman Porter for the United States accepted the Finnish compromise.

The reaction in wheat might go some what farther. Rye should continue to advance, regardless of the action of other grains. The world's production of rye is known and it is also known that the world's requirements are in excess of that production.

TO HOLD A RECITAL IN KNOX CHURCH

Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park and Mr. Charles Peaker Will Provide Programme.

The vocal and organ recital to be given in Knox Presbyterian Church on Monday evening next by Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, soprano, and Mr. Charles Peaker, organist of Knox Church, promises to be a brilliant musical event. The programme is varied and of a very interesting type, including a number of beautiful organ selections and some of the songs which have formed the most outstanding numbers on previous concert programmes by Mrs. Park, with several entirely new songs.

Bach's Prelude and Fugue in D Major opens the programme. This is one of the most brilliant of Bach's great organ works; the prelude having much of the majesty of the French overture form, while the fugue is characterised by a very animated discussion of its lively subject.

Other organ numbers are Samazuilh's Prelude, Hollins' Intermezzo in D flat, Vierne's Allegro Vivace (Symphony 1), Bairstow's "Evening Song," and Bonnet's Variations de Concert. This last piece, classical in form, begins with a brilliant introduction, which leads to the theme itself. Four variations on it follow, and in the last one a cadenza for manual and pedal is introduced, including arpeggios and chords for the feet alone. This piece was chosen as a test number by the Royal College of Organists, London, and also by the American Guild of Organists.

Mrs. Park's vocal programme opens with Mendelssohn's "Hear Ye, Israel." This aria opens the second part of Mendelssohn's "Elijah," and though too well-known to need extended comment, attention should be called to the yearning over faithless Israel expressed in the first movement, which presently gives place to the stirring passage, "I am He that comforteth, be not afraid!"

A group by Mrs. Park includes Corner's "Old English Lullaby," Brahms' "The Little Sandman," and the impressive arrangement by Schindler of a traditional Yiddish melody, "Eili, Eili." This melody is sung in simplified form by millions of Jews throughout Russia, Poland, and New York's East Side. The Hebrew phrase recurring throughout, "Eili, Eili, lama sabach thani," is said to be Christ's last sentence upon the cross. This arrangement by Kurt Schindler seems to preserve best the pathos and the inspired proclamation of faith at the end.

TOWN IS BURNED.

RUMFORD, Me., Jan. 24—Fanned by a biting wind, six homes in Rumford, and Smith's Crossing, a bordering town, were destroyed by fire with an estimated loss of $200,000.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

CELEBRATED MINSTRELS ARE COMING.

The minstrel fans of this vicinity will be pleased to learn that one of the very best and largest minstrel organizations on the road is to visit the city.

Possibly certain people have forgotten that they are minstrel fans because it has been so long since they had an opportunity to see a really first-class minstrel—however, the fever of minstrel microbe will get them when the richly dressed parade of Harvey's Greater Minstrels pass over our streets at noon the day they appear here.

The amusement question has by some people always involved the "questionable amusement" question, but that theme is never aroused by the coming of a high-class minstrel. Baseball games, a good circus and an up-to-date minstrel seem to be at least three forms of amusement which are never questioned by the most scrupulous.

Laughter, the creating of laughter, is the purpose of the minstrel, as well as the rendering of tuneful music and pleasing songs.

The minstrel man has been known from almost the beginning of this world's history and was well known by the writers of Biblical affairs. It is very characteristic of the minstrel which makes it capable of appealing to all classes and when Harvey's Great Minstrels appear at the Grand Opera House Jan. 31st there will be seen hundreds of people in the theatre who are not habitual theatregoers.

AT THE CAPITOL

The Capitol Theatre has a regular laugh feast as its programme for the week-end. Buster Keaton, the comedian who is bidding fair by his ingenious methods, to steal some of Harold Lloyd's laurels, is the hero of "The Navigator," a comedy which takes an improbable situation and treats it in entirely distinctive fashion, getting laughs a-plenty out of its ridiculous unfolding.

The fat Walter Hiers is the harassed hero of another shorter comedy, there is a fantastic Felix the Cat creation, Aesop's Fables, the Fox News, and the interesting Topics of the Day. From first to last of a varied and funny series of pictures, the programme is entertaining.

Buster Keaton and a sprightly lady mariner are marooned on a drifting wreck, and the adventures they go through before they finally reach a safe harbour are manifold and wonderful. The hero does all sorts of stunts in a very funny manner, and there is a touch of uproarious comedy to his deep-sea diving adventures. Encased in a heavy suit, he makes an amateur entrance into the deep green sea, where he has a wonderful time with a couple of swordfish, and also does a Gilliatt act, a la Victor Hugo, in his fight with a monstrous devil-fish. Cut off from upper regions by the advent of a crowd of savages to the ship and his attendant lady, he makes his escape from the water in characteristic fashion. A submarine plays a part in the final rescue of the two

FILM SENSATION GIVES FANS THRILLING TRIP FROM FRISCO TO TAHITI

Poet Services' "The Roughneck" Heralded as Greatest Drama of Exotic Love.

If you are fortunate and can secure a seat, you will immediately relax, settle back and enjoy an excellent picture when you see "The Roughneck" at the Capitol Theatre, next Monday and Tuesday, according to Manager J. C. Kennedy.

This is a William Fox special adapted from "The Roughneck" by Robert W. Service, author of "The Spell of the Yukon," combines all the elements that go to make an ultra-modern picture. It is a story of Frisco, the South Seas, love and adventure, moving with the swift rhythm of musical cadence, lavishly produced and played by an excellent cast.

George O'Brien, has the leading role. Billie Dove, in the leading feminine role, a radiantly beautiful artist, is credited with an admirable characterization. If "The Roughneck" is a fair sample of the widely exploited William Fox special this season the public is going to take to the full-sized package with wonderful enthusiasm," is the way one New York reviewer expresses it.

"The Roughneck" is the story of a man who had been abandoned in infancy through the machinations of an evil admirer of his mother and who in his early manhood became a fugtive from justice as a result of a prize-fight in which he participated to right a wrong and not only defeated his opponent, but, according to the police, killed him with a fist blow. Upon the advice of his lifelong protector, a Frisco dock clerk, the young man became a stowaway on an out-going ship and thus, after many thrilling adventures, landed on Tahiti, where he became a principal in one of the most remarkable love affairs ever filmed, it is said.

Billie Dove is cast in the leading supporting role as Felicity Arden, who sees through the rough interior of the outcast and inspires him to prove again his claim to manhood.

Others in the cast who bring out the realism of the Robert Service thrilling adventure are Harry T. Morey as Mad Marrat, Cleo Madison as Ann Delaney, Charles A. Sellon as Sam Meldon, Ann Cornwall as Zele, Harvey Clark as the fight manager and Maryon Aye as Marrat's girl.

AT THE ROYAL.

BETTY COMPSON IS STAR OF NEW FILM.

"Ramshackle House" Shows the Beautiful Player at her Best.

Similes fail and metaphors lag in finding a fitting word for glorious Betty Compson, star of "Ramshackle House," the picturization of the Hulbert Footner novel of the same name, which comes to the Royal Theatre for a three day run on Monday.

Her beauty, vivaciousness and the subtle intrigue of her versatile personality have established her popularity wherever motion pictures are shown.

She was born in Salt Lake City and appeared in vaudeville before entering moving pictures. She began her screen career in Christie comedies and played in 78 of them before getting a part in a feature. Her performance in "The Miracle Man," her first long picture under the Paramount banner, stamped her as one of the foremost actresses on the screen. Since then her popularity has been constantly growing. All of her pictures have been acknowledged successes. They include "The Little Minister," "The Green Temptation," "The Bonded Woman," "To Have and To Hold," "The White Flower," "The Rustle of Silk," "The Woman with Four Faces," "The Stranger," "The Enemy Sex," and "Miami."

In "Ramshackle House," Miss Compson has a role which allows her ample scope for her talents. As Pen Broome, to whom love and adventure come in "Ramshackle House" in the Everglades, this popular star does some of the best work of her career.

In her support are seen John Davidson, Robert Lowing, William Black Henry James and others.

"Ramshackle House" was adapted for the screen by Coolidge Streeter. Harmon Weight directed.

"TWO SHALL BE BORN."

"Two Shall be Born" will be the attraction at the Royal Theatre on Thursday. It is an adaptation of Marie Conway Oemler's popular novel of the same name. The story treats of the lives of a girl in The Prague, sent to America on a diplomatic mission, and the son of a New York financier. Around these two is woven a plot full of adventure, romance and dramatic situations. The cast includes Jane Novak, Kenneth Harlan, Sigrid Holmquist, Fuller Mellish, Frank Sheridan, Catharine Evans, Blanche Craig, Joseph Burke, Walter James and Zyllah Inez Shannon.

Choir Skating Party.

A very enjoyable evening was spent by the Sunday school choir of the Methodist church on Thursday, when they attended the rink and skated for a few ours after which they went to the home of the pianist and choir leader, Mr. George W. Lucy and Mrs. Lucy where they were served to a splendid lunch and spent a social hour with music and games. There were about 25 of the choir members present and all report a good time.

The British Government's action to prevent whales from becoming extinct was projected in the departure recently from Liverpool on the liner Ortega of an advance party of a whaling research expedition sent to South Georgia by Colonial Office consisting of Dr. F. A. Wheeler and Mr. L. M. Matthews, zoologists, and Mr. A. J. Clowes, hydrologist. Scott's famous ship Discovery, which is to be employed in this research work, will not be ready for sailing for some time to come. Mr. Wheeler, in an interview, said very little was known about whales in regard to their feeding, migration, and breeding habits. Owing to more speedy methods now employed in capturing, killing and disposing of whales there was a danger of whales becoming extinct in a few years' time unless some means was devised of protecting them in their breeding haunts.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR
We are encouraged to keep at it, by the admonition: "Be not weary in well doing, for in due season, thou shalt reap if thou faint not." It is wise to investigate and examine carefully both sides of any question before making conclusions. In regard to Scriptual statements, we who have gotten a sane, reasonable answer to our questionings, would keep reiterating the truth concerning the same. It is written: "The wages of sin is death," and "The soul that sinneth shall die."
These statements cannot be so construed as to read "The wages or penalty of sin is endless torment." Jesus gave himself a ransom for all. He ransomed all from the penalty of sin, which is "death"; so all men independent of character in this life shall either not die, or be resurrected from death. It was necessary for the life of a perfect man be given, for a perfect man (Adam) had sinned. Jesus to be able to pay the full ransom price must be equal and corresponding to the perfect Adam while in Eden. He could not be part God and part man, that would be more than justice required. Jesus became poor by becoming a man. He was made a little lower than the angels. He was God's well-beloved Son, in whom He was well pleased. It was God's love prompted Him to give His only begotten Son, John 3, 16, 17. Being resurrected or given a chance to have eternal life does not make bad men good; but it does put them on probation.
M. T. BUTCHER.

Owing to the great expansion of The Manufacturers' Life Insurance Company, Mr. Frank A. Black, manager of the Peterboro office, is being transferred to Seattle, Washington. SCHEDULED GAMES AT CURLING RINK

Alex. Kay's Rink Pile Up Score of 15 for the High Score of the Night.

In spite of the fact that the majority of the members of the Peterboro Curling Club are enthusiastic hockey supporters and that Parkdale Seniors were here last night, the "knights of the broom" turned out well and the six games scheduled were run off. R. N. Bacon was in such a hurry to get through with his curling game so he could go to the Senior fixture at the Brock street rink that he forgot and left his pipe at the rink. He may have been in a big hurry to get at it, but he did not leave until he had handed Copping's rink a 12 to 9 trimming. Sturgeon downed Donaldson to the tune of 9 to 6; Hall piled up a score of 12 but Menzies went 6 better when he collected a list of 18 stones. Alex Kay had no trouble in doing away with Bob Hicks; Connal added another victory to his list when he defeated Cruthers, and Davidson nosed out Martin Chenhall's rink by one stone. City Served With Writ Halting Power Inquiry

A writ was served on City Solicitor Joseph Wearing, acting for the city, by the solicitors of the Campbell Flour Mills Co. this morning, which will probably have the effect of postponing the sitting of the judicial inquiry into the power accounts of the company with the Utilities Commission set for Monday.

It is expected that Mr. Wearing will have the opportunity to present the city's argument against an injunction restraining His Honor Judge Huycke from holding the inquiry, sought by the Campbell Flour Mills Co.

ONE KILLED WHEN ITALIANS QUARREL

Opening Volley in New Italian Feud in Detroit Yesterday.

DETROIT, Jan. 24.—(Canadian Press.)— Riddled with bullets and buckshot, one man is dead and his brother is dying at the receiving hospital as the outcome last night of what the police believe to have been the opening volley in a new Italian feud here.

Nick Todaro, aged 34, who arrived only yesterday morning from Brooklyn, and his brother, Andrew, aged 30, were shot down in the street. Two unidentified Italians seen running toward a heavily curtained automobile from the scene of the shooting, are sought by detectives.

The Brooklyn visitor was shot six times in the head and fifteen times in other parts of the body. Both victims were literally riddled with buckshot, indicating one of their assailants was firing with a sawed-off shot gun.

The police say the dead man answers fully the description of Frank Todaro, formerly of Detroit, who was arrested here for murder on May 4th, 1922, but subsequently was discharged.

THEFT CASE HEARD.

Three Men Discharged in Port Hope Case— House Robbed.

PORT HOPE, Jan. 24—Luke Mix, Gerald Henderson and S. Chesterson of Port Hope, were charged with burglary on the 28th of November, 1924, of the house of Mr. Clayton Withers, in Port Hope.

This fine residence is known as the "Blue Stone," and Mr. Withers is an American who was away for the winter, in the South.

It is alleged that the young men, with one Jackson, who pleaded guilty to the offence, agreed and formed a plot to enter this house, to rob it of any liquor that might have been there.

Chief of Police Murphy of Port Hope and Provincial Constable Cousens of Cobourg prepared the case for the authorities, and rounded up the accused.

After an all-day trial before Police Magistrate Campbell at Port Hope yesterday, Mix, Henderson and Chesterson were discharged, and Jackson was remanded for sentence.

G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., of Peterboro, appeared for prisoners, Mix and Henderson.

T. F. Hall, K.C., of Cobourg, appeared for the defendant Chesterson, and W. P. McMahon of Port Hope appeared for Jackson.

MUSIC LOVERS EXPECT TREAT

Dorothy Allan Park and Charles Peaker to Give Recital

AT KNOX CHURCH.

Peterborough music lovers anticipate with interest and pride the organ and vocal recital by two leading Peterborough artists in Knox Presbyterian church on Monday evening next. Dorothy Allan Park, soprano, will give a rare selection of vocal numbers from her extensive repertoire. Mrs. Park received her early instruction from her father, Mr. John Allan, to whose untiring zeal and instruction she owes much of her success as an artist. She later studied with Maestro Giovanni Clerici, of Florence, Italy, and with Mr. Dalton Baker, of New York and Toronto. She has sung frequently to large and appreciative audiences in Toronto, Montreal, London and other Canadian cities, always receiving return engagements, and meriting unqualified praise from such outstanding musical critics as Hector Charlesworth and Augustus Bridle. Mr. Charlesworth writes in Saturday night: "Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park has a voice of fine mezzo quality, and her singing is marked with declamatory fervour, and admirable enunciation and phrasing." In the Toronto Star Augustus Bridle writes of Mrs. Parks' singing, "with commanding impressiveness, and a voice of big dimensions, rich in the lower register, brilliant in the high notes, and with a wonderful crispness of dramatic enunciation."

Mr. Peaker combines rare ability as a pianist, accompanist and organist. Among many awards for merit as a pianist he received a scholarship awarded by Dr. Vogt, and spent in study with Mr. Ernest Seitz. He recently accompanied Jules Falk, the eminent New York violin virtuoso, and Miss Van Sweringen, soprano soloist, on a tour of Canadian cities. Referring to the Falk recital the Kingston Standard said: "Mr. Charles Peaker, a very finely trained English accompanist who possesses a most delicate touch, officiated and supported the two admirable artists in a manner that befitted their superb accomplishments."

At a special recital before the Canadian Guild of Organists in Toronto a year ago, the programme was given by Dr. Ernest McMillan, Dr. Healey Willan, Messrs. Richard Tattersall, Otto James and Charles Peaker, Mr. Peaker playing six of Bach's Christmas preludes. 1d-21-5345.

ARREST PEPALL ON CHARGES OF THEFT; BRIBERY

Extradition Proceedings Taken by Province Through W. F. Nickle.

SECOND ATTEMPT.

Failure of U. S. Authorities to Deport Wanted Man is Followed Up.

TORONTO, January 26. — For the second time Andrew Pepall, the one-time associate in business deals in the Stratford district, has been taken into the toils for participation with the former Provincial Treasurer, in the govrnent bond swindles.

Despatches received in Toronto over the week end told of Pepall's arrest in Los Angeles, Calif., as the result of extradition proceedings launched by the Attorney-General of Ontario.

He has but lately escaped from deportation proceedings taken against him by the United States government for alleged illegal entry into the country.

The charges upon which the present extradition proceedings are based, are theft from the province, and the bribery of Peter Smith.

They represent Pepall as the third member of the triumvirate, Aemilius Jarvis, Sr., and Peter Smith being the other two, who trafficked in government bonds at the expense of the province.

Hon. W. F. Nickle at whose initiative the extradition proceedings were undertaken yesterday stated yesterday that they represented another effort on the part of the government to bring Pepall to justice, a previous one having been the deportation proceedings which the United States government was inspired to take.

The Attorney-General said that since the plan of deportation had failed as a result of Pepall's successful appeal from the United States immigration department's ruling extradition had been commenced.

ECLIPSE FAILED AT TRENT RIVER

Lamps Were Lighted During Darkness, That Was Only Sign.

TRENT RIVER, January 26. — Those watching for the eclipse on Saturday morning were disappointed as the sky was not clear. About 7.45 o'clock a bright reflection appeared in the east, but only for a short time, when all was clouded.

About nine o'clock was the dullest time, when some had to have the lamps lit to see about the house.

Personals.

Mrs. George Scott is daily improving, and her medical adviser says with care she will be about again in a short time.

Mrs. W. H. Tedford returned to her home at Peterborough this afternoon, having been called here to see her mother, Mrs. George Scott.

Mr. Wesley Redden shipped eight lambs this week to Havelock, receiving 10 1-4 cents per pound for them.

A credit auction sale of farm stock and implements will be held on Lot 6, Concession 1, Belmont, on Tuesday, 27th January, at 7 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Geo. McQuigge.

Shower To-night.

Mrs. John Armstrong, Hillview Farm, is tendering a miscellaneous shower to-night in honour of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davidson.

POWER SHORTAGE FROM STREAMS FREEZING UP

Water Unusually Low From Drought in Woodstock, N. B.

WOODSTOCK, N. B., Jan. 26.—Woodstock's auxiliary electric power generator is to be pressed into service today or Tuesday, and Houlton, Maine, is reported to be considering similar emergency measures as a result of the power shortage, which has hit many towns in Northen New Brunswick and Maine. These towns are served from the Hydro-Electric plant at Aroostook Falls, Maine, but as a result of the long drought and the unusually cold weather which has frozen lakes and streams to the bottom, sufficient power from Aroostock is no longer available. Service in all the towns affected is greatly curtailed. This is not the only inconveniences aused by the prolonged drought and cold weather, for many farmers are compelled to carry water for miles for their stock or to melt great quantities of snow. It is feared that in some places the cattle will have to be killed.

LINERS UNSINKABLE BY NEW INVENTION

Small Machine Proves Efficiency in Raising a Sunken Boat.

BERLIN, Jan. 26. — (Canadian Press.)—If experiments begun on Lake Constance on Friday achieve the results confidently hoped for by their conductor, ocean liners soon will become unsinkable no matter how many leaks they spring. The invention, which is expected to bring this about, is a small machine devised by Herr Liebetrau, electrical engineer.

Within a given time one such machine will pump out 60,000 cubic metres of water from inside the vessel's hull even though the vessel itself be under water. Sixteen machines would be required to rid a 10,000 ton steamship of water leaking into her hold or airtight compartments.

At Friday's demonstration a twelve foot enclosed boat was flooded and sunk. An hour later it came to the surface entirely free of water. At the point selected for the experiment the lake is forty feet deep.

DIAMOND WEDDING.

Celebrated Sunday by the Earl and Countess of Coventry.

LONDON Jan. 26. — (Canadian Press cable).—The Earl and Countess of Coventry celebrated their diamond wedding ceremony at Croome Court. Worcester, Sunday, under the happiest circumstances, surrounded by their nine children, six sons and three daughters. Hon. Thomas Coventry, the third son, travelled specially from Canada for the celebration which was also attended by many grand-children of the earl and countess. Hundreds of congratulatory messages were received by the aged couple, the senders including King George and Queen Mary, Princess Mary, Princess Louise, the Lord Mayor of London and Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin and Mrs. Baldwin.

Coolidge Hints Callers Should Wear Suspenders

WASHINGTON, January 26. — President Coolidge does not approve the wide-bottom trousers affected by many college students.

This was learned when the President received three Princeton students, members of the American Whig Society, who came to invite him to speak before the society next spring. During the conversation the President gazed down toward the feet of his callers, and much to their embarrassment asked if they did not wear the regulation cut of trousers.

The young men replied that they did not. The President then remarked that his boy came back from college with wide trousers that appeared to be falling off, and he made him wear suspenders.

His callers replied that the style of trousers they wore were the thing among college men.

The visitors were Lawrence Hunt of New York, President of the society; Richard Sater of Ohio, and Joseph Prendergast of Illinois.

Despite his disdain of their trousers, the President posed with his callers for a photograph.

PORTUGUESE ISLAND DISAPPEARED IN SEA

Considerable Loss of Life is Feared—Off Africa.

LONDON, January 26 (Canadian Press). — Port Alexander, a small isle in Angola, the Portuguese colony of West Africa, has been suddenly submerged in the sea, and has completely disappeared, according to a Lisbon despatch to the Sunday Express.

No details have ben received, but a considerable loss of life is feared, as the islet, which was 4,000 square yards in area, was inhabited by Portuguese and native settlers.

CHILDREN NEGLECTED BY PARENTS' QUARRELS.

Children's Aid Society Officer Would Prosecute the Parents.

BROCKVILLE, January 26 (Canadian Press). — "If drastic action were taken against those parents who by their bickerings and quarrels disrupt the home, thus causing the children to be neglected, and they were prosecuted, it might have a salutory effect upon them and be a deterrent to others."

This was the suggestion contained in the annual report of Alex. Beattie, the local superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, who stated the most difficulty and all too frequent cases which he had found resulted in indescribable conditions for children were those "arising from moral laxness and family quarrels which sometimes ended in one or the other of the parents deserting the home and the children."

PROBE UTILITIES.

Stratford Commission $40,000 in Debt to Bank.

STRATFORD, Ont., Jan. 26. — (Canadian Press). — The Public Utilities Commission on Saturday afternoon decided to have the financial conditions of the city waterworks thoroughly investigated. The plant now is some forty thousand dollars in debt to the bank, and it seems there is little chance of current revenue overtaking the deficit.

It was also decided to appeal to the Provincial Board of Health for advice on the advisability of putting iodine in the city water supply.

MENNONITES LAND.

Party With Belgians Arrive at St. John.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Jan. 26.—The C.P.O.S. liner, Marburn, docked here Sunday after a rather rough passage from Antwerp, Southampton, Cherbourg and Queenstown. The vessel was well iced when she arrived in port, having run into severe cold weather and storms on the trip across the Atlantic. She brought 27 cabin and 160 third class passengers, as well as 1400 tons of general cargo. Among the third class passengers were Belgians and Mennonites, en route to Western Canada.

STENCH FILLED MEETING PLACE OF COMMUNISTS

British "Fascists" Had Prepared Greetings and Pungent Odors for Convention.

CHEERED RUSSIA.

British Reds Opposed to "Class Peace" and the League of Nations.

LONDON, Jnuary 26 (Canadian Press Cable). — "Join the Fascisti and to h——l with the Communists!" were the bold words of invitation and condemnation which were chalked on the walls of Battersea overnight in preparation for the conference of the national minority movement in that borough yesterday.

Early comers at the conference hall were unable to enter the building owing to a strong stench which greeted their nostrils when they reached the doors.

The police were summoned, and bottles containing evil-smelling chemicals were found secreted in the gallery.

The chemicals also gave off a lachrymary gas, from which the delegates suffered considerably throughout the meeting.

Tom Mann, the well-known radical Labour leader, presided, and declared that the size of the gathering testified to the progress being made by the movement.

The speakers condemned the trade union leaders for their moderation, and advocated a more militant use of the trade organisation.

The gathering cheered every mention of Soviet Russia, and adopted a resolution in favour of breaking with the policy of "class peace and the League of Nations," and the creation of an international leadership in the working-class battle against the capitalists.

Another resolution affirmed the solidarity of the trade union movements in the British Empire, and repudiated the "Imperialist policy of so-called Labour Governments towards India, Egypt, and other subject nations."

HONORED DA GAMA.

Ceremony at Lisbon in Memory of Navigator.

LISBON, Portugal, January 26 (Canadian Press). — The ceremonies commemorative of the four hundredth aniversary of the death of Vasco Da Gama, the Portuguese navigator who discovered the overseas route to India, began yesterday with a great parade of military and naval forces.

Large detachments from the warships of Great Britain, France, Italy, Spain and Holland took part.

An imposing religious ceremony was held in the Church of Santa Maria De Belem.

Later in the day Cardinal Bello, Patriarch of Lisbon, blessed the sea from the spot where Da Gama's ships left on the voyage of discovery.

SCIENTISTS IN GLEE OVER NEW ECLIPSE FACTS

Saturday's Solar Pageant Photographed at Great Heights from Airplanes.

PERFECT VIEWS.

Wild Fowl Took to Flight and Animals in Zoos Were Alarmed.

NEW YORK, January 26. — Thoughout that section of the earth darkened on Saturday morning by the shadow of the moon, scientists gloated to-day over the accumulation of data obtained by them during the sun's eclipse, while millions of laymen discussed for the general benefit the beauty and majesty of the spectacle of a century.

In those parts of the path of the totality not favored by clear skies during the astral event, notably in sections of Canada and New England, in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan, astronomers comforted themselves for the lack of photographs and direct observations with a store of knowledge acquired in connection with the effect of the eclipse electrically.

But for the most part of the Eastern States conditions for observation were not far from perfect and the huge amount of information collected, cannot fail, scientists say, to add to data concerning such mysteries as the content of the sun's corona, the composition of the eclipse umbra and penumbra, the explanation of the "jumping rabbit" shadows of the moon, the deflection of light as related to the Einstein theory, the effect of eclipses upon the earth's climate, tides and gravity, and the effect on radio activity.

Many Successes.

Observatories at New Haven, Ithica, Poughkeepsie and Buffalo, reported that they had been notably successful in recording the eclipse, as were 13 others within the 100 mile path of the moon laid down from Red Lake, Minnesota, to Nantucket Light.

Astronomers ascending by airplane to great heights took what they expected would develop into perfect photographs of all phases of the phenomenon. They had, they said, made the first pictures ever obtained of the moon's circular shadow as it bounded across the continent at light ning speed.

Other aviators aboard the dirigible Los Angeles, which had manoeuvred in the sky all night prior to the eclipse, reported all observations and photography had been successful.

To the eye of the man in the city street protected by smoked glass or exposed camera film, the eclipse first manifested itself by a nick of shadow at the upper right hand corner of Sol's magnificence. The black line bit imperceptibly into the blazing circle of the sun taking a round bite out of its face.

Five Seconds Out.

While awed millions of humans watched the celestial pageant move slowly and majestically forward the moon began to cast her shadow over the earth and five seconds after the time set by the wise men of this globe she blotted out the sun.

Darkness like that of late twilight galloped across the land from east to west. Venus, Jupiter and Mercury shone brightly in the sky, but all eyes were for the dead black disc of the moon bordered by a pearly opalescence.

"Bailey's beads" flashed for a moment to be followed by pyrotechnics of helium and hydrogen pinkish in tinge. Actually the corona of the sun blazed a million miles beyond his chrosmosphere, but to humanity the irregular splashes of light reaching from behind the moon seemed to exceed her diameter about one and a half times.

At 9.11 eastern standard time it was totality.

Like Engagement Ring.

Then a small corner of the sun's chrosmosphere appeared brilliantly and the superimposed orbs looked like a girl's engagement ring set with an enormous diamond. Gradually over the space of an hour and ten minutes the sun reappeared in his full round redness.

Animals in zoological captivity set up a clamor, monkeys chattered, deer stampeded; lions roared, bewildered horses stopped in the streets.

Wild fowl, hardly settled upon their accustomed feeding grounds, hastily took flight again to nest, only to return to feed again as daylight overtook their homeward journey. Hens went to roost, true to eclipse tradition, and cocks crowed at the phenomenon's end.

Fish in aquaria were seen to gather in schools and seek the bottom of their tank, as they are wont to do at evening.

Many of the large cities, including New York, were favored with a perfect view of the eclipse.

TWIN BOYS ASPHYXIATED IN BATHROOM GAS HEATER TURNED ON BUT UNLIGHTED

Parents Thought Their Ten Year Old Sons Had Gone to Bed—Dead When Mother Broke in the Bath Room Door.

ST. CATHARINES, January 26 (Canadian Press). — The ten year-old twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Everett, Front Street, Thorold, were asphyxiated by gas on Saturday night.

The two boys went upstairs, apparently to go to bed, and the parents thought they had done so until, on retiring themselves, the odour of gas escaping from the locked bathroom caused the mother to investigate.

On breaking in the door, she found the two boys in the bath tub.

Life was already extinct, and though every effort was made by four doctors, nothing could be done to resuscitate them.

The gas heater in the bathroom was turned on, but unlighted.

It is thought the boys had turned off the heater and then turned it on again without relighting.

BIG MERGER OF WHISKEY FIRMS

Three of Biggest British Distilleries Form Combine With $100,000,000.

LONDON REPORT.

LONDON, Jan. 26. — A gigantic hundred million dollar whiskey combination of three of the biggest distilling companies in Great Britain is reported here to be in the process of formation. This belief gained ground from the fact that a meeting of heads of the Buchanan, Dewar Company, John Walker Company and the Distillers' Company — three concerns which control the manufacture of whiskey both for home distribution and export—was held here Friday for the purpose, it is said, of discussing a merger.

These three companies have subsidiary concerns representing more than $100,000,000 capital. For some months there have been reports of an impending amalgamation between these great firms, and the fact has been reflected in big dealings at rising prices of stocks in these companies.

Last year the Buchanan, Dewar Company paid 25 per cent. in dividends. The John Walker people paid 40 per cent., and the Distillers' Company paid 10. By far the greatest of these three companies is the Buchanan Dewar combination, which is capitalized at $45,000,000.

This concern bought control of the John Dewar Company and Buchanan and Company in 1919, when its capital was increased to more than $37,000,000. Buchanan and Company controlled W. P. Lowrie and Company. Since the amalgamation the Buchanan, Dewar Company has been interested with other concerns in the purchase of the famous Haig and Haig concern and James Watson and Company of Dundee.

In the Watson deal the Buchanan, Dewar Company was associated with the John Walker Company in acquiring 5,500,000 gallons of whisky together with the firm's name, for about $10,000,000.

Last autumn the Buchanan, Dewar Company took over the business of Mackie & Company, Glasgow distillers, with a capital of more than $5,000,000; while its latest deal was to purchase the Peter Dawson Co. for $10,000,000.

The Buchanan, Dewar Company now is said to hold the largest stock in the world of mature and early maturing blending brands of whisky. The capital of the Distillers' Company is $30,000,000. This is a combination of a number of grain distillers with big interests in years of production both in this country and the United States.

John Walker & Sons was floated as a public company in 1923, when its capital of more than $6,000,000 was increased to nearly $25,000,000.

Several well-known peers are closely identified with those three companies, notably Lord Gortevion, Lord Dewar, Lord Woolavington, and Lord Stevenson.

Whisky exports circles, discussing the merger report here on Friday, expressed the opinion that if concluded, it would probably tend to raise the price of bootleg whisky in the United States.

Iguanadon Left Footprint For Scientists To Find

PARIS, Jan. 26.—Footprints believed to be those of an iguanadon, pre-historic monster who lived three million years ago have been found in the petrified mud of the Brioni Islands, at the head of the Adriatic.

The impressions are extremely clear, measuring, from heal to toe, nineteen inches. Viennese scientists firmly believe that they are the imprints of an animal of the dinosaur family.

SASKATOON HIT BY SECOND FIRE

Plant of Western Grocers Limited Extensively Damaged Sunday Morning.

WOMAN MISSING.

SASKATOON, Sask., Jan. 26. — (Canadian Press).—Saskatoon suffered its second disastrous fire within 24 hours when early Sunday morning the new plant of the Western Grocers, Limited, was gutted. The damage will be heavy.

Firemen were still searching the ruins of the Drinkle Block for the body of Mrs. Thomas Simmons, 40, wife of the janitor, who is believed to have perished in the $500,000 fire Saturday, the most disastrous in the city's history. The Drinkle building is a ruined shell, and the adjoining grain building and Woolworth store were heavily damaged.

Fireman Charles McGrandles, who fell 30 feet to the pavement when a hose he was carrying up a ladder buckled on him, was reported to be suffering from a broken ankle and two deep leg wounds. That he escaped without a broken back was considered almost miraculous.

No trace had been found of Mrs. Thomas Simmons, wife of the janitor of the Drinkle building. Her husband and sister escaped safely from the burning building, but no word of Mrs. Simmons had been obtained, and it is thought she had been burned to death.

Fireman Caldwell, who was injured when a hose kinked as he endeavored to carry it down from the sixth storey of the grain building, was believed to be in no danger.

MOTORLESS FLIGHT.

French Aviator 2 1-2 Hours With Motor Locked.

SAINT REMY DE PROVINCE, France, Jan. 26.—Lieut. Thoret, the French aviator, carrying a passenger in a regular army aeroplant with the propellor locked and sealed remained aloft Saturday two hours and 26 minutes. This breaks the record for motorless flight with a passenger, which was established by Lieut. Thoret at Biskra, Algeria, last year, by more than one hour.

FISET TO MOVE THRONE SPEECH IN PARLIAMENT

Hanna of Belleville to Second Reply to Governor-General's Address at Opening.

REVENUE IS DOWN.

Session Not Likely to be Strenuous— Reform of Senate to be Introduced.

OTTAWA, Jan. 26. — While the Premier is off for a little sojourn in the near South in preparation for the activities of the session, signs are accumulating that Parliament is about to gather. Members are straying in, deputations seeking things are coming with an increasing frequency while the Cabinet itself is making the motions of being busy.

When the House meets this year the address will be moved in French and seconded in English, which is a reversal of the usual order but one for which the precedents are several. General Sir Eugene Fiset is older and more experienced than the new recruit from West Hastings, Mr. Hanna, and so the former is to move and the latter second the address under circumstances noted that are unusual.

The Treasury Board is going over draft estimates and the undertaking this year is not easy. The revenue is down while the expenditure has not made anything like a concurrent descent. When, last year, the sales tax was reduced, 27 millions was lopped off that potential source of income. Likewise, the fact that business conditions have not been good has clamped corporations and individuals to make less money, hence a falling in the revenue from income tax. The condition is naturally reflected as well in a decrease in the Customs duties. The National Railways have not had a good year, and this is another vexatious difficulty and to make the expenditure come within bounds of the declining receipts proves a laborious enterprise.

There will be few new works but a continuance of the big ones in progress. Whether an item will be inserted to do something on the Hudson Bay Railway is still problematical but there is a chance of it. Some lopping off in the Civil Service is in progress but mainly in lines of temporary employment. Taken on the whole, throughout the country, perhaps 500 will be laid off, at the same time a salary revision for the entire service will absorb in permanency the cost of living bonus, any saving will not be in this direction but in possible reductions of the service.

Not much is heard yet about the measure to curtail the Senatorial powers, but there will be such an "address" to the British House asking a constitutional amendment on the lines of the modified powers of the House of Lords. It will pass the Commons. It will scarcely pass the Senate, for two reasons, one the natural inclination to hang on to what they have, the other the contention that under the Confederation pact the Senate enjoys immunity from interference save when all the provinces originally partner to Confederation join with the Federal Parliament in seeking a reformation of the powers. What will happen in the event of this probable rejection cannot be foreseen. Immediately, there would be nothing, although the episode may generate some powder for explosive use in the not distant general election.

Other things being gotten ready for the conclave are the Grain Act, a measure which will have a bearing upon Atlantic freight rates, a batch of criminal code amendments and a policy on the League of Nations protocol. When the Supreme Court decides the Crows Nest rate agreement but not before, the way will be paved for a measure, probably under Government auspices, designed to define the broad principles of a national structure in freight rates. Little of this sessional work is ready but there will be opportunity to complete it during the prodigal waste of time, latterly inseparable from the debate on the address. The

WOMEN IN PARLIAMENT

Last General Election Left Only Four, and One of Them Sits on the Opposition Benches.

By DIANA BOURBON.

The last English general election was a disastrous one for women in Parliament and women candidates. Only one new woman member was elected to the House, while five former women members, including the first woman Minister, were defeated. Thus Westminster's little phalanx in petticoats now numbers only four instead of eight.

This setback to the political woman, however is generally conceded to be a matter of party politics and not a wave of anti-feminism. The Liberal Party having been practically annihilated at the polls by the general feeling among their supporters that since they could not hope for an independent majority it was better to vote Conservative and defeat the Socialists, there is nothing surprising in the fact that their two members, Lady Terrington and Mrs. Wintringham, should have been swept away in the common disaster.

Besides, Lady Terrington was not the type of woman who ever took her Parliamentary duties with overwhelming seriousness, and Mrs. Wintringham, who went into politics only to replace her husband after his death, was not an enthusiastic "campaigner," as the English call a member who enjoys an election for the sake of the fight. This election, by the way, was rough enough to please the hardiest.

Dorothy Jewson and Susan Lawrence, Labor Party, had very small majorities at the previous election—majorities secured to them by the fact that many hundreds of Conservatives never troubled themselves to vote at all. Margaret Bondfield's case is different. She had a substantial four-figure majority and had distinguished herself in the House. But the Conservatives mustered in full force this year. Then, too, the Liberal Party candidate in her constituency, was a new candidate, Mr. Manfield, a local manufacturer who employs large numbers of his constituents and is beloved for his philanthropic activities. With the Labor vote split and the Conservatives out in force, Miss Bondfield was defeated.

The Conservative women members, the Duchess of Atholl, Lady Astor and Mrs. Hilton Philipson, were returned with increased majorities. If the Conservatives have not added other women to their number, it is because they ran very few at the polls.

Conditions being what they are, attention has become focused, with more than usual interest, on the personalities of Miss Ellen Wilkinson, the one new Socialist woman member and only woman in the Opposition, and of the Duchess of Atholl, who has become the first Conservative woman Minister.

Since a women had held office under the Labor Government, every one expected the Conservatives to continue the new practice. The question was whether the appointment would be given to Lady Astor or to the Duchess. It is felt that a wise choice has been made. Lady Astor has staunch supporters, but she has also bitter enemies, and she is too sparkling not to incur the reproach of frivolity—at any rate, in English public life. Besides, Lady Astor has already the distinction of being the first woman to take her seat in the House of Commons, and the honors have to be divided.

The appointment of the Duchess of Atholl has been hailed with wide approval. In her Scotch constituency, where she is known and loved, and in England, where she is little more than a name, the Duchess has always commanded respect. She is sincere. She is no mere faddist who has taken up reform for want of a political platform. She has worked for reforms for years. She studied the questions of education, of public health, of pure food long before there was talk of women running for Parliament.

She has been a very beautiful woman, the Duchess of Atholl, and is beautiful still, in spite of graying hair and other first marks of age. Tall, slender and graceful, she carries her head high. Her features are finely modeled—"high-bred," as they say in England; in fact, she shows breeding in every inch of her, and that the people love, just as they love her dignity, which some might call cold.

She also has distinction of mind. She is very intelligent and has a quick intuition. At the Board of Education—which, so the party feels, should be the special care of women—she is quickly acclimatizing herself. Her quiet efficiency impresses favorably all the permanent men officials who will have to work under her. She has great charm, but uses it unconsciously. One of her favorite theories is that charm is destroyed when it is striven for. Which is, perhaps, why she believes very ardently in training girls to be useful citizens, and not mere ornamental members of society—just as she believes, without being fanatically feminist, in woman's right to invade man's world.

She is wholly unaffected and shuns publicity. It is almost impossible to make her talk of herself, though she will talk readily enough, and well enough, about politics and any of the subjects that lie near her heart.

A great contrast lies between the Duchess and her one feminine opponent. Miss Wilkinson, barely five feet high, with curly, flame-red hair and a magnificent pair of big brown eyes, has more vitality than dignity, a tremendous sense of humor and no upper class diffidence at all. She is what is known as an official trade-union candidate; in other words her election expenses are paid out of trade-union funds.

The list of her appointments in different trade-union organizations is a formidable one. Most of her life has been spent in organizing workers, especially women workers. According to her own story, her political ambitions date from a mock election held at a secondary school where she was a pupil when she was 16 years old.

"I was a good little Liberal in those days," she told me merrily, "but I was made to stand as Socialist candidate, because the boys had already annexed both the constitutional parties. I didn't grumble, because it was the first time our debating society had ever chosen a girl to run in the mock election, and I was very proud. I would have stood as a Hottentot if they had wanted me to. Anyway, since I had to be a Socialist I decided to find out all I could about the subject, and I spent hours at the library cramming up for it. The boys merely tried to joke the thing through, as usual, relying on the inspiration of the moment, but I arrived a perfect walking blue book of facts and figures, and with a substantial brief that was my speech. I was elected, too, and I had also succeeded in convincing myself. • • • From that day to this I have been a Socialist!"

More, she has been a Communist, a member of the extreme wing that has been disowned by the leaders of the Socialist Party. A short time ago she moderated her more violent ideas and rejoined the orthodox Labor field—a change of front for which she will give no explanation, merely saying: "Well, there you are. I did it, didn't I? I think that is enough to know about it."

At the age of twelve this little red flame of a woman became practically self-supporting. As she puts it: "From then on through college I paid my education by winning scholarships."

One of the trials of being a woman M.P., according to Miss Wilkinson, is the supporting enthusiasm of all kinds of women's clubs and organizations. "I am inundated with letters from them," she says. "They come every da, to ask if I am in favor of this or that perfectly worthy object that happens to be their particular pet fetish. When I say I am quite in agreement with them, they ask me to introduce legislation about it. Now, it is next to impossible for a private member to introduce legislation at all unless it has Government support, much less to get it passed. You have to ballot for permission to introduce it, the chances being 600 to 1 against your getting the opportunity to do even that. But nobody seems to realize that."

She is exercised over the question of obtaining an even moderately effective Opposition in the House. "There are so many Conservatives," she says, "that they will be able to work and eat and play and talk in shifts, and have the shifts relieve each other, without ever ceasing to have a majority present. But the rest of us will all have to be present all the time even to be able hem. At d I don't suppose there will to annoy ever be so few of them where¶¶¶¶¶¶ ever be so few of them there that we can move a closure—or move anything!"

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir: I wish you would be good enough to insert the letter of Rev. N. H. McGillivray to his congregation at Orillia, which to my mind, is a very fair and Christian like attitude to take on the subject of Church Union:

Peterboro Reader.

"I have said, from the beginning, that if a separation of forces there must be in this congregation, on account of the Church Union question, then let us part as good friends. This is a free country, and thank the good Lord, people are free to worship how, when and where they prefer.

"After June 10th, our unionist friends here, should they be in a minority, will have a warm invitation to remain and worship as heretofore, with those who favored non-union. Should however they decide to withdraw and go down to worship in the Methodist church, which will then be one of the congregations of the United Church of Canada, those who remain in this church will only wish for them every success and God's richest blessing in their new church home.

"On the other hand should the non-unionists in this congregation be in a minority they can easily go out and secure a temporary place of worship and carry on, until they can build a permanent place of worship, and their only wish for those who will remain to continue in this old church of hallowed memories and sacred associations, will be for them and theirs, God's richest blessings.

"Now this, in a word, is the attitude of the non-unionists in this congregation towards all who do not agree with them. In the meantime, before the result of the vote is known let people guard well their statements, and reserve the right to decide what their future action will be, after the poll is closed, and the result announced.

"As for myself, I think I should state clearly my position in relation to this congregation, just as all the unionist ministers throughout the country have done. About three weeks ago, the Sunday before the vote was taken in Bloor street Presbyterian church, Toronto, Dr. Geo. C. Pidgeon, the pastor, made a thrilling appeal to his people to follow him into the United Church of Canada. He even said that he desired this a hundred times more than he had desired anything before in his life. As the vote is now approaching for this congregation, let me say here, and say it emphatically, I will never make such an appeal to my people, as Dr. Pidgeon did to his. I want you all, when the facts are before you, to vote according to your conscience and on principle, and forget all about me. In other words eliminate the personal element and vote solely on the merits of the question before you.

"I am a non-unionist on conviction, believing the interests of the Lord's Kingdom are served best by the three negotiating churches working as they are and not in a merged corporation. Such is my stand as I have always stood on this question. But I will never personally ask anyone in my parish, or in any other parish, to vote for non-union because I am a non-unionist. This I leave for everyone to decide for himself, and for herself, on conviction.

"My one desire and chief aim is that all of you follow the Master's will as it is revealed unto you. Do this with no thought of the money and financial side of the question and you will not go wrong. Irrespective therefore of feelings for your minister make your decision on principle as a matter of conscience between yourself and God.

"At least two members of the session of this church have stated to me that should this congregation not go into the United Church they will resign and go to the United Church. This being their decision, on account of deep conviction, I honor their conviction. Should the congregation decide, however, to continue in the Presbyterian church, I sincerely trust that the two above persons who have so declared themselves, as above stated, will keep their word. It will be better for them and better for all concerned and we will all continue to be friends, and wish each other well in our new church relations.

"And now for a word concerning myself. As a non-unionist, I can only honorably and conscientiously do one thing: If then this congregation decides by ballot to enter the United Church of Canada, I will as soon as arrangements after June 10th can be conveniently made, resign and seek work in the continuing Presbyterian church, and leave the people in the majority here to call a minister of their own.

"The above statement concerns only three members of the session, two others and myself; for other members of the session and for you all—members and adherents of this church, unionists and non-unionists, I trust you may be able to worship here as in the past, and be a happy family together. If not then, as intimated above, agree to disagree, and part good friends, and in your separate groups do all you can for the social and religious welfare of the community in which you live, and all to the honor and glory of God through Jesus Christ your Lord and Saviour, in whose name and by whose strength I address to you this sad but loving message. In the work of the Master, your pastor and friend.

Born — In Campbellford, at the Windsor Hotel, on Thursday, 22nd January, 1925, to Mr. and Mrs. James Blute—a daughter.

The Baptist Church held its annual meeting and members' tea and roll call, on Thursday evening in the church on the corner of George and Queen Streets. At the roll call each member answered to their names with a verse of Scripture, and those unable to atend sent a verse or a thankoffering. The two deacons whose office expired were reappointed, namely Messrs R. Weston and D. Mason. There are six deacons, and the term is three years, so that two have to be elected each year. The two deaconesses are Miss Dunn, re-elected, and Mrs. Ford; church clerk, Mrs. R. Weston; assistant clerk, Miss Verma Shore; treasurer, Mr. Fred Weston; missionary treasurer, Mr. John Hall, both re-elected; organist, Miss Jessie Weston; arristant organist, Miss Myrtle Hall; choir leader, Mr. R. Weston; ushers, Messrs. John Hall, G. Lloyd, James Simpson, and A. Gifford.

The total amount raised during the year 1924 was $1,946.00. Of this $144.75 was given to the various missions.

At the annual meeting a thankoffering of $48.00 was raised. With the new pastor and his wife, the church is looking forward to a better year for 1925.

Mrs. Johnston and Mrs. Thou, of Trenton, who are members of the degree team of the Rebekahs, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Morrison, Rear Street, while in Campbellford attending the Rebekah banquet on Thursday.

MILLIONS WATCH ECLIPSE IN U. S.

Crowds in New York Cheer as Corona Appears.

(By Frank Getty, United Press Correspondent).

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Watched by millions, the sun went into total eclipse behind the dull, slate colored disc of the moon and its flaming corona in the eerie blackness of the morning sky, furnished part of the country with a thrill not to be repeatetd for 200 years.

Weird shadow bands raced across the earth as an almost complete darkness fell over a stretch of country from Duluth, Minn., to Montauk Point N.Y. It was near-night in the territory, through a stretch between 85 and 120 miles wide over which the moon's shadow raced eastward at the moment when the eclipse became complete.

The greatest mobilization of scientists in the history of the heavenly phenomena trained telescopes and cameras in the eclipse from 13 observatories, while millions of lay observers braved zero weather to watch the passing of the moon across the sun.

They were rewarded with a sight unequalled in splendor by anything in the skies. Dr. S. L. Boothroyd, astonomer in charge of the observatory of Cornell University at Ithaca, reported the conditions for observing the phenomenon were perfect.

Magnificent Scene.

Dreams of astronomers of seeing a total eclipse of the sun under ideal conditions were realized Saturday in New York and New England. In Michigan and Ontario and at Niagara Falls, however, clouds and low visibility, frustrated the scientific tests.

Especially in New York City, witnessing its first total eclipse in 119 years, was the spectacle magnificent. When the momentary blackness of midnight at 9.11 was accompanied by the beautiful sight of the Corona there was unbounded enthusiasm and watchers on skyscrapers and hill tops cheered. Excellent scientific observations were made by home and visiting scientists at Cornell and Yale, almost in the centre of totality and also aboard the navy dirigible, Los Angeles. The sky ship named for the angels hovered over the island of Nantucket, Mass., and sent word by radio through the heavens that the results of its trip were excellent. The first reports of the results of scientific tests concerned radio. At Yerkes Observatory, Iron Mountain, Mich., a slight increase in volume and clarity of radio was noted. At Waterbury, Conn., a marked departure from the direction of tone wave was apparent.

The eclipse averaged four seconds later than the astronomers had calculated. It was five seconds behind schedule at Cornell, three seconds at Vassar, and five seconds at Yale.

THE PROFITS IN TEA GROWING.

The price of good quality tea has risen in the last two years between 20c and 25c per pound. The demand which has been phenomenal has sustained this increase and the fortunate owners of tea plantations have earned dividends in some cases of from 60% to 100%. All those engaged in selling the commodity—who have not been making any profit—have ben hoping for overproduction. This is inevitable when such profits are being made and prices will then fall. But tea is still getting dearer, and no one can foretell just when the drop will come—whether it one year or longer. It may come when least expected.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Inaugural Meeting of the School Board—Officers Elected.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 26.—The local school board held its inaugural meeting on Wednesday evening, the following officers being appointed for 1925:

Chairman—L. W. Smith.

Secretary-Treas.—A. A. Smith.

Managing Committee—L. C. Russell, J. A. Vance, Chas. Thorndyke.

Truant Officer—Miss S. Dean (reappointed).

The usual accounts were passed and J. A. Vance appointed delegate to the Educational Convention which meets in Toronto during Easer week.

Mr. A. A. Smith has been for twenty-six years a member of the school board, and is entering upon his twentieth consecutive year as secretary-treasurer. His services have been invaluable to the educational facilities of the community.

January Meeting.

The Women's Missionary Auxiliary of Grace Presbyterian church held its January meeting at the home of Mrs. W. E. Bell on Wednesday evening the attendance being most encouraging.

The president, Mrs. (Rev.) G. S. Gervan was in charge, the chapters from the study book, "The Island Beautiful," (Formosa), being taken up by Mrs. H. W. Johnston and Mrs. W. Deyell. The programme for this year up until next June was drafted, two members being made responsible for each meeting. July and August are holiday months, a special re-opening meeting being arranged for in September.

The newly-elected officers for 1925 are:

Honorary President— Mrs. L. S. Clarry.

President—Mrs. Gervan.

1st Vice-Pres.— Mrs. W. T. A. Deyell.

2nd Vice-Pres.—Miss Nellie Finnimore.

Secretary—Mrs. J. R. Eakins.

Treasurer—Mrs. H. W. Johnston.

Supply Sec'y—Mrs. Deyell.

Messenger Sec'y — Mrs. W. E. Ball.

Finance committee—Mrs. Johnston, convenor, Mrs. H. J. Armstrong, Mrs. C. Thorndyke, Mrs. Harry Ball, and Mrs. Jas. Kennedy.

Auditor—Mrs. W. E. Russell.

Expense Treas.—Mrs. H. J. Armstrong.

Four new life members, Mrs. J. R. Eakins, Mrs. L. S. Clarry, Mrs. W. Archer and Mrs. R. J. Doak, all charter members of the organization, were gained during the year. The entire budget of the Auxiliary was about $300.00, a considerable increase over any previous year. The annual "At Home," given by the executive in the fall, when the thank offering is received, was one of the most successful features of the year's activities.

The number of missionary conferences held in the district have added much to the enthusiasm and been of educational value to the several members who have been able to attend. The local Auxiliary work has been helped thereby.

Mrs. Doak has held the office of treasurer for some years but her removal to Toronto for the winter months made it necessary to appoint another to the position.

The expense treasurer has the responsibility of purchasing study books, offering envelopes and other literature which is required from time to time, and the finance committee looks after special appeals which come in for various forms of mission work from outside points, or from the local church. Last year this committee gave a successful "Rose Tea," at Mrs. C. Thorndyke's, and also made and sold an autograph quilt, adding considerably to its funds by these, and other means.

The next meeting on the third Wednesday in February, time and place to be announced later.

FISET TO MOVE

existence of four or five groups is responsible for the excess of talk and the high expense it entails on the public purse.

It is yet too early to read the political horoscope of the session. Indications, however, tend to confirm the expectation that things will be much like last year and the year before, no very big hulabaloo seems in prospect. The Government, while possessing in its own title a very small and precarious lead, has no apparent reason for alarm lest a substantial measure of Progressive support be alienated. These from the Prairies may kick up some fuss if things are not to their liking but internal conditions among them do not suggest a solidified unit. As for the Ontario wing of the party, many, if not all of them, having in view the fate of the Drury Government and the malodorous matter that has come to the air since, are preparing to say, hail and farewell to the movement and go back to the old lines. The most of them are counted on by the Government and one or two of the bolder may cross the floor. Symptoms grow that after the next election the Progressive party will be essentially a western group isolated in the territorial boundaries of the prairie provinces and abandoning every pretention to national score or significance.

SPRING SUIT

The combination of plain and figured materials isone frequently met with in spring fashions. Here is a typical spring suit with striped skirt and plain coat trimmed with the plaid. The coat could be worn very nicely with a white silk skirt while the skirt would look very attractive with a sweater jacket. So it is a valuable addition to any wardrobe.

FRIENDS HONOR WARSAW COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. William Harding Observe Sixtieth Wedding Anniversary.

WARSAW, January 26. — Saturday, January 17th, 1925, was a day of happiness for Mr. and Mrs. William Harding. It was the 60th anniversary of their wedding, which took place Jan. 17, 1865, in the Bible Christian parsonage that stood where Mr. William Crowe's house now stands, by the Rev. Jacob Gale, the Bible Christian minister. The parsonage was burned later.

Thirteen children were born to the couple, all of whom are now living, five daughters and one son, and all were present for the occasion. They are: Mrs. John Moore, Mr. Frank Harding, Mrs. Freebairn, of Dummer, Mrs. Snyder of Rochester, N. Y., Mrs. F. Sharp and Mrs. F. Parcel of Douro; Mrs. Hewitt, sister of Mrs. Harding, and Mr. P. Snyder, of Rochester were present; also Mr. and Mrs. George Harding, Mrs. Garbutt, Peterboro, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. George Garbutt, and Rev. and Mrs. Weir were present for tea. The wedding cake was five stories.

Mr. and Mrs. Harding are and have been members of Bethel church and the good wishes of that church were extended to the elderly couple in the form of an amount of money, and an address as follows:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Harding:

Your friends of Bethel church heartily congratulate you on having reached the 60th anniversary of your wedding day, and join with all your friends in wishing that you may be spared to enjoy many happy days of health and happiness together.

Wishingt to express our regard in something more substantial than words we present you with this small token which we beg you will accept.

We trust that the path of life will be for you a way that shineth more and more unto the perfect day, and that you will be able to join in spirit with Browning, who said:

"Grow old along with me,
The best is yet to be,
The last of life, for which the first began."

Signed on behalf of the Bethel congregation.

F. G. WEIR, Pastor.
RUFUS PAYNE, Secretary

Mr. Harding's parents came from England, and settled in Cleveland, Ohio. Thence they moved to Port Hope; from Port Hope to Peterboro, then to Toronto; from there to Millbrook, where Mr. Harding's father made the first bricks that were made in the village. Finally they seftled in the north of Douro township—on the place opposite where Gordon Lloyd now lives.

Mrs. Harding's parents came from England when they were quite young. Her grand parents on both sides, were among the first settlers in Dummer. Her father, William Batten, and mother, Sarah Payne, were married in the old stone house that stands in a field opposite the farm where John Lloyd now lives. This house is said to be the oldest house in Dummer.

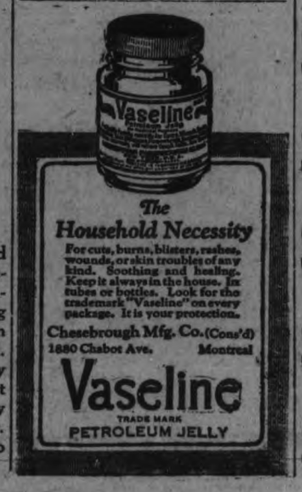
Women's Institute.

On Tuesday evening, January 20th, a debate and pie social arranged by the Woman's Institute was held. Dr. Munro occupied the chair. The opening number was the Maple Leaf. Then followed an orchestra selection, song, "Dear Old Pal," Miss Lulu Bell; "Old-fashioned Mother of Mine," Henry Batten; orchestra selection. Then the debate, "Resolved: That the home has a greater influence on the life and character of the child than has the school." The affirmative was upheld by Rev. F. G. Weir, Miss Sage (teacher of the 3rd line school), Mr. Ernest Batten; the negative side was taken by Mr. Hilliard Darling, Miss Quinn, and Mr. Currie, the latter two Warsaw teachers. Judges chosen by the affirmative side, Mr. E. N. MacDonald; by negative side, Mrs. David Miller, and by the Institute, Miss Fitz-Gerald, teacher of Douro S.S. No. 5. A splendid line of arguments was put up by both sides. Each one of the six held the audience. There were a few amusing things said, not because they were amusing or even thought to be. Among the arguments for the Home were: There could be good citizens without schools; the Home supplies character; which would we choose: an uneducated person of good character, or an educated person of bad character? Sentiment is a great factor in life. There is no greater than the love of home. A child's character is actually formed by the age of seven. A certain cardinal said: "Give me the child until he is seven and I care not who then has him." A child has learned much before he enters school. Social workers try to get children into homes. Early Christian training. In the Home there is more personal touch. Nationals fail because of wrong teachers.

'Those on the school side included: The home is ofte neglectful; School inculcates ideas of regularity, obedience, punctuality; removes surplus conceit. School is obliged to look after the health; child chooses its vocation; does not just drift into it; ignorance cause of crime, medical inspection, supervised playgrounds; physical exercises; intermingling of all classes; union necessary to a nation; leaders are formed; schools give impetus to proper development, encourage individual thinking.

After a careful comparison of notes the judges decided that the affirmatives won by a small margin. Mr. MacDonald announced the decision and the first to lead the applause were the losers.

While the judges were deciding there were more songs and selections. Pie and tea were served.



DANCE AT MARMORA.

St. Paul's A.Y.P.A. Put on Succesful Event—Board-Walk Orchestra There.

MARMORA, January 26. — A dance was held in the Town Hall on Friday evening, under the auspices of St. Paul's A.Y.P.A. The Board-walk Orchestra of Havelock furnished the music. Prizes for best dancers were awarded. Mr. W. Breault also gave a fine exhibition of step dancing.

Miss Margaret Donnolley entertained a number of her young friends at her home on Thursday, it being the occasion of her birthday.

Misses Norah and Florence Wallace, of Delro, who have secured positions in Toronto, left for the city on Thursday.

Mrs. Albert Emmorey is on the sick list.

Mrs. A S. Robertson is still critically ill in Toronto.

Miss S. Moynes is still confined to the house through sickness.

After a Lake Country jury had deliberated for twenty hours on an alleged breach of the prohibition law it was found that the evidence (three quarts of whisky) had dwindled to a few drops, and that the jurymen had a "rather-the-worse-for-wear appearance." We are not in favour of juries who swallow all the evidence put in front of them, but, at the same time, it is only right that justice should be blind.

SATURDAY'S DISAPPOINTMENT.

Many Peterborough people were disappointed on Saturday morning by reason of the fact that thick clouds robbed them of a chance of observing the wonderful spectacle of the eclipse of the sun.

They merely lost the thrill of witnessing an unusual sight.

But think of the loss to the astronomers and scientists of Canada, men like Professor Chant, who have spent a life-time in studying and preparing for Saturday's phenomenon, who have been planning for many months to take full advantage of the opportunity and then, at the last minute, were deprived of every possible chance to make observations.

It is difficult for the lay mind to grasp the poignancy of the disappointment to men whose lives have been devoted to the study of astronomy and who had been loking forward for years to the zero hour Saturday morning.

To the many on the street the cloud screen that hid the eclipse was a source of some disappointment; to the astronomer it was little short of a tragedy.

And there is no second chance—in this part of the world at least.

TODAY'S GUESTS.

Peterborough welcomes today the members of one of the most famous hockey organizations in history, the Sault Ste. Marie team, familiarly known as the Soo Greyhounds.

Hockey is Canada's National Winter pastime and perhaps the greatest and most popular sport developed in this country.

It is symbolic of Canadianism in its speed and dash, in its test of gameness and endurance, and in its rugged vigor and red-blooded appeal.

Every Canadian is proud of hockey as a distinctive Canadian contribution to sport and it is therefore, a pleasure to Peterborough to have as its guests for a day the players who won the highest honors in Canadian hockey last season and who, had this been the year of the Olympic game, would have represented this country in competition against the world.

And those who know the calibre of the Soo team would be quite wiling to leave the honor of Canada in their hands in such a competition.

The Greyhounds have won an enviable name for themselves, not only for brilliant hockey, but for good sportsmanship and clean tactics on the ice.

In every respect they are worthy Champions of Canada and tonight Peterborough followers of the game should be delighted to honour them for the record they have made as the leading amateur exponents of Canada's greatest sport.

A JOURNALISTIC AMBASSADOR.

A well known and able journalist, Mr. A. Belding, of St. John, N.B., has been sent to Ontario and the Western Provinces by the St. John Telegraph Journal as a sort of ambassador from the Maritime Provinces, to present the grievances of the people down by the sea and to observe doubtless the reaction of Ontario folk to his mission.

One of the first things the journalistic envoy must have discovered is that this section of the Dominion is not without its troubles.

Canada is a country of immense distances and it is natural, under the condition, that each section should have its own peculiar problems and equally as natural that these problems should drive out all thought of the grievances of the other sections.

It is this parachial attiude that makes the task of government a most embarrassingly difficult one and Mr. Belding's visit will have done some good, if it not only gives Ontario people a better insight into those things that appear so importan to their brother Canadians in the Maritimes, but also results in the knowledge reaching the Eastern Provinces that there are conditions up this way that also need adjusting.

It is just as well that the people of the different parts of the Dominion should learn something about their fellow-citizens; they may in time learn too, the wisdom of thinking in terms of Canada as a whole rather than in terms of any particular province or section.

THE BURDEN OF TAXATION.

The Citizens' Research Institute's latest bulletin on taxation show that in 1922 Canada, with a population of 8,799,482 according to the latest census, paid in taxes about $561,460,037.

This staggering sum was made up of:

Municipal taxes	$178,604,291
Provincial taxes	47,342,405
Dominion taxes	335,453,341

Just what these figures mean may be gathered from the statement that the total paid in taxes during the year under review was 19 per cent of the year's total net production of all Canadian industries, including mining, fishing and agriculture.

It was almost half the net agricultural production and exceeded the combined gross production of Canadian forests and mines.

It was 50 per cent of the net manufacturing production in 1922.

To get the people of Canada to realize what is involved in taxation on the scale would be to go a long way toward remedying the conditions.

It is difficult to make the fact generally appreciated that every family in Canada is paying a share of the amount, either directly or indirectly, through the cost of living, or both.

And in addition to this large sums were contributed to the government in the form of fees, fines, licenses and through all other means which governments take to collect revenue.

If we can get to the stage when deputations will visit Ottawa to show the government how and where to spend less money or get more value for the same money, rather than deputations to show the government where to spend more money, there would be some reason to feel confident that the tide had turned.

CAN GIVE AN OBJECT LESSON.

Some of the votes on church union show a division of almost 50-50 on the question. A remarkable example of this comes from Brantford, where St. Andrew's Presbyterian church voted 236 for uion and 235 against. The vote of one member would have turned the verdict the other way. St. Andrew's, Brantford, is not an isolated case, as there are quite a number where votes of almost similar character have been recorded.

It would be much a simpler matter to adjust had the majority been more decisive either way, says the London Advertiser. In dealing with a vote that is almost a tie there will of necessity have to be a display of fair-minded Christian charity and toleration that the church should be in a position to supply.

The period of readjustment on which the Presbyterian church is entering will call for qualities of toleration and sympathetic treatment to a greater degree than the preliminary arangements or even the taking of the vote.

After all, those who go into union and those whose conscience has dictated that they shall remain out are working for the same great cause. They have an opportunity now to give an inquisitive and somewhat skeptical world a demonstration of how Christian men can readjust their differences, even if those differences do entail the possession or the giving up of property that runs into large sums of money.

THE FRENCH DEBT.

The speeches made in the French Chamber last night in the discussion on the payment of France's debt to America are more likely to appeal to the hearts of men than to their heads. Such sentiments would have made a strong apepal to Woodrow Wilson, with his idealism, but we hardly imagine that they will have the same melting effect on President Coolidge.

On the grounds of a high standard of altruism the speech of Louis Marin carries conviction. He has a good case sentimentally when he pleads that the cost of the war to France in life and property and the service to the world in holding up the German onslaught until the Allies were ready to share the burden should be set off against the cash value of what followed while serving in the common cause.

The press of Paris this morning is unanimous in praise of the speech of M. Marin. France wants an accountancy that takes into consideration the value in money of the men who died in the cause. Cannot Verdun be estimated in cash value? asks the French legislator.

The speech was a new plea for cancellation, put forward this time on the ground of sentiment. Yet there are enough realists in France to know that when the cheering which the utterance of these exalted sentiments caused has died away France will have to face the problem of payment without any credit slips to offset it based on the sacrifices made before the United States entered the war. America has been intimating pretty broadly to France that the war has been over for more than six years. In fact certain Senators and Representatives in Congress have shown a little irritation and restlessness about the matter. There was an awkward discussion a few weeks ago in Congress, and it is the opinion of the politcal leaders that if the question of taking some drastic action to enforce some form of refunding of the debt by France had gone to a vote it would have been overwhemingly carried. There has been no disposition hitherto to coerce a hard pressed France, and it is only within the last few weeks that American public men have openly urged a settlement.

Britain has been equally reticent in making demands, but there is a growing disposition on the part of the overburdened British taxpayer to ask for a reckoning with France, if not some definite settlement. Britain made no objection when counter claims were advanced, even when they included the rent of the soil of France on which British soldiers dug themselves in for the Allied cause. On the grounds of sentiment such a claim would scarcely be allowed.

France will be on more difficult ground if she transfers the question of her debt settlement from the region of practical business to the sphere of sentiment. There is not the slightest possibility that the United States will cancel the French debt to them. America made no small effort and hundreds of her citizens made great individual sacrifices in the purchase of Liberty Bonds. The holders of these bonds will scarcely look favorably on a proposal that they be cancelled and rendered worthess on the grounds of a sentimental regard for France. America had a substantial war debt of her own to pay, and to saddle her with the payment of an additional $11,000,000,000 is not a matter of practical politics. If France wants to retain the valuable help of the United States she would be wisely advised to cut out the cackle and come down to business. The putting forward of a practical plan for refunding her debt cannot be delayed much longer if she is to retain the respect and the sympathy of her Allies.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The worst of it all is that an eclipse is not like a street car—there won't be another along in a few minutes.

So far there has been no protest entered against the Peterborough Hockey Club taking a pipe band to Toronto for the next game. All's fair in love—and hockey.

The clouds on Saturday may have saved a lot of eye strain. Might as well look on the bright side of it.

United States tourists left over two hundred million dollars in France last year. And all but ten per cent. was spent for pleasure.

The fact that Niagara's cataract is to be let up should not be mistaken for a breach of the Ontario Temperance Act.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Wheat was active and sharply higher today, with May contracts bringing nearly the seson's top figures, and No. 2 Red immediate delivery selling at $2.10 a bushel, a new altitude record. Prices for all deliveries of rye went above the peaks heretofore attained. Nine million bushels reduction in the final government estimates of the Canadian wheat crop had a good deal to do with the latest strengthening of values. Wheat closed firm at 3-8 to 1 1-7 cents net advance, May 1.95 3-8 to 1.95 5-8, and July 1.70 5-8 to 1.70 3-4. Corn finished unchanged to 1-2 cent higher; oats at 18 cent off to 3-8 cent up and provisions unchanged to two cents lower.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, Jan. 25.—The export trade in Canadian grain to the United Kingdom on Saturday was again very dull, but there were rumors that further sales of low grade Manitoba wheat were made to the continent. The domestic market for coarse grains was inactive, but the undertone was firm. Ontario No. 2 white oats were quoted at 69 cents, No. 3 grade at 67 cents and No. 4 grade at 65 cents per bushel, ex store.

The feature of the spring wheat flour trade was the improved demand from the United Kingdom and some sales of fair sized lots were made to London and Glasgow at 56s. 9d. per sack for February shipment. A sale of 2,000 tons was also made to the Norwegian government. The tone of the market was very firm and an advance in prices is expected in the near future. No change of importance occurred in the winter wheat flour situation.

The demand of all grades of eggs continues good and the tendency was firm. The demand for butter was again of a very limited character. The tone of the cheese market continues firm, with No. 1 fodder made goods quoted at 19 1-2 to 20 cents per pound, and No. 2 grade at 18 1-2 to 19 cents per pound.

Crop beans were steady at $2.90 per bushel.

SCIENTISTS IN GLEE

Graphic Word Picture.

BRONX, N.Y. — The two ring celestial circus, the total eclipse of the sun, was successfully performed in all its brilliant glory at 9.11 a.m. Saturday, precisely as astronomers predicted it would be.

Not a cloud screened the passing of the moon before the sun's disc and all the attendant phenomena—Bailey's beads, the shadow band and the early corona—were observed by thousands who filled the streets and house tops in the northern section of the metropolis.

A purple light gradually descended over the earth, forerunning the total darkness. There was a period of darker purple and black grey light, during which the dancing waves of crescended lights wove a fantastic pattern on the snow fields, roadways and sides of buildings.

Bailey's beads dancing like drops of liquid topaz strung on sparkling thread, hung in the sky for just a moment before the eclipse became total. As they flickered out, the shadow bands flared forth, weirdly heralding the appearance of the awe-inspiring corona. All the color of the spectrum seemed to burst outward from the moon's dull reddish rim. Like flame from a huge blow torch they gushed and subsided in a fringe which at times extended the width of the moon beyond the edge of that icy planet.

It seemed like many minutes rather than few seconds that darkness saturated earth and sky, except for that small portion where hung the dazzling circle of colorful fire, then slowly the shadow bands appeared on the opposite side of the solar-lunar conjunction. Bailey's beads spread their ochre crescent again, a feature of the spectacular eclipse about which the forecasts of astronomers had said little.

By this time the corona had subsided, chased into invisibility by the regathering splendor of the sun.

A few minutes more and the spectacle turned into its final stages, looking much as it did in the initial phase, only in reverse-like a quarter moon or supernatural brilliance, gradually evolving to full moon proportions. The twilight slowly became daylight again.

NEW YORK—From tests made of the behaviour of the ether of the air during total eclipse Saturday, officials of the Radio Corporation of America deducted that a short wave length follows the sun, that static is not entirely a local condition because it was affected by general conditions, and that a long wave, irregular before the eclipse, became noticeably regular during totality.

Million Mile High Gas.

Professor B. G. Taylor, making telescopic observations at the college of the City of New York, said that at totality he observed mountains of gas boiling up from the corona to a height of one million miles and that the contour of the corona was continually changing.

A THOUGHT.

MUST CONTINUE TO DO MORE.

A successful business is usually run by a successful man. This man may be naturally very generous, exceedingly kind and inclined toward sentiment or what we call "soft."

Successful men employ other men for the express purpose of promoting their business; otherwise they would not last long in business, and this would be bad for all concerned.

But to say that a successful business man is only interested in what he can get out of his employees, and not at all interested in their happiness or welfare, is an indictment of intelligence. When employees are not pleasantly situated or agreeably surrounded, they are mere servants, and a very little money is made of the results of the labors of "mere servants."

There are comparatively few successful men so selfish, so cold and heartless, that their veins are filled with ice water; and what few there are, furnish a first-class funeral and this helps the casket makers.

But few successful men will stand in the way of their employee's success. Good business sense would prevent this. An organization made up of people who are not advancing is positive proof that the company employing them is slipping backward.

I honestly believe that an individual employee can get so interested in the work he is doing that he will often forget to ask for more pay. I am also convinced that it is seldom necessary to ask for more pay. The successful business man (even though he be selfish) will naturally notice what the workers are doing, and he knows that the real result getters he must pay or they will step out.

And remember this: To spurt up or "step on the gas" for a few days, and then drop back into indifference, only proves, only shows, that you can do more but you must continue to do more for more than a few days.

RE-OPEN LUXOR TOMB.

Pall of Tutankhamen Sarcophagus Deteriorated.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Luxor, Egypt, says the tomb of Tutankhamen was reopened Sunday in the presence of government officials and members of the Antiquities Department. The contents of the tomb taken out last year were handed over to Howard Carter, the Egyptologist. Mr. Carter found everything that had been sealed when the tomb was closed remained intact.

The priceless pall of the sarcophagus which had been left outside the tomb in a thin wooden shed, however had deteriorated probably beyond repair.

A BAD COLD DEVELOPED INTO BRONCHITIS

Mrs. Levi Ogden, Amherst Shore, N.S., writes:—"My baby girl had a very bad cold which turned to bronchitis, and she could not sleep at night for the coughing. I gave her everything I could think of to relieve her, but nothing seemed to do her any good, and she was not getting any better. I was advised, by a friend, to try

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

I did so, and after giving her a few doses I saw good effects so I kept on with it. I gave her two bottles, and her cough soon left her, and now she is as well as can be. I cannot praise 'Dr. Wood's' enough; it is certainly a wonderful medicine."

This preparation has been on the market for the past 35 years; manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The NERVOUS WRECK

by E. J. Rath

©1924—by NEA Service Inc.

"Listen," he said. "Don't you start saying it can't be done. I thought you were different."

"Oh, but I think it can be done, Mr. Williams," she hastily amended. "Only—well, you might break an axle, or something. Mightn't you?"

The Wreck brought the machine to a stop and allowed the engine to race in a horrible manner.

"Want to get that train, don't you?" he demanded.

"Why, of course."

"Am I alarming or otherwise annoying you?"

"No, indeed!"

"Have I busted anything yet?"

"I don't believe so."

"All right. Let's go."

He stamped his foot on one of the pedals and they leaped forward. Sally held tight and smiled. She enjoyed his childish faith in himself; besides, she figured that she could jump clear as soon as it became necessary.

Not until the trail was shrunken to a mere path among rocks and trees did the flivver come to a stop. The Wreck killed the engine, climbed out and went ahead for reconnaissance.

"We'll have to roll a lot of rocks out of the way," he said when he came back. "Are you good at it?"

Sally fought against a smile, for she was contrite with guilt.

"It wouldn't do any good to start rolling rocks," she said. "We'd be at it till doomsday. I'm awfully sorry, but we've come too far. It's my fault."

"Too far?" he repeated, puzzled.

"Yes. You see, we're beginning to climb the side of Black Top, and you can't get anything up here but a horse. I was so busy watching the trail that I didn't notice our bearings. It was stupid of me, but—well, it's done."

He nodded, then glanced ahead at the disappearing trail.

"If a horse can do it——" He was thinking of the sheriff.

"Oh, no," said Sally, emphatically, and shook her head. "It's useless to think of it. Why, there are some places it just goes along the edge, not more than three feet wide."

He was reluctant to abandon the idea and still stared at the trail with an appraising eye.

"We'll have to go back," explained Sally, "to the place where the road turns off. We passed it."

"I didn't see it," he remarked.

"Did you?"

"Certainly not. If I had I'd have spoken about it. But it's there, of course. Don't you remember that we spoke about a road turning off, last night? That's what we had to watch for. It's not much of a road, I imagine; but a car came through last spring."

"How far back is it?" he demanded.

Sally could not even guess.

"It can't be far," she said.

The Wreck stood for a moment in gloomy contemplation.

"It upsets my nerves to turn back," he announced. "I get jumpy and shaky. It irritates me. But—oh, blazes!"

He reached for the crank and yanked it viciously. Sally dismounted and stood breathless while he made a turn. He managed it ultimately, after a furious charge into a clump of saplings, which flattened under the attack like wire entanglements before a tank.

"Get in," he commanded.

They were off on the back trail, leaping and careering. For ten tempestuous minutes they traveled the down grade, with Black Top casting a long shadow before them.

"Keep your eye peeled for that turn-off," admonished the Wreck, as they plunged reeling into a little green coulee through which a tiny stream trickled.

"It's queer about that road, but I can't seem to find it," Sally confessed after awhile.

Sally glanced at the watch strapped to her wrist and caught her breath.

"Do you know that it's after six o'clock?" she cried.

He bent over to examine the watch, then produced his own, which he wore in a pocket.

"Ten after six," he confirmed. "I think we're both a few minutes fast."

"And do you know we're supposed to catch that train at seven?"

Sally's voice had a note of consternation.

"Don't get fussed," he advised. "We'll make it."

He was plunging forward again, but she checked him with a vigorous grip on his arm.

"We're headed in exactly the wrong direction. We're going south, and we ought to be going north."

"Well, we've got to go south until we get out of this what-you-may-call-it," retorted the Wreck. "I can't turn around here."

"But—but——"

Sally was thinking about the eastbound express. She did not know, but she had a feeling that the railroad was still very far away. They had been on the road since noon, and she could not for the life of her tell how many miles they had wasted—but probably most of them.

"But what?" asked the Wreck, impatiently.

"We'll just never make that train."

"Why not? Who says so? Certainly we will. If there's a railroad there with a train on it, we'll make it. Just as soon as we get to this road you spoke about——"

"But where is the road?"

The Wreck removed his hands from the wheel, folded them in his lap and looked at her.

"You said it was over this way, didn't you?"

"I—I'm not sure. I said it was in a certain direction from a certain place. But I don't believe we've been going in that direction. At least, not all the time."

"We've been going as nearly in one one direction as we could," he said, coldly. "Don't blame me if the country is a hodge-podge."

"I'm not blaming you."

"Look here; have you got the idea in your head that I'm lost?" he demanded.

"Please go ahead. It's getting later and later."

"Because if you have," added the Wreck, "I'll remind you that I drove all the way from Pittsburg without getting lost. And if you think you can lose me in a little two-by-nothing prairie you'll have to guess some more."

"Oh, drive on!" exclaimed Sally.

He did drive on, expertly and furiously. She cast a hopeless glance at the low ridges that seemed to have sprung up on all sides, and frowned anxiously. Perhaps the Wreck was not lost, but Sally was quite certain that she was.

CHAPTER III.

"If You Start, Finish——"

No longer had she any idea that they would find the railroad and the water tank at which it was possible to signal the train. When seven o'clock came she dismissed that from her mind; all that was now left was to get back to the ranch. The sheriff was right; it could not be done, as the Wreck said it could.

She felt a sharp sense of humiliation in being lost on the range; that was a trick for dudes, perhaps, but not for a girl born and raised within half a day's ride. If only she could get a glimpse of Black Top; they could walk to it, even if they had to abandon the flivver. But Black Top had vanished in a mysterious way, somewhere behind miles of hummocks.

"There's water here somewhere," she called suddenly. "Watch yourself!"

The Wreck circumnavigated a tree, steered straight for a barrier of young alders and sent the machine crashing magnificently through. The front wheels dropped sharply, the flivver tilted forward at an angle of 45 degrees, plunged, flattened out again and came to a stop, nub deep in a stream.

"There!" said Sally. "I told you there was water."

"I never denied it," said the Wreck. "Now what are you going to do?"

He stepped out on the running board and descended briskly into the stream, which cooled his legs pleasantly. Wading around to the rear of the car, he fumbled in the luggage compartment, then appeared with a canvas contraption which, upon being unfolded, was a bucket.

"I'm going to fill the radiator," he said. "Water is exactly what we need."

Sally made a gesture of helpless exasperation and watched him as he went methodically about his task. The flivver drank more than a bucketful and he nodded in a satisfied way when at last it overflowed at the orifice.

"And now what?" she demanded.

"Now we drive on, of course."

He climbed back into the seat, after returning the bucket to its place, and jammed his foot on the pedal that engages the clutch. The flivver trembled, moved, stopped again. There was a terrifying racing of the motor. He did something more to the pedals, and the gears were in reverse, but still the motor raced without producing a corresponding movement in the car.

"No traction," remarked the Wreck, as he glanced over the side and watched the rear wheel spinning in the stream.

He stepped out again and tramped around in the water for a while.

"Cold water is great stuff for the nerves," said the Wreck, looking up.

She glanced at the sky, then at her watch, and there was dismay in her eyes.

"Do you know that it will be dark in about half an hour?" she demanded.

"He also took an observation of the sky, and nodded.

"And that the train went long ago, and that we're nowhere near any railroad—or anything?"

"I don't admit that we're nowhere near the railroad," he said. "We've made a lot of progress. But I'll admit we're not right on top of it."

"Then what are you going to do?" she fairly shouted.

He sloshed his legs about in the stream in a tentative, exploratory fashion.

"The bottom's hard enough," he said, "but there's a lot of slippery stones. She won't take hold. And the way things are, I can't get the chains on. She won't go forward and she won't back. She needs a chance to cool out, anyhow.

He seemed to be actually contented, a fact that was no less amazing to Sally than it was maddening.

"Do you mean to say we'll never get out, Mr. Williams?"

The Wreck ruffled at once.

"I said nothing of the kind," he retorted. "I didn't even hint it. Certainly we'll get out. What do I carry a block and tackle for? You don't call this trouble, do you? She's been in worse fixes than this."

"After dark you can't run," she pointed out.

"Can't I? You wait till I turn on those road lights. She looks like two locomotives."

"You'd try to keep on running across country—at night?" she demanded, her voice incredulous.

"Certainly. You haven't seen those lights yet."

"Then you'll run without me, Mr. Williams. I'd like to get back to the ranch. I'll take reasonable chances. If I had a horse I could make it. But"—she paused to settle an uncompromising gaze upon him—"I'm not insane. We're anchored here for the night."

Sally stood in her place and glanced up and down stream. The little river was not more than ten yards across, shallow everywhere and brisk of motion, with alders and cottonwoods and fresh green banks on either side. It was beautifully peaceful and sylvan for a picnic, or a camp; but Sally was theoretically aboard a train, headed eastward, and to be stalled in a flivver in the middle of an oasis, no matter how charming, was irritating beyond all patience.

She climbed out on the rear deck of the little roadster, gathered her skirts and leaped, landing clear of the shore, up among the bushes.

"There's a package of sandwiches in the back of the car. Get 'em out," she commanded. "And hand me my coat, too; I want to sit on it. You might give me the small grip, too. And then I advise you to come out of that water. It may feel good now, but it's liable to get cool after dark and first thing you know you'll have rheumatism. And if you get rheuma tism you'll have something real to worry about."

The Wreck did all the things that she commanded. She opened the package of sandwiches, apportioned half of them equally and wrapped up the remainder.

"We'll need the rest for breakfast," she said. "Get your bucket out again and draw some water. I'm dreadfully thirsty. We'll keep that bottle of coffee until morning."

They sat under a cottonwood, ate sandwiches and drank out of the bucket. When it grew dark he waded out to the flivver and switched on the lights. But they were pointed the wrong way, so that the adventurers received only an indirect benefit from the glare. He thought it would be better if they transferred themselves to the other side of the stream, but Sally said she had gone as far as she intended to.

"Do you honestly think you can get that thing out of the water?" she asked.

He snorted scornfully.

"Not that it's likely to be of any particular use, even if you do," she added, "I expect to be walking tomorrow."

The Wreck strode away among the cottonwoods. For once he seemed anxious to avoid argument. When he returned, Sally had curled herself up under the tree, with the coat over her, and was preparing for slumber.

"Better get a coat and find yourself a place," she advised. "We'll need to make an early start."

"You'd better sleep out in the car," he said.

"Why?"

"It's safer. If anything comes along——"

She laughed; he was such a ridiculous tenderfoot, with such funny ideas about the west.

"What do you expect? Indians?" she demanded. "No, thank you. I'll stay here where I'm comfortable. I've a gun, anyhow, so don't worry."

"Suit yourself," he answered, and an instant later she heard him sloshing in the stream.

"You going to try to sleep in that car?" she called. "Because you'll never get any sleep, trying to fold yourself up in that."

"I'm not going to sleep," came his voice, irritably. "I never do sleep." I've got insomnia. I'm just going to sit here and keep watch, that's all. If you want anything, holler."

"I'll holler," she promised, and smothered a laugh.

A few minutes later, as she was becoming drowsy, she was aware that he had switched off the lights. After that it was very dark under the cottonwoods, and very quiet, save for the cool rustle of the stream, which was ceaseless and soothing. Sally's last conscious mental effort was a dim hope that something would come along to give him a good scare; she wanted to find out how he would react. Perhaps a coyote might bark. But if a single coyote lifted his muzzle and howled within a mile of them, Sally did not hear itl. She slept like a healthy young animag

The Wreck felt something punchin him between the shoulders. He straightened up in the seat, slowly opened his eyes, blinked them and found the glare of sunlight dazzling. The thing punched him again, and he turned around. Sally was standing on the bank, prodding at him with a long stick.

"Hi, you!" she called. "Do you know it's after seven?"

"G' morning," said the Wreck, "Why didn't you ca'l me?"

"Call you? I've been fairly yelling at you. I've scared every jack-rabbit in the county, but you never budged. Is that what insomnia does to you?"

"I must have just dozed off," he mumbled as he yawned and stood up to stretch.

"Oh, yes."

He did not see what she was laughing at as he stepped into the stream and waded ashore, but refrained from asking any questions.

"The coffee's st'll hot," she sa d as he joined her. "I think we'd better finish it, and then fill the bottle with water. And I think we d better save half of these sandwiches, too. We may want some lunch."

She watched him slyly as he ate his breakfast, st ll rubbing the sleep out of his eyes. Evidently he had s ept in his wet clothes all night, but he did not appear to be any the worse for it. After the meal he carefully polished his spectacles, put them back in p ace and scrambled to his feet with the resilience of a youth. The Wreck was a good deal of a puzzle to her. She felt that there was a lot of fraud about him, but that he was entirely unaware of it.

He went out to the car again, found the block and tackle, and then crossed the stream in search of a suitable tree to which he might hitch one end of his line. Sally questioned his purpose immediately. She did not see why he wanted to haul the car out on the other side, because they would never get back to the ranch that way. Why haul it backward? The Wreck made an elaborate show of pat ence as he explained. The bank over which they had plunged was too steep; there was a better chance to get out on the other side. Anyhow, they wanted to keep on going, didn't they? He didn't believe in going backward. She saw that he knew more about the mechanical demands of the job than she did and let him have his way.

With two of them hauling on the tackle, Sally in the flivver and the Wreck on the opposite shore, they finally worked the thing clear across and half way up the sloping bank. Then he started the engine and the car pulled itself out under its own power. It seemed to Sally almost a miracle of engineering, but the Wreck took no pride in it as he coiled up the tackle and tossed it into the back of the car.

"Now, what are we looking for?" he demanded, as he settled himself behind the wheel. "The ranch or the railroad?"

"Are you still thinking about the railroad?" inquired Sally in amazement.

"Why not? We started for it. What's the use o' quitting? I suppose there's a train to-day, just as there was yesterday."

"Of course. But— Well, it seemed better to head back to the ranch."

"Thought you wanted to get to Chicago and buy your trousseau?"

Sally colored faintly.

"I never said I was going to buy a trousseau," she observed.

"Well, your father said so, anyhow."

"Did he? Well, I don't know what I'm going to buy yet. Maybe I'll buy a trousseau and maybe I won't. If I see one that I like I probably will."

"Yes; you probably will," said the Wreck. "My idea is, keep going. If you start out to buy a trousseau, for the love of Mike, buy it. Don't start if you can't finish. Here goes for the railroad. And——'

He paused to regard her critically.

"—if you catch to-day's train, you don't need to say anything to anybody about missing yesterday's—unless you want to."

The flivver plunged forward through the cottonwoods, which were more sparse on this side of the stream, and was out n open land again, where it looked fairly level for a considerable stretch.

"The thing to do now is to look for that road," said Sally. "After we find it and see which way it runs, we can tell better what to do next."

He drove in silence for several minutes, heading in a direction she suggested. He seemed preoccupied. She knew that he had something on his mind, and at last it came.

"If you tell the sheriff that I missed yesterday's train, and if he tries to give me the laugh," said the Wreck, "I'll bust his nose all over his face."

Sally greeted this with a joyous shriek.

CHAPTER IV.

Gasless.

The going became better and better, although Sally could not yet discover that the route they followed promised to carry them either to the railroad or to the ranch. But it was a relief to be in open country again, where the undulations were gentle and rhythmic, like a long ground swell, and where the flivver sailed a fairly stable course.

With the lightening of his labors at the wheel, the Wreck became almost loquacious. He talked a good deal about Pittsburg and all points east. If his conversation carried a note which stressed the inferiority of the west, Sally declined to be drawn into argument. He seemed to be happy and he was doing his best to render a service, and she was willing to be indulgent.

As they crested a long, easily sloped rise, she sighted Black Top again. The Wreck, whose power of vision through his thick-lensed glassed was sometimes surprising saw it as soon as Sally.

"There's your mountain," he said, "right where we figured it."

Sally studied Black Top carefully.

Then they came to a road. Not a wide, paved road; just a pair of tracks in the grass. But it looked like a boulevard to Sally; she could scarcely believe in the reality of it. She glanced behind the car. The road twisted away out of sight a few rods in the rear.

She stood up again and studied the dusty tracks as far as her eye could follow them. They showed no sign of recent travel, either wagon or automobile. In spots the grass tufts half obliterated them. On second observation, it did not look so much like a boulevard, after all; it was not a road to inspire any great degree of optimism. But she admitted that it was very much better than nothing at all.

FABLES ON HEALTH

REMEDY FOR CHOKING.

One of Mrs. Mann's youngsters choked one day while eating.

So Mrs. Mann, though the choking was not very serious, felt that she should know what to do in such a case.

Here are some remedies she found:

In bad choking, where the patient turns dark in the face, no time should be lost. Send for the doctor at once.

Meanwhile slap the sufferer on the back between the shoulders. Open the mouth and insert the finger as far down as possible to try to grasp the obstruction and remove it.

Another good plan, with children, is to press the back or chest against a table or chair, and slap or thump the back between the shoulder blades.

Fish bones can sometimes be gotten rid of by swallowing a mouthful of bread.

By pressing the hinder portion of the tongue vomiting may be caused, and the obstacle removed.

Of the 140 members entitled to vote 115 cast their ballots on this important question, there being no spoiled ballots. Voting commenced on Thursday evening, January 8th and was continued until Saturday, January 24th. One hour each evening with the exception of Sundays was the time set aside for the purpose of casting votes. Dr. A. S. Thompson before announcing the vote, requested that no demonstration follow the announcement. The meeting was closed by singing the 74th Psalm: "O, God, Our Help in Ages Past."

MENU FOR FAMILY

Breakfast—California grapes, cereal, thin cream, scrambled eggs on milk toast, syrup, milk, coffee.

Luncheon — Tomato bouillon, toast sticks, lettuce sandwiches, chocolate souffle, milk, tea.

Dinner—Split pea soup, broiled lamb chops, potatoes baked with cheese, carrot straws, orange salad, whole wheat bread, currant jelly, cottage cheese, milk, coffee.

The dessert suggested for luncheon is really the "hearty" dish of the meal.

The tomato bouillon should be made with a strong stock.

The lettuce sandwiches should be carefully made, using crisp, well dried lettuce sprinkled with a simple boiled dressing between well-buttered slices of whole wheat or graham bread.

Scrambled Eggs on Milk Toast.

Five slices whole wheat toast, 2 cups top milk, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 5 eggs, 5 tablespoons hot water, salt and pepper, 4 tablespoons grated cheese.

Scald milk. Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add hot milk, stirring constantly. Season with salt and pour over hot buttered toast. Beat eggs slightly with salt, pepper and water. Pour into a hot buttered frying pan and stir constantly with a fork until beginning to set. Pour over hot milk toast, sprinkle with grated cheese and put in a hot oven to finish cooking the eggs and melt the cheese.

Chocolate Souffle.

Two tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, 2 squares Baker's chocolate, 1-2 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons hot water, 3 eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla, few grains salt.

Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Cook until boiling point is reached. Melt chocolate over hot water with hot water. Add sugar and stir until smooth. Add chocolate mixture to first mixture. Blend well and add yolks of eggs beaten until thick and lemon colored. Let stand until cool. Beat whites of eggs until stiff and dry on a platter, using a wire whisk. Beat in salt and vanilla and fold into cooled mixture. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve at once with whipped cream.

Potatoes Baked With Cheese.

Six cups diced potatoes, 1-2 cup grated cheese, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 cup coarse stale bread crumbs, salt and pepper.

Cook potatoes in boiling salted water until tender. Drain. Put a layer of potatoes in a well-buttered baking dish, sprinkle with cheese, season with salt and pepper and add another layer of potatoes. Continue layer for layer until all is used. Melt butter, stir in crumbs and sprinkle potatoes with buttered crumbs. Cover dish and bake 10 minutes in a moderate oven. Remove cover and bake until crumbs are brown.

FOUR MEN DEAD IN KLAN CLASH IN HERRIN, ILL.

Notorious Town Breaks Into Limelight Again—Leaders Are Slain.

MILITIA CALLED OUT.

Sheriff Met Klan Head and Two Companions—Smoke Clearing Found All Dead.

HERRIN, Ills., Jan. 26.—(Canadian Press).—S. Glinn Young, picturesque young Williamson County dry raider and Ku Klux Klan leader, two of his companions and his avowed enemy, Ora Thomas, deputy sheriff and anti-Klan leader, lay dead here to-day, and in their passing citizens found hope that Herrin's days of bloody turmoil were over.

State militiamen again had custody of the town, although on many sides it was insisted that, with the leaders fallen, none would be found to carry on the internicine struggle.

Many conflicting theories confronted the officers seeking to establish the precise manner of the fatal meeting, but it seemed that this was the best reconstruction of what occurred.

A single shot was fired from the vicinity of the European Hotel about 9.30 o'clock Saturday ynight. Young, Ed. Forbes and Homer Warner left a nearby restaurant to investigate.

In the hotel cigar store they met Thomas, and when the smoke had cleared, Young was shot through the heart, and Forbes and Warner were dead, while Thomas lay on the floor dying.

Witnesses Disappear.

Despite Mrs. Young's statement that witnesses would be on hand today, none could be found yesterday. At least four men were known to have been present, but their names remained unrevealed. An hour or two later the news reached Governor Small and he immediately directed Adjutant-General Calos Black to send militiamen to Herrin from Garhondale, a few miles away.

To-day found everything quiet, with only the shattered window panes and bullet-scarred walls as a public testimonial of the night's conflict.

Much of the bitterness and desire for retaliation which had marked other clashes within the county seemed lacking.

The investigation of the State marked time, pending the inquest. The coroner's jury empanelled yesterday viewed the scene of the shooting, but returned no verdict pending further investigation.

The downtown district was almost deserted last night. National guardsmen cleared the streets at nine o'clock. For almost two years Young had been considered the central figure in the civil strife of Williamson County, his name being coupled with fights and rumors of fights.

Last summer Young and his wife were fired upon by an unknown assailant while in an automobile they drove toward East St. Louis, Ills.

Young's right knee was injured and Mrs. Young was blinded permanently by a charge of buckshot.

The first open break occurred on February 8th last, when Constable Caesar Cagle, a Klan sympathizer, was killed.

Following the attack on Young, Jack Skelcher, a coal miner, was slain. A little later, the pistols again came into action, and seven men were killed before the weapons once more were put from sight.

The body of Young to-day lay in state at the First Baptist Church, a Red nurse near the foot of the coffin and Klansmen keeping vigil. The purple robe of the reputed Klansman had been replaced by street clothes. The bodies of Thomas and the other two victims were in their homes.

TORONTO, January 26 (Canadian Press). — Taking the witness stand in his own defence, S. Casey Wood, Home Bank director, on trial on the charge of signing false statements concerning the bank's condition ,testified to-day before Judge Coatsworth that the minutes book now contains several items that never came before the board of directors. These concerned loans and advances to the manufacturers holding company of which H. J. Daly, the late president of the Home Bank was president.

FOREIGN MISSIONS MEET.

Rev. M. C. Mackinnon Represents This District at Washington.

The Foreign Missions Boards and Societies of Canada and of the United States have united in calling a Foreign Missions Convention to meet in Washington, D.C., from January 28th to February 2nd. Rev. M. C. Mackinnon is one of fifteen Canadian clergymen who are to represent the Presbyterians of Canada at this conference.

The conference represents a great Christian Council being promoted by Christian leaders conscious of an immense opportunity, who believe that the Gospel of Christ should be preached to all men throughout the world. Not for a quarter of a century has there been assembled such a council of missions on this side of the Atlantic, and the delegates hope that the fruits of the conference will be widespread and enduring.

Catholic Immigration Agency May Be Formed

WINNIPEG, Jan. 26.—(Canadian Press).—Plans for the organization of a Knights of Columbus immigration agency under the direction of the Dominion Government, and the Roman Catholic Church, were discussed yesterday at a conference of State deputies of the organization who gathered here from all parts of the Dominion.

The object is to assist, direct and help place Catholic immigration in Catholic colonies, according to a statement made at the close of the conference, by J. I. Morkin, Manitoba State deputy. Before details can be arranged, however, approval of the hierarchy of the church and the supreme board of the Knights of Columbus of American must be obtained as well as the consent of the Government.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

REPLY TO LETTER BY UNION COMMITTEE OF ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

To the Members of St. Paul's Church:

In the Saturday edition of the daily Examiner appeared a long letter addressed to the members of St. Paul's Church in which an effort was made to disprove certain of the statements contained in Circular Letter No. 2, sent out on behalf of those in our congregation who desire to see St. Paul's Congregation continue its connections with the Presbyterian Church. Very few people are interested in such long involved statements or will take the time to look up the authorities quoted. We will not take the time therefore to reply to it in detail, as might easily be done. It is sufficient to state that admissions contained in the article in question were sufficient to confirm some of the very points they were attempting to refute. Until stronger authority is given than that quoted in the letter we do not consider it necessary to retract a single statement contained in Circular Letter No. 2. In order, however, that our Unionist friends may see their points can be answered we will make mention of a few of them.

The Mother Church.

Our Unionist friends attempt to show, by quoting resolutions passed by Presbyterian organizations in the Old Country, that the United Church will be recognized as Presbyterian by these bodies. The reply to this is that some of these resolutions were passed by committees without authority to commit the larger bodies they represented and in every case they were passed without sufficient knowledge of the facts of the situation in Canada. They understood that the Presbyterian Church in Canada as a whole was entering the Union. Now that it is known that this is not the case and that a strong Presbyterian Church will continue in Canada from coast to coast, a church which will stand by the Westminster Confession of Faith and the Presbyterian form of church government there can be no question that this will be the church that will be recognized as the true Presbyterian Church in Canada by all the Presbyterian organizations of the world, and not a church composed of Methodists, Congregationalists and some Presbyterians.

Loss of Identity.

Our Unionist friends still try to persuade us that if we enter the United Church we will not lose our identity. This is so ridiculous that virtually every person realizes it except a few Unionist leaders who are trying to stress the point. It is now known everywhere that only a part of the Presbyterian Church is entering Union and the way the votes are going now it apparently will be a small part. How can only a part of a church carry the identity of the whole into the Union? More than this, the Act of Incorporation states on page 3, section 4, paragraph b.:

"The Union of the said churches shall become effective upon the day upon which this Act comes into force, and the said churches as so united are hereby constituted a body corporate and politic under the name of 'The United Church of Canada', hereinafter called 'The United Church'. The several corporations (churches) referred to XXX are hereby merged in the United Church and the congregations referred to XX are hereby admitted to and declared to be congregations of the United Church."

Could anything be more clear than that the United Churches pass out of existence when the Act comes into force? They are no longer Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational, but "United Church." Webster's dictionary gives the meaning of the word "merge" to be as follows:

"To be sunk, swallowed up or lost; to lose identity by absorption or immersion into something else."

That is exactly what is going to happen to those Presbyterian churches which enter Union where they will be in a small minority of the whole and where they will be swallowed up by the other bodies that form the merger.

Form of Government.

Our Unionist friends try to convince us that the powers given to the General Council of the United Church to declare that the powers, rights, authorities, and privileges of the courts of the uniting churches shall cease at a certain time are only "interim" in character. There is nothing to indicate clearly that the powers of the General Council in this respect are "interim." The Interim powers referred to are the powers of the Churches which enter the Union between the time they enter and the time the General Council of the United Church says they shall cease to exist. Our friends admit that one of the things that will cease to exist will be our Presbyterian Synods which will be replaced by Conferences. In case there may be any doubt as to the powers of the General Council to overrule the powers of congregations and Sessions, for instance, its powers are clearly set forth in several passages in "The Basis of Union."

In two different places in Saturday's letter our Unionist friends quote the following passage: Page 27, part 2, paragraph 4, "That all churches entering the United Church shall be entitled to continue the organizations and practices enjoyed by them at the time of Union."

Time and again our Unionist friends in quoting that paragraph stop at the word "Union." Why do they do it? Possibly if we add the remaining words of the sentence, which continue on without a break, we may find the explanation. These words are as follows: "Subject in general affairs to the legislation, principals, and discipline of the United Church." It will be seen that these words make a vast difference. No person knows to what extent the legislation, principles, and discipline of the United Church will override and destroy the power of the local congregations. Congregations which vote to enter Union do so in ignorance on this point.

Another clause which is never mentioned by our Unionist friends is the one on page 29, paragraph 14, where in reference to charges formed after the Union it is stated that "the members of the session XXX shall hold office under regulations to be passed by the General Council." This leaves the whole future of the Session absolutely under the powers of the General Council. Yet they try to assure us that everything will go on as usual.

Other Clauses.

Our Unionist friends without saying so try to make it appear that the Presbyterian Church has power to make "obligatory" assessments upon congregations such as the Act gives to the General Council of the United Church. This is absolutely not the case. The Presbyterian Church in Canada is not an incorporated body. The United Church will be. The Act gives the General Council power to make obligatory assessments of this kind and no one can successfully deny it.

Again we repeat that we do not consider it necessary to retract any statements contained in our Circular Letter No. 2 until better authorities can be quoted in than those given in the open letter to the members of our congregation which appeared in Saturday's edition of The Examiner.

St. Paul's Branch
Presbyterian Church Association.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir: Would you allow me to call the attention of intending voters to the fact that in the Act incorporating the United Church of Canada these pious words are used: "Believing the promotion of Christian unity to be in accordance with the Divine Will they recognize the obligation to seek and promote union with other churches adhering to the same fundamental principles of the Christian faith."

These pious words are addressed by the Presbyterians, Methodists and Congregationalists and to all other churches which hold those fundamental principles. The only exception is the Unitarian Church. We may therefore hope, from these pious words, that the aim of Union is a high one and that the ultimate union looks to be of the largest proportions and embracing all churches.

We now admit that difference of church government should not prevent our joining the mighty regiment of those marching on to glory and a better world. What a glorious step it will be.

—Pro Domino.

RETURNS TO FAVOR

REV. ROBERT POGUE WILL RESIGN WHETHER UNION CARRIES OR NOT HE ANNOUNCES TO CONGREGATION

Pastor of St. Paul's Church Will Not Stand in Way of People's Honest Vote on Union—Would Save Them From Disaster.

MOMENTOUS DAY FOR CHURCH.

Action of This Congregation Cannot Hinder Progress of Great United Church, but Congregation Can Help By Joining Its Ranks, He Says.

Before closing his services yesterday ,Rev. Robert Pogue read the following statement to the congregation at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church:

"I have been your minister for seventeen years. Some are saying just now: "If you want a change of minister, vote against Church Union."

I do not like to think that there are many in St. Paul's Church who would allow any personal matter to influence them on so tremendous an issue as the present one, but lest there be such, I want to say to you to-day, that on or before the 10th of June I am placing my resignation of this charge in the hands of the Session.

It has also been said that I have thrown myself into this struggle "to save my job." I should like to say to this, that Mrs. Pogue and I have strong hands and stout hearts, and an absolute trust in God.

I have thrown myself into this struggle for no other reason than to save St. Paul's Church from taking a most disastrous step, that of remaining out of the Union. It would break my heart after laboring these seventeen years to give you the vision splendid of unselfish service for Christ, if St. Paul's Church should shut her eyes to it.

The United Church has caught a vision of the Master's work at home and abroad, and is willing to sacrifice many of the things that are dear to it, in order to fulfil His words: "That we all may be one as He and the Father are one,' and that unitedly it might go forward in His service, spending and being spent for Him.

Whether you will have the privilege of sharing in this glorous task will remain with yourselves; but if you do not, you will not hinder the Union Church from going on in the strength of God to accomplish the glorious task He has set her, that of having a share in winning this land and all lands for Him.

Whether your children and your children's children, in the years to come, will rise up and call you blessed, because of your having had a share in this great Forward Movement, your ballot on the morrow and the days to come will tell.

May God bless you and keep you and guide you aright:

"For right is right since God is God,
And right the day must win,
To doubt it were disloyalty,
To falter would be sin."

CHILDREN SUFFER IN PETERBOROUGH

Hurry Up Call For Clothing Necessitated by Cold—Everybody Help.

"Go break to the needy sweet charity's bread, for giving is living," the Spirit said. "And must I be giving again and again?" my foolish and querulous answer rang. "Ah, no," said the Spirit, piercing me through, "just give till the Master stops giving to you."

Have you any old shoes tucked away in corners of clothes closets or in the attic? Have you any underwear that might be utilised a while longer? Or any dresses suitable for little girls?

If you have any of these things, or anything else that you don't want in the way of wearing apparel, the Big Sisterhood would be immensely pleased to have you send them down to their receiving room at the Fire Hall.

A home with a sick father, sick since last November. A mother getting what little odd jobs she can scrape up to keep the place together and her seven small children alive. A spirit that has kept her so far from applying to the city for relief. Probably a foolish spirit, but one understandable by many. The two elder girls, one ten years of age, the other eleven, going around in July apparel, with white running shoes, white cotton stockings, and scanty underwear. Not even a cake of soap in the house for days to keep them moderately clean. Such is the situation in at least one city home to-day.

The stocks at the Big Sisterhood's quarters are almost depleted. They would like shoes and stockings, underwear, little dresses for these children, or gifts of money that can be used to purchase such things.

Expressions of sympathy for these and such cases are often heard. And there are always those who can point to the faults which lead to them, faults of mismanagement or unthriftiness. Such things are undeniable. Meanwhile the children suffer. A little concrete help will do good to giver and recipient alike.

AUTO GOSSIP

By HAROLD F. BLANCHARD.

Glass enclosures for open cars may be properly regarded as an important development for 1925. It is true, of course, that we have had glass enclosures for years, but it is only within the last few months that the idea has really taken hold, with the consequence that a large number of manufacturers of automobiles are selling glass enclosed models and listing them in their catalogues.

The new enclosures are attractive and practical, and when still further perfected are certain to give the older type of closed car a hard run, for the "enclosed" open car has much to recommend it. It provides the man of limited means with weather protection almost equal to that offered by the accepted type of closed car. Some may object to their statement pointing out that there are some closed cars on the market that cost no more than corresponding open models. But while this is admitted, it is also true that the general run of closed cars cost considerably more than their open car brothers.

The "enclosed" open car also meets the need of two important classes of motorists who prefer open cars, even though they may be able to buy closed cars. One class consists of those lovers of the great outdoors who never feel quite satisfied when rambling through the country in a closed car. The actual difference between an open car, and closed car with the windows down may be small, but psychology is such a curious thing that the aforesaid car owners count the difference great enough to stick to their beloved open models—the writer among them.

Open cars are also preferred by those motorists who enjoy maximum performance. Whether it be maximum speed or maximum hill-climbing ability. The speed bugs, of course, should be frowned off the earth, but the man who gets a thrill out of tearing up a steep hill on high ought to be encouraged. Hill-climbing ability, among other things, depends on car weight. Closed cars usually weigh more than open cars, wherefore the hill-climbing enthusiast prefers the open door.

The glass-enclosed car appeals to both these classes. To the former because the glass sides may be removed in good weather, and to the latter because the enclosure adds little to the weight of the car.

The adoption of glass-enclosed models by so many makers indicates that this type is becoming so perfected that the old objections no longer hold. It is now a practical and durable construction, and still more important, most of the new designs are attractive, although in frankness it must be added that there is no question but that as time goes on appearance will be still further improved until the enclosed open model is just as good to look at as its orthodox closed car competitors.

Considerable variety is shown as to the actual details in construction. In almost every case, however, the starting point is a permanent top—one that cannot be lowered, and in fact, the rather general use of the permanent top has accelerated the adoption of glass sides. Glass sides are fitted to the top edges of the body, thus closing the space between body and top. In some cases the sides may be removed in a moment and stored in a thin compartment hugging the back of the front seat. In other cases the removal takes a little more time, but if so glass panels are made in two pieces so that one may be slid over the other when ventilation is required.

Another interesting design in which celluloid-type windows are employed is to be shown soon. This car is provided by an unusually strong, fabric-covered steel-top, in which are concealed roller curtains working in grooves at front and rear. Closing the car may be accomplished in exactly the time it takes to pull down four window shades, since the operation is identical. In other words the car may be transformed from an open model to a closed model or vice-versa by the mere act of pulling the shades up or down. The celluloid is quite clear and the fact that the curtains are mounted on shade rollers prevents scratching.

AGREEMENT ON DRUG QUESTION

Americans Win Point and Viscount Cecil Agrees to Prevent Split.

SEEK FIX PERIOD.

GENEVA, January 26 (United Press, by Henry Wood, United Press Staff Corespondent). — The League of Nations anti-drug conference finally reached a turning point favourable to the American programme this afternoon, when Viscount Cecil and Congressman Stephen Porter personally agreed upon the principal points under discussion.

A joint Conciliatory Commission will attempt to find a suitable date to start a 15-year period within which the signatories will suppress opium smoking and production, and definitely limit the manufacture of drugs.

Separate conventions will be launched covering both subjects.

Americans Won.

American proposals to end the opium evil were considered to-day by a joint Conciliatory Commission representing two anti-drug conferences, under the auspices of the League of Nations.

Congressman Stephen Porter and his colleagues on the American delegation to the second of these conferences were victorious on Saturday, when, instead of rejecting their programme, the Powers opposed to it agreed to its consideration by a joint commission.

Had this not been done, Americans would have withdrawn. As matters stand, the joint Conciliatory Committee, all sessions of which will be public, will decide which phase of the American plan falls within the provisions of the first, or so-called opium conference, and which should be taken up by the second, or anti-drug parley, which is more concerned with the world traffic in the manufactured drugs.

At to-day's meeting, Porter demanded that the meeting devote its entire discussion to the chief point under dispute, namely, the date on which all nations will agree to start the abolition of opium smoking, to be completely effective in fifteen years.

The Conciliatory Committee thereupon adjourned until to-morrow.

FIRE DESTROYED KIRKFIELD BLOCK

Communication Shut Off by Burning of Telephone Office.

KIRKFIELD, Ont., Jan. 26. — (Special.) — A business block on Nelson street in the village of Kirkfield, was totally destroyed by fire on Sunday evening, with a loss of $50,000. Three residences were also destroyed. Nothing was saved. J. R. McKay, D. H. McEachern, W. J. Wright, F. Faed, were the heaviest losers.

Kirkfield has no fire fighting apparatus and the villagers put up a hard fight to prevent the flames from making at complete sweep. Communication with the village has been cut off owing to the destruction of the office of the Bell Telephone Co.

Annual Meeting Of Ladies Of Y.M.C.A.

At the annual meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. the following report of the year's activities was given:

The Auxiliary has held eight meetings, all with the object of planning to make the Y.M.C.A. building more home-like and comfortable and secure needed supplies for the dormitories.

In order to raise funds for the work, a Birthday Tea was held in the reading room in February.

A Rummage Sale was held in June and one in November.

Several donations were made in May and during the summer months most of the members were supplied with cent-a-day bags, which when opened in the fall brought in a nice sum.

The Auxiliary entertained the Board of Directors to dinner in March, and in May paid $50 to help defray a deficit in the general work.

For the dormitories several dresser covers were donated by some of the members. One dozen pairs hand towels; two dozen bath towels; six pairs of woolen blankets and twenty-five yards of curtain material have been bought also. Twenty-five yards of sheeting bought and made into sheets. Respectfully submitted, Mary E. Breyfogle, secretary.

At the meeting plans were made for a Valentine Tea, at the home of Mrs. W. R. Breyfogle.

Officers for 1925 will be as follow: President, Mrs. Roper; first vice-president, Mrs. H. Foote; second vice president, Mrs. Jordan; secretary, Mrs. W. R. Breyfogle; treasurer, Mrs. Percy Fitzgerald.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the retiring president Mrs. E. F. Mason.

State troopers accidentally stumbled on the cock-fight, and arrested 171 men for gambling, and seized the birds.

The sportsmen posted $15.00 collateral each for a hearing to-night.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY YOUNG PEOPLE

Interesting Convention Held in George Street Methodist Church.

The annual convention of the Methodist Young People's Societies of Peterboro Church was held on Friday in George Street Church.

The condition of the roads prevented a larger attendance from outside points, but there was real interest and a helpful convention for those present.

Mr. F. N. Alcorn, of Millbrook, presided.

The afternoon session opened with devotional exercises, and after a brief survey of the work of the Young People's Societies of the district by the district secretary, a round-table conference, led by Rev. Manson Doyle, assistant general secretary of religious education. A free discussion as to methods of work, programmes, etc., became general.

Rev. R. T. Richards, representing the conference executive, spoke briefly and forcibly upon the two-fold aim of Young People's work, "The Conservation and Release of Moral Resources."

A groun of Trail Rangers from Trinity Church, led by Mr. W. Giles, gave a very interesting practical demonstration of a week-day meeting of their group, and a class of girls from George Street Church, led by Miss Brownscombe, illustrated to the convention the week-day activities of C.G.I.T. work.

A supper was served by the Young People's Societies of George Street, Trinity, St. James' and Mark Street Churches. Tables were beautifully arranged and a splendid supper served.

Addresses were given by Rev. F. H. Howard, B.A., of Millbrook, who, in very striking and convincing language, pictured the privilege and unique opportunity of the Young People of to-day in making their own country, our Dominion, Christ's dominion.

Rev. Manion Doyle, B.A., of Toronto, addressed the convention on the subject, "Self and Service." The unit of human welfare is the home, but in the home the beginning of all service is with the self. Our responsibility as Young People is to develop self in accordance with the highest ideals to the fullest extent. But this very obligation to self carries us out into some group of people in the world. This is where our Young People stand in the place of privilege. They can select the group which they wish to make their own, and they can mould that group to their purpose in service. The man of growing character lives in a world of expanding groups until his interest touches the uttermost part of the earth. Our Young People's Societies are such groups in which we are associated together for the proper development of self, and the utmost sacrificial service for others, in our generation.

Hon. President — Rev. C. G. Reddick, B.A., Lakefield.

President—P. C. Brown, Bethany.

Secretary—Miss Pearl Burnham, Millbrook.

Treasurer—Cleveland Robb, Peterboro.

Y.P.L. Conf. Rep.—F. L. Alcorn, Millbrook.

1st Vice-Pres. — Osborne Smith, Peterboro.

2nd Vice-Pres.—Miss Stella Hetherington, Millbrook.

3rd Vice-Pres.—Ed. Rowe, Peterboro.

4th Vice-Pres. — Arthur Burrows, Lakefield.

5th Vice-Pres. — W. Giles, Peterboro.

6th Vice-Pres.—Miss Mary Elliott, Peterboro.

Supt. of Junior Work—Mrs. (Rev.) J. D. Richardson, Peterboro.

ASQUITH RAISED TO THE PEERAGE

Honor Raises Suggestion That Ex-Premier Will Adopto Motto

"WAIT AND SEE."

LONDON, January 26 (Canadian Press). — The eminent position held by former Premier Asquith as a great national character is emphasised by the prominence given by the newspapers this morning to his acceptance of the peerage.

The papers generally agree in approving the high honour given him.

It was officially announced this morning from the Premier's residence that an earldom had been conferred on Mr. Asquith.

That the great traditional title of Earl of Oxford is being revived for him is regarded as entirely appropriate partly because it was borne in the past by many men famous in the country's annals and also because Mr. Asquith and his family by their abilities and attainments have conferred lustre on Oxford University.

On the lighter side there is some precaution as to whether the new peer will smarten his personal appearance upon joining the House of Lords. Hitherto he has been notoriously regardless of dress, approaching therein the attitude of Gladstone, the late Marquis of Salibury, and some other prominent statesmen. Humorists are guessing as to what coat of arms and motto he will adopt as an earl. Some suggest that no motto is possible except "Wait and See," which was his favorite reply to inconvenient questioners in the House of Commons during his premiership.

MRS. ARTKINS INJURED.

Motor Collided With Street Car in Toronto—Several Hurt.

Friends of Mrs. Emmet Cronin and of her sister, Mrs. William Artkins (formerly Miss Mae Clancy, of this city) will regret to learn of a serious accident in which both were injured last week. A motor driven by Mrs. Artkins' husband collided with a street car near the corner of Brock Avenue and Queen West in Toronto last Tuesday. Mrs. Cronin's injuries were largely a nervous shaking up, but Mrs. Artkins sustained internal injuries and bruises, the exact nature of which have not yet been determined. Her small three-year-old daughtr was badly cut up, her face being gashed in several places.

MARK TWAIN'S BURGLAR

Now a Devoted Reader of Man He Robbed.

NOTICE!
To the Next Burglar:

There is only plated ware in this house now and henceforth.

You will find it in that brass thing in the dining-room over in the corner by the basket of kittens.

If you want the basket, put the kittens in the brass thing.

Do not make a noise—it disturbs the family.

You will find rubbers in the front hall by that thing that has the umbrellas in it—chiffonier, I think they call it, or pergola, or something like that.

Please close the door when you go away.

Very truly yours,
S. L. CLEMENS.

"Yes," said a giant of a man with a heavy face and large, powerful hands; "yes, that little note was called forth by me. It was written just after a friend of mine and myself broke into Mark Twain's place, "Stormfield."

He smiled at Mark Twain's now famous bit of fooling with a reminiscent air.

"It was a long time ago," he went on, staring at nothing; "sixteen years."

He lapsed into silence.

"Do you remember much about it?"

"Yes," he replied calmly, "I remember it, all right. I got ten years in the Connecticut State Prison for it."

After a pause he added with a chuckle: "It was 'that brass thing' mentioned by Mark Twain in his little note to the next nocturnal visitor that made all the trouble.

"'That brass thing' was a large brass bowl on the sideboard, and when we tried to get the silver out, my friend noticed it. He was afraid we'd knock it off, so he took it down carefully and laid it on the floor. That was a bad move.

"You see," said the ex-burglar, in a matter of fact tone, "we didn't want to make any more noise than we could help, anyway. And when we tried to break into the sideboard, it began to seem pretty risky. So we decided to take the sideboard out. We moved it down the road aw way; and——"

"You what?"

"Moved it out of the house, and down the road," he replied patiently.

"The whole sideboard?"

"Sure. And when we got it out and away from the house we opened it. That was all right. But we went back after that to see what else we could find.

The Faux Pas.

"We didn't get very far on that second trip. My friend was moving around in a quiet sort of way, when all of a sudden there came a terrific bang from the part of the room where he was. It was 'that brass thing' he had taken so carefully off the sideboard; he'd gone and stumbled over it in the dark where it lay on the floor.

"Well, after that, things began to happen, and they happened fast. Somebody came down from upstairs and turned on a flashlight from the stair landing.

"'Hello,' said the person, but we didn't wait to answer politely. We decided that it was about time to blow, and we did that without losing any time. We decided to get the early morning train away from those parts. That was a real bad move too. There weren't very many people on it, and we were a little conspicuous, I guess. You know how all those trains are—everybody knows everybody else, or pretty close to it. But we were strangers.

"However, we didn't have much time to feel out of it on account of being strangers. All of a sudden twelve men came into the car, and the way they looked at us made us pretty sure they wanted to have us join them.

"My friend ran to the other end of the car, out through the door an jumped off the train. It's a wonder he didn't break his neck: that train must have been going about fifty miles an hour. I didn't have much time to think about what had happened to him, though. Those fellows made a beeline for me.

"The first of them had a gun, and it was pointed in my direction. So I took out my own gun—I had it right here like this, in my right-hand coat pocket. I took it out and I let fly with two or three shots toward the ceiling of the car. I thought I might be able to scare them. But I was fooled. They were all old hands at that sort of thing. One of them got close enough to hit me over the head with a blackjack. Right here is where he landed."

His Favorite Author.

"He hit me with it," went on the ex-burglar, frowning, "and then I got mad. I grabbed hold of him and we started to wrestle around in the aisle of the car. I tripped him, but he swung me around as we fell and landed on top of me. He was a big man, bigger than I. He had me by the wrist, but I was crazy by that time, couldn't see what I was doing, on account of the blood in my eyes. I wriggled the gun around into something and pulled. Later I learned I had shot the policeman in the leg.

"I say 'later,' because that's all I can remember until I found myself lying out on the embankment beside the train with handcuffs on.

"Then came the trial, and I got ten years. It was interesting to hear what Mark Twain had to say about my visit. He said I scared away most of the servants and didn't get what I was after; and that now I was in jail, and that if I kept on I would go to Congress."

Albert Bigelow Paine, in his biography of Mark Twain, says:

"Claude, the butler, fired a pistol after them (the burglars) to hasten their departure, and Clemens, wakened by the shots, thought the family was opening champagne and went to sleep again."

One would expect that the Mark Twain burglar might have some feeling of bitterness in connection with any Mark Twain products, but this is far from being the case. The ex-burglar is, as a matter of fact, a Mark Twain enthusiast. He has read most of the author's writings, and they remain his favorite books.

Indeed, the ex-burglar was discovered through his coming to the establishment of Harper Brothers to get the recently published autobiography of Mark Twain. While he was getting it he modestly divulged the information that he had once paid the famous author an evening visit without invitation.

"My visit to Mark Twain was the last such exploit I ever made," he said. "Not because I was a 'disappointed burglar,' as Mark Twain said—for I took away all the silverware—but because I have since come to the conclusion that crime doesn't pay."

The ex-burglar has had further relations with the Clemens family since the unhappy episode which landed him in Connecticut State Prison for ten years, but these relations have been of a far pleasanter sort.

"Since my release from prison some nine years ago," he said, "I had the privilege and pleasure of meeting the only living member of Mark Twain's family, Mrs. Clara Clemens Gabrilowitsch. It is to the generosity and practical assistance of Mark Twain's talented daughter that I owe my real chance to make good and to become a useful and law-abiding citizen and member of the society I hated and fought so long."

A Deceptive Burglar Alarm.

"That burglar alarm which Susy mentions led a gay and careless life, and had no principles. It was generally out of order at one point or another, and there was plenty of opportunity, because all the windows and doors in the house, from the cellar up to the top floor, were connected with it. In its seasons of being out of order it could trouble us for only a very little while. We quickly found out that it was fooling us and that it was buzzing its blood-curdling alarm merely for its own amusement. Then we would shut it off and sent to New York for the electrician—there not being one in all Hartford in those days. Then when the repairs were finished we would set the alarm again and re-establish our confidence in it. It never did any real business except upon one single occasion. All the rest of its expensive career was frivolous and without purpose. Just that one time it performed its duty, and its whole duty—gravely, seriously, admirably. It let fly about 2 o'clock one black and dreary March morning, and I turned out promptly, because I knew that it was not fooling this time. The bathroom door was on my side of the bed. I stepped in there, turned on the gas, looked at the annunciator, turned off the alarm—so far as the door indicated was concerned—thus stopping the racket. Then I came back to bed.

"Mrs. Clemens said, "What was it?"

"I said, 'It was the cellar door.'

"She said, 'Was it a burglar, do you think?'

"'Yes,' I said, 'of course it was. Do you suppose it was a Sunday school superintendent?'

"She said, 'What do you suppose he wants?'

"Probably After Vegetables."

"I said: 'I suppose he wants jewelry, but he is not acquainted with the house and he thinks it is in the cellar. I don't like to disappoint a burglar whom I am not acquainted with and who has done me no harm, but if he had had common sagacity enough to inquire I could have told him we kept nothing down there but coal and vegetables. Still, it may be that he is acquainted with this place and that what he really wants is coal and vegetables. On the whole, I think, it is vegetables he is after.'

"She said, 'Are you going down to see?'

"'No,' I said; 'I could not be of any assistance. Let him select for himself.'

"Then she said: 'But suppose he comes up to the ground floor?'

"I said: 'That's all right. We shall know it the minute he opens a door on that floor. It will set off the alarm.'

"Just then the terrible buzzing broke out again. I said: 'He has arrived. I told you he would. I know all about burglars and their ways. They are systematic people.'

"I went into the bathroom to see if I was right, and I was. I shut off the dining-room and stopped the buzzing and came back to bed. My wife said, 'What do you suppose he is after now?'

Value of the Device.

"I said: 'I think he had got all the vegetables he wants and is coming up for the napkin rings and odds and ends for the wife and the children. They all have families—burglars have—and they are always thoughtful of them; always take a few necessities of life for themselves and the rest as tokens of remembrance for the family. In taking them they do not forget us. Those very things represent tokens of his remembrance of us also. We never get them again. The memory of the attention remains embalmed in our hearts.'

"She said, 'Are you going down to see what it is he wants now?'

"'No,' I said. 'I am no more interested than I was before. These are experienced people. They know what they want. I should be of no help to him. I think he is after ceramics and bric-a-brac and such things. If he knows the house he knows that that is all that he can find on the dining-room floor.'

"She said, 'Suppose he comes up here?'

"I said, 'it is all right. He will give us notice.'

"She said, "What shall we do then?'

"I said, 'Climb out of the window.'

"She said, 'Well, what is the use of a burglar alarm for us?'

"I said, 'You have seen that it has been useful up to the present moment, and I have explained to you how it will be continuously useful after he gets up here.'

"That was the end of it. He didn't ring and more alarms.

"Presently I said: 'He is disappointed, I think. He has gone off with the vegetables and the bric-a-brac and I think he is dissatisfied.'

His Theory Substantiated.

"We went to sleep, and at a quarter before eight in the morning I was out, and hurrying, for I was to take the 8:29 train for New York. I found the gas burning brightly—full head—all over the first floor. My new overcoat was gone; my old umbrella was gone; my new patent leather shoes, which I had never worn, were gone. The large window which opened into the ombra at the rear of the house was standing wide. I passed out through it and tracked the burglar down the hill through the trees; tracked him without difficulty, because he had blazed his progress with imitation silver napkin rings and my umbrella and various other things which he had disapproved of; and I went back in triumph and proved to my wife that he was a disappointed burglar. I had suspected he would be from the start, and from his not coming up to our floor to get human beings."

PLOUGHMEN MET AT MILLBROOK LAST SATURDAY

L. H. Winslow Elected President of Association for Present Year.

ANNUAL AFFAIR.

Thanks Given to Peterborough Merchants for Their Help.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 26.—The annual meeting of the Cavan and South Monaghan Ploughmen's Association was held in the Town Hall on Saturday afternoon, the attendance being most encouraging.

L. H. Winslow, president of the association, was in the chair, and the reports presented by the secretary-treasurer, L. C. McNeil, showed the organization in a flourishing condition. The ploughing match last fall was considered the most successful yet held under the auspices of the organization, one of its most encouraging features being the number of entries in the boys' classes, and it was decided to hold a similar event in 1925, the date and place to be arranged at a later meeting. A substantial balance in the bank gives a good start-off to the current year.

The officers for 1925 are:
President—L. H. Winslow.
Vice-President—H. A. Fallis.
2nd Vice-President—George Berry.
Secty.-Treas.—L. C. McNeil.

Directors — A. J. Henderson, R. McCamus, J. L. McCamus, W. R. N. Sharpe, A. J. Fallis, M.P.P.; G. A. Fair, Gerald Armstrong, R. O. Larmer, L. M. Fallis, T. A. Kelly, L. W. Smith, I. W. Larmer, William Atchison, R. J. McKnight, Jas. Eagleson, H. Tate, J. A. Vance, Dawson Rutherford, John Greer, A. B. Kennedy, Russell Bonar, Thomas Donaldson.

Moved by L. H. Winslow, seconded by H. A. Fallis, that the thanks of the association be tendered the business men of Peterboro and Millbrook for the financial assistance given each year toward the expenses of the annual ploughing match. Lacking such financial backing the association could not successfully carry on.

Delegates Appointed.

On motion, Thomas and I. W. Larmer were appointed delegates to the annual meeting of the Ontario Ploughmen's Association meeting in Toronto on February 6th.

Mr. Winslow was elected president for the fifth consecutive year, and much of the success of the association, it is strongly felt, is due to the capability and untiring energy with which he fulfills the duties of his office. He is ably assisted by the efficient secretary-treasurer, Mr. McNeil, who has held this position for three years.

A meeting of the committee appointed by the Agricultural Society at its recent annual session, to arrange for local financial assistance for the annual Winter Horse Fair, was held immediately after the Ploughmen's Association had concluded its business period.

The date for the Winter Fair was set for February 19th, and details as to advertising, prizes, etc., were attended to while the committee was in session.

GASOLINE GOES UP.

Price is Up to 26 Cents in Toronto and Buffalo.

METZ, France, January 26 (Canadian Press). — "If a fight is forced on us we shall accept it with an energy hitherto unsuspected," declared Father Bergey, deputy from the Gironde Department, known as the wartime fighting chaplain, speaking before a general meeting of the Lorraine Catholic Association last night on the Herriot Government's clerical policy.

"All the French Catholics from Metz, Strassbourg, and Brest to Nice form one indissoluble family," the deputy continued.

When set, cut with round cutter.

Domino Cakes.

Same mixture as above but with the exception of the orange rind. Cut into oblong shapes when cool, and cover with the following icing: 2 ozs. icing sugar, 1 oz. grated chocolate; add a little warm water and beat till like a thick cream; pour over cakes, and add silver cachous to represent the number of the domino.

Marie Cakes.

Same mixture as for Domino Cake, but baked in separate small deep tins. When cool, scoop out centre, and fill with whipped cream; smear the sides with apricot jam, roll in cocoa-nut—for a variety colour some of the cocoa-nut pink and some with powdered chocolate pistachio nuts (chopped), also browned almonds (chopped) look equally as nice, with a change of flavour.

Rock Cakes.

Four ounces butter, 4 ozs. sugar, 8 ozs. flour, 2 ozs. currants, 1 egg, 1 teaspoonful baking powder, a little milk, pinch of salt. Rub butter very finely into flour; add all dry ingredients; mix in egg and a little milk to make into a firm paste. Place a dessert-spoonful at intervals on a baking sheetr and bake in a very hot oven from 10 to 15 minutes.

Cocoa-Nut Macaroons.

Quarter-pound flour, ¼ lb. butter, 3 ozs. grated cocoa-nut, 3 ozs. sifted sugar, 2 eggs, pinch of salt; beat butter and sugar together, add flour and cocoa-nut by degrees, then the eggs, still beating the mixture. Drop a spoonful on a greased baking tin ada bake in a quick oven for 8 minutes.

SOO DETERMINED TO WIPE OUT DEFEAT BY PETES IN S.P.A. GAME

Seniors' Clash With Greyhounds To-night More Than an Exhibition Affair.

SMOOTH MACHINE.

Fans Have Rare Chance to See Phillips, Donnelly, "Slats" Walsh and Company.

Tonights game between the Soo Greyhounds, Allen Cup holders and Amateur Champions of Canada and Peterboro, S.P.A. Champions is different from the average exhibition game inasmuch as there is something at stake.

The Soo team, who arrived in town early this morning, are taking tonight's battle very seriously as an opportunity to wipe out the unexpected jolt received at the hands of the Petes in the S.P.A. series. For an unheard of team, drafted from the intermediate ranks, to beat the Allen Cup holders was not just according to Hoyle and the Greyhounds will not be happy if they can't go back north tomorrow with the Petes' scalps dangling from their belts.

Tonight's game should see hockey at its best.

The famous visitors play the ideal game from a spectator's standpoint. They leave heavy checking to the other fellows and they depend upon their speed, cleverness, resourcefulness and team play to win for them.

With the Petes using much the same tactics there should be plenty of the sensational stuff that made the Soo-Peterboro game in Toronto the best game of the present season in any series.

The Soo will be at their full strength tonight.

That means Walsh in the nets and Babe Donnelly and Stan Brown on the defence. Walsh, a graduate from the Kingston Frontenacs, ranks as one of the greatest goalers in the game. Donnelly, the fellow with the baseball cap, is a wonderful rusher, while Brown's work with Varsity and the Dents, and since with the Soo, has made his name a household one.

The forward line has been together for several seasons. It pivots around Bill Phillips, righty acclaimed one of the greatest centres of all time, a smooth, resourceful, effective and brilliant player. The regular wings are "Gloomy" Lessard and Johnny Woodruff and a sweet pair they are while Campbell and Burke, the two subs, fit into the machine without destroying a fraction of its effectiveness.

It is seldom that a team of this calibre has been seen in action at Brock Street Rink and local fans should not miss this rare chance.

The Petes expect to have their strongest array and to give the Northerners a terrific fight for the honours.

Recognizing the importance of the game the Peterboro management has secured the services of Connie Smythe, the well known honorary coach of the Varsity team, to handle the bell.

KEMP'S CUBS WIN.

Defeated Racers at Lakefield Rink by 7 Goals to 2.

Kemps Cubs of Lakefield had little trouble in doing away with the Racers on Friday afternoon in the Lakefield Arena when they took the big end of a 7 to 2 score. Both teams showed flashes of speed and combination, while on the attack the Cubs were much superior to their opponents. The Racers tried hard all the way but dogged checking on the part of the winners spoiled their chances to score several times.

Line ups:

Racers—Goal, C. Stuart; right defence, D. Watson; left defence, G. Elmsley; centre, L. Stuart; right wing, L. Hamilton; left wing, M. Hamilton.

LINDSAY JUNIORS HERE ON TUESDAY

Victory for the Youngsters Will Give Them Group Honors.

Tomorrow night Peterboro fans will have a chance to see the fast local junior squad in combat against their old rivals, the Lindsay Midgets, with the group championship at stake.

The Petes can win admission into the next round by earning the decision over the Midgets in this fixture and they are determined that no play off will be necessary to decide the group winner.

Both teams have beaten Lakefield twice but the Peterboro youngsters have the edge by reason of beating Lindsay on their own ice in the first game of the series.

The Midgets have been improving right along since then, however, and their supporters claim they can turn the trick tomorrow night.

Ross Burtt of Trenton will handle the bell.

With a general admission price of 30 cents and west side seats selling at 50 cents, a big crowd should turn out and encourage the youngsters in their battle for junior honours.

FANS INVADED DERBY'S FIELD

One Wolverhampton Player Struck—Police Intervened —Leaders Beaten.

SECOND DIVISION.

LONDON, Jan. 26. — (Canadian Press Cable.) —The sensation of League football on Saturday took place, not in the first division, but the second and assumed a dual form when both the leaders, Derby County and Manchester United were defeated, each by a single goal and at the hands of Wolverhampton Wanderers and Oldham Athletic respectively. Scoring was particularly heavy, 116 counters being registered in the three divisions.

The senior section saw only one indecisive game, that between Notts Forest and their fellow citizens, Notts County, the encounter resulting in a division of points. All other games went to the limit, two teams winning away from home, and eight garnering points on their own ground. The visiting winners were Huddersfield Town, who shaded Blackburn Rovers, and Burnley, who defeated Leeds United.

Win for "Spurs."

Thirty-five thousand fans rooted for Tottenham and brought them home to win by a solitary goal against Sunderland. This was the Spurs' first win since November. They were thoroughly outplayed in the first half, when Sunderland shot in what appeared to observers to be a perfectly legitimate goal. The ball was sent in from a forty-yards shot and bounced back from what appeared to be the iron upright of the net. The locals rallied after the interval and Seed headed in a beautiful shot, getting the ball about a foot off the ground.

Burnley gave every evidence of continuing their recovery on Saturday when they stacked up 3-0 against the late second division club, Leeds United. Incidentally they improved their position considerably in the League, and drew away slightly from the danger zone.

Huddersfield Town's win at Blackburn was particularly well merited and brought the town into aggressive competrion with the leaders.

Bromwich Beat Cardiff.

West Bromwich, who continue to head the League, were fortunate in their victory over Cardiff City. Playing on their own ground, they were able to defeat the Welshmen only by one tally.

In the League race they are hotly pursued by Bolton Wanderers, who duplicated West Bromwich's game but against Everton. The visitors put up a splendid fight and might have won, but for the stonewall defence of the Wanderers.

Derby County's ground was the scene of an ugly riot on Saturday when the fans invaded the field in the second half. One member of the Wolverhampton team was struck but the police intervened and prevented further unpleasantness.

In the northern section of the third division, Darlington still leads the league. Brown scored three of their five goals against Crewe Alexandria. The first seven places in the table were unaltered as a result of Saturday's contests, with Southport, Nelson, New Brighton, Rochdale, Bradford and Walsall following in the order named.

In the southern section, Bristol City were dethroned by Millwall and since Plymouth were able only to draw, Swansea jumped into the lead with Southend pushed into second place.

BIG WEEK OF HOCKEY OPENS TO-NIGHT WITH SOO GAME AND JUNIORS TUESDAY

Famous Greyhounds Make First Appearance in Peterborough—Seniors Have a Tryst With Aura Lee on Friday—Lindsay Juniors To-morrow Night.

This is a busy and important week for Peterboro's hockey teams.

Tonight the Seniors tackle the Soo Greyhounds in an exhibition fixture at Brock Street Rink, a fixture that should afford all the thrills that Canada's national winter sport can provide if the S.P.A. Cup games between the two teams can be taken as a criterion.

Tomorrow night the Peterboro Juniors meet their ancient enemies from Lindsay in an O.H.A. fixture here and it should be a tough argument. A win for the young Petes gives them the group honours without a loss while a Lindsay victory ties up the series

Friday night the Seniors swing into action again with an O.H.A. game against Aura Lee at Brock Street Rink.

The Marsden squad will be fighting with their backs to the wall in this fixture for a loss would practically put them out of the running for second place. The Aura Lee team has already lost three games and cannot afford to be beaten again. The Petes need the game too to keep up there. Aura Lee has been beaten twice by the blue shirts, but only after a hard fight in each case, losing here 2 to 1 in an exhibition game and being nosed out 3 to 2 in an O.H.A. fixture in Toronto.

The group standing is as follows:

	Won	Lost	To Play
Peterboro	4	1	4
Parkdale	3	1	4
Varsity	1	2	5
Aura Lee	1	3	4
Hamilton	1	3	4

The Petes remaining games are with Aura Lee and Varsity and with the Rowing Club in Hamilton.

Parkdale have to meet Varsity twice, play a second game with Aura Lee and like the Petes also visit Hamilton.

Varsity have two games with Parkdale, one with Aura Lee and one with Hamilton in Toronto and also have to visit Peterboro.

Rowing Club have two more games at home with Parkdale and Peterboro and must visit Toronto twice for games with Aura Lee and Varsity.

Aura Lee come here for one game, and play Hamilton, Parkdale and Varsity in Toronto.

Games scheduled for this week are:

Wednesday—Hamilton at Varsity.
Friday—Aura Lee at Peterboro.
Saturday—Parkdale at Varsity.

TIGERS SCORED SOLITARY GOAL

Hamilton Maintain First Position by Winning From Montreal Before the Bell Rang.

GREAT CLIMAX.

MONTREAL, Jan. 26.—Dramatic incidents have colored many of the professional hockey struggles here this winter, but few have furnished the thrilling climax which concluded Saturday night's game here when Hamilton Tigers defeated Montreal 1 to 0 and maintained their margin at the head of the National Hockey League race.

For the greater part of three periods the two teams engaged in a fast, open, strenuous and brilliant battle, without either side being able to score, though Montreal had an edge over the Tigers in the number of shots rained on the goals. With three minutes of the scheduled time remaining, the 9,000 spectators were prepared for another overtime struggle, and the Hamilton players, who had arranged to take the night train back home, saw possibilities of having to alter their arrangements.

Charlie Langlois, one-time senior amateur player of this city and this season a sturdy and tricky Hamilton defence man, started down the ice in what looked like another of the many excursions that had been made up and down the sheet throughout the contest. When Louis Berlinquette took a side slash and knocked the puck wide at the Montreal blue line it appeared that the attack was halted. However, Langlois speeded after the puck, raced around the net and shot. The puck was blocked and came to rest just out of Benedict's reach. Langlois was bodied, but quickly recovered his balance. He took a wild swing at the disc just as Benedict came out to clear it, and the rubber bounded into the net.

Montreal had no chance to even matters in the two short minutes remaining.

GROVE STUDENTS FORCED LINDSAY

Tied Up the Game in Third Period, but Failed in Overtime.

(From Lindsay Post.)

Lindsay Juniors defeated Lakefield in the local arena Friday night by 5 to 3 in a fast overtime game, marked by open play and all aggressive finish by the locals when "Buster" Martin scored twice, breaking the tie. The game was fairly clean, the penalties were mostly for minor offences. Referee Jackson of Peterboro kept the game fast but called them close in the last and overtime periods.

The Lakefield team could skate fast and their defence men could carry the puck. In the second and third periods their checking broke up many of the Lindsay rushes, but the shooting was weak and rather erratic, though Eberts had to drop on several when the visitors followed through.

Speed was the motto from the start. The two goals for Lakefield which evened the count were scored within a minute of each other, after about ten minutes of play in the third period. Rainnie put in the first drawing out the defence and shooting from the side. Christmas got the second one by Eberts almost as soon as play was resumed, breaking through the defence and lifting the puck in from quite close.

Overtime.

Lakefield went on the ice one man short, Christmas having to serve another minute. The locals bored right in from the gong hemming in Lakefield at their end, checked and skated as if it was the first period. The visitors while still fresh were dismayed at the aggressive attack and even when Christmas came on couldn't seem to get away. "Buster" Martin broke the tie with a fast one after three minutes play. A few seconds later he registered the second counter on a pass from Mills in the corner. Piercey almost scored on a nice shot but the Lakefield net guard was far from being asleep and made a clever save.

Lakefield made strenuous efforts to score in the seccond of the six minutes overtme perods, but the locals, even minus Mills (who get the bench for heavy checking) completely dominated the play.

NURMI BEATEN BROKE RECORD

Unable to Overcome 100 Yard Handicap in 2,000 Yard Race.

FIRST DEFEAT.

BROOKLYN, N.Y., Jan. 26. — Paavo Nurmi, holder of ten world running records, made in 13 days, added two to his list Saturday night, but for the first time followed an opponent across the finish line in the 2,000 yard handicap special at the Brooklyn College track meet.

Gunnar Nilson of the Finnish-American Club, who started one hundred yards ahead of the sensational Finnish star of the Olympic games, reached the tape a bare yard ahead of the Flying Nurmi, who forgot his famous stopwatch in his attempt to overtake his countryman and stave off the impending defeat. Paavo raced the last two laps valiantly but even his marvellous stamina could not outdo the sprint of the leader.

Nurmi, however, established a record from scratch when he reached the mile and one-eighth mark in four minutes and fifty-eight seconds. He set another by finishing the 2,000 yards in five minutes and four-fifths of a second.

Georgetown broke the world's indoor two mile relay record by eight seconds, breaking the tape in .47 1-5.

Boston College also broke the record, completing its two miles in 7.52 4-5. The former record of 7.55 1-5 was made by the University.

ST. PATS IN THIRD PLACE.

Game With Boston Was One of Worst in Hockey Season.

TORONTO, Jan. 26.—(Canadian Press).—While St. Patrick's 4 to 3 victory over Boston in the N. H. L. fixture at the Arena on Saturday night was far from being a convincing one, numerous spectators claiming the Irish were lucky to finish in front, it came at a most opportune time, and as a result the locals jumped from fifth place in the League standing to a tie for third place, along with Montreal, and are but two points behind Canadiens, who are alone in second place. There is no use in attempting to disguise the fact that the game here was one of the worse of the season as far as good hockey is concerned.

CANADIENS WIN FROM SENATORS

Geo. Boucher and Sprague Cleghorn Started Lively Fight in Ottawa.

OVERTIME 3-2.

OTTAWA, Jan. 26.—(Canadian Press).—In a game that was packed full of thrills for the sixty odd minutes overtime periods, but the defeated Ottawa here aturday night by a score of 3 to 2. The winning goal came from Joliat's stick eight minutes and fifteen seconds after the overtime session had commenced and with it came a termination to a hockey revue that contained almost everything in the game's repertoire.

Brilliant individual and combination work, time-killing measures, stiff body checking, spectacular goal tending and a near riot were all crammed into the contest which bristled with action from start to finish. The crisis came in the second period after about five minutes of play when Geo. Boucher and Sprague Cleghorn were ushered to the gate with match fouls for participating a mix-up that had all the aspects of a Donnybrook for a short time.

Boucher carried the puck up from the Ottawa defence, and as he came into the Canuck read guard, he fell, bringing Cleghorn down on top of him. Boucher's face was cut and his teeth damaged by Cleghorn's skates. Boucher stated afterward that the offence was deliberate as Cleghorn kicked at him three times while they were on the ice. Cleghorn denies any deliberate attempt to injure Boucher. On arising, Boucher sailed into the Canadien captain, and players of both teams flocked to the scrap. They were finally quieted, after a liberal allround punching had taken place, and Boucher and Cleghorn were given match fouls by Referee Laflamme, who had followed the play up the ice and did not see Cleghorn's offence.

The Turning Point.

This was the turning point of the game. Ottawa had started out with Ed. Gorman at centre in place of Nighbor, who was badly injured in Wednesday's game in Hamilton. The difference was a big one, but through the first period, Ottawa had a shade and one-goal lead and looked to be going nicely. Then, with Boucher out of the game, Gorman was sent back to the defence, Smith pulled over to centre and Finnegan came on right wing. This left the Senators without relief and as a result the players were tottering on their feet from exhaustion before the game ended.

Tied It Up.

Before Ottawas could get settled in their new formation with Boucher and Nighbor off, Morenz and Billy Boucher worked a double pass through the defence with Morenz on the scoring end. In three minutes and ten seconds mor Morenz swept from end to end for a beautiful goal, putting the visitors one up. Denneny had given Ottawa the lead in the first five minutes of the game with a snappy goal on a double pass with Smith. Smith tied it up just before the period ended, batting in Denney's rebound. Through a scoreless third period they played at a terrific pace. The front rank of the Frenchmen was too strong for the weakened locals and the latter were gradually burned out trying to stem the tireless advances of Joliat and Morenz. Though both goals were threatened in turn, there was no score. Vezina and Connell were in brilliant form, some of the latter's stops being of very high order. With Connell at all off his game Canadiens should have won by a wide margin in the regular playing time, as they carried the play for the last half of the game. A kick in the knee dimmed Clancy's usual brilliancy and the youngster stayed on the ice, simply because there was no relief for him.

LINDSAY CONTINGENT

Hockey Enthusiasts Who Saw Parkdale Game Here.

The following Lindsay hockey fans witnessed the Parkdale seniors of Toronto, win in Peterboro Friday night: Messrs. H. Woods, H. C. Brown, Geof. Edwards, S. P. Beal, Campbell Ross, W. Wilkinson, H. Dickey, Peter Spratt. They report that the game was not by any means a hair-raiser and they have witnessed more exciting games. However, the play was very fast at times. The first period was very good, the second period slow and the third livelier. Harry Watson, the Parkdale star, was the star of the game.—Lindsay Post.

GOLF

WRIST WORK

By HARRY VARDON.

Ever since golfers began to discuss the methods that lead to success on the links, the working of the wrists has been a subject of consideration.

"Give the ball the back of the left hand," was one of the prime aphorisms of the game in the days when I was learning how to play it. The phrase meant that, at the impact, the back of the left hand should be facing the line of play—a perfectly sound idea—but it also conveyed the principle that one should try to hit harder with the left hand than with the right, a state of affairs that would lead, naturally, to a tautening of the left wrist just before delivering the blow.

Obviously, one has to use the wrists in accomplishing a golf shot; they are joints in the human machine. But I venture to say that they are no more important than any others, and that the people who try to promote hitting power by bracing up their wrists as they strike the ball are likely to make—and invariably do make—a great many erratic strokes.

Frequently you will hear it said of a famous player who flicks the ball strongly to its mark with a half-iron shot: "He must have a wonderful pair of wrists!" It is a common impression that these are mainly wrist strokes—the heritage, I suppose, of the teaching of a generation ago. Only the other day, I came across a standard text-book published in 1890, which said that all approaches played with less than a half-swing "are true wrist strokes."

My personal experience is that the less we think about our wrists as we hit a golf ball the better we fare. These members do certainly have to perform in a prescribed way—a way of which we may be conscious—in the up swing. The left wrist has to turn steadily in towards the body as the club rises—it is as though one were locking a door with a key in the left hand—until it will not comfortably turn any further, and the right wrist must subordinate itself to this action.

But once the club has reached the top of the swing, and the wrist—not at all taut—have started it downwards, me own belief and practice is that all sense of these joints should be forgotten. What they do coming down is the corollary of what they did going up.

Two Hands as One.

The advice about giving it "the back of the left hand"—involving an extra effort with the left wrist—is equivalent to a theory that the left hand is the master hand in golf. This, indeed, was once a widely accepted premise. I think that the two hands are of equal importance, and should work in unison.

For my own part, I am not conscious of a tightening of my wrists in the slightest degree even as I hit the ball. If they did tighten, my grip of the club also would tighten and I am fairly sure that this does not happen. Indeed, it is one of the worst mistakes in golfing methods.

Even now, after a career of 30 years in first-class golf, I often say to myself, as a reminder of first importance, before playing a shot, "don't grip too tightly," and if the hold does increase in firmness in a slight degree at the impact, due to the simple fact that one is hitting something hard, that degree must be very slight indeed. At any rate, I do not feel it, and the best evidence that it is small is that I never have any corns or blisters on my hands. The existence of such nuisances is sure proof of unnecessarily tight gripping.

The arms, the wrists, the hands, and the shaft of the club should all be one—with no part dominating any other part. At the end is the club-head, which is being swung like a weight at the end of a piece of cord. You could not swing a weight attached to a piece of cord—at least you could not swing it truly and accelerate it easily—if you had a joint in the middle of the cord, and you tried to make that joint regulate the operation.

This is what a lot of people do with their wrists when in the golf swing. My advice is: "Forget your wrists when the club is coming down. Once you have recovered the club-head from the back of your own head—an action that has to be performed as a kind of quiet preparation for the hit—swing the head of the club at the ball as though you had it on the end of a cord, and your muscles had to be easy in order to keep up the momentum."

Concerning Chip Shots.

This is why a "follow through" is good. I am not a believer in checking the club-head immediately after the impact; it shows violent wrist action, and most of those who practice it make very wild shots. I saw one such player the other day; a young professional who might be very good indeed. He hit tremendously hard, and stopped the club with a suddenness which made the onlooker marvel at the strength and pliability of his wrists, but he hit the ball all over the place.

Even in the shortest chip shot, the temptation to make deliberate use of the wrists in striking the ball is to be vigorously resisted. It used to be said that these were essentially wrist shots, and to four out of every five golfers they are still such. If, however, you watch any first-class modern player who is especially good at the chip—a most valuable shot in its capacity for saving a stroke on the green—you will notice that he does not play it in the slightest measure with his wrists. Nor does the good lady golfer; I am told that Miss Joyce Wethered is particularly expert at it in the up-to-date way, although I have not seen her.

What happens is simply a very slight pivot of the body at the hips, made by straightening the right leg and bending the left knee a little inwards. The club goes back a short distance with that turn of the body, and comes down again as the left leg stiffens, and the right leg bends a trifle inwards. In that way, the club-head strikes the ball automatically. There is no scooping to obtain the effect. It is true hitting.

STUDENTS WOULD BENEFIT BY NEW COLLEGIATE PLAN

Says Principal E. O. Sliter, of Kingston Collegiate Institute.

NEED BIG STAFF.

Pupils Now Rush to University Immediately on Matriculation.

(Special to The Examiner.)

KINGSTON, Jan. 26.— That the Kingston Collegiate Institute is handicapped by pupils rushing into Queen's University after they matriculate, is the opinion expressed by Principal E. O. Sliter.

"If it means that the larger high schools and collegiates are to be properly equipped and staffed for such teaching, the plan will do much towards diffusing college education among many who would not otherwise receive it," said Principal Sliter, when questioned regarding the local bearing of Premier Ferguson's proposals to have the first two years of college work assumed by secondary schools.

"This would be especially the case," continued Mr. Sliter, "in places like Peterborough, Hamilton, Belleville and Brockville, where this advanced work would be undertaken by many who would not think of leaving home to attend University. But in Kingston our situation is different. It is hard enough to hold a scholarship form even now, for, immediately after matriculation most of the students want to hurry into Queen's. This is what handicaps the Kingston Collegiate in winning scholarships.

Other Collegiates can hold promising pupils for two years, preparing them for scholarship examinations, but here they advance to the college at their earliest opportunity. I do not think this wise, but unless the university insists that this work must be done in the collegiate, few of our pupils will remain.

Increase Subsidy.

Mr. Sliter is of the opinion that in Kingston many who were not considering a college career would take advantage of the advanced work offered in the Collegiate. But such instruction would need staff, new rooms and considerable equipment. In this case the collegiates would have to be subsidized by the province to a far greater degree than they are at present, and the problem of finding teachers qualified to give such instructions would be acute. At present out of 1,420 collegiate and high school teachers, only 681 have specialist certificates, with another 325 possessing interim certificates. The very best teachers would be demanded by the proposed advance.

"On the other hand," said Mr. Sliter, "with proper staff and equipment the schools can do this teaching much better than do the colleges, for the majority of students who enter the universities are too immature to benefit by the system of study there employed."

SEEK SALESMAN FOR BIG FRAUD

Head of Motor Sales House Got $25,000 Police Say.

EMPLOYEE VICTIMS.

TORONTO, Jan. 26 (Canadian Press).—Warrants charging Frank Anderson, of the Anderson Motor Sales Company, with obtaining $25,000 through fraudulant deals in automobiles were issued on Saturday morning. Together with the issuance of the warrants a reward has been offered of $1,000 for information leading to the arrest of Anderson, who is thought by the police to have gone to the United States.

On Saturday night two of Anderson's salesmen, Frank Logan and William H. Healy, were taken into custody on charges of conspiracy. Both salesmen are alleged to have attached their signatures to notes on which, it is charged, Anderson later obtained several hundred dollars from security companies.

Admitting that the signatures on the notes were genuine, the accused salesmen denied having shared in the money received by Anderson and further declared to police they did not know their signatures were being used by their employer as a fraudulent means of securing money.

The Commercial Finance Company and the Continental Guaranty Corporation of Canada are named on the warrants as the complainants. The system used by Anderson in the alleged frauds, according to police, was to make out false lien notes on fictitious sales on the time payment basis and then obtain the money.

INTERESTING LOVE STORY BY FAMOUS POET IS MADE INTO FILM HIT

Robert W. Service's "The Roughneck," Coming Here Soon, Offers Dramatic Surprises

"The Roughneck," the William Fox special production which opens at the Capitol Theatre for today and to-morrow is a screen version of the well-known and widely read novel, of that title, by Robert W. Service. Those who have enjoyed the poems of this gifted writer have been given another thrill in this, his latest work of fiction. The story is a succession of dramatic surprises in the life of a man, whose nature has become warped through a cruel trick of fate. The swift rythmic movement of the poet is apparent in the fiction of Service and coupled with this is his wonderful descriptive powers, making "The Roughneck" an ideal story for adaptation to the screen.

George O'Brien, whose rise to the stellar ranks has been rapid and deserved, plays John Moon, the man with the creed of "Let me die fighting." The vigorous swift-moving action of the story is admirably portrayed by this young artist, who really seems to live the part.

The criticisms of the leading writers of the trade journals agree that the part is one of the best that has ever been assigned to O'Brien and a happier selection for the part could not have been made.

Billie Dove, the beautiful and talented young screen celebrity, plays opposite Mr. O'Brien and in the role of Felicity Arden has never been cast to better advantage, it is claimed.

In addition to the featured players, the cast contains a list of popular personalities: Harry T. Morey, Cleo Madison, Charles A. Sellon, Ann Cornwall, Harvey Clark, Maryon Aye, Edna Eichnor and Buddy Smith.

The picture was directed by John Conway from the scenario prepared by Charles Kenyon and in common with the recent William Fox specials, has been given very lavish and elaborate production.

The action of the first part of the story takes place in San Francisco. The main sequences, however, are laid in the South Sea Islands. In addition to the many dramatic scenes there are rare touches of the exotic and the lure of the semi-tropics. The love motiff is handled in a subtle manner and the ultimate conclusion of the story is different, it is said.

MINSTRELS COMING.

From start to finish, Harvey's Greater Minstrels are high class, and it is without doubt the best dressed minstrel organization on the road today, while the presence of the Octaroon Beauties in the first part assists materially in some of the most beautiful chorus singing ever heard any place. This attraction is packing the theatres everywhere and will doubtless turn hundreds of people away when it plays here on Saturday, January 31st.

More people visited Harvey Greater Minstrels last season than ever before. The fixed policy of Mr. McLaiw is to render a dollar's worth of amusement for a dollar.

The value of amusement is measured by the entertainment it gives. Millions of theatre patrons have learned Harvey in connection with Minstrelsy means quality and quantity. What is easily recognized as the Harvey spirit greets the audience at the first rise of the curtain; one is made to feel designs, enterprise, optimism.

Harvey has made Minstrel history just as Edison made history in the realm of intercommunication, just as Curtis made history in the realm of aviation, so has R. M. Harvey made history in the realm of minstrelsy.

There is always satisfaction and pleasure when you go to see the Harvey Greater Minstrels, the confidence that goes with knowing the years of experience in providing amusements is a positive guarantee of satisfaction behind the performance.

This company comes to the Grand Opera House, January 31st.

GRIPPING MYSTERY IN COMPSON FILM.

"Ramshackle House" Full of Surprising Punches and Amazing Twists.

'Tis said that the dyed-in-the-wool movie fan, who prides himself upon always being at least two reels ahead of the projection machine when a feature picture is being shown and can forecast every twist punch and angle of the story is in for a big surprise when he views Betty Compson's latest starring vehicle, "Ramshackle House," which comes to the Royal Theatre to-day.

"Never a dull moment" is the motto of the producers of "Ramshackle House," and the vivid picturization of Hulbert Footner's popular novel more than makes good the boast. It is a murder mystery, but not of the conventional type which deicts the crime in the first reel and leads the audience through a maze of confusing details until the guilt is finally fastened upon someone quite above suspicion. This is a powerful human interest picture with a mystery background; the story of a young girl who finds that the man she loves is being hunted down for the foul murder of his business partner, hides him in the forest to save him from being lynched by an overrighteous mob and then, with her back to the wall, fights single-handed the overwhelming forces of Law, Money, Public Opinion and one of the greatest villains ever portrayed on the screen.

Beautiful Betty Compson is the star of this spine-tingling tale, and gives one of the best performances of her career. John Davidson, famed for his "heavy" roles, plays the sinister malefactor; Robert Lowing is the male lead and the excellent supporting cast includes Henry James, William Black, Duke Pelzer and Josephine Norman.

Harmon Weight, Director of Geo. Arliss in his greatest screen successes directed the production.

TELEPHONE GIRL IS CHAMPION OF MATRIMONY GAME

Survey Conducted in Interests of Film "Daughters of the Night" Proves Theory.

BEST WIVES OBTAINABLE

All Learn to Have "Voice With A Smile" and They Never Talk Back.

It is not generally known, except in the innermost circles of the telephone profession, that telephone girls make the most desirable wives.

This was the closely guarded secret discovered in making a personal survey of more than 2,000 New York telephone girls in connection with "Daughters of the Night," the high speed picture dramatization of the great little American telephone girl coming to the Regent Theatre today.

Telephone girls marry quicker than is the case of young girls entering any other occupation. But mathematically, of a group of say 1,000 girls each who become telephone operators, stenographers, office assistants and sales girls, the hello girls will easily win the marriage championship for speed and numbers. At least, this holds good in cities.

There's a reason for this! Applicants for jobs as operators in the nation wide telephone service undergo a most careful process of selection. They are scrutinized, examined and tested for qualities, the possession of which is bound to make them preferred favorites in the matrimonial race.

Neatness, of course, and all allied virtues, are prime requisites; but further, quickness, alertness, intelligence and accuracy is one group of qualities sought by testing telephone officials. And then, an even, equable temperament, self-control, self-discipline; initiative and abilty to cope wth unexpected and devotion to duty. And then, a long reach of arms; a pleasant voice "with a smile," and a tongue that can be trained not to talk back.

Successful applicants, mostly girls from 17 to 1, and then given three or four weeks of specialized training in the vocational school, where these good qualities they possess are intensively cultivated. Result: at least sixty per cent. get married within two years, according to the New York survey. Logical, too, because it would seem that a young girl who can operate a switchboard during rush hours could run a husband and a home to successful advantage. Also, the telephone girl naturally gets a man's number quickly. While, from the masculine viewpoint, a girl with a guaranteed pleasant disposition, a voice with a smile and who won't talk back is a rare and desirable commodity in the marriage market. The new Williaim Fox production, "Daughters of the Night;" will be an eye opener to hard-boiled bachelors as well as giving pointers to the unmarried sisters in other occupations.

Best of all, it's a gripping, true to life telephone melodrama based on facts and happening which will appeal to every user of the telephone.

HOCKEY RETURNS ANNOUNCED

SOO TEAM ARE ROTARY GUESTS WELL RECEIVED

Famous Greyhounds Are Officially Welcomed by Mayor Turner.

TO-DAY'S LUNCHEON.

Boy Premier of Ontario Gave Splendid Address to Rotary.

The members of the Sault Ste. Marie hockey team, Canada's amateur champions, who play the Petes here to-night, were the guests of the Peterborough Rotary Club at the weekly luncheon at the Empress today, and Mayor Turner, on behalf of the citizens, extended a hearty welcome to the famous visitors.

The Greyhounds were introduced by Rotarian R. M. Glover, past president of the O.H.A., who referred to them as leading exponents of Canada's fastest game. The Soo players had won for themselves, he said, not only as hockeyists, but also as sportsmen and gentlemendgeaind players had won for themselves, he said, not only as hockeyists, but also as sportsmen and gentlemen, and those who saw them play tonight would be sure of a treat.

Mayor Turner congratulated the visitors on their great record and upon the honours they had brought their home city, and expressed the pleasure of Peterborough at having an opportunity of welcoming the Allen Cup holders. He hoped their stay in Peterborough would be pleasant, and that they would have an opportunity of visiting some of the city's industries, the doors of which were open to them.

Manager Gemmell, in expressing the thanks of his players, referred to the hospitality whcih they had received during the present trip, and pointed out some of the difficulties that confronted the Greyhounds in the way of long trips during the season. He promised a clean game for the fans to-night, pointing out that the Soo has had but three penalties in eight games.

The Boy Premier.

Gordon Lapp, of Brighton, Premier of Ontario's Older Boys' Parliament, was the speaker to-day, and was neatly introduced by Mayor Turner.

The young speaker made a deep impression upon Rotarians by reason of his clear-cut, eloquent, and logical exposition of the aims of the Boys 'Parliament, and the development of the Canadian Standard Efficiency Training upon which the Parliament is based.

Mr. Lapp has a splendid flow of language, and he marshalled his facts in a manner that would have reflected credit upon a much more experienced public speaker.

Explaining the nature of the Boys' Parliament, which he said was the result of the desire of youth to have something to say about its own problems, he pointed out that the organisation had grown from 32 members to 96 in its fourth session. He briefly reviewed the legislation passed at the last session, covering the five bills enacted. It might seem a light programme, he said, but then, the members of the Boys' Parliament preferred quality to quantity.

One of the bills was the Budget, by which the members pledged themselves to raise $8,500 to carry on the work of the organisation.

Premier Lapp explained why this money was needed, for the support of 14 camps during the summer, the carrying on of a leaders 'training ramp, the financing of district conferences, and other similar work. It was the aim of the Boys to carry the C.S.E.T. programme to every 'teen age boy in the Province, as a four-square programme of training —mental, physical, religious, and social—that would turn out better citizens, and he urged Rotarians to movement when the campaign for funds is inaugurated.

The adress was heartily applaud-

The address was heartily applaudd.

Among the guests to-day were Orville Martin, Peterborough's member in the Boys' Parliament, and Alan Neale, who was a candidate in the last election. Others present were Dr. E. H. Wood and Eddie Wright, representing the Peterborough Hockey Club.

President J. W. McDermid was in the chair, and the attendance was unusually large.

FILLING STATIONS BOOST GAS PRICE

Increase of Two Cents Not Yet General in Peterboro.

In line with an advance in prices of gasoline in Toronto and some of the larger cities, several local dealers have boosted the price of their supplies. In Toronto, the price rose from 24 cents to 26 cents for the general line. In Peterboro, a similar two-cent increase has taken place, but it is not as general; several of the dealers are still selling on the old basis. While one garage man is charging 29 cents a gallon for White Rose, formerly 27 cents, and 32 cents for Shell gas, another sticks to the former price for the lattetr, 30 cents a gallon. British-American Peerless can be purchased at 29 cents a gallon, and Premier has also gone up two cents, selling today for 27 cents a gallon.

Musicale Was Attractive.

Exceptionally Large Attendance at Conservatory of Music.

There was an exceptionally large attendance at the studio in the Conservatory of Music on Saturday afternoon, for the Musicale held under the auspices of the Women's Art Association. The programme was in the hands of Miss Edwina Palmer, violiniste, Miss Mathilde Masson, soprano, and Miss Agnes Logan, pianist, each giving two groups of selections, which were encored in every instance. The three talented musicians gave a very attractive programme of instrumental and vocal music.

Miss Edwina Palmer, violiniste, played Mozart's Sonata in G, Schumann's "Romance" and Kreisler's "Polinchinelle" Serenade. Miss Agnes Logan's painoforte numbers were the Ballet Music from Saint-Saens' opera, "Alceste," and Liszt's Pastorale, "By the Lake." Miss Mathilde Masson, soprano, sang in French Massenet's "Open Thy Blue Eyes," Liza Lehmann's "There are Fairies at the Bottom of my Garden," Chaminade's "Carnival Song," sung in French, and "The Answer."

Miss Agnes Logan played accompaniments for the violin and vocal selections.

At the conclusion of the programme, afternoon tea was served from a table prettily arranged with a large silver basket of daffodils.

Mrs. C. C. Cragg and Mrs. F. D. Kerr were tea hostesses.

POISONED BULLETS IN GANGLAND'S WAR

Gunmen Bungle Job of Shooting Overlord of Underworld.

CHICAO, Jan. 26 (Canadian Press) —Poisoned bullets may complete the job of removing John Torrio, bungled by three gunmen who failed to put any of the five bullets in a vital spot when they mad chim the latest victim of Chicago gangland's war on Saturday.

A high temperature, racing pulse, and gradual weakening of his vital force lent to surgeons corroboration of Torrio's own idea that his assailants have resorted to poison to make certain that he was slain.

Facing death, Torrio refused to name the men who shot him as he left his automobile with his wife in front of their home. He admitted to know them, but merely shook his head when the police pressed for their names. Of 115 men arrested after Torrio was shot, none was named as wanted.

That Torrio was shot in a gangland strife growing from his participation in underworld overlordship, liquor running, or in revenge fo the recent murder of Dean O'Banion, gunman, rum runner, florist, was the police theory.

Two score policemen and a group of Torrio's friends are guarding the hospital to keep his enemies from returning to the attack. The police believe the shooting of Torrio presages one of Chicago's worst outbreaks of gang warfare.

THE FURY OF THE GALE.

The above photo graphically portrays the fury of the gales that sweep the British coast in winter. It shows an enormous wave breaking over the Longships Lighthouse off the Cornish coast at Penzance. The size of the wavecan be estimated from the fact that the lighthouse stands 117 feet high on the highest rock of the cluster at Land's End.

Grain and Latest Comment on Industrial Markets. — Closing Quotations on Principal Active Stocks.

MONTREAL VIEWS.

While the market was dominated by exceedingly heavy trading in Smelters, increased public interests were noticeable in a number of other issues. A large selling order which has been holding down Brazilian was cleaned up this morning, and in consequence we would not be surprised to see this stock do better. There was good buying in Breweries which looks as if it will go higher.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

Some grain opinions are that corn is running into a most bearish statistical position. There is no difficulty as yet in securing offers of wheat and flour. Only once in 35 years has the visible supply of corn been so large. Coarse grains need a better cash demand. We would wait for breaks to buy wheat. It will take a decided improvement in the shipping demand to maintain advances in corn.

THE HEATHER

The land o' the cakes is the land o' the heather,
(The heather it grows on the broo o' the hill)
The land o' oor bairnhood, an' dear tae us still,
Wee flow'r o' the heather, o' purple sae bonnie,
In heilands o' lowlands, on hilltops, in glens,
Ye bloom aye sae fresh, o' flow'r there's nae ony,
Can wi' ye compare, where Sun lichts the Bens.

Just a wee sprig o' heather,
Just a wee sprig nae mair,
It links us a' together
An' drives awa dull care;
It brings back auld memories
O' things that we haud dear,
"Then here's a haun my trusty freen,"
Hooch aye we're a' richt here.

Ofttimes tae us here comes the ca' o' the heather,
It comes tae us flittin' frae far 'cross the sea,
It grips at oor he'rts does the ca' o' the heather,
An' brings back sweet thochts dear tae oor memory,
Where'er, in what climes the Scots may forgaither,
Tae them comes the view o' a wee but an' ben,
An' oh how they long for a wee sprig o' heather,
An' sigh for a sicht o' the auld hills again.

Just a wee sprig o' heather,
Jist a wee sprig nae mair,
it links us a' together
An' drives awa dull care;
It brings back auld memories,
O' things that we haud dear,
"Then here's tae you an' yours an' mine,"
Hooch aye we're a' richt here.

DOG CAUSED MURDER.

Neighbors Quarrelled— One Was Shot in Ensuing Fight.

ELIOT, Maine, Jan. 26.—(Canadian Press.)— As a result of a quarrel over a vicious dog, Howard Spinney, of this town, is dead, and Harlan C. Leibman, a neighbor, is held, charged with murder.

Spinney died last night in Portsmouth, N.H., hospital, shortly after Leibman shot him, while the two men were fighting in a roadway in front of Spinney's home.

A local real estate man tells this one. He was taking dinner iwth a doctor's family one evening when the phone rang. The doctor answered. Turiing to his wife, he called in alarm: "Quick, get me my satchel. A man in a dying voice says he cannot live without me."

"Wait," said the wife, who picked up the receiver. "That call is for Edith."

INQUIRY HALTS PENDING ACTION BY MILLING CO.

Judge Huycke Grants Adjournment Until February 2.

GALAXY OF COUNSEL.

Utilities Had Nothing to do With Application of Campbell Mills.

The investigation in the action in which Judge Huycke was required by the City Council to enquire into the failure of the Public Utilities Commission to charge the Campbell Mining Company for electricity used in its Peterboro mill, from March, 1919, to December, 1921, which was set for commencement this morning, was adjourned by His Honour, Judge Huycke, in the Judge's Chambers, until February 5th, on condition that the Campbell Milling Co. move by the 2nd of February, in the matter of the injunction asking that Judge Huycke and the City of Peterboro be restrained from proceeding in this investigation.

In the Judge's Chambers this morning there were present S. R. Armstrong, City Clerk E. H. D. Hall, city representative of the Toronto solicitor, Christopher Robinson, who is looking after the interests of the Utilities Commission in this case, Joseph Wearing, City Solicitor, and W. F. Huycke, who has been retained by the Peterboro Cereal Company, and J. W. Meyers. The Toronto firm of Millar, Ferguson and Hunter, solicitors for the Campbell Milling Company, are represented in Peterboro by F. D. Kerr, K.C., who was not present, Mr. Wearing explaining that his absence was due to the fact that his clients deny the jurisdiction of Judge Huycke in this matter.

Mr. Wearing asked for an adjournment of the investiagtion until February 10th.

Mr. Hall, for the Utilities Commission, said he wished to make it clear that the Commission had nothing whatever to do with the application of the Campbell Milling Co. in applying for such an injunction, and thougat that if a adjournment were ordered it should be on condition the Campbell Company move at once in the matter of the injunction, in order that further delay of the case might be obviated. Mr. Hall thought the 2nd of Feb., should be the latest date for an adjournment.

His Honour remarked that the delay appeared to be caused by the Campbell Milling Company, as they had notice a month ago of this morning's commencement of the investigation, and only served the writ on Friday giving notice of the motion for an injunction.

Seek Injunction.

The plaintiffs in the action at Osgoode Hall, which seeks an injunction restraining Judge Huycke and the City of Peterboro from proceeding in the investigation directed by the City Council, are the Campbell Milling company.

The plaintiff claims:

1. A declaration that a resolution passed on the 9th day of December, 1924, by the City Council of the defendant corporation requesting His Honour E. C. S. Huycke, Judge of the County Court of the County of Peterboro, to inquire into and report under Section 248 of the Municipal Act upon the failure of the Peterboro Utilities Commission to charge the plaintiff for electric power used in its mill in the City of Peterboro from the month of March, 1919, to the month of December,, 1921, is beyond the jurisdiction and authority of the said council to pass.

2. A declaration that the investigation directed by the said resolution does not fall within Section 248 of the Municipal Act.

3. In the alternative, a declaration that the defendant corporation is precluded from making the investigation provided for in said resolution by the findings of the Public Utilities Commission, who have each made the investigation at the request of the defendant corporation and have made findings in the plaintiff's favor.

4—A declaration that the said resolution was not passed in the public interest, but at the instigation of J. W. Meyers, a member of the said Council, engaged in a competitive business with the plaintff, to enable the said J. W. Meyers in bad faith to obtain possession of facts concerning the private business affairs of the plaintiff.

5—A declaration that the subpoena Duces Tecum issued from the office of the Clerk of the County Court of Peterborough directed to Daniel Holland, manager of the plaintiff company's mill at Peterborough, and to Douglas A. Campbell, manager of the plaintiff company and of Maple Leaf Milling Company, Limited, are beyond the jurisdiction of the said clerk to issue and are improper and should be set aside.

The plaintiff also claims an injunction restraining the defendants and the solicitors and agents of the defendant corporation from proceeding under the said resolution and such further and other relief as the plaintiff may be entitled to.

New Plan Sunday School.

The Murray Street Baptist Church Inagurates New System.

The new plan for the Murray Street Baptist Church Sunday School appealed strongly to all who witnessed its workings yesterday. The church calendar gave in detail the order of the services.

The following are the names of those working with the pastor for Sunday School efficiency:

TWEED POLLED EVERY VOTE IN WARM ELECTION

Property Owners Who Were Former Residents Drove Miles to Cast Votes.

S. B. ROLLINS

"Lame Duck" Members of First 1925 Council Fared Badly at the Polls.

TWEED, Jan. 27. — This village polled 100 per cent. of its qualified electors yesterday in the special election that accentuated the defeat of all but one of the members who were elected by acclamation to the 1925 Council, and who afterwards resigned to avoid involving the village in a law suit over charges that three of the councillors were in arrears of taxes and that their election was therefore invalid.

F. B. Foster, who a few weeks ago gratefully acknowledged his election by acclamation to the Reeveship, was defeated by S. B. Rollins yesterday by a majority of 176, the vote being 380 to 204.

The results for the Councillorship positions were: M. McAvoy 389, S. G. Way 342, J. F. Houston 313, E. R. Huycke 272, elected; and R. F. Patterson 237 and C. S. Fawcett 239, defeated.

It was generally understood late last night that every available vote had been registered, and that Tweed had not only established a new record in its own election history, but had accomplished an achievement in public duty that few municipalities in Canada had ever duplicated.

Personal Sacrifice.

Owners of property in Tweed came long distances to cast their ballots, and many incidents of personal sacrifice were reported during the day. The weather opposed the electors with a raw east wind and snow, which at times reached the velocity of a blizzard. But in spite of the cold and the heavy roads, men and women came from Belleville, East Hungerford, Ivanhoe and many other towns and townships in this district.

Four women drove nine miles over drifted roads after a railway journey, as an example of the flaming and widespread interest which animated Tweed property owners. One woman left bed after recent confinement and risked her health to mark her ballot. Sacrifices such as these explain the rare occurrence of a complete register of the available votes.

Sharp Division.

The municipal issues which had divided the local community had in their discussions since the resignation of the first 1925 "lame duck" council and the subsequent new nominations had created the liveliest interest ever shown in municipal affairs here, and the result of the polling is claimed by the successful group as conclusive evidence of public approval of their criticisms of the old council.

The band last night serenaded the successful candidates, and the paraders reclaimed from the jail the effigy of a man which had stood at C. H. Kerr's store on Sunday until the constable removed it. Last night it was burned during the celebration, which was an orderly and good humored conclusion to a memorable month in Tweed.

SAILORS DROWNED.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 27.—Three sailors and one United States marine of a liberty party of one hundred from the United States gunboat Tulsa, were drowned in Lake Managua Saturday, when a heavily-loaded lighter on which the men were being conveyed to a larger vessel capsized.

The bodies of the drowned men were not recovered and it is thought they may have been devoured by alligators.

BANDIT CAPTURED

Gerald Chapman, notoroius robber, bandit and fugitive from Atlanta federal prison, was captured at Muncie, Ind., after a pistol duel with officers. He is wanted primarily for a $2,000,000 mail robbery in New York, for which he was serving a 25-year sentence when he escaped from prison. He had $5000 in cash and $3000 in government bonds on his person when captured.

COOLIDGE TO REDUCE TAXES

President Dedicates His New Administration to Policy of Economy.

FEWER EMPLOYEES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The four years of administration on which Coolidge enters March 4, were dedicated by the executive last night to a reduction of the tax burden, a decrease in Federal expenditures and "continuing pressure for economy" within the government.

Speaking before the regular semi-annual meeting of executive and administrative officials of the government, Mr. Coolidge declared that if congress sustained the current budget recommendations for expenditures he would be able next fall to propose a further cut in taxes. The president expects a surplus of $373,000,000 in the fiscal year 1926, and on that basis, he asserted, further tax relief should be granted. He warned, however, that any new and unnecessary expenditures would upset the plans of the treasury now geemingly assured of success.

The president also told the officials that hereafter there must be a policy within the government of getting more work done with fewer workers. He said there could be no cut in the compensation of workers and that the only hope of reducing a payroll that last year aggregated $1,680,000,000 was to reduce the number on that payroll.

An increased cost of government through national expansion of the nation, the president regarded as obvious. He declared, however, that the increase in governmental cost must not advance "dollar for dollar" with the increasing revenues assumed to come from increased business, and emphasized that the increasing load on the government could not be used as the excuse for added expenditures except where absolutely necessary.

DISGRACE TO CHURCH.

Brockville Unionist Minister's Opinion of Struggle for Union.

BROCKVILLE, Jan. 27.—(Canadian Press).—"We are dividing over a great religious issue. For myself I have no doubt as to the righteousness of the cause of Union. I shall not review the bitter and humiliating struggle. Every true child of God must look back upon it with disgust. It has been a shame and a disgrace to this church."

In such words Rev. R. M. Hamilton, Unionist Minister of a congregation which voted against Union, took leave of the First Presbyterian Church Sunday before assuming the assistant pastorship of the Methodist Church to which he will be followed by the Unionist minority of the congation. He further expressed the opinion that anti-Unionists is a doomed cause. It has failed miserably before and it will wither up and perish again.

BARBER'S STOVE CAUSED $50,000 KIRKFIELD FIRE

Six Stores and Three Dwellings Destroyed in Sunday Night Blaze.

LITTLE INSURANCE

Two Garages Blown Up in Futile Effort to Check Fire —Library Gone.

LINDSAY, January 27. — Kirkfield village was visited by a disastrous fire on Sunday night at the hour of seven o'cock, the main business block being completely destroyed.

It included six business places and three dwellings.

The loss is estimated at $50,000, and the insurance is said to be light.

Little or nothing was saved from the flames.

The buildings destroyed included the following:

General store of D. J. McEachern, brick, entire contents as well as the warehouse overhead. Insurance, $6,000.

Public Library, brick building, contents, including 300 new books.

Harness and barber shops of W. J. Wright, brick building, with contents. Insurance, $3,500.

Drug store, F. Faed, also ice-cream parlour and dwelling overhead, completely destroyed, partly insured.

General store, ice-cream parlour, confectionery, and office of Eldon Township Clerk, J. R. McKay, destroyed, as well as house attached, both frame; contents saved. Insurance, $6,000.

Overheated Pipe.

The fire is supposed to have been started from an overheated pipe in the barber shop of D. Fraser over the Public Library, and when the roof fell in, the flames spread with lightning-like rapidity and soon licked up other business places.

The churches were soon emptied of their congregations, and everybody joined in fighting the fire.

The crowd was swelled by scores from surrounding villages, who were attracted by the flames which lit up the country for miles around.

So great was the heat that the immense pile of snow on either side of the main street melted in short order. The gutters were filled to overflowing with water, the fire fighters dipping it up with buckets in their atempts to stay the progress of the flames.

Gunpowder Used.

When it was seen that the store and dwelling of Mr. McKay was doomed, gunpowder was used to blow them up in the hope that the fire would be checked. The wreckage, however, was soon licked up.

In order to save the Sterling Bank a fine brick building, with steel roof, two garages were torn down.

Across the road is situated the Post Office. The windows in this building were cracked and melted by the heat, but the building was enveloped in wet blankets and saved.

For a time it was felt that the well-known Kirkfield Inn, built by the late Lady Mackenzie, would fall a prey to the flames. Fire-fighting equipment with which the inn is supplied was brought into use, while men were stationed on the roof to check any blaze in its incipiency.

Great Loss to Community.

The loss to the community will be heavy. Not only will business be demoralised, but the general trade of the little village has been hit hard.

The loss to the victims of the fire will be enormous.

It is understood that Mr. McKay will rebuild immediately.

The McEachern store was owned by the Mackenzie Estate.

THE WEATHER

This morning at seven o'clock the temperature was down to 16 degrees below zero. Later it went down to 19 below. A year ago to-day we had the coldest dip of last winter, namely 28 below zero. The preceding day it was 20 below, and on the 28th, it was 15 below. This winter, however, is a colder one than a year ago, as we are having almost double the number of zero days we had twelve months ago. Six weeks hence should see the grip of Jack Frost loosened.—W. CHRISTIAN BREAD FOR HEBREWS OF MONTREAL

Strike of Jewish Bakers Shuts Off Production.

MONTREAL, Jan. 27—(Canadian Press).—Owing to a strike of Jewish bakers, Jewish citizens of Montreal are eating Christian bread, for the Jewish loaf is temporarily extinct.

The trouble started two months ago, when Jewish bakers raised the price of their bread from ten to eleven cents, resulting in a serious decrease in trade. Customers refused to pay the extra cent, and the few who did in defiance of public opinion got into trouble—were mauled by sympathizers demanding the old price, and had their eleven-cent loaves kicked about the street. This brought matters to a head, and on Monday morning the bakers stopped baking.

TEXTILE TRADE WANTS BARS UP

Canadian Industry Suffering From Competition by British Mills.

WAGES LOWER

OTTAWA, Jan. 27. — (Canadian Press).—Representations on behalf of the Canadian shipbuilding industry were made Monday by Col. R. A. Towers, of Collingwood, who asked for amendments to the Customs law so as to increase the duty on repairs and equipment. Mr. Graham promised consideration of his request. Requests for improvements to the St. Mary's River, involving dredging operations so as to permit laden vessels to come into the wharves at Sault Ste. Marie, were voiced by the delegation from that city. This delegation also asked for improvements to the Canadian canals representing that the great bulk of the business was now being handled by the canals on the United States side. The water in the Canadian locks had dropped materially in the Canadian locks, it was stated.

"A good many of us are inclined to blame the decreased water on the Chicago drainage canal," remarked one of the Ministers, and Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, remarked that the lake levels were extremely low at present.

C. W. Bates, of Carleton Place, urged further protection to the Canadian textile industry, declaring that it would never develop under present conditions owing to competition chiefly from Great Britain, where wages were much lower than those in Canada.

Mr. Graham assured the delegation that requests would receive careful consideration and that they would be laid before the Prime Minister on his return.

CHECKED SUITS REIGNING AGAIN

Checks and Plaids in Bewildering Panorama at Monte Carlo.

A NEW MAUVE.

MONTE CARLO, Jan. 27.—Whether the cross-word puzzles are to blame or not, checks are back in favor for both men's and women's clothes after an absence of several years.

A stroll along the terrace at Monte Carlo, the Croisette at Cannes, or the Promenade des Anglais at Nice, shows a bewildering panorama of checks and plaids in every size, shape and hue, from a violent scarlet-and-green plaid, worn by Lady Gladys Warminster, to the faintly purple checks decorating the sensational tuxedo in which the fastidious young Count de Massena burst upon the startled gaze of Casino habitues Friday night.

The cross-word puzzles themselves, however, have completely failed to touch the Riviera. Their only likeness is seen on the roulette tables, which are surrounded by the greatest crowd of fevered gamblers Monte Carlo has known.

One of the most noteworthy fashion indications was seen at the races at Nice where "Primrose," famous Riviera beauty, appeared wearing an amber necklace sewed into the cloth of the gown around her neck, while on the right shoulder she wore suspended a diamond pendant.

A furore has been caused by the latest color, a new and beautiful shade of mauve.

LOANS TO CHIEF BEST EVIDENCE OF HIS HONESTY

Montreal's Chief Constable Remained Poor When He Could Have Been Rich.

RECORD OF ARRESTS

Belanger Will Resign Only If Cleared of Accusations Against Him.

MONTREAL, January 27. — Alban Germain, K. C., counsel for Chief of Police Pierre Belanger in the enquiry into the Montreal police affairs, announced to the presiding commissioner, Mr. Justice Coderre on Monday afternoon, that the chief will resign his position once he is cleared of the accusations laid against him, but that he will remain at his post despite the ambitions of those who conspire to remove him.

Mr. Germain's argument was concerned with his client's defence against the charges implied in testimony regarding slackness in the execution of his duty, particularly with reference to an alleged friendship between Chief Belanger and Tony Frank, the Bank of Hochelaga bandit, who was hanged for murder here last October. There was "not a page, not a line, not a word of proof in the record," Mr. Germain contended.

The Chief's Record.

With regard to the allegation that the chief allowed disorderly houses to flourish, Mr. Germain cited figures to show that during Mr. Belanger's term of office raids on such resorts had been carried out with great frequency; that 16,750 persons had been arrested in such rendezvous; 424 had been arrested as gambling house keepers, and 4097 persons had been seized as inmates; 620 houses had been searched for drugs; 39,847 people had been searched for narcotics; 1189 had been charged with the illegal sale of liquor, while opium dens and blind pigs had also brought out a corresponding number of arrests. This did not reveal negligence on the part of the chief.

The loans advanced to Chief Belanger were honorable and honest, said Mr. Germain, and reflected credit on the chief that he had remained poor when he could undoubtedly have been able to enrich himself from the proceeds of vice and banditry.

Plea for Chief.

Mr. Germain concluded his plea as follows:

"In the name of the Chief of Police, I say that, no more to-day than yesterday do we quail at our post. We were forced to take it after 31 years of service. We, like others, look forward to the opportunity of taking a well earned rest, and of giving place to younger ones, but, thank God, despite our 60 years, we have still sufficient heart and courage and energy to prevent our quitting under the weight of accusation. To resign before cleared of all the charges would be to enter a plea of "guilty." We will not do that.

"The day of brightness will return, when once more we can pass along the street without being insulted by every scoundrel we meet; when other scoundrels will cease to telephone our house, launch injuries at our family and cause tears.

"We will remain at our post despite the ambitions of certain ones inside and outside, who conspire to remove you. When our reputation for honesty has been vindicated, we will have no other ambition than to enter a life of peace and tranquility, after a life of service given to the public. Let us wish our successor the same courage in the face of the attacks that await him."

OPERATED ON AT 106.

Joseph Dafoe Recovering in Kingston Hospital.

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 27. — (Canadian Press).—Joseph Dafoe, a native of Kaladar Station district, who has been an inmate of the House of Providence for the past three years, and who claims his age to be 106 years, was operated on last week at the Hotel Dieu by Dr. William Gibson for a severe strangulated hernia. Yesterday he was reported to be doing nicely after the operation. Mr. Dafoe spent his lifetime as a river driver on the Mississippi and Madawaska and the Ottawa Rivers, and working at lumbering generally. He can and does tell many interesting stories of the early days of that business.

END OF THE "JAZZ" TRAIL

Dorothy Ellingson, 16, of San Francisco, found the front parlor was not exciting enough for her, so she started on the "jazz" trail to find a good time. Her mother objected, so Dorothy shot and killed her. Now she is staying in at night—behind cell bars, awaiting trial on a charge of murder.

VATICAN ENVOY FOR PROVINCES WON BY FRANCE

Herriot Agrees to Maintain Old Agreement Applying to Alsace-Lorrain.

DEPUTIES PLEASED

Chamber Likely to Cancel Credits for Diplomatic Mission to Rome.

PARIS, January 27. — Premier Herriott scored heavily in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday against the advocates of continuance of diplomatic relations with the Holy See by recognizing a ruling of the council of state that Alsace-Lorraine was still under the regime of the Napoleonic concordat between Paris and Rome, and by accepting the eventuality of appointing a representative of the recovered provinces to the Vatican should circumstances demand.

The premier's good grace and diplomacy in accepting the ruling of the state council took the opposition by surprise, removing as it did, one of their strongest arguments against the suppression of the French embassy to the Vatican, namely, the status of Alsace-Lorraine.

"The regime of the Concordat will continue to be applied to Alsace-Lorrain until Parliament has definitely decided otherwise," M. Herriot said. "The modus vivendi was easily found and we will apply it loyally and sincerely. Our attitude is based on the principle that the general regime of France cannot be applied brusquely to Alsace Lorraine while on the other hand, we cannot apply to entire France the religious status now in force in the recovered provinces."

It is now regarded as certain that the chamber will vote for suppression of the credits for the diplomatic mission to the Vatican by the regular governmental majority.

The deputies from Alsace Lorraine were much pleased over Premier Herriot's announcement of the ruling of the council of state with regard to the Napoleonic concordat and some of them expressed themselves as grateful to the premier for making the council's decision known as soon as it was taken.

While these deputies are in favor of continuing the French embassy at the Vatican they declared that they would be satisfied with the appointment of a Charge D'Affaires delegate for the recovered provinces provided he be a permanent representative so as to establish a constant relation ship between France and the Holy See, and not an envoy sent to Rome only occasionally to treat with certain problems.

DRUG PROBLEMS TO BE STUDIES BY COMMISSION

Further Progress by International Opium Conference in Sessions at Geneva.

PROTECT MASSES.

Measures Proposed to Prevent Addiction Through Use of Patent Medicines.

GENEVA, Jan. 27.—The the organization of a joint commission for the study of the controversial question of the suppression of opium smoking in the Far East and with subsequent conferences both official and private, between delegates on narcotic drug problems further hopeful progress was made yesterday by the International Opium Conference.

Dr. Rupert Blue, of the United States delegation is devoting his time from the standpoint of a physician to protecting the masses of all countries for innocently acquired drug addiction in the consumption of so-called patent medicines which contain a considerable portion of opium or its derivatives. Dr. Blue has been striving with success to reduce the proportion of narcotics in preparations which can be procured at a pharmacy without a doctor's prescription.

The United States delegates also hope to get further concessions on the problem of heroin, and will probably try to do something on the limitation of the growth of the coca leaf in the Dutch East Indies and some places in South America, so that cocaine, which is extracted from this leaf may be combatted with more chance of success.

The delegates of the numerous smaller states represented at the conference are rejoicing that a way has been found to examine into opium smoking, and that the conference has been saved from collapse. Yesterday's controversy between the British and United States delegates brought out how strongly the smaller countries are attached to the league of nations as an organization affording them a kind of paternal protection. Because they feared a rupture of the conference would hurt the league's future, their spokesmen seemed particularly appreciative today over the conciliatory attitude of the United States delegation.

Representative Stephen G. Porter, Lord Cecil and the other leaders will endeavor to find a satisfactory solution without again raising the dangerous question of the competency of the second conference.

Switzerland informed the conference that she has ratified The Hague opium convention of 1912. The object of the present conference is to strengthen the provisions of The Hague convention.

FOUR PLUMBERS ASPHYXIATED IN CELLAR CAISSON

Three of Them Sacrificed Their Lives in Vain Effort to Resuce First.

CAUSE OBSCURE

Hazzard and Heroism of Labor Demonstrated in Columbus Tragedy.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, January 27 (Canadian Press). — A small gas-filled shaft, 47 feet deep, within a caisson of the new American Insurance Union Building here, claimed the lives of four men yesterday, three of the victims dying heroically.

A fifth man, who went down to the rescue of his friends in the shaft, came through unscathed, and a few hours later a movement was started to fitting reward him for his heroism.

The dead:

C. R. Bowen, 22, Greenwood, Ind.
Jack Smith, New York City.
John McCarthy, 48, New York City.
John Peterson, 22, Columbus, O.

All the men were steamfitters, employed by the John Gill Construction Company of Cleveland.

The cause of the accident is not clear. It is believed Bowen was in the shaft fitting, when he was overcome, and fell to the bottom.

Fellow workmen noticed that activity had ceased within the shaft.

Then one of the victims climbed down to see what had happened.

Neither appeared within a short time, and another went down to investigate.

Then McCarthy, the last of the victims, volunteered, and he disappeared through the shaft, some 18 or 20 feet above street level.

Danger Sensed.

All was quiet within the tube, and workmen gathered about fearful that something was wrong. Ambulances and physicians were summoned.

Suddenly a huge crane swung high into the air from another part of the excavation. Dangling from its steel bar was a man. It swung around, and deposited William F. (Big Bill) Martin,a structural steel worker, on top of the caisson.

Fellow-workmen remonstrated.

Three had gone down and had not come back, and he must not go, they declared.

"Big Bill' 'snapped his fingers, put his foot in the rope stirrup, and signalled the crane engineer. Some one handed him a gas mask. The crane wench screamed and he was dropped into the shaft.

Bodies Raised.

Minutes seemed like hours to the watchers. The cable jerked. The crane moved upward and out of the mouth of the shaft came the limp form of a man, a rope around his waist.

Three more times the cable was lowered, and each time it brought to the surface a limp form.

A fifth time it was dropped into the shaft.

The cable jerked again, and out of the shaft came "Big Bill," his foot in the stirrup.

He clung to the cable desperately. His face was white. The gas mask was gone.

He had done what he set out to do. The spectators cheered.

PREDICTS FALL OF THE DOLLAR

Pound Sterling Will Soon be at Good Value Again.

GOLD STANDARD.

LONDON, Jauary 27. — The decline of the dollar and the rise of the pound was discussed to-day by Reginald McKenna, the former Chancellor of the Exchequer, in an address delivered at a general meeting of the Midland Bank, of which he is chairman.

Sterling probably will soon stand at gold value, he said, not because it will have climbed up the hill to meet the dollar, but because the dollar, under the pressure of a surplus gold supply, will have come down to the pound's level.

During the last three years the managed currency of Great Britain had been kept more stable than one based on gold, Mr. McKenna added, but declared that when that had been said, the case for managed currency must be regarded as closed.

He emphasized the importance on psychological grounds for advocating the gold standard, which, he argued, were not less powerful than the economic arguments.

"As long as nine out of ten people in every country think that the gold standard is the best, it is the best," said the former Chancellor.

PIANIST MISSING; POLICE CALLED OUT

World Famous Ethel Leginska Disappeared Just Before Concert.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.— (Canadian Press.)—Ethel Leginska, world famous English pianist, conductor and composer, disappeared last night a few minutes before she was due at Carnegie Hall to give a concert. Her secretary, Miss Oliver, went to call a taxi, and when she re-entered the room, Miss Leginska was nowhere to be seen and after consultation with friends the police were asked to send out a general alarm. The pianist was in evening dress and did not take her purse with her. The secretary offers the suggestion that the pianist, impatient at waiting for the taxi, wandered away in a fit of absent-mindedness. Miss Leginska is well known to Canadian music lovers in the larger cities, where she has appeared.

ENGINEERS STRIKE AT KING'S PALACE

LONDON, Jan. 27. — (United Press.)—More than 1,000 employees of the engineering section of the office of public works struck to-day because of the employment of a non-union worker. The men who walked out include employees of both Houses of Parliament, Buckingham Palace, Hampton Court and Kew Gardens.

Hastily summoned volunteers maintained partial illumination and the lights burned in the King's Palace as usual during the morning. The Government claimed the strike was not effective.

ALLIES WILL EVACUATE GERMAN TERRITORY WHEN CONDITIONS OF PEACE TREATY ARE FULFILLED

Interim Regarded by Berlin as Unpleasant—Fuller Details Will be Submitted.

TREATY BROKEN

Certain Obligations Not Observed by Germany—Luther Sends Protest Today.

BERLIN, Jan. 27. — (Canadian Press).—A reply to the interim note of the Allied Powers on the issue growing out of the non-evacuation of the Cologne zone was drafted at a special session of Chancellor Luther's Cabinet last evening. It was handed to the entente envoys at noon to-day.

The joint note of Great Britain, France, Japan, Belgium and Italy was presented to Dr. Luther Monday morning. It was in reply to the German note of January 6, protesting against non-evacuation. It is the intention of the Powers to submit another note with details to the German Government at an early date. The interim note merely reiterates that it is not the intention of the Allied Governments at present to discuss with the German Government the subject of the Cologne zone. The text of this note was released for publication by the Foreign Office late last night without comment, the original plan to make it public with a formal statement having been abandoned.

An Unpleasant Note.

Yesterday's Allied note was apparently received with pronounced disfavor at Governments headquarters, which declined to discuss it beyond observing that "it was anything but pleasant."

The Ambassadors' note states that the Allied Powers have taken cognizance of Foreign Minister Stresemann's communication of Jan. 6 on the subject of Cologne zone, but declares that "it is not the intention of the Allied Governments at the present juncture to enter into a discussion with the German Government on this subject nor to deal with allegations which they could in no way accept."

The note then repeats that it is the intention of the Allies in due course to address to the German Government a further communication setting forth what stil remains to be done by Germany in order for her obligations to be considered as having been faithfully carried out according to the terms of Article 429 of the Versailles Treaty.

Must Fulfill Terms.

The note then says:

"The Allied Governments intend to make this communication at the earliest possible date. They must, however, point out that the German Government appears to misunderstand the import of Articles 428 and 429 of the Treaty of Versailles. These articles fixed at fifteen years' duration the occupation of the Rhineland and contemplated a reduction of this period only in the event Germany was faithfully carrying out the treaty conditions. Certain of these conditions not having been faithfully observed, the Allied Governments can only abide by the terms of the treaty.

"It is for Germany, by fulfilling her obligations, to enable the Allied Governments to restrict occupation in the manner contemplated in Article 429, the provisions of which the governments for their part intend to scrupulously observe."

EMILY L.O.L. MEETING.

Boyne Celebration at Omemee This Year.

OMEMEE, Jan. 26.—The annual meeting of the Emily District Lodge was held in the Orange Hall on Tuesday afternoon, January 13th, with a fair representation from all the lodges present. The District Master, Arthur Jackson, occupied the chair. The following officers were elected:

W.M.—Arthur Jackson.
D.M.—Roy Howden.
Chaplain—Thomas Newman.
W. Sec.—John Beatty.
W. Treas—Bro. Harrison.
D. of C.—Lloyd Boates.
1st Lect.—Hubert Gardiner.
2nd Lect.—Ottie Bannan.

E. W. Rowland made a strong plea for the celebration of the Battle of the Boyne on the 12th of July, to be held in Omemee and it was decided by a unanimous vote to commence at once to make preparations.

At a later meeting, held on Wednesday evening last, further arrangements were made. Committees were appointed to look after the decorating of the village, programmes, etc.

Invitations are being forwarded this week to about forty lodges, district and primary, and it being now twenty years since Omemee held the celebration, that with a baseball tournament and other attractions, a gala day is expected.

DEEP SNOW DRIFTS BLOCK THE HIGHWAY

Impossible for Cars to Break Through—Extending Boat Livery.

BALLIEBORO, Jan. 27. — After Wednesday's and Thursday's snowing and blowing, the road gangs on the Provincial highway, as well as the path-masters and men residing on the side roads, had their full share of shovelling snow. Many of the snow banks along the road were five and six feet deep, and the snow in these banks was packed so hard that many of them would hold a team of horses and sleigh.

Many of the roads were broken through the fields alongside of the highways, while other path-masters dug the road out until it was possible to drive a team and sleigh through and break the road out.

It is scarcely likely that any cars will venture into the highway, as the snow is so deep that it would be impossible for them to get through the banks.

Mr. Ira Dawson has replaced his old radio which he installed two years ago, with a new radio, which is much improved over the former one.

Adds New Boats.

W. J. Hibbard, who has for the past two years been running a boat livery at Barnard's Landing, Rice Lake, has re-built his boat-house, and he now has much more room for his boats.

He is also having quite a number of splendid new skiffs made, and these he will have ready for hire about May 1st.

Last summer tourists claimed that the Rice Lake fishing grounds were the best that they had ever yet located anywhere in their travels, both for catching muskinonge and pickerel, and the people of this district have good reasons to be proud of this beautiful body of water.

Cattle Sold.

There are very few heavy cattle being fed for sale on the various farms this winter. The farmers claim that the price of rough grain is much too high, and that they are only loosing good money to feed grain at the present price to cattle when they are so cheap. The majority of farmers sold their cattle off grass during the fall months. Others have shipped their cattle to the stock yards in an unfinished condition, while cattle that are being held over are merely being kept in a thrifty condition until spring, when they will be finished off on grass.

Drovers state that there are not nearly so many hogs being fed this winter. At ten and a half cents per pound farmers cannot make a profit by feeding grain at the present high price. Many farmers have gone entirely out of the hog raising.

At the local elevators fall wheat is being bought in at $1.65 per bushel, barley at 90c per bushel, and buckwheat at 90c per bushel. Eggs are being bought in at the local stores at 40c per dozen, and dairy butter at 32c. Last week the drovers paid from 10c to 10½c per pound for hogs.

Personal Mention.

Among those from these parts who attended the funeral of the late Edwin Elsom, of Peterboro, on Saturday were: Mrs. Jas. Whittington, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Barnard, Hy. Barnard, Ross Moncrief, Percy and Harold Barnard, Hadrill Dawson.

Mrs. J. W. Dawson is a guest of her daughter, Miss Edith Dawson, of Toronto.

The students of the agricultural short course at Centreville had a splendid lecture on farm poultry by Mr. Snyder, of Guelph, on Friday. The lecturer also demonstrated the killing and plucking of several chickens. The demonstration and lecture was much enjoyed by all present.

Miss Charlotte Barnard, nurse-in-training at Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay, attended the funeral of the late Edwin Elsom, of Peterboro, on Saturday.

GUESTS OF ORANGEMEN.

Banquet at Omemee to Those Who Gave Entertainment.

OMEMEE, January 27. — On Wednesday evening, January 21st, the Orange Hall was the scene of a happy gathering when L. O. L. 113 banqueted the cast of characters and the chorus girls who so ably provided the entertainment on Christmas night.

The hall was prettily decorated for the event in orange and blue. A short and interesting programme was given preceding the banquet, with Worshipful Master J. White acting as chairman. When the wants of the inner man had been thoroughly satisfied with oysters, ham, salads and all the good things which go to make up a banquet, W. M. Bro. J. White proposed a toast to the guests of the evening, which was responded to in a neat form by Bro. Rev. E. W. Rowland, in which he expressed the thanks of the young people for this tangible form of appreciation given by the Orangemen. The guests then arose and sang heartily, "For they are Jolly Good Fellows."

Following the banquet, the company joined in singing many of the good old songs, in which manner a jolly evening was brought to a close.

"The Heiress Hunters."

Judging from the manner in which the above play was presented in the Auditorium, Tweed, on Tuesday evening, Thomasburg can boast of some splendid dramatic talent. The comedy is replete with ludicrous situations and the characters made the most of them. "The Heiress Hunters" were certainly a great trio, and their resourcefulness in getting around embarrassing situations kept the audience in roars of laughter. The characters were all good and if they ever go back again they should draw a much larger house.

OBITUARY.

MR. G. HOUSE.

OMEMEE, Jan. 26. — Mr. G. House, an aged resident of Minden, who has resided for a short time with his wife and daughter near Mount Pleasant, passed away on Thursday, following a brief illness. Deceased gentleman, although practically unknown in this locality, was a well known and much respected citizen of Minden, where the remain were conveyed for burial. Rev. E. W. Rowland conducted the funeral service at the house. Much sympathy is felt for the aged widow and daughter who are practically among strangers.

EDWARD ELSOM.

News of the death of Edward Elsom reached Omemee on Friday morning. The late Mr. Elsom passed away following a short illness at his home in Peterborough. While attending to the furnace in his home about a week ago, the deceased gentleman was stricken with a heart attack. Medical aid was quickly summoned, but little could be done, and death came peacefully on Thursday evening.

The late Mr. Elsom lived for many years, just south-east of Omemee and was a well known figure to young and old. In religion he was a Methodist and a staunch supporter of his church. A few years ago Mr. and Mrs. Elsom moved to Peterborough, where they lived a retired life. Mrs. Elsom passed away, a number of years ago. Later, Mr. Elsom again married a great friend of his first wife, who is now left to mourn his passing.

Following a funeral service at his home in Peterborough, the remains were brought to Omemee by C.N.R. via Millbrook and Bethany. Interment being made in the Emily cemetery, Rev. A. J. Langford, of Trinity Methodist church, Peterborough, conducted the services at the house and at the grave.

Left to mourn his loss are the sorrowing widow, one brother, Alfred of Bothwell, and two sisters, Mrs. Thomas Jackson of Peterborough, and Mrs. Robert Crawford, of Toroito.

WESLEY THOMPSON.

OMEMEE, Jan. 26.—The death of Wesley Thompson came as a great shock to the people of Omemee, where he spent his boyhood days. Mr. Thompson passed away at the height of his manhood, following a stroke, which occurred at his home in Toronto. He was removed to the Private Patients' Hospital, where he passed away on Monday, Jan. 19th. The funeral was held on Wednesday from the home of his brother, Robert, on Evelyn avenue. The death of Mr. Thompson is particularly sad, owing to the fact that his wife, formerly Christine Murray, of Lindsay, predeceased him just at Christmas time.

Wesley Thomson was the eldest son of the late Dr. and Mrs. J. N. Thompson and his death makes the fifth death in the family within eight years.

Left to mourn his untimely death are two daughters, Lillian and Dean, two sisters, Miss Annie of Nyack, New York, and Mrs. T. Cook, of the China Inland Mission, Kiating, Szechuan, West China, also two brothers, Messrs. William of Edmonton, Alberta, and Robert of Toronto, to whom is extended the sincere sympathy of many old friends.

HAD BAD SPELLS WITH HER HEART

Mrs. C. Martin, R.R. No. 2, Orillia, Ont., writes: "I have been troubled with my heart for a long time and very often had bad spells with it. I would take fainting spells, and my husband had to have somebody to stay with me all the time. He got me everything he could think of to see if they would do me any good, but nothing seemed to help me. One day a friend was in to see me and advised me to try

THE SAFETY LEAGUE.

An organization that is doing a most useful work in Ontario, in the face of indifference on the part of the public and but lukewarm assistance, is the Ontario Safety League, which is continually striving to impress upon people the necessity of being more careful.

There are far too many accidents that are the result of carelessness or callous neglect.

It is this type of accident that the Safety League is endeavouring to eliminate.

It appeals to the careless motorist, the careless workman, the housewife who leaves hazards around that threaten the safety of children—in fact, to people everywhere whether at work or play.

Safety bulletins have during the past year been distributed in 600 cities, towns and villages throughout the Province, and, in addition, signs dealing with the traffic hazard were displayed in prominent public places, such as railway stations, street cars, etc.

One million pieces of literature were sent out to school children, motorists, street car men, manufacturers and others relative to the prevention of fires and accidents, and asking their assistance to reduce these hazards.

This is work decidedly in the public interest, and the league, starting out on its twelfth year, should receive more encouragement in its efforts.

THE PATH TO ECONOMY.

The Montreal Star, after many efforts to find a means of developing national economy, has at last hit upon the real solution.

"Let the people display in their own domestic expenditures the spirit of frugality and thrift which has so long been forgotten, let them show the same patriotism in times of the present crisis that they did when the Hun was at the gate, and the politicians will be inferted with the fever of economy," says the Star.

That is getting down to the root of the matter.

After all, when people in their own homes are not practising thrift there is little logic in calling upon Governments to do so.

And there is no denying the fact that the high wages of the latter years of the war and the presence of so much ready money, of which nearly everybody had a share, caused a new standard of expenditure in Canada, and developed new and more costly tastes, which the Canadian people were reluctant to give up, and which are only being abandoned now because of pinched pocketbooks.

In the majority of cases frugality went out the window when good wages came in the door, and a condition was created that is responsible for a needless amount of distress and suffering today.

The way to national economy is through individual economy.

Once the people start saving on their own account the politicians will be quick to react to the new spirit abroad in the land.

THE BOYS' PARLIAMENT.

Gordon Lapp, Premier of Ontario's older Boys' Parliament, made a deep impression upon the members of the local Rotary Club, who heard him yesterday, and the prevailing opinion was that if the Brighton youth is representative of the general calibre of the boys who constitute the organization the movement is one well worthy of support, as indeed it appears to be.

In the first place, the C. S. E. T. programme is such a complete and practicable course for the all-round development of the Canadian youth that there should be no difficulty in selling it to anybody who is interested in boys' work.

Secondly, the need of interesting the boys of Canada in civics and politics is so apparent that any movement that promises success along that line should be able to claim support.

That the Boys' Parliament is doing and can do much to create interest on the part of the youth of the land in the government of their country cannot be denied.

The present generation is hopeless.

All efforts to awaken the people to a sense of their responsibility as citizens seem to have failed.

Municipal Councils are elected by a third of the voters; Legislatures are chosen by a scant half of those on the list.

Everywhere it is the same story—thousands of voters voluntary disenfranchise themselves at every election by remaining away from the polls.

The only hope lies in the boys who are coming on.

If they cannot be aroused through the teaching of civics in the schools and by means of such organizations as the Boys' Parliament, then the outlook is gloomy.

HEALTH NEEDS.

The Examiner referring to health matters the other night declared that municipalities and Governments usually spent too little on protecting the health of the people, rather than too much.

Dr. John W. S. McCullough, the Chief Officer of Health for the Province, is one official who evidently agrees with the Examiner, and he is advising the adoption of a programme that would cost much more than has hitherto been expended on such work, but that should meet the health needs of the Province.

Dr. McCullough argues that permanent health offices are wanted for each 20,000 of population in Ontario.

At present there are only eight such permanent organizations in 904 municipalities.

His scheme would mean a medical health officer, perhaps two inspectors and a number of trained nurses for each district of 20,000, and would provide an army of experts qualified to deal with any situation that arose.

Before such a programme could be put into operation, however, an intensive educational campaign, Dr. McCullough explains, would be necessary, and undoubtedly the Chief Health Officer has something in mind along that line.

It may never develop to the stage considered desirable by Dr. McCullough, but at least such a campaign could not fail to arouse people throughout Ontario generally to greater interest in the protection of health.

That there is need of such an awakening the attitude of governing bodies toward health needs offers all too eloquent proof.

HIS DECORATIONS FOR A MEAL.

A returned soldier went into a restaurant at Port Arthur to get a meal. He did not have the price to pay for it, so he sold his distinguished conduct medal and bar and a long service medal to a man he met in the restaurant for 75 cents, had his meal and departed.

No person seems to know who this returned man was, says the London Advertiser. He has probably wandered around a good many streets looking for something to do, because no soldier would part with his medals if he had anything else to sell for the price of a meal.

This soldier may have enlisted in some Canadian regiment when the war broke. He would not want for a meal then or for the price of a meal. There were people and organizations all over the Dominion ready to give him all the meals he desired. They were prepared to do even more; they gave presents, read addresses, and told the enlisting soldiers that they would never have to want for anything after returning home when through with the war. Their future would be an established fact.

This man from Port Arthur went along with the rest of them, and he may have been foolish enough to believe all that an enthusiastic and aroused people were saying to him when he was going away.

He faced his hell and went through misery, cold, wet; he slept in the open and spent days in muddy trenches. But the end came, and he turned back toward Canada. He had broken all connections with the past. The job that he had when he enlisted was probably taken by some one else, but all would be well, because that is what he was told when he went away.

The day before yesterday he parted with the few emblems that he had risked his life to secure in order that he might get a meal to keep that life burning.

The 75 cents he secured was all he had left to show for the response he made when his country was in danger.

What would you think if you went out flushed with the promises of a grateful people, and came back to face a situation where your war medals alone separated you from starvation, and that for only a day?

THE MAN OF THE HOUR IN FRANCE.

Aristide Briand, the new champion of the Catholic Church; Briand challenging the Premier of France to a life and death struggle and threatening to overthrow his Government if France's representative at the Vatican is removed; Briand, the principal author of the law of Separation of Church and State in France, now appearing as a crusader for the same church which he attacked so long and so bitterly; Briand, Socialist, Free Thinker and Separatist, warning Herriot of the grave danger of a course which is the logical sequence of his own policy of 1906—surely the political history of modern Europe offers no stranger anomaly, no more startling contrast.

Yet a closer study of the life of the man who has been seven times Premier of France and seems in a fair way of being called upon to form his eighth Cabinet, will explain his attiude. Briand is probably the astutest politician in France, if not in Europe, today. No one save Giolitti, the sly old fox of Italy, has played so prominent a part in the political manoeuvrings which have overturned governments and placed new rulers in the seat of power. He found in the Church and State separation movement his political opportunity. He grasped the nettle of religous controversy and the result was one of the most rapid flights to power in French history. As a revolutionary Socialist he won recognition by his oratory and was appointed Reporter of the Separation Bill, winning instant fame by his masterly handling of the subject. He pared from the proposed bill the fanaticism that the extremists fought so had to include and assured freedom of worship.

Difficulties that would appal a smaller man gave Briand the occasion of new triumphs. He possesses to a remarkable degree that quality of temperament which the French call "souplesse." Politics is Briand's game, his career, his passion. He plays it with consummate skill. He is a Parisian to the finger tips, with all that the epithet implies of finesse, urbanity, the touch of raillery and scepticism and the faint savor of modern decadence. He is dowered with a native gift of eloquence, a capacity for hard work and a resolute intention to succeed. He has the talent of the politician to endure the fume and fret of hostile irritation, an uncomplaining tolerance for dull debates and the capacity to foresee and to evacluate the plots in the coulisses and the lobbies.

There seems something in Briand's makeup of the old Italian Codottieri from whom Taine derives Napoleon, who played desperately, recklessly and dangerously for a throne, and then ruled in mild order with a firm hand. He has a motto which he must recall in these days, when once again, like an old war horse, he hears the bugles call, "The Republic cannot live in the past; it must live in the future."

Briand has had time for reflection and for study in the years since he was dethroned to make room for Poincare and the policy of the Ruhr because he showed too friendly a disposition towards England. He weighs his separation policy in the light of past events and of the future of France. Briand sees three great powers in Europe striving to dominate or to mould the world destinies centred at Moscow, Geneva and Rome. Expediency would make him keep friends with all three. The treaty with Krassin has assured the first while it lasts. Towards the League the attitude of France has been very different to what it was under his predecessors and Briand will do all he can to retain friendly relations with the Vatican. It is a policy of subtlety that Metternich of Castelreagh would have revelled in and no living statesman, save possibly Lloyd George, would dare attempt it or could hope to see it prevail.—Montreal Star.

A THOUGHT.

IN ONE SINGLE EXPLOSION

To know many and to be known by few, live in a crowded city. The larger the city, "the more like a pound it is for beasts," or a "cage for birds"—that is, when you consider it just a "city."

Where millions are matted together there is little room to get a good perspective of things as they truly are unless you are broadminded enough to rise above the streets with your mental measurements.

Colton was brutally blunt and said: "Men, by associating in large prove their talent, but impair their prove their talent, but impair their virtues, and strengthen their minds, but weaken their morals."

But what a lesson all this is to the man who thinks deeply. What a tremendous advantage a man has who will profit by so many mistakes!

The perpetual necessity for industry, the compactness of capable and wide-awake competition, the rivalry of great resources are all found in a big city. But where there are large crowds, there are many customers, possible or probable prospects for the proposition you have to present, and we all have some "proposition" to sell.

Nowhere else can you find such extravagantly appointed surroundings for making people comfortable and doing business in a hurry. A large city offers a big advantage in its evidence of experience and its many opportunities.

In a large city we get the subway crush, the stores' mad rush, the clattering, shattering noise of the elevators. The fearful scream of the fire siren, and the startling squeak of the taxi brake. The foghorn's awful midnight moan, a coup's sure shot, a caught crook's wail, the newsboy's cry and the teamsters curse. The beggar's plea, the silly songs of a drunken spree, and flat-wheel cars that jar. A hearse goes here and a wedding goes there; laughter, lights, shadows and sorrow everywhere. Hucksters' "hollers"—poverty.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Jan. 26.—Only the fact of a light run today steadied the market. Trade was decidedly inclined to drag, especially in the butcher class. There was a moderately fair export demand, Rogers & Maybee being in the market for about 40 cars of export fat steers and heifers, for Liverpool, and about 150 store cattle for Manchester. Export prices are quotably unchanged from $7.50 to $8.25. A small bunch of choice heavy steers sold at $8.50. A few odd choice steers sold around $8 to $8.25, but the bulk of the export steers and heifers were selling from $7.50 to $7.75. There was but little doing among the export bulls, the H. P. Kenedy Co. taking a load or two at from $4.50 to $5.

In the butcher section, choice well finished medium weight steers or heifers were in good demand at steady prices around $6.50 to $7; but supplies of the kind desired was very light. Medium and half finished stuff were again too much in evidence, with calves barely holding steady.

Calves were slightly easier, except for anything very choice, tops going at $15.

Sheep and lambs steady, with light and poor average quality.

Hogs steady on basis of $11.50 off cars.

Export cattle, choice and heavy steers, $7.50 to $8.25; bulls, $4.50 to $5; heifers, $6.25 to $7.

Choice butchers, $6.25 to $7; medium, $5.25 to $6; common, $2.50 to $3.85; baby beeves, $8.50 to $9.

Choice fat cows, $3.50 to $5.

Stockers and feeders, choice short-keep feeders, 1000 to 1200 lbs., $5.50 to $6; stores, 900 to 1000 lbs., $5 to $5.75; choice stockers, 830 to 950 lbs., $4.25 to $4.75; light western stock, $3.50 to $3.75; choice western, $4.50 to $5.

Calves steady.

Sheep and lambs steady.

Hogs steady at $10.50 f.o.b.; $11.50 off cars; selects, off cars, $2.17 per head extra.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, Jan. 26—There was practically no change in the condition of the export trade in grain in the Montreal market today, the demand from foreign buyers for all lines being very limited and as the prices bid were below working basis, business was dull. The trade in grain for local account was also slow and prices unchanged. Ontario No. 2 white oats were quoted at 69 cents, No. 3 grade at 67 cents, and No. 4 grade at 65 cents.

Owing to the advance in prices for cash wheat at Winnipeg, a very strong feeling developed for spring wheat flour here and prices were advanced 20 cents per barrel. Prices are now $4.00 per barrel higher than the corresponding date a year ago. Winter wheat grade of flour were marked up 25 to 30 cents per barrel.

The feature of the butter trade was the easier feeling that developed and prices were reduced another cent per pound. Little business was transacted in cheese, but the tone of the market was firm, with No. 1 fodder made goods quoted at 19 1-2 to 20 cents per pound, and No. 2 grade at 18 1-2 to 19 cents per pound.

Crop beans were firm at $2.90 per bushel.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—Although wheat rose to a new high price record today, $1.97 1-8 per bushel, May delivery, the market afterward averaged lower. An upturn in Liverpool quotations was a decided stimulus to fresh buying here, but heavy profit-taking sales together with corn market weakeness acted as a weight on values later. Wheat closed unsettled ranging from 1 1-8 net decline to 1 1-8 net advance, May 1.96 3-8 to 1.96 1-2 and July 1.70 3-8 to 1.70 1-2. Corn finished 1 3-4 to 2 1-2 down and oats unchanged to 1 1-4 lower, with provisions varying from seven cents setback to a rise of five cents.

EGG PRICES.

OTTAWA, Jan. 26.—There has been a slight increase during the past week in receipts of fresh and the market is a little easier. Ontario country shippers are paying extras 55 to 58, firsts 45 to 48, seconds 35 to 38 and making f.o.b. sales at extras 60, firsts 54, seconds 40. Storage stocks are pretty well exhausted and prices firm.

Toronto jobbing fresh specials 73, extras 65 to 70, storage extras 56 to 57, firsts 53.

Montreal fresh extras, jobbing 63 to 64, storage extras 51.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, Jan. 26.—Sterling exchange rates were quited today as follows:

Sterling demand $4.79 3-8; cables $4.79 3-4.

Had a Barrel; Fined $200.

Cobourg Citizen Detected Rolling Ale, Labelled "Apples."

COBOURG, Jan. 27.—A citizen came up here on Saturday on a charge under the B.O.T.A. and was fined $200 and costs. He was detected, it is stated, rolling a barrel which was labeled No. 2 Snow apples from Ross Bros. Brighton, from a Canadian Pacific express car to a cutter at Cobourg. In the barrel, it is alleged, were six and a half dozen bottles of Dow's ale.

FUNERAL AT LAKEFIELD

Late Olive Dunford Carried to Last Resting Place on Sunday.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 27.—The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon of Olive Dorothy Dunford from her parents' residence, Queen street, to St. John's church, where the funeral service was held, Rev. W. Cox was in charge. The church was filled with neighbors and friends who assembled to pay the last token of respect to the young girl, who was so well known in the village, and who by her sterling worth and unanswering loyalty had "won her many friends who loved her in life and honored her in death." Young as she was, she had a share in the war work of the village, being one of the charter members of the Soldier's News Club.

After the reading of the lesson, Mrs. Osborne sang "Nearer My God to Thee" as a solo.

Rev. W. Cox delivered a short address from the text, "The Souls of the Righteous" are in the hands of God," showing the safety of those who pass into His keeping. Our Lord died on the Cross to assure us of life everlasting and those on whom He set His seal were taken to be with Him in Paradise. The beautiful words were a source of comfort to the mourners and of hope to everyone who heard the stirring address.

The pall bearers were: Messrs. Oscar Dunford, Bruce Dunford, Willie Dunford, Gladstone Chapin, Wilfred Hartley and F. E. Dunford.

Personals.

Mr. A. M. Fitzgerald of Toronto is a week-end visitor at his home in the village.

Miss Doris Rand of Iroquis is visiting friends in the village.

Mrs. Humphries is visitng friends in Peterboro.

Mr. William Hendren of Detroit is visitng his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hendren.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Dunford of Peterboro were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Dunford.

Mr. G. Johnson of Peterboro was a week-end visitor in the village.

"REEF THEM SAILS!" AND BUSTER OBEYS

"How about the money gaff?"

"Climb out the bowsprit to the jibboom, and guy down that martingale!"

"Get busy on the cross jackyard, and then jump up there to that spanker boom!"

Donald Crisp had the time of his life directing Buster Keaton in that star's latest Metro-Goldwyn comedy, "The Navigator," which is coming to the Capitol Theatre on Friday and Saturday. Crisp formerly sailed the seven seas, or six of them at any rate, and his engagement for Buster's big marine comedy was a happy selection.

Crisp and the famous Captain John A. O'Brien, Commander of the Buford, a 450-foot liner which Buster chartered for two months, sailed off the coast of Catalina Island.

Poor Buster was hit with Marlinspikes, wore a heavy diver's suit that was as comfortable, according to the comedian himself, as a Turkish bath in Yuma, Arizona, on the Fourth of July, and in addition, took his life in his hands daily climbing the rigging of the Buford.

Buster threatents to "brain" his three scenarists, Jean Havez, Clyde Bruckman and Joseph Mitchell, if they persist in thinking up any more dangerous stunts for him to do.

"The Navigator" is a Metro-Goldwyn picture, presented by Joseph M. Schenck. Kathryn McGuire is Buster's leading woman.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

MORE VOTE AGAINST UNION

Today's telegraphic returns of the votes on Church Union, although the total is small, show a marked majority against Union and increasingly large majorities in the congregational voting.

A local return of considerable interest is that of the Havelock congregation which voted against Union by more than 6 to 1, the vote being 99 against Union and only 16 for.

In Toronto the votes to date show 18 churches having voted into Union and 18 have voted out. The total vote for Union in these churches was, for Union 11,920 and against Union 12,625, the majority vote favouring the Prebyterians by 705. The significant feature of the vote in Toronto is that the last five churches to report have all gone Presbyterian.

The claim of the Unionists that the West was solidly for Union has received two hard blows in the returns from Grace Church, Calgary, which has voted to remain Presbyterian by a large majority ard by the vote in First Presbyterian Church at Edmonton where 172 voted in favour of Union and 421 against.

An important Ontario congregation which has decided to remain Presbyterian is Knox Church, Galt, the vote being 363 for Union and 640 against.

At Innerkip, in Ontario, 27 voted for Union and 98 against and the East Hope Presbyterian Church near Stratford voted against Union by 27 to 7.

Peterboro Branch Presbyterian Church Association

Editor of the Examiner:

Peterboro is fairly well supplied with parks, most of them are in well chosen natural situations. We have one in particular where the name admirably suited the situation, and was both directional and descriptive, in fact it was the best named park that we possess, Riverside Park.

What possessed the new Council that they made an awkward bungle by discarding an exceptionally appropriate name and putting a cemetery suggestion in its place?

It is quite right to commemorate the names of those who helped to make Peterboro a desirable place to live, but it should be done in an appropriate manner.

There is no excuse for such a flagrant violation of esthetic taste as this thoughtless act involves.

Some time ago the Council changed the name of the Hunter Street Bridge, probablly most of them have forgotten what they called it, but to the citizens it is still the Hunter Street Bridge and the citizens will also retain the old appropriate name Riverside Park.

If the adermen wish to do something that both citizens and visitors will appreciate, let them place street names where they can be seen, this is a convenience that is long over due.

NAVAL SECRETS IN TWO LETTERS

Two Irishmen Charged in London With Offences Against Public Safety.

BOTH REPUBLICANS

LONDON, Jan. 27.— (Canadian Press.)—A remarkable story of an alleged plot to discover British naval secrets was told at the Bow Street police court Monday when two young men, Jeremiah Joseph O'Leary, described as a shipwright of Portsmouth, and Cyril McGough, a civil servant of London, were charged with offences under the Official Secrets Act, the former with communicating to McGough information relating to a prohibited place namely, the Haslar Dockyard at Portsmouth, and McGough with unlawfully receiving such information.

Travers Humphreys, who prosecuted for the Crown, stated that two letters were found on McGough when arrested. One bore the stamp "Irish Republican Army, Number Seven Area, Britain." It was dated January 14, was headed "Intelligence Department" and was addressed to "Intelligence Officer, Britain." The letter related to certain experiments at Haslar Dock and aboard the warship Monarch, and also contained statements relating to most important secret matters the publication of which would be prejudical to the national safety. The other letter was a similar communication from "Number One Area, Irish Republican Army" and was dated January 11.

Documents found in O'Leary's room at Portsmouth showed that O'Leary was the writer of the first letter which was sent to McGough under cover and through a woman living in London who appeared to have acted as a sort of post office for the two men.

Rear-Admiral Hotham gave evidence that the publication of a statement in the letter in regard to a naval experimetnal tank at Haslar would prejudice the national safety.

Mark Paine, Superintendent of the Admiralty experimental work at Haslar, said that the statements in the letter in regard to secret experimens in 1914 were substantially accurate.

The accused were remanded.

READING THE FUTURE

(By Cynthia Grey)

It doesn't take the seventh daughter of a seventh daughter to tell a man's fortune even to the color of his future wife's eyes. Anyone can do it without the help of cards, palmistry or the everlasting stars.

For example, if he admires small blond girls with baby blue eyes and a giggle, he is practically certain to marry a serious-minded brunet a half head taller than he is!

And such is Fate that if he is attracted by clever women, who talk in epigrams and read every book that's published, he will probably wed a beautiful dumb-bell who thinks that the Dardanelles are a vaudeville troupe.

If he likes to step out, and could double for Maurice, the dancer, the chances are that his bride will be a home-making girl who stays home nights to watch the dough rise in the bread-pan.

But if he's the sort who has a heavy date nightly with the easy chair and the evening paper, it's a foregone conclusion that the wife of his bosom will spend most of her time giving him marching orders toward the bright lights that she loves!

Mr. Jones purchased a fine Holstein cow, of which all the family were proud.

One day a visitor said to Mary, the thre-year-old member of the household: "I suppose you have all the nice creamy milk you can drink now "

"Yes," replied Marjorie, "since we've got our old steam cow."

WHAT KIND OF A COUGH Is Yours?

WHETHER it is a simple cough that you have been inclined to ignore, or whether it is a cough that almost seems to burst you by the racking exertion, with aching head and aching body—

Get a box of Peps at once, take a tablet from its silver wrapper; and as it dissolves on the tongue, breathe in the HEALING, BALSAMIC FUMES that are then given off. Notice how the balsamic odours find their way by inhalation along all the breathing passages and there allay the inflammation causing you trouble.

You cannot possibly get at these delicate membranes by any other way. Liquid medicines are merely swallowed into the stomach. Peps act direct on the affected tissues and remove the cause of the irritating cough in a way no other devised remedy can.

Owing to greatly increased sales and increased cost of production Peps can now be obtained in handy boxes at all druggists and medicine dealers at the

COLBORNE SOCIETY HAD SPLENDID YEAR

Agriculturists in Annual Meeting Hear Repeated Successes.

COBOURG, Jan. 27.—The annual meeting of the Colborne and Haldimand Agricultural Society held at Colborne on Saturday showed the past year to have been a very successful one. The reports showed every department of work to be in fine condition and everything augurs well for a better show than ever next year. The treasurer's report showed there was cash on hand Dec. 31st, 1924 amounting to $1,072. Besides the Society hold shares in the Driving Park amounting to $120 and during the past year made considerable improvement to the grounds.

The dates aranged for the 1925 fair are Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 22 and Sept. 23.

It was decided to employ Departmental judges for the year 1925.

The treasurer was authorized to forward the usual fee for the Society's membership in the Ontario Fairs Asociation.

The folowing officers were elected for 1925:

President—Bruce Rutherford.
1st Vice-Pres.—C. T. Tueney.
2nd Vice-Pres.—H. B. Wilson.
Secretary—W. A. Seed.
Treasurer—F. M. Bruntnell.

Directors—R. Snetsenger, Dr. J. E. Alyea, C. H. Byers, C. A. Bryans, W. H. Colton, J. A. Corlyn, H. Gale, S. J. Cox, W. D. Haig, W. J. Jamieson, H. S. Keyes, John McCracken, Wm. Mutton, G. F. Purdy, Arthur Rutherford, James Thomas, Jr., L. Vanwicklin, J. G. Waite, J. F. Wilson.

Auditors—C. T. Turney and J. F. Wilson.

Delegate to Ontario Fairs Association—F. M. Brintwell; alternate delegate, W. A. Seed.

Delegate to Central Fairs Association—R. Rutherford, W. A. Seeds, F. M. Brintnell.

A committee was appointed composed of the president, vice-presidents, secretary-treasurer and Wm. Mutton to arrange for a suitable driving ring opposite the grandstand, and also to make arangements for other improvements, in order that the 1925 fair may be the best yet held in this locality.

The Board of Directors met at the close of the general meeting appointed their officers and decided to meet again either in March or April to complete arrangements for this year's fair.

In connection with the annual meeting of Colborne and Haldimand Township Agricultural Association it is interesting to note that it is now just 96 years since the first fall fair was held in Northumberland county. It will not be long until the centenary of the organization of Agricultural Associations in the county comes round and arrangements should be made by local societies to celebrate it in a proper way.

95 years ago next May a cattle show and a ploughing match were held at Cobourg. In that same year also the neucleus of our present field crop competitions was laid by the society, offering prizes for best crops of wheat. Indian corn and potatoes. Peter Alger, who lived in Cramake, was credited with raising the best sample of wheat. The prizes for Indian corn went to Isaac Waite, Trueman Henman and Jonathan Massey, all of Haldimand township.

LITERARY SOCIETY MEETS IN MARMORA

Members Gave Short Talks on Birds in Interesting Session.

MARMORA, Jan. 27.—The second meeting in the year 1925 of the Literary Society of Marmora Continuation School was held on Friday afternoon. The programme was in the hands of second form and was unusually interesting. Their subject was "Birds." Jack Grant spoke on one of Jack Miner's talks, "Have Birds a Language?"

Madeline Gafney told about "A friend of birds", Jack Miner. Although he never received a university education he can hold any audience by his humor. He owns one of the largest hotels in world. His lodgers come as far north as the Arctic Circle and as far South as the Gulf of Mexico. They carry no luggage, pay no rent and receive free lodging. They come and stay as long as they wish and go when they wish. He spends a great deal of money feeding these birds. Some people would not give as much to their relatives as he does to these birds. Around his home he has built many trees, which will be a living monument after his death.

Leo Forestell spoke on the 'Crow'. It is quite a large bird and has a shiny black coat of feathers. On account of its lust for corn they are often tempted into a corn-field and often too a farmer with his shot-gun carries them out. He gave a humorous account of how crows are attracted by anything that shines.

Charles Brady spoke on "The natural enemies of birds. There are three kinds: 1, Larger birds; 2, Animals; 3, Man.

Under the larger birds the hawk and owl. The hawk hunts in the daytime and the owl at night. Weasels too are very fond of birds and then there are the foxes, who never miss a chance of capturing a hen. Little boys sometimes with stones do as much harm as anything else. In fun, to see who can come the closest to a bird, they cause the loss of life by killing it.

Harry Barrons discussed "The Downy Woodpecker." The male has a red head but except for this difference they have barred black and white wings and tails. They drum at telephone posts and since it is not known why they stay there so long, whether they hunt insects there or are trying to build a home, is a mystery to people

Bird Laws.

Ida Doyle concluded by giving the bird laws:

1.—It is not lawful to injure, kill or trap any other birds, except the hawk, sparrow, crow, blackbird.

2.—A person may kill a robin during the fruit season if it is destroying his fruit.

3.—If a net, cage, or trap meant to destroy birds, other than those four mentioned above, is found, it may be destroyed without the destroyer incurring any penalty.

4.—It is not lawful to have in possession or exposed for sale any birds other than those mentioned above.

4.—A student may obtain birds, birds' eggs and nests by getting a permit from the game warden. These permits must be renewed every year.

It was announced by Miss Campbell that Dr. Dunlop would be speaking in Marmora Town Hall on Feb. 2. He has a number of amusing anecdotes. He is public editor for the university and is head of the University Extension Course. That night the medals and diplomas for the High School pupils will be given out.

UNION SERVICE AT MILLBROOK

Rev. F. W. Howard, S.T.L., Preached First Service on Church Union.

LARGELY ATTENDED.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 26.—A large congregation gathered at the Methodist church on Sunday morning when the pastor, Rev. F. W. Howard S.T.L., for the first time since coming to this charge last June, preached on the subject of church union.

As a member of the church union committee Mr. Howard has travelled many miles, and spoken at a number of place on this topic, but considered it good judgment and wisdom not to discuss the subject publicly here until now, "especially as a sister church was considering the matter afresh." "Never in all the meetings of the church union committee, since the last General Conference, had any member shown other than a fine, Christian spirit, free from any antagonism or vindictiveness toward the Congregational or Methodist representatives, or those of their own who differed from them." On principle, not from personal preference, the speaker had voted for church union, and the spirit of Christian charity and brotherliness which has prevailed throughout the sessions as the project has been brought to its culmination has proved a broad education.

The text was taken from Christ's intercessory prayer, John 17:22, "And the glory which Thou gavest Me, I have given them; that they may be one, even as we are one," and the fact that church union is in the air, and it is just as impossible to stop progress in science, or industry, as to stay this progressive step in church life, was the introductory statement. "There may be lifted a puny hand, but it is but puny, and will prove utterly ineffective." In Great Britain, and even in Central India, United Churches are being formed, and it seems likely that the percentage of churches going into union in Canada will be the same as when the first vote was taken—that is about eight percent.

The term "United Church," it is growingly evident, has been suggested by the Holy Spirit, and is destined to become known, loved, and held in high honour as any denominational name previously in use.

Origin Of Religions.

The origin, nature, purpose, and polity of the three uniting bodies, Presbyterian, Congregational and Methodist, was briefly outlined, and the conclusion reached that there was much in common that would naturally lead to organic union.

The Presbyterian church, born under John Calvin as a protest against the evils rampant in the Roman Catholic Church of his day, has the longest history. In 1592 it was transplanted from Geneva to Scotland by John Knox, and by Act of Parliament in 1797 became the Established Church. Its church government includes the session, corresponding to the quarterly board of the Methodist church; the presbytery, corresponding to the district meeting of its sister body; and the synod, matching the annual conference. The General Assembly differs from the General Conference in that the latter meets once in four years, and the former every year. The "General Council" of the United Church will split the difference and be called once in two years.

The Congregational church was the next to arrive, originating in England in 1540, under Robert Brown in protest against the evils in the Church of England, his followers being called "Brownists." Later, as the number grew, the name was changed to Congregationalists, or Independents. This church is very strong in England and the United States. In doctrine it is evangelical, but considerable latitude is allowed the individual churches. The leading feature of its policy is that each congregation is governed by all the members, and each is legally independent of all the rest. There is a general association but it exercises but an indirect authority.

The Youngest Church.

The Methodist church is the youngest, and possibly in Canada the largest of the three as to membership, the Salvation Army being an offshoot. Its distinctive feature is that it is a "movement" growing up in the 16th century as a moral and spiritual revival under the Wesleys and Whitfield. However, the speaker said, "We will not extol ourselves to ourselves, but accept the challenge to the greater things God intends us to do." Our doctrine includes conditional election and reprobation, rather than absolute predestinatoin, and preaches a universal redemption.

The uniting churches have never been enemies, though sometimes rivals. They are like each other, and unlike other denominations, in that they seek to build on Christ alone. They had a somewhat similar origin—Presbyterianism in the 16th century at Geneva, the Congregational in England in the 16th century, and Methodism also in England in the 18th century, and each in protest against the evils of the Established Church. All three are daughters of one great movement, and each born after travail of godly souls. They recognize any reasonable form of baptism, give laymen a place in church government, and preach practically the same doctrine.

Union means the sacrifice of some things each holds dear, but Christianity was born in sacrifice, and this should not be allowed to stand in the way of any movement God instigates. These three churches have practically the same form of service, believe in extempore prayers, are not formalists, hold midweek prayer meetings are active in Sunday School and young peoples' work, and are democratic-government is from the people up, not from the head down.

"The glory which Thou gavest Me", Christ said; we haven't got it all yet, but the Kingdom is a coming Kingdom. Neither have we the unity, "that they all may be one," but we are going on the "greater works" the Master indicated, as God is calling us to the United Church.

Has Your Husband Got Indigestion?

Nothing creates domestic discord quicker than an attack of indigestion and nothing gets rid of indigestion quicker than Bisurated Magnesia. No man can be sweet tempered, good natured or even fair minded when his stomach is constantly sick, sour, gassy, and upset with after-eating distress. If your husband has stomach trouble neither scold nor pity him, but help him by seeing that he has a supply of Bisurated Magnesia (either powder or tablets) constantly at hand. A teaspoonful of powder or two tablets taken in a little water after meals will instantly neutralize the acids in his stomach that are causing his trouble and he can enjoy his meals with no more fear of indigestion. Bisurated Magnesia is the special form of Magnesia used by thousands to neutralize stomach acidity and quickly overcome Indigestion—do not confuse with Milk, Carbonate, Block or Citrate of Magnesia. Insist on Bisurated. Its action is safe, prompt and sure and it can be obtained at small cost from any reliable drug store.

Born—To Mr and Mrs. Kerr (nee Lila Vance), on Tuesday a boy. On Thursday morning the little life was recalled. Mr. and Mrs. Kerr have the sympathy of the community in their bereavement.

Good Attendance.

Owing to the mild and sunny Sunday, the Methodist Sunday school was exceptionally well attended, 113 being present.

Mrs. W. Rowan and Mr. E. Bray provided the special music with a duet 'Alone" which was well rendered and appreciated by those present.

Mr. W. H. Fallis is having gravel hauled in anticipation of erecting a general garage adjoining his blacksmith shop, as soon as weather permits building operations.

Remodel Lighting.

The electric lighting system of the Methodist church has been remodelled. The engine and batteries which have been occupying space in the basement of the church and which necessitate running the engine all day Saturdays in order to sufficiently charge the batteries for Sunday service have been moved to the specially built room prepared for them. An excavation 8 feet square outside the church proper and cemented all around including roof, has been built and instead of running the lights direct from battery power they are run direct from the engine. The sound of the engine while running is barely preceptible in the auditorium of the church and a saving in operating expenses is expected.

Locals Won Game.

The Blackstock hockey team journeyed to Bethany on Friday to cross sticks with the local squad. The game was keenly contested and Mr. W. Hanna who handled the bell, proved to be a strict and efficient official. The local team were without the services of their regular goalie for the first two period and in spite of this handicap won the game 6 to 4.

The farmers are busy getting their logs placed at the mill for sawing and delivering fire wood in the village, a large quantity of each arriving daily.

The boys from Cody's Camp are staging a dance in the town hall on Tuesday evening. The music will be provided by the boys and an excellent time in the old-fashoined spirit is anticipated.

COUNCILLORS DIDN'T GIVE UP EVEN 50 CENTS OF SALARIES

Generosity Attributed to the Alnwick Council Was Mistaken in Fact.

MOTION FAILED.

Involved Minutes Failed to Make Clear What Happened—Demand Full $3.

ROSENEATH, Jan. 27.—We wish to correct an error in the last Council report of Alnwick Township Council, where it was stated that the Councillors had reduced their salaries from $3.00 to $2.50 a sitting. This was wrong as the resolution (to lower the salary) by Reeve Mouncey and Councillor Timlin was defeated and the old rate of $3.00 a sitting remains in force.

Several people of the community are sick with an epidemic of colds bordering on the flu.

Mr. Lewis Roberts, who has been teaching at Montgomery's School, is seriously ill with pneumonia.

Mr. Cephas Brown is in Kingston Hospital, where he is undergoing an operation on his eyes. Mrs. Alex. Brown accompanied him there.

The local group of the C.G.I.T. are giving the play, entitled "A Southern Cinderella," in the Town Hall on Friday evening, Jan. 30th. During the evening they will sell by auction their autograph quilt, which has over four hundred names on it.

Rev. J. N. Lovelace, who is confined to the house with a severe cold, was unable to hold his regular services on Sunday last.

The annual meeting of the Agricultural Society, which was to have been held on Wednesday last, was postponed indefinitely on account of illness of some of the officials.

Vote on Union.

At the last Sunday's service in the Presbyterian Church here a standing vote was taken to determine whether or not the congregation should go into Union without a vote. Just three members were opposed, so the ballots have been sent for and will be voted on some time in the near future.

SPLENDID BANQUET HELD AT KEENE

G. N. Gordon Among the Guests of Honor —Canada's Problems Are Discussed.

KEENE, January 27. — One of the best and most successful banquets ever put on in Keene was held on Wednesday evening in the Town Hall, under the auspices of the Otonabee Young People's Association.

About 105 guests sat down to a bounteous supper, served by the ladies of the Methodist Church, and in this respect it is safe to say that the appetites of the guests did full justice to the menu set before them.

The hall was nicely decorated, the tables being laid with spotless white linen, shining silverware, and decorated with bouquets. The guests of honour for the evening were Mr. G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., Deputy-Speaker of the House of Commons, Mr. Carroll, representing the Department of Agriculture.

Other guests present were: Mr. Dalton Johnstone, M.P.P., Mr. Morley Smithson, Reev of Otonabee; Mr. F. C. McRae of Norwood, district representative of the Department of Agriculture; Mr. Jos. J. Duffus, Mr. G. A. Gillespie, Miss Brown of the Home Economic Department, of Toronto, and Miss L. Wedlock, of Peterborough.

Mr. W. H. Fletcher, president of the Association, acted as toastmaster.

The toast to Canada was proposed by Mr. Dalton Johnstone, who stressed the need of economy in private life, municipal, Provincial and Federal, and to see that we got 100 per cent. for every dollar spent. He also refererd to the splendid monument erected in memory of the Otonabee boys who laid down their lives for liberty and freedom, and congratulated the association for enclosing in their programme for the coming year the renovating of the memorial plot.

Mr. Gordon, replying to the toast to Our Country, said that Mr. Johnstone had touched the keynote of to-day when speaking of economy. Referring to the Great War, Mr. Gordon said that a debt of great magnitude had been left for the people of Canada to shoulder, but assured his audience by facts and figures that we had reason to believe and see that Canada to-day was lessening her obligations, and that the future held much in store for the young Canadian manhood and womanhood. He also referred to the standard of living here compared with some of the European countries, taking, for instance, Denmark, who had ben making special efforts to increase her export market of Danish butter to the extent of denying her subjects the use of butter to any great degree. He also stated that Denmark used a greater proportion of oleomargarine than butter, again citing the ideals which were being put forth by the people of Canada to make this country a country where both rich and poor can associate one with the other, where we have institutions where, if anyone poor and needy fall upon evil days, they can go and be made comfortable and looked after for the rest of their days.

Mr. Gordon dwelt for a while on the laws governing mothers' pensions, old-age pensions, and the Compensation Act. He also gave his hearers a comprehensive talk on finance, showing how the Canadian dollar being back to par owing to Canada's favourable trade balance and the high standing of Canadian securities. In concluding, Mr. Gordon urged the young people to be energetic, setting high ideals before them, and to go on and help make Canada a country that anyone would be proud to call their own.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie and Mr. Joseph J. Duffus, two old Otonabee boys, also gave short addresses, Mr. Gillespie stressing the fact that agriculture was the best industry to be associated with in Canada to-day.

Mr. Duffus delighted the gathering with his usual witty sayings.

The toast to The Ladies was proposed by Morley Smithson, Reeve of Otonabee, in his usual capable manner.

Miss Brown, responding, said that she was pleased to be back again among her old pupils of Keene, and brought greetings from the Agricultural School now being held in Hastings.

The toast to The Gentlemen was proposed by Miss Lily Chapman, and responded to by Mr. Frank Graystock.

The toast to The Visitors was proposed by Mr. Peter Mathis in a very capable manner, and responded to by Mr. Carroll, of the Department of Agriculture in Toronto.

The Hon. John S. Martin was expected to be present, but owing to another engagement was unable to attend.

Mr. Carroll, in responding, spoke of the good agricultural district here as being one of the best in Canada; also of the opoprtunities which presented themselves to the young people now growing up. He complimented the association upon its live organisation, and stressed the point that only by vigorous action and lofty ideals could the young people make a success of their activities, mentioning also the fact that young farm ladies should be expected to know more about the farm and farming than just housekeeping and washing dishes, not wishing them to be tied down to any form of drudgery, but as he suggested, a woman on the farm should know the difference between a Holstein cow and a Plymouth Rock hen; and likewise the men should not confine their knowledge just to outside activities, but should also know the elements of housekeeping. Mr. Carroll concuded by stating that he would try and get back and expound the policy of the junior farmers' organisation in the future.

Following Mr. Carroll's address, the toast to The Association was proposed by Mr. F. C. McRae, district supervisor of the Agricultural Department in this district. Mr. McRae remarked that the success of the organisation was such that all should be proud of. He said that he got the most satisfaction of anyone present to know that the organisation which he had helped to start, in connection with the Winter School held in Keene last winter, had completed its first year with such good results, largely increased membership, and above all, such a bounteous banquet supper.

Mr. W. H. Fletcher, responding, said that he wanted to hank all present who had helped to make the banquet a great uccess, especially the members of the executive by their untiring efforts and co-operation. He stated again, in reply to the suggestions regarding the monument plot that it was the intention of the association to renovate the grounds during the coming summer months. He stated that efforts would be made to raise money during the coming months by social activities, and assured those present that every dollar collected would be carefully spent.

Following the banquet and the speeches, a dance was held. Owing to the condition of the roads, Mr. G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., Deputy-Speaker, Mr. J. J. Duffus, and Mr. G. A. Gilespie left before its completion.

The association wishes to take this opportunity of expressing their thanks to Mr. G. N. Gordon and Mr. Carroll for their presence, also to all of the other visitors.

Mis Bryce rendered some short, snappy songs during the evening, with Mrs. H. McFarlane at the piano.

GAS TRAPS FIREMEN.

Carbon Monoxide Overcomes Twenty—Rescued by Volunteers and Police.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 (Canadian Press).—Carbon monoxide gas in a dingy tenement basement overcame more than a score of firemen yesterday, five being affected so seriously they had to be taken to hospital. The firemen had entered to fight a small fire when the first floor collapsed. Others following and not knowing of the presence of the poison gas, which was caused by the confinement of the flames to the cellar, were similarly overcome.

When police realized the trap into which the firemen had plunged, a chain of rescuers was formed. Police and citizens, using moistened cloths as masks, fought their way into the cellar and carried out the victims.

CAMPBELLFORD SOCIAL DOINGS

St. Mary's At Home—Many Parties—Young People Meet.

A BUSY WEEK.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 27.—The "At Home" given by the ladies of St. Mary's Parish, in the Regent Theatre, on Monday night, was a great success, about four hundred persons being present. There were some from Warkworth, Hastings and other surrounding towns present. This "At Home" is a yearly event, and always brings a large crowd.

Leonard's seven-piece orchestra furnished music for the dancing, Mr. Wm. Martin and Mr. Callery called off for the square dances, and Mrs. Cassidy and Mr. David Johnston played for this part of the dances.

The ladies of the parish supplied the supper, and as usual it was of the very best.

Mrs. Thos. Dewey was the head convenor of the committee having charge of the refreshments. The committee in charge of the other part were: Messrs. R. Cook, D. Robertson, H. McFaul, M. Murphy and Wm. Keating.

Those who did not wish to dance played cards at one end of the room, where tables were placed. Supper was served at the intermission, which was about twelve o'clock, after which dancing was resumed till the small hours of the morning.

Father Phelan and the committees in charge are very much pleased at the great success of the "At Home."

Skating Party.

Miss Elsie Southern, Kent Street, invited about twenty of her girl friends to her home on Thursday night last. They all went to the rink for skating, after which they returned to her home, where the young people were served with a hot supper, after which they played games and sang and danced. All enjoyed the evening very much.

Snowshoe Party.

Miss Kathryn Irwin and Miss Helen Caddy entertained a number of friends, boys and girls, at the home of Miss Irwin on Front Street on Saturday afternoon. All were asked to go for a snowshoe tramp at three o'clock. Returning, they all enjoyed refreshments, after which there were contests and dancing.

Young People's League.

There was a large attendance at the Young People's League meeting in the Methodist Church on Monday night. The programme part was in charge of Miss Alma Simpson. The Bible reading was taken by Miss Catherine Clark. Mrs. W. Phillips gave a reading "How a Married Man Sews on a Button." ....

The report of the Winter School at Cobourg was then given by Mr. Wilbert Kingston, who was the delegate. This report was splendid, and was listened to very attentively by those present. A detailed account was given of the different day's proceedings, so that one almost felt as if he had ben present.

A vocal solo was then given by Miss N. Hoover.

Moved by Rev. W. Elliott, and seconded by Mrs. W. Phillips, that we give a hearty vote of thanks to Wilbert Kingston for the splendid report he had brought home, and that it was a good thing for the League to have such an excellent report.

Wilbert, in acknowledging the thanks, said that the resolution ought to be turned around, and that he ought to be the one to thank the League for sending him.

Ahearty clapping of hands showed how much the report had been enjoyed.

After this part of the meeting was over, there was a contest among the four colours, each group taking a separate place. The marks for each o fthe four colours were given by the secretary, after which all enjoyed light refreshments.

Greater interest is taken each week in the colour contest, and more are coming each week.

Obituary.

Mrs. Joseph Douglas, corner Church and Kent streets, received word on Saturday night of the death of her uncle, Mr. Sidney Smith, of Madoc. He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife and four children, Mrs. McMullen of Weyburn, Sask., Mrs. Samuel Burkitt, of Lakefield, Mr. Myles Smith of Madoc, and Mr. Iva Smith of South Africa. He also leaves a mother, who is one hundred years old and three brothers and four sisters.

Personals.

Mr. Herb Frederick of Toronto, is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Mitchell, Grand Road.

Miss Nellie Dunn, who is spending the winter with her sister, Mrs. Latta at Dartford, is visiting at the home of Mrs. Chas. Bedford, Jr., Front street.

An Englishman was teaching a Scottish business friend how to play golf. On the first tee he poured out a copious stream of instructions and wound up with the fine old maxium:

"But remember, Sandy, whatever you do, keep your eye on the ball."

"I will that," said Sandy, who had just paid half a crown for it.

COW ATE WIRE; PIERCED HEART

Seymour West Farmer Lost Valuable Animal—Horse Broke Leg.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 27.—Mr. Edward Milne, of Seymour West, just at the end of the town, had the misfortune to lose a valuable cow last week. Its death was caused from swallowing a piece of wire which pierced its heart.

In many stables where the cows are tied, there is wire at their heads, and many times pieces of this are swallowed. One man, who has killed many cows for his shop, said that many times he has found pieces of wire in the cow's stomach, enough to make almost a handful, and he has often warned the farmers of the danger their cows are in from having this wire so near them.

Horse Broke Its Leg.

A horse belonging to Mr. Ernest Dunk, of Seymour East, had its leg broken in town on Saturday night, on Front Street, near J. A. Irwin's store. One of Mr. Dunk's boys was driving the horse, and in some way the lines got caught pulling the horse around and across the street just as a car came along. The car, which was being driven by Mr. Paisley, of the Hydro, ran against the horse, breaking its leg, but no blame whatever is attached to the driver of the car. It was feared that the horse would have to be shot.

ROBERT BURNS, POET, "SCOTS WHA HAE!"

Scots' Poet Had the Pleasing Habit of Sending Writings.

There has just passed into the possession of Mr. Walter Spencer, the well-known autograph and book collector, of 27 New Oxford Street, London, Burns' autograph manuscript of the famous song, "Scots Wha Hae." It will come as a surprise to many that it is possible for the poet's "address" of Bruce to his army at Bannockburn to be in existence, and in the possession of a private collector. The question always arises whether a manuscript by Burns is the only one extant, and it has been noted that the poet "had the pleasing habit of showing his gratitude to a friend by sending him a version of one of his writings." The manuscript which is now with Mr. Spencer is evidently the one which for many years was in the keeping of the late Mr. A. Hamilton. In that gentleman's collection it had as a companion the letter written by the poet from Dumfries applying for a post in the Excise. the addressee is informed, "You are the best judge whether I can with propriety be appointed to the job, or whether you can, as matters at present stand, befriend my wishes." The appeal concluded, "Your ever grateful humble servant, Robert Burns."

A wedding party was disturbed by the crying of a baby belonging to one of the woman guests. One of the young ladies present remarked to the bridesmaid, "What a nuisance babies are at a wedding!"

"I should say so," returned the latter, and added, without very full consideration, "When I send out the invitations to my wedding I shall have printed on the corner, "No babies expected."

Her Headaches Were So Bad She Couldn't Do Anything

Once the head starts to ache and pain you may rest assured that the cause comes from the stomach, liver or bowels, and the cause must be removed before permanent relief may be had.

There is no better remedy for headaches of every description than

BURDOCK

as it removes the cause of the headaches in a way that no other remedy will do.

Mrs. Wm. Helpard, Lower Stewiacke, N. S., writes: "I suffered for a long time with my head. It would ache and ache until it made me so sick I could not do anything, but after taking four bottles of B.B.B. I feel that I cannot recommend it too highly to all those suffering from headaches of any kind."

B.B.B. has been on the market for the past 46 years and is recognized by all who have used it to be without an equal as a remedy for headaches; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's aSge and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

EMPIRE RELATIONS.

Improvement in Communications Has Added to Friendliness of the Empire.

To those who live in it the British Empire is more often than not a fascinating puzzle. No wonder then, that it is the despair of most foreigners. They cannot understand how the Empire, in the words of the Colonial Secretary, Hon. L. S. Amery, "can be both a league of free and independent nations and an indivisible unit."

Australia has evolved a new problem by establishing in the office of its High Commissioner in London, what may be called the neucleus of a foreign office. The man in charge will keep in closest touch with all international matters affecting his country, and communicate with the home land by cable or wireless, whenever necessary. Australia expects this plan to be directly beneficial, and far more satisfactory than the ordinary channels of information. If that view should be justified, will the other Dominions be satisfied to let Australia monopolize the spotlight?

There is an element in British politics which still shivers at the breezy assurance of "colonials." It's conception of the Empire is not much superior to that illustrated in the story of the English immigrants who were given a warm Canadian welcome, and a substantial dinner in a municipality whence they were to be distributed to their respective locations.

"Pretty decent of these Colonials, treating us like this, isn't it?" said one to his table companion.

"Why shouldn't they: don't we own 'em?" was the reply.

The newer generation of British statesmen has a wider knowledge of the British Empire and a clearer vision of its future. The Imperial Conferences have greatly assisted thereto. One of them is slated for this year. It should not be confused with the proposed conference on the Geneva protocol, which has been abandoned. The Dominions hold that their attitude has been made quite clear on this question, and that any new points can be disposed of by cable despatches.

The Beginning.

The constant improvement in methods, means and speed of communications, has done much to consolidate the Empire and to secure its defence without trespassing upon the freedom of the Dominions. In the days when Britain was their sole defender, they were dependent upon her to a degree that explains much of what would now seem to be arbitrary and unwarranted interference in their affairs. The Old Land then had to consider what it could do practically alone; the modern Empire has shown that it knows how to help to guard itself and to assist the mother of all its units. And it might be fairly argued that the keystone of the modern Empire was laid at the first Colonial Conference of 1887.

It was a happy thought that preceded the celebrations marking the jubilee of Queen Victoria's reign with a conference of statesmen from the Colonies. Primarily for the discussion of defensive measures that conference developed into the Imperial Conferences of the present day. A glance at the states represented is an object lesson in the evolution of Empire. Canada was there in the person of Sir A. Campbell, K.C.M.G., while premiers or cabinet ministers represented Victoria, New South Wales, South Australia, Queensland, Western Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand, Newfoundland, the Cape of Good Hope, and Natal. The then separated Australian states are now one Commonwealth and South Africa is a Union embracing far more territory than the Cape and Natal of 1887.

The Conference opened in the Foreign Office on April 4. That place of momentous gatherings and decisions had never witnessed a more impressive scene. Sir Henry Holland, Colonial Secretary, presided, and Lord Salisbury, Britain's Prime Minister, with every other member of the cabinet, large delegations from the Lords and the Commons, and a throng of other distinguished personages, greeted the men from overseas.

Empire travel was not so common as now. On both sides there was keen curiosity as to the manner of men representing the home land and those across the waters. But when, after a few preliminaries, Lord Salisbury was called to speak, all else was momentarily forgotten. With the true instinct of statesmanship he smoothed the path for those who were to take part in the Conference, by deprecating any discussion upon the constitution of the Empire. Defence was the paramount objective in his opinion. The published summary of his remarks emphasized this point in these words:—

"The solemn and reasonable sense of the security which the Colonies had in the shield which the Imperial government threw over them should convince them that it was to their self-interest to join in making the defences of the Empire solid. The government desired all parts of the Empire to be equally safe, prosperous and glorious, and all should take a legitimate part, not by furnishing money alone, but also men, in making the connection between the Mother Country and her children become more true and real. By organization and action the spectacle would be presented to the world of a vast Empire, united not by violence or subjection, but by hearty sympathy and co-operation in the high objects of common interest open to an Empire such as ours."

One of Kipling's poems, "England's Answer," might have been written for that very moment. In it he says:—

Look, I have made ye a place and opened wide the doors
That ye may talk together, your Barons and Councillors—
Wards of the Outer March, Lords of the Lower Seas,
Ay, talk to your grey mother that bore you on her knees!
That ye may talk together, brother to brother's face—
Thus for the good of your people—thus for the Pride of the Race.
Also, we will make promise: So long as the Blood endures
I shall know that your good is mine; ye shall feel that my strength is yours;
In the day of Armageddon, at the last great fight of all,
That Our House stand together and the pillars do not fall.

The work of that Conference lives and grows. It heard the plans of a Colonial Defence Committee and adopted some of them in principle. The scheme whereby fast passenger steamships were to be built and manned so that they might be fitted as auxiliary cruisers in war time, the defence of coaling stations vital to Empire communications, plans for the co-operation of the military forces, and for a direct cable between Canada and Australia were all considered. Results were apparent in the years that followed. The immediate inter-locking of Empire interests on the outbreak of the great war, and the absence of panic in action or words, could be traced back to some of the decisions of that first Colonial Conference.

The Growing Dominions.

There was naturally a sentimental side to the Conference. The pride of the British people in the long reign of a beloved monarch was reflected in the "colonies," whose delegates were feted and acclaimed everywhere. The Conference suggested that subject to her approval, Her Majesty's title should be changed so as to include mention of the "Colonies and Dependencies" of Britain. This was done. Subsequently, it is of interest to note that King Edward's title embodied that "of the British Dominions beyond the Seas."

By this time the word "colonies" was disappearing from state documents and communications. "States of the Empire" and "Dominions" were taking its place. The "Colonial Conference" gave way to the "Imperial Conference," with a constitution providing for meetings every four years or oftener in cases of emergency, the gatherings to be under the presidency of the British Premier instead of the Colonial Secretary.

Apart from those elsewhere mentioned, the accomplishments arising out of the Conferences since the gathering of 1887, have been many and varied. Volumes might be written about them. They had their influence in the Japanese treaty question laid a basis for Empire citizenship, established the right of the Dominions to negotiate commercial treaties, and in a hundred and one ways have made the relationships of the Dominions and the Mother Country to run in easier grooves It often happens that what appear to be insuperable difficulties when first discussed in an Imperial Conference, take flight as public opinion in the Old Land and the Dominions is brought to bear upon them. Then, frequently, without much thought as to the part the conference played in moulding that opinion, a new arrangement, mutually satisfactory and convenient, is reached by legislative enactment in the several countries interested.

The delegates to the Imperial Conference of 1921 participated in a number of meetings of the British Cabinet, and assisted in shaping policies on a umber of issues such as that of Upper Silesia, and the distribution of German reparations.

The work of the Imperial Conference proper was not neglected in 1921 Imperial wireless plans, development of aviation, emigration, the status of the native races of India in the self-governing Dominions, were among the matters dealt with. There were, as always, discussions as to the future of the Empire, principally in the newspapers. But the delegates of the Conference brushed a lot of them aside with these words, in the address to the King at the close of the sessions:—

"We have been conscious throughout our deliberations of a unanimous conviction that the most essential of the links that bind our widely spread peoples is the Crown, and it is our determination that no changes in our status, as people ot as governments, shall weaken our common allegiance to the Empire and its Sovereign."

John Bull likes the Imperial Conferences—the family gatherings of the Empire. The visible evidences of power and unity, stir the brave old heart of him. He loves to see a bit of London become the abiding place of special representatives of the vigorous young nations which set their own course, but are loyal to him. In Whitehall and Parliament Street, with the Houses of the Mother of Parliaments near by, are buildings where Overseas and British statesmen and officials meet on a common footing, for the solution of common problems. These are seen from varied angles, there is not always concord on every item. But the measure of these family gatherings is the strength of the British Empire of to-day.

WIT AND HUMOUR

A curate went to a race meeting, and after the big race of the day was met by a friend. "Well, padre," said the latter, "did you spot the winner?" "Oh, quite easily, thanks," replied the curate. "The jockey wore such bright colours and was so far ahead that I spotted him at once."

Little Mary enjoys motoring. Last week she was taken to the Salisbury Cathedral, which she explored with wondering eyes, not having been in a church since the day of her christening. The tour of the Cathedral finished, Mary had a suggestion to make: "Now let's go and see the bedrooms," she said. She wanted to know where the angels slept.

It was their first trip to London, and they thought it their duty to visit the British Museum. Among the treasures they looked at was a mummy, over which hung a placard on which was printed "B.C. 97." This completely mystified them. "What do you make out of that, Charlcs?" asked Maria. "I scarcely know," replied Charles, "but I have a suspicion that it was the number of the car that killed him."

Paddy and Mick were old pals, and they often went out for a day's rabbit-shooting together. Unfortunately, Paddy was not able to walk so far as of yore on account of the rheumatism, which caused him great pain when an attack came on. One day they were indulging in their favourite pastime and had been out for three hours without having brought any bunny to book. When they were crossing a field, Micky suddenly turned to his companion and shouted: "Paddy, can ye run, bejabers?" "I'm bust if I can," replied the rheumatic one. "You're bust if you can't," was Micky's unsympathetic response; "there's a blithering great bull after us."

This is a real fairy story. Once upon a time there was a young man named George, and he was the son of a farmer. Now, one morning George was sent out with a bucket to milk the cows. But he was tired of the dull life on the farm and went off to the city, where, after much hard work, he succeeded in amassing a fortune. Then he resolved to return home. When he arrived he embraced his parents and loaded them with costly presents of all kinds. To his father he gave a motor-car of a very expensive make, and to his mother a casket of wonderful jewellery. He had conjured up visions of hearty paternal grips and maternal embraces, but far from it. "George," said his father, "what have yer done with that there bucket?"

The Mudville Footer Club was a very progressive institution. In fact, they never needed to have the scythe put over their pitch, as not one of the members believed in letting the grass grow under his feet. They had decided that a new pavilion was necessary, and a load of bricks had been dumped in the field already to begin work. An aged supporter of the club came up one day, eyed the bricks, and then knit his brows as if in deep thought. When the secretary asked him what he was thinking about, he replied quietly: "Why didn't you get 'arf bricks? They would 'ave been much 'andier." "Why man," answered the secretary, "we couldn't use half-bricks for building a pavilion." "Oh, a pavilion!" sighed the old man. "I thought them bricks were for the referee!"

RULES MONTE CARLO

The Prince of Monaco, hereditary ruler of the tiny principality which includes the famous Monte Carlo. He is about to come to the United States. He disapproves of gambling and spends very little time in the country of which he is the ruler.

DIVING SUIT.

A diver from the salvage ship Blakely, descending in a new high pressure, armored diving suit, by mean of which Captain Benjamin Leavitt of the Blakely has salvaged the $600,000 cargo of the "Cape Horn" off the coast of Chile, at the record-breaking depth of 318 feet. In order to see at a depth where it is as dark as night, a special pressure-resisting deep-sea light (in the circle) was used. The lamu is a recent invention of the Westinghouse Co. With these two new inventions, the $4,000,000 in gold of the Lusitania, lying at a depth of 252 feet, will be easy of recovery.

FABLES ON HEALTH

MR. MANN'S EARACHE.

Children were not the only ones in the home of Mrs. Mann who had to be looked after.

Mr. Mann would get sick occasionally, and when he was ailing, everyone had to wait on him.

One night he had the earache. He could not eat supper, and he would not look at the evening paper.

Mrs. Mann knew a good remedy that the doctor had told her, however. So she filled the hot water bag and had Mr. Mann lie with the aching ear pressed against the bag.

Heat is one of the best remedies for earache, she told him.

If she had had no hot water bag, a piece of flannel, heated over a lamp even, and placed against the ear, would have proved effective.

Sometimes these remedies do not work. And then Mrs. Mann found that syringing the ear with hot water afforded a relief.

The water should be about 105 or 110 degrees Fahrenheit.

Babies who have earache should be taken to an ear specialist and a careful examination of the ears made.

In Texas they still tell the story of the Englishman who imported a famous wolfhound from Europe in order to gain wealth by catching wolves, for which the state paid a bounty of $10 a head.

When the dog came he invited some dyed-in-the-wool Texans to see the first chase. Before long a wolf was sighted, the dog was freed from his leash, and the chase was on, but though the party wandered mile after mile they found no trace of either the dog or the wolf. Finally they reached a clearing where a native was chopping wood, and the Britishes cried: "I say, old chap, did you see a wolf and a hound pass by here?"

"Sure did. They just passed.'

"And how was the race?"

"Prety hot, stranger; but the dog was a little bit ahead."

POLYGAMY IN DARKEST AFRICA

Why Women Regard It as a Boom to Them—Man's Privilege.

There is a women's question in Africa which is, perhaps, even more complicated than that which confronts people in highly civilized countries.

It is different from that of their white sisters, and yet in some respects the same, for the eternal feminine is there whatever the color of her skin.

Mrs. Annie Dundas, the wife of a British official, who has recently returned from East Africa, is well qualified to have views on the subjectm and she expresses them with great clarity in the volume just published, "Beneath African Glaciers" (Witherby).

To begin with, she deals very frankly with the question of polygamy.

"Polygamy is to the native the only normal condition of life. In certain tribes the female population exceeds that of the male by no less than 25 per cent., or even more. What, then, are the Africans to do with the surplus if and when a man restricts himself to one wife?"

Life is utterly blank for the African woman if she is denied the outlet for her energies provided by marriage, motherhood, and work for herself and her children.

Man's Questionable Privilege.

"It is a fallacy to believe that polygamy exists to the advantage of the husband, for rather it is a boon to the woman and a questionable privilege for the man. Considerations of social standing and numerous offspring carry weight, but in the majority of cases men are persuaded and even obliged by their spouses to take a second or more wives. The first, or "big wife," holds the place of honor, and not only vanity but the desire to be relieved of the sole burden of domestic duties prompts her to urge the husband to take a second wife. For the same reason the second wife will in due course inveigle her husband into a third marriage and so on.

The whole aspect of matrimonial life in Africa is radically different from what most people in this country conceive it to be. Each wife has her own hut, her own fields, and her separate portions of stock, so that she lives with her offspring as a semi-independent family.

"Among people who practise polygamy, the child necessarily grows up under the mother's care, and mother and child constitute a closer family circle than father and mother. So maternal influence is paramount in Africa.

"There is nothing in African relationships so enduring and fine as the love that mother and son bear for each other. So soon as the son is able to speak for himself he will unfailingly champion his mother against all, and woe betide the man who falls foul of his wife, and finds himself confronted with son and mother in close alliance."

Chief's Heroic Widow.

There are, as Mrs. Dundas tells us, not a few instances of women who have played a prominent and noble part in public affairs. One of these is the mother of Chief Shangali, the ruler of Machame.

In earlier days her husband, Ndesora, had given protection to a neighboring chief, Sina, but when Ndesora died the ungrateful Sina fell upon the land to oppose his patron's son and heir. He was but a boy, and disaster threatened the land.

"In this crisi Nuya set out through the forest, accompanied by one of her elders and a young girl leading a lamb, the sign of petition for peace. Undaunted, she approached the hostile army, and having gained access to the bloodthirsty warrior Sina she exhorted him to remember the gratitude he owed her husband, and to lay aside his arms. Sina, who never before had wavered in his warlike undertakings, was chastened, and gave peace."

Nuya is now a great-grandmother. She is the object of veneration to her people and, the author says, the embodiment of the best that her sex can show in Africa.

"Well, which way?" asked the Wreck. "Go ahead, I suppose."

"It seems to go ahead in a general direction of north," said Sally. "That's where the railroad is. I don't know where it runs in the other direction. I—I believe I'll leave it to you."

The Wreck nodded and drove ahead.

Both of them were rather cross, and both knew it; and after that the silence was long. Then the flivver came to a stop that had something inadvertent and ominous about it. The Wreck did not even lift the seat to examine the gas tank. He knew. He had, in fact, been expecting it for the last two hours.

For 15 minutes there was a tremendous boom in conversation. Didn't he know that he was running short of gas? He certainly did. Did she think he was asleep? Didn't he carry an extra five-gallon can? No, he didn't! How in blazes could he, when he had to pack two grips and a lot of other stuff? Why did he waste so much gas rambling over the ranges and getting lost? Why didn't she know where the road was, instead of trying to steer by a fool mountain? Where was he going to get any more gas? Oh, he was just going to stroll down to the corner and have them bring it up from the garage. Well, what was he going to do? Sit there and enjoy Montana? Did she think he was going to get out and push it?

After it had run like that for a while, Sally climbed down to the road and walked a bit, in sheer desperation.

Eventually she climbed back into the car, tried to make herself comfortable and succeeded in falling nto a doze. When she awoke it was dark and somebody was touching her on the arm.

"Wha-what's happened?"

"Nothing yet. We're still in the same place. But there's a car coming down the road and we'll get some help."

That roused her into full wakefulness. She whirled about and looked back over the darkened range. Far away, a mile at least, the twin white lights of an approaching car owed clear. The Wreck switched on his own tail light, and strolled down the road to greet rescue. Sally watched.

When he had gone about a hundred feet he stood in the middle of the road and waited. Presently, as the oncoming car drew nearer, she could see his figure outlined against the growing glare. She saw him hold up his hand and wave it. She heard the throb of a big motor stilled. Then he stepped out of the beam of light, and she could hear voices.

Perhaps a minute elapsed. Then the Wreck stepped briskly into sight again and advanced toward the flivver. There was something in his walk that instantly riveted her attention. It boded things.

"Where's that gun of yours?" he demanded, as he reached her side. "There's something about that outfit I don't like."

Sally had already located it. but she was puzzled.

"Who are they? What do they want?"

"I don't know who they are," said the Wreck. "But I want that gun. Here, get back in the car."

She had started to climb out, but he barred the way.

"If there's going to be any gunwork," declared Sally, "you'd better leave it to me. I know more about it than you do"

He reached for the holster, took it from her hand, and possessed himself of the six-shooter that it contained

"Don't leave this car," he commanded. "I'm going to attend to whatever has to be done. Nobody's going to get hurt. But I'm going to find out something damn quick."

He was gone again, hastening up the road toward the staring headlights.

CHAPTER V.

The Nervous Gunman.

It was a big black machine, long and squat and heavy, with luggage on the running-boards, luggage on the rear, three spares, and four occupants, one of them a chauffeur in uniform. The Wreck ignored the chauffeur, although he kept a urtive eye on him. He stepped close to the side of the tonneau and addressed himself to one of the three persons who sat there.

"I'm asking you again for a few gallons of gas," he said. "I've got to have it; that s all. You can spare me some without any trouble."

"And I'm still telling you to go to the devil," answered a heavy voice from the central figure. "We haven't got any gas to spare. And you'd better get busy and roll that flivver out of the road and et me get by. If you need any help, my driver is here."

"I don't want that kind of help," said the Wreck, still controlling his voice. "I want gas."

The heavy voice laughed.

"We're not running a tank wagon."

"We people with flivvers," declared the Wreck, slowly, "are not gas hogs. If I had as much gas as you've got in your tank I cou d run from here to New York. You're what I call a damned hog. All I'm asking is five gallons and I'll pay for it. Do I get it?"

"You do not,"

There was an abrupt change in the Wreck's demeanor. He stepped back a pace, pulled his cap close over his eyes and brought to view an object he had been concealing behind his back. Even in the gloom it was possible to get an idea of what it was.

"Stick 'em up!" he barked. "All hands. Be in a hurry now."

There was a feminine shriek from the tonneau, and the Wreck then and there first learned that one of them was a woman. But it was no time for courtesies.

"All up—everybody! You there, in the front seat! That's the idea. I want to see eight hands up all the time. And I don't want to see any funny movements, either."

He had to take it for granted that eight hands were up; he could not count them very clearly in the dark, particularly as his eyesight was none too keen. But that, of course, was something they did not know.

"Listen hard, now," he said, briskly. "When I tell you to do something, do it quick, and don't give me any back talk. I want everybody out of that car, on this side of the road. And just keep those hands up; I'll open the doors. It'll be awful good for your health if you bear in mind that I'm nervous. I'm apt to get excited. Everybody out, now; one at a time Line up!"

The driver came first, his arms stiffly aloft. Then three figures in single file from the tonneau, the last one wearing skirts. The person with the heavy voice coughed nervously.

"We'll give you five——"

"Shut up!" commanded the Wreck. "You'll give me anything I want. You three——" He indicated the passengers with a wave of the gun. "You three step out in front of those lights where I can keep a good eye on you. That's business. Stay there. Now, driver, got a can?"

"Ah—ah—yes, sir."

"Get it—and be careful you don't get anything else."

The man in uniform moved cautiously to the side of the car and unstrapped a five-gallon container from the running-board.

"It's full, sir," he said.

"Full, eh? Carrying extra gas and wouldn't give me a drop, eh? All right, you pick up that can and march—straight up the middle of the road."

For a few seconds it puzzled the Wreck what to do with the trio who still stood with their hands up in the glare of lights. He solved it by ordering them to a point midway between the two cars where he made them sit down and told them not to budge.

"My partner up here in the flivver," he explained, "is looking at you over a pair of sights. He's a pretty good shot. He's nervous, too."

The man with the five-gallon can walked ahead until the Wreck halted him within half a dozen paces of the stalled car. The Wreck stepped ahead to speak to Sally. He found that she had dismounted and was standing by the roadside, beyond the beam of light.

"You crazy——"

He placed a hand roughly across her lips.

"Shut up!" he whispered. "Stay where you are and say nothing. I'm running this."

Sally was boiling, but she obeyed. It seemed the only way to keep him from some other wild folly.

The Wreck called to the man with the can and, as he reached the flivver, told him he would find a funnel on the floor.

"Pour that stuff into the tank, and see to it that you don't spill any of it."

It gave him a small thrill of satisfaction to find himself smartly obeyed Then he marched the chauffeur ahead of him, back to the big car. As he passed the group in the road he tossed them a cheerful word of caution.

"My partner," he said, "notices one of you didn't keep his hands in plain sight. He says he wouldn't like to have it happen again."

The Wreck and the driver went directly to th rear of the gas-eating monster.

"How much in that tank?" demanded the Wreck.

"About fifteen, sir."

"Pet-cock in the bottom? You'd better have, if you don't want me to shoot a hole in the tank."

"Y-yes, sir. We got a pet-cock."

"Stick that can under it and let her go."

Presently the driver announced that the can was full, and the Wreck verified the statement.

"All right. Dump it out in the road."

The driver stared through the darkness.

'Dump it out!" And the Wreck executed the order himself by kicking the can over.

"Now fill it again," he commanded.

The second filling was accomplished.

"That'll do. That leaves you five gallons. It's too much for a hog, at that. Come along with the can, now."

They made a second trip to the flivver and emptied a second dose into the tank under the seat.

"Now we go back again," said the Wreck. "And when I tell you to do something, I don't want any questions asked."

"N-no, sir."

Once more at the side of the big car, the Wreck ordered his servant to lay aside the five-gallon can

"Got a tire pump on that engine?" he inquired.

"Yes sir."

"Rotten luxury But it's going to save your back a lot of work Get busy now and let the air out of those tires. All of it!"

The driver hesitated, from bewi'derment rather than insubordination. But he jumped to the task when the Wreck prodded him with the muzzle of Sally's six-shooter. The tires flattened themselves under the wheels, each with a long, shrill sigh.

"Open up those valves on the spares," direc ed the Wreck.

The spares also sang a swan song.

"There. That'l keep you busy for a while. Come along."

They joined the group of sitters in the middle of the road. Standing with his back to the headlights and carefully shielding his own face from illumination, the Wreck contemplated his victims for a moment.

"You!" he said, suddenly, with a significant gesture of the gun. "The big one who didn't want to sell any gas. Stand up!"

The owner of the heavy voice rose slowly to his feet, looking slightly anxious. Most of the belligerence had departed from him.

"I've a good mind to give you a trimming," said the Wreck, "but I haven't got time to do it right. I've met all kinds of hogs in my time, but you're in the blue-ribbon class. Maybe you don't know you're getting off light, but take it from me you are. If you think a flivver is funny, I'm going to give you a chance to play with it. Hump yourself!"

He urged the large man in the direction of the flivver, leaving the remainder of the group behind him. Sally had climbed back into the seat, and the Wreck joined her. He switched on his headlights and took the wheel, but he still had the gun in his hand.

"Now, you just lay hold of that crank and get to work, hog."

The gentleman with loud signs of wealth seized the crank and yanked it violently.

"Spin it," ordered the Wreck.

He spun it, but there was no answer from the engine.

"Spin it some more."

Not even a sputter.

"Spin it again—harder."

Still there was no response. The large man panted heavily and wiped his forehead.

"You going to keep me here all night?" demanded the Wreck. "If you don't spin that crank——"

There was another furious spell of whirling. Sally pinched her companion.

"How can he start it when you haven't turned on the ignition?" she said.

"He can't," said the Wreck. "Dogone it, what did you butt in for? I wanted to see him spin it."

He reached over, threw the switch, and the engine was off with a night-splitting clatter. The big man staggered wearily toward the side of the road. His gait was accelerated when a mudguard nudged him roughly as the flivver sprang into life. They heard him shout something; it sounded like a threat, although they could not catch the words. Then the Wreck took a solid grip on the wheel and began to drive.

Once Sally looked behind her. The headlights of the motionless car had faded to small points. She glanced at the Wreck. It was not possible to see his face clearly, but she could imagine the expression. He would be gritting his teeth and staring truculently at the road, quite in his glory. It was five minutes before she spoke, and then she cut loose.

"You've done it now!" she exclaimed. "You sure have fixed the pair of us this time. Have you gone stark mad?"

"Don't argue," advised the Wreck.

"Don't you know what you've done? Don't you realize anything? Do you think you can get away with a thing like that? Why, you've committed a crime! And if they catch us——"

REFUSE PEPALL HABEAS CORPUS

Judge Will Wait Reasonable Time for Ontario to Present Charges. Counsel's Wrath.

LOS ANGELES Jan. 27. (Canadian Press).—A writ of habeas corpus by Andrew Pepall, who is wanted by the Ontario Government to answer charges in connection with the recent provincial bond scandal, was denied yesterday by Judge Bledsoe, despite vigorous protests from counsel for the accused. The court, however, promises to consider the matter of bail in a few days, if certified copies of the Ontario warrants are not laid before him within a reasonable time.

"The liberty of the individual ought not to be held of lesser moment than our treaty obligations," the judge declared, in response to the argument that Pepall was being held without due process of law. Pepall's counsel bitterly attacked the Ontario Government, alleging that as far as they knew there was no complaint on file in Toronto against him.

After hearing the arguments, Judge Bledhoe said "I am not going to assume that this is a baseless prosecution. I will require, however, that the British Consul show me within reasonable time, certified copies of the warrant on which the Ontario Government is seeking to extradite Pepall. The writ is denied at this time, but if the official warrant is not presented to me in court before two o'clock Wednesday, I will consider the matter of releasing him on bail or setting him free."

FIRM OPTIMISM IN THE FUTURE

Keynote of Annual Meeting of Toronto Board of Trade.

RESTATE TARIFF.

TORONTO, Jan. 27 (Canadian Press).—An optimism based on the solid ground of accomplishment; faith in the future fathered by more than hope alone, and confidence, clearly expressed in the approach of better times for Canada, for Ontario and for Toronto was the key notes yesterday of the annual meeting of the Toronto Board of Trade.

The year 1925 it was freely predicted would reap the fruits of much of the comfortless strivings of 1924.

A re-statement of the Board's position on the tariff question, "That adequate protection was militant against prosperity, according to the claims of important industries," and favoring the appointment of a permanent tariff board, shared a place in the address of the retiring president, R. A. Stepells, with a comprehensive summary of general business conditions.

Perfect valour is to do without a witness all that we could do before the whole world.

HOME BREW CREW IN COURT TO-DAY

Bedraggled Quintette Faced Magistrate and Took Their Sentences.

With a brick wall between them and the office where an energetic prohibitionist has his daily being, a party of "home-brew" enthusiasts staged a celebration in the late hours of Sunday night and the early hours of Monday morning that cost them an aggregate of $300 in the Police Court this morning. There was nothing very hilarious about the bedraggled quintette that faced the magistrate this morning, and pleaded guilty, one to a charge of bartering or keeping liquor for sale, the others to charges of being intoxicated in a public place. A woman whho had come down from Toronto to visit friends in Peterborough and a young girl of nineteen were companions of the three men who were the instigators of the celebration. The man who faced the main charge was fined $200 and costs of $4, with the alternative of three months in jail, each of his male companions was fined $25 and costs of $5.50 apiece or a month in jail with hard labor, the woman was fined $15 and costs of $5.50, or ten days' imprisonment, the same alternative which faced the young girl, who was fined $10 and $4.50 costs. The accused were defended by J. A. O'Brien. All fines were paid.

SHE FELT LIKE A NEW WOMAN

Had Suffered for Just a Year With Backache, Lumbago and Neuralgia.

Ontario Lady Speaks Highly of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Sprucedale, Ont., Jan. 26.—(Special).—"I am pleased to say how much good your Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for me. I have suffered with backache, lumbago and neuralgia, and after I started using your Dodd's Kidney Pills I felt like a new woman. I will recommend your medicine any time." This statement comes from Mrs. G. Woonch of this place.

That Mrs. Woonch's troubles were caused by the kidneys is evidenced by the prompt and complete relief she got from Dodd's Kidney Pills. They act only on the kidneys. Diseased kidneys are the cause of nine-tenths of all the ills women are heir to.

Sound kidneys mean pure blood. Pure blood means good health.

Weak, nervous, run-down women should ask their neighbors about Dodd's Kidney Pills.

NORMAL PUPILS VISIT TORONTO

Meet Big City Normal Students in Yearly Competitions.

HONORS DIVIDED.

The Peterboro Normal representatives paid one of their most successful visits to Toronto on Friday, when they went to meet the Toronto Normal School in their yearly competitions. The results were almost even, and the games excedingly interesting.

On Friday evening the debate and oratorical contest were staged in the Toronto Normal assembly hall. Messrs. Percy Windrom (leader) and George Ball won from Messrs. Harris and Hardwick, on a debate entitled, "Resolved, that the Conservative party in England was justified in ousting the Labor party on a minor issue." Peterboro took the affirmative. Although Toronto won the decision, it was close, two judges deciding for Toronto and one for Peterboro. Miss Dixon of Peterboro gave her address on "The Pioneer Women of Canada." Over seven hundred heard these friendly contests.

Hockey Game.

The Toronto boys got the decision in a 2 to 1 hockey match. The game at best should have been a tie. Roy Cornish scored Peterboro's lone tally and both the Toronto ones were flukes. One of Toronto's scores came when a long shaky shot from centre glanced off G. Pinkham's stick into the goal.

When the Toronto boys hook up with the P.N.S. boys on February 6th, it will be a battle worth seeing. The last game was clean, two penalties being issued, one to Toronto and one to Peterboro. The Toronto Normal lads admit Peterboro's moral victory, but hope to win the decision again next time also.

Won Basketball

The Peterboro Normal girls were cheered and commended by all when they earned the decision in their basketball. P.N.S. girls came from behind to win, 21 to 18, and they showed great skill and pluck. Miss Jones starred for the winners.

Both the basketball games were played in the Jarvis Street School because of its size.

Our boys, after leading 9 to 4 up to almost the last, lost out 9 to 13. The Toronto boys put in the captain of their first team after the Petes slowed up on account of fatigue. He turned the tide, and Toronto won. P. Peterson scored four baskets for Peterboro and N. MacNulty made one point on a penalty throw. Conspicuous throughout the games was the Pete Normal cheer squad, led by Douglas Deyell.

The Peterboro gang received the best of attention from the Toronto staff and students and are looking forward eagerly to February 6th, when they will have a chance to repay this at least in part.

MONTREAL, Jan. 27 (Canadian Press).—The first international tie-in radio broadcast ever attempted will be undertaken next Wednesday night, when CNRO, the Ottawa broadcasting station of the Canadian National Railways, will tie-in with stations in six cites in the United States for the broadcasting of a programme from New York. The addresses and music will be broadcast between 8.30 and 10.30 o'clock.

RESCUE TYPE TUG BOUGHT BY C.P.R.

"St. Florence," Built for War Service in 1917 by John Brown and Co.

VICTORIA, Jan. 27.—(Canadian Press).—The most recent addition to the Canadian Pacific Railways British Columbia fleet of 28 passenger ships, freighters, barges, ferries and tugs, is the British Admiralty rescue type tug St. Florence, which will leave Glasgow at an early date to make the 8,500-mile journey to Victoria under her own steam, via the Panama Canal. The St. Florence was built for war service in 1917, and was purchased for the Canadian Pacific by Captain J. W. Troup, manager of the company's B. C. coast services, who is now en route to Victoria on board the S.S. Princess Kathleen, one of the two new sister ships built by John Brown and Co., Clydebank, for the triangle line between Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle.

SECOND CHURCH TO ENTER UNION IN PETERBORO'

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Decides by Small Majority Vote.

211 FOR; 191 AGAINST.

Campaign Was Free From Bitterness Under Sympathetic Hand of Pastor.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, the second congregation to vote on the Church Union question in Peterboro, concluded its ballot last night and showed a decision to enter the United Church by a small majority. The vote was: For Union 211; against Union 191; majority for Union 20.

This, with one spoiled ballot, represents a vote of 403 out of a possible 515. Knox Presbyterian Church completed its vote a week ago, entering Union by a substantial majority, and St. Paul's Church is now voting.

The ballotting started in St. Andrew's on January 12, and lasted two weeks, as required by the Act of Parliament. Many of the members being out of the city and some being ill, the vote was smaller than would have been polled at another season.

The campaign in this church was strenuous, but, on a question on which very decided opinions were held, it was remarkably free from bitterness. The greatest spirit of toleration and sympathy existed between the two parties and between them and the pastor, Rev. J. W. Gordon.

Richard Lees was the returning officer, and after he made his report the congregation dispersed without any discussion on the result.

ANNUAL MEETING ST. LUKE'S VESTRY

Financial Reports Were of a Very Satisfactory Nature.

Annual vestry meeting of St.Luke's church was held on Monday evening, and was well attended. Rev. George J. Bousfield, Rector, acted as chairman.

The Church Warden's financial report, and the reports of the various organizations, were of a very satisfactory nature. Those reporting were Ladies' Auxiliary, Junior Auxiliary, Women's Guild, Sunday School, A.Y.P.A., and the Chancel Guild.

A troup of Boy Scouts, under the leadership of William Hepburn, and a 'teen age auxiliary with Miss Muriel Curtis as superintendent, are now being formed.

Mr. Perry, the People's Warden, called the attention of the Vestry to the fact that the parish would be 50 years old in 1926, and suggested that it would soon be time to consider how to fittingly celebrate the event.

The appointing of Sidesmen was left to a small committee to report to the Rector, who agreed to announce during divine service, the names of those nominated.

E. A. Peck was appointed to the Nicholls Hospital Board, R. B. Rogers to the Charity Board, Mrs. R. H. Parsons to the Protestant Home Board, Mr. R. H. Parsons Vestry Clerk. The Auditors are Frank Adams and E. A. Peck.

At the meeting for the election of lay delegates to the Diocesan Synod the following were chosen: R. B. Rogers, H. A. Perry and J. J. Turner.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

INCREASING OPPOSITION TO CHURCH UNION.

The general character of the defeat which now faces the Church Union movement is indicated by the telegraphic despatches received today from various points throughout Canada. These show that out of 23 churches reporting, 20 voted against Union and only 3 in favor. Among the twenty churches were three Toronto churches, Victoria, St. John's, and Forest Hill. These make 10 congregations in succession in Toronto and vicinity which have voted against Union since any voted for it. The anti-Union majority by congregations also is increasing steadily. Victoria Church voted against Union by a majority of 218, and St. John's Church by 358.

Four churches in the Edmonton district, Alberta, are reported against Union, again disproving the claim that the West was solidly for Union, and two in Nova Scotia. At Milton, Ont. Knox Church voted 75 for Union and 235 against, or by over 3 to 1. At Huntsville, St. Andrew's congregation voted by 4 to 1 against Union. At Port Colborne, in The First Presbyterian Church, only 25 members voted for Union out of a total vote of 277, leaving a majority of 252. In 1915 this congregation voted for Union.

An examination of the number of congregations by provinces which the Unionists claim have voted for Union shows that over half these congregations are in the provinces of Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, which contain less than one-fifth of the total membership of the Presbyterian Church.

Peterboro Branch, Presbyterian Church Association.

KNOX CHURCH RECITAL.

(By Jeannette).

Although the attendance at the organ and vocal recital given in Knox Presbyterian Church last evening by Dorothy Allan Park, soprano, and Charles Peaker, organist, was not over large, there being only about one hundred and fifty people present, it was an appreciative and interested audience that listened to a charming recital of vocal and instrumental music by two talented artists. The programme contained some impressive numbers in both types of music, and was pleasingly timed and diversified in atmosphere.

The programme opened with one of the most brilliant of Bach's great organ works, the "Prelude and Fugue in D Major," the first movement majestic and impressive, the second animated and lively. The skilful ease of Mr. Peaker's organ playing, the splendid co-ordination between feet and hands that means so much to a student of the organ, and his fine powers of memory, were exemplified in this selection and had further manifestations in later numbers, which included an interesting modern trio, Samazeuilh's "Prelude," unusual and minor-toned, Hollins' "Intermezzo in D flat," with graceful, gliding measures, and Vierne's 'Allegro Vivace,' a bright, joyous number, characterized by little rippling runs. Renewed applause that brought a bright encore followed the rendition on the organ of Bairstow's 'Evening Song,' a descriptive number whose smoothly-flowing, mild cadences rolled out in attractive fashion. Applause also followed Mr. Peaker's final contribution to the programme, the exacting "Variations de Concert," a piece classical in form, drawing upon all the resources of an organist, and containing a remarkable cadenza for manual and pedal, including arpeggios and chords for the feet alone.

Mrs. Park's beautiful voice, with its clarity of tone, impeccable enunciation, and the quality of dramatic interpretation which this singer possesses to a great degree, a quality that adds atmosphere to every selection on a diversified programme, was heard to splendid advantage last night. Applause greeted Mrs. Park's initial appearance, and applause echoed loudly at the conclusion of the little encore which followed her final song. This encore, "Ma Curly-Headed Babby," with its exquisite sleepy-song strains, the nodding head of a drowsy pickaninny almost visible to an enthralled audience, was one of the most artistic bits of a very fine programme of vocal numbers. Another beautiful song that held her audience spellbound was the Old Irish selection, "Danny Boy," with its poignant sweetpess and pathos.

Mrs. Park's opening song was "Hear Ye, Israel," the famous soprano aria from Mendelssohn's oratorio "Elijah." This, with organ accompaniment, was a powerful and impressive selection, the high, clear cry of the declaiming singer repeated in the spoken type of song in which Mrs. Park excels.

A group of three numbers followed; two charming bed-time songs, Corner's "Old English Lullaby," with soft, flowing cadences, and Brahms' "Little Sandman," in sweet, silvery accents, with tinkling accompaniment. The third offering was the powerful and sorrowful lament of an outcast race, the traditional Yiddish melody, "Elili, Elili, lama sabach thani," the Hebrew phrase which recurs throughout, and is said to be Christ's last sentence upon the Cross; "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken me." The dramatic demands of this impressive number were adequately met by the singer, who gave a splendid interpretation, in pure, soaring tones, vibrating to a final cry for mercy.

A little group of Old Country folk songs was extremely attractive and illustrated finely the versatility of the singer's method. "Danny Boy" was wonderfully sung, with "Leezie Lindsay," the stirring romance in verse of the Scots lassie who loved "Lord Ronald MacDonald," was bright and breezy. "Early One Morning" and "No, John," were examples of the Old English melodies, the first the dainty expressive music of the lovelorn maiden, the last a jaunty little love song, forming a cheerful ending to a splendid programme.

Accompaniments for Mrs. Park's songs were played very capably by Mr. Peaker.

L.O.L. 1175 AT HOME.

Over Three Hundred Attended—Robert Hendry Receives Jewel.

L.O.L., 1175, held a very successful and well-attended "At Home" in Victoria Hall last evening. About three hundred and fifty people enjoyed the card games and musical programme which formed the entertainment. Prize winners at cards were Mrs. D. Manley and Mr. R. Hendry. Following the card games and dispensing of dainty refreshments, a number of well-received selections were given by the Singing Scots, Messrs R. Hendry and J. Smith.

During the evening, Mayor Turner made the presentation of a Past Master's jewel to Robert Hendry.

Mundane World Pauses To Honour An Aged Man

CHICAGO, Ills., — The world of affairs has paused a moment at the door of Sister Mary Rose, an aged Chicago nun to do honor to a wrinkled little woman who 50 years ago left the world behind.

Industrial magnates, professional men, friends and sister nuns gathered at the Good Shepperd Convent here, to honor Sister Rose on the occasion of her golden jubilee.

Sister Rose entered the convent here before the Chicago fire, which destroyed the Good Shepperd Convent. Before she took the veil she was Mary Cassin of Stratford, Ont., Canada. Sister Rose was 16 years of age when she became a nun.

Protests Union; Resigns.

Rev. Dr. Drummond Says Anti Strength Warrants Repeal of Act.

HAMILTON, Jan. 27.—(Canadian Press).—Rev. Dr. Drummond, minister of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, chairman of the General Board of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, has tendered his resignation as chairman of the committee, as a protest against the advance into Union. He expresses the view that the strength of the anti-Union vote is sufficient to warrant the Church in seeking a repeal of the United Church of Canada Act.

Police Find Gas Pistol; Owner Didn't Mean Harm

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 (Canadian Press).—The police laid their hands yesterday upon a weapon unlike any they had ever encountered before. It is a "gas" pistol, found in possession of Elmer Lowes, who admitted it contained gas that, when discharged, rendered a man instantly unconscious; but the effects, he said, last but a few minutes. Lowes insisted that possession of the gas pistol by him as well as the possession of a new and wicked type of blackjack was wholly innocent. The police are taking steps to have the gas analyzed.

PLAN TO START BUILD SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT

Specifications Will be Submitted to Provincial Board This Week.

HAUL GRAVEL.

Sewer Facilities for River Front Planned in the Near Future.

The first meeting of the Board of Works for 1925 was held last night, the principal discussion being on the construction of the sewage disposal plant.

A report from the city engineer on providing sewer facilities for Quaker Oats Co., the Gas Works, and the C.P.R. freight sheds was presented by the Board of Halth. At present these discharge into the river and the Board of Health is urging the installation on health grounds. The cost will be about $9,012, and the yearly charge for power and maintenance about $250. The sewage would, under this plan, be piped to Simcoe Street and there pumped automatically to the city sewer at Queen Street.

The parties affected will be interviewed by a select committee with a view to apportioning the cost of construction.

Second Station.

Another pumping station will be required at Smith Street to take care of sewage from homes on Smith Street and Elcome Crescent. The City Engineer will investigate and bring in a report on the system he recommends.

Start Work Early

Alderman McIntyre had a staunch supporter in the chairman for his proposal that all work connected with the sewage disposal plant, street paving and city work generally should be taken early in the year. In following up this idea, Mayor Turner moved that in the event of the plans for the sewage disposal plant being passed when presented to the Provincial Board of Health on Friday, the Citiy Engineer be authorized to call for tenders immediately, and that he be instructed to enter a tender.

In preparation for construction and in view of the easy hauling on the river ice, the City Engineer was instructed to purchase the balance of the gravel required.

Street Signs

Alderman McIntyre broached the question of street signs. Mayor Turner suggested waiting until the estimates are drawn. Alderman Denne urged immediate action, since he thought better prices could be obtained now than later. Alderman Greene pointed out the nuisance caused by people coming into business places for guidance to certain streets. Tenders will be called for.

Alderman Phelan asked that the committee chairmen draw up their estimates immediately, and get the tax rate by-law through earlier.

And the Paving.

Paving was tackled by Alderman Jones, and he in turn was tackled by Alderman Crowe. Alderman Jones wanted a little done every year and the latter said he would not support the laying of one foot of paving this year.

Alderman Turner said the Board of Education has plans for an addition to the Collegiate Institute and the city has a big contract in the sewage disposal plant, and the paving should be left over until later.

Alderman Crowe asked how the council expected the people to pay for paving with fifty per cent. of them idle.

There were phesent Chairman J. O. Fife, Mayor J. J. Turner, Aldermen Joseph Crowe, Malcolm McIntyre, Roland Denne, E. Melville Turner, J. Mendell Greene, R. N. Jones, Walter Stocker, Nagle E. Phlen and City Engineer Roy H. Parsons.

He never gets to the top who waits for some one to push him up.

Foster Mother Wanted To Pay Funeral Costs Of Child She Adopted

The true spirit of service was wellillustrated in the following incident, which was reported to J. J. Kelso by one of the Children's Aid Societies:

A poor woman had adopted a delicate child, but after a lengthy illness it died. The Society offered to defray the funeral expenses, but she said, "No, I want to feel it was my very own, and will be happier if I pay it all myself."

It took her weeks of self-denying labour to make up the amount, and she seemed to find great joy and satisfaction in this voluntary sacrifice.

McGough, arrested recently in connection with an alleged plot to blow up British battleships and submarines, were committed for trial. The charge against the men was illegal dissemination of naval secrets. At the preliminary hearing yesterday, counsel alleged there was evidence to indicate that the defendants were Irish Republican army intelligence officers.

The magistrate admitted McGough to bail in £3,000, but refused bail for O'Leary.

WALKING FOR HEALTH

The Public Doesn't Realize the Advantages of Walking—Specially Recommended for Office Workers—Beneficial for Persons of All Ages.

The United States Public Health Service declares that walking is fast falling into disuse by the people of the United States because of the increasing use of the motor car and other modern means of transportation. The service points out that this is regrettable because of the many valuable functions, among which it mentions exercise, diversion and assistance in health maintenance, of walking. The failure of walking to be more popular is largely due to lack of appreciation of its advantages, the Public Service believes, and in a recent radio broadcast it tells of some of the advantages to be got from this form of locomotion.

"Any doubt that may exist in one's mind as to the unpopularity of walking," says the lecture, "may be dispelled by noting the small number of pedestrians along streets or roads well adapted to this form of exercise. On some popular boulevards few, if any, persons on foot are to be seen in a space of several miles. At the same time, hundreds of motor cars hurtle by, their occupants lolling in their seats and gazing indolently upon the rapidly passing scenery. There is no desire to disparage the legitimate use of the automobile, for this agent of modern civilization has brought numerous blessings. However, many of the drivers who proceed at an unnecessarily rapid pace do not utilize the time gained to advantage. As an aid in reducing automobile accidents, it is recommended that all drivers occasionally obtain some personal experience as pedestrians. They will undoubtedly acquire thereby an increased respect for the rights of the persons on foot and accordingly drive more carefully.

"With the advent of rapid individual transportation walking for pleasure has fallen largely into the discard. Even school children are driven short distances to school when the trip could be made advantageously by walking. Children without means of transportation are acquiring the habit of spending fifteen or more minutes on street corners soliciting rides from passerby, when the same amount of time expended in walking would afford moderate exercise and would enable them to reach the school quickly.

Diversion for All.

"The failure of walking to achieve wider popularity is due in large part to lack of appreciation of the advantages accruing from this commonest form of exercise. Walking is primarily recreational in character, for it offers changes of scene which are not too rapid for assimilation and appreciation. To one who is observant there is a never-failing variety of interesting occurrences and objects for observation. For one who is deficient in powers of observation there is an excellent opportunity for sharpening the senses of perception. No matter what may be the particular hobby of the walker, whether birds, trees, architecture, animals, or automobiles, there is abundant opportunity for satisfying study of these objects while taking a leisurely stroll or an invigorating walk.

"Walking has the disadvantage of being free. Most diversions, on the other hand, cannot be indulged in without acquiring some apparatus or belonging to a special organization or club. Walking also has the misfortune of being a relatively mild exercise, offering little opportunity for competition, while many other sports stress strenuous activity and offer numerous chances for excelling. Therefore, the value of walking is apt to be minimized by the public, which is most appreciative of the things that only may be obtained by effort and expense. In mentioning such admirable and health-giving exercise as may be afforded by swimming, rowing, golfing, tennis, gymnastic exercise and the like, it must not be understood that their use is deprecated. Quite on the contrary, it is desired to recommend these diversions most highly to those who can take advantage of them. In many instances, however, the exercises mentioned are too strenuous to be indulged in by every one or are not readily adaiable. Walking, on the other hand, requiring as it does only a willing spirit and a pair of legs, may be indulged in without special preparation and with the knowledge that the exercise will act beneficially.

"Walking is particularly needed by so-called brain workers, for this class, by reason of sedentary or mental occupations, seldom secures the amount of exercise essential to well-being. It is a matter of almost common knowledtge that manual laborers, farmers, ranch men, post men and those engaged in similar occupations are far less subject to attacks of apoplexy and various organic derangements than are brain-workers. Mental fatigue, headache, insomnia and other danger signals of overwork are often disregarded by brain-workers, and reliance is placed upon dangerous and temporary forms of artificial relief. Walking is not a panacea for all of the ills to which man is heri but it frequently will improve the health of the person who is, by choice or necessity, compelled to work indoors in an artificial environment.

Stimulates the Blood.

"By reason of the exercise involved, systematic walking diverts a largely increased volume of blood to the muscular system and particularly to the lower extremities. As a result congestion in the internal organs is diminished. Walking is not an easy exercise, especially to those inured to the comforts of the automobile cushion. In order to obtain the real value of locomotion it must be taken up as an earnest enterprise to be performed for physical and mental advantage. Many who have forgotten the pleasures of walking will be surprised when they rehabilitate this form of exercise. Among other things they will tire easily and be astonished at their shortness of breath. However, by pursuing the exercise diligently they will notice a sensation of buoyancy and well-being that will offer ample reward for the time and energy expended.

"Until one is accustomed to walking it is best to cover only short distances. Then, as the muscles and mind become familiar with the pleasant talsk of waking, the distance may be increased. A daily walk is better than an occasional one, and a speed of three miles an hour is an economical one for the human machinery. Occasionally a hill or some rough ground should be sought, so that the lungs may be caused to expand and thle efficiency of the leg muscles tested. Ederly persons and those with organic impairment should, of course, confine themselves to appropriately short and level walks, avoiding heart strain or undue exertion. A leisurely walk in the open on leasant days remains a most beneficial exercise for the aged.

"Probably the best time of the day for a walk is after office hours and before the heavy meal of the evening. At this time the mind rather than the body is fatirgued. An hour's walk does much to incease the appetite, disseminate the fatigue poison and fit one for sound sleep. A walk in the morning following breakfast also has its devotees, for then the air is stimulating and the mind is sufficiently alert to appreciate nature's ever-changing moods. As a time for thinking or planning, a walk offers manifest advantages.

"No great amount of preparation is required to obtain the benefits of a walk. Of course, the shoes worn should have fairly stout soles and be comfortable. Tight and high heel shoes are incongruous and can only cause discomfort. Ill-fitting and darned socks may also detract from the pleasures of a walk. The chilling of the body through perspiration should be avoided by wearing appropriate clothing and making a change after the walk. Wetting of the feet should be studiously avoided by wearing proper footgear.

"To one who is seeking the novel combination of pleasant diversion, mild exercise and good health, walking may be recommended as a valuable adjunct to careful living."

INDIAN BLINDS RIVAL.

Then Forgives Squaw and Peace Reigns on Iowa Reservation.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, Jan. 27.—Amos Morgan, Sac and Fox Indian, who a week ago blinded his rival, Albert Moore, yesterday forgave his wife her transgressions and peace reigns on the Tama Reservation again after a week of excitement.

Morgan told reservation officials that he did not intend to kill Moore, but to mar his features and blind him so that he would not prove attractive to other squaws. When informed that Moore might retain the sight of one eye if he recovered, Morgan expressed the wish that his rival would be permanently blind.

Moore is still in hospital on the reservation, but Federal Marshal M. L. Healy plans to bring him to Cedar Rapids this week for arraignment on the warront charging him with contributing to the delinquency of Mrs. Morgan.

MANHATTAN DAYS AND NIGHTS NUMBERING THE PEOPLE

History of Census Taking—Canada the First Country to Have a Census in a Modern Sense — The Objects and Use of the Work.

By HERBERT COREY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—One of the press agents had a pretty good time at a cabaret the other night. Spent $1,000 for wine. Which, if you ask me, is the positive topnotch for press agent expenditure. Especially as it came from his own pocket and not from that of the kind-faced old genteman who employs him.

All of which leads to a query as to just how far and how much the Volstead act functions in this town.

But I started to write about a party that ran for three days and nights in an uptown home. Some of the guests dropped in for a few hours, and when they had been revived with the aid of aromatic spirits of ammonia and a restorative bite on the lobe of the ear dropped out again. Others stayed for the three days and nights. Eighteen young women dancers did their stunts, and were paid $500 each for the engagement. The little show is supposed to have cost the host something close to $75,000.

What price the Early Roman orgies now?

* * *

Last night I dined at a little restaurant in the Forties, just off Broadway. Almost every guest was a man of some prominence in some line of modern endeavor. There were actors, fighters, bootleggers, writers and gamblers. It has been a house of call for night New York for years.

The point, if there is a point in this paragraph, is that the chief dish last night was corned beef and cabbage—but corned beef and cabbage of an excellence unutterable. French cooking has never been heard of here. The dishes are always heavy, rich and well cooked. The rice pudding with cream would fatten a steam derrick in three applications. And the boss has made a fortune.

Pity the other restaurant keepers of New York would not take the hint.

* * *

I have determined to wise up in the matter of taxicabs. After all, there is no reason why I should continue to be a fathead to the end of my days.

In the last two days I have cabbed at a cost of from 60 cents to 20 cents a mile. The flag has dropped on sums that varied from a dime to 30 cents for the first quarter of a mile. There was no noticeable difference in cab quality, and the very meanest one was the most expensive.

* * *

Taxis are really forced on one, because of the congestion of the streets. Rather than take a chance on being knocked down while walking, one prefers to take a chance of escaping a collision in a cab. That means that more cabs are needed to satisfy the growing demands of the population, which means that the streets are becoming more congested and unsafe.

One of my personal reforms is to limit my tip to a dime on sums of less than a dollar. After all, no taxi driver more than grunts when he is tipped. The grunt might as well be a hostile one. I never expect to meet the driver socially.

* * *

This may not be a new story, but it makes me laugh. A timid little girl in a New York office asked a few days off because her father was sick. The office boss was a follower of Coue.

"Your father just thinks he's sick," he said.

At the end of a week the girl returned, wearing crepe.

"How's your father," asked the office boss.

"He thinks he's dead," said she.

* * *

Met seven silk hats in Fifth Avenue this afternoon. Like a hound on the trail, I sniffed up the avenue until I came to the wedding. A red awning had been stretched over the pavement. Various items of the proletariat were still hanging around, rubbering into the church from which the bridal party had long since fled.

One never sees silk hats except at such a function nowadays. Yet the time was when the western visitor got into his dinner coat in the cab on the way from the station. And always carried a silk hat.

PLANS FOR WAR AREA.

Inhabitants of Devastated French District to Pay for Reconstruction.

PARIS, January 27. — It is announced that expenditure this year for reconstruction of the devastated districts will be reduced to 6 billion francs.

The Credit National will be expected to pay only a comparatively small portion of this total sum.

A greater portion will be paid by the inhabitants of the district in the form of Treasury bonds instead of cash. The remainder is expected to be provided for through supplies from Germany under the "deliveries in kind" arangement of the Dawes plan.

GERMAN PRICES HIGHER.

Grain Prices, However, Advance Only Slightly.

BERLIN, January 27. — The index of wholesale German prices as of 14th January is stated at 138.9, against 136.4 one week earlier.

The cost of living index stands at 124, against 123.8.

Reacting to the American news, the grain market at Berlin was strong last week. Nevertheless the supplies seemed to be adequate, and prices have risen only slightly.

Publicly supported unemployed workmen as now reported for the date of 15th December numbered 458,125, against 425,136 on 15th November.

"Tired and Worried Nervous and Despondent"

Mrs. M. Chevalier, Belle River, Ont., writes:

"For eight years I suffered from despondency and nervousness. Sometimes I could not sleep at night for worrying and the next day I would be so tired that my work was a burden to me. I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and can say I am now entirely relieved of the nervousness from which I used to suffer, and things do not worry me as they used to.

"Dr. Chase's Ointment also relieved me of eczema on my arms, which had bothered me for three years. My house is never without Dr. Chase's Medicines."

EXPLORATION SHIP ON A NEW JOURNEY

"The Quest," Made Famous by Shackleton, Will Sail Polar Sea.

OSLO, Norway, Jan. 27.—(Canadian Press.)—Sir Ernest Shackleton's famous exploration ship, the "Quest," a sturdy veteran of the Antarctic this year will penetrate the frozen realms of the Polar seas. It will carry two punting expeditions, one to the White sea by way of Nova Zembla, and Franz Josef Land, returning by way of Bear Island and Spitzbergen, and the other to the remote island of Jan Mayen and the east coast of Greenland. Seal, reindeer, polar bear and musk oxen will be the principal game sought.

Captain Schielderup, noted northern skipper and sailing master of the Oxford University Arctic expedition in 1923, will be in command of the Quest.

KILLED IN FIRE.

Firemen Thrown Into Basement When Floor Collapsed—Damage $40,000.

FRAMINGHAM, Mass., Jan. 27.—(Canadian Press). — One man was killed and thirteen persons were injured last night in a fire which swept the basement and lower floors of the Kendall Hotel building here. The loss was estimated at $40,000.

William Welch, an employee of the city water department, who with eight firemen was thrown into the basement when the ground floor caved in, died before the rescue party reached him. The firemen were rescued.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

ANTI-UNION VOTE GROWING.

Since the last summary of the returns on the voting by ballot in the Presbyterian Churches in the Peterboro Presbytery was given in The Examiner, three more churches have voted. Of these, St. Andrew's in Peterboro voted by a small majority to enter Union, and the Havelock and Campbellford congregations by large majorities not to enter Union. The result is that the majority of votes against Union in the Peterboro Presbytery, where these votes have been taken by ballot, shows a large increase. The vote at present stands as follows:

	For	Against
For Union—
Westwood	45	42
Keene	114	74
Garden Hill	27	8
Knox, Peterboro	293	131
St. Andrew's, Peterboro	211	191
Against Union—
Campbellford	119	285
Hastings	8	113
Millbrook	32	96
Warkworth	84	95
Colborne	16	88
Lakeport	6	20
Havelock	16	99
	971	1242

Majority for Presbyterians—271.

Local Presbyterians are well satisfied with the way the vote is going in the Peterboro Presbytery. It shows how widespread is the opposition to Church Union, and taken with the vote in other parts of the province, indicates that the Church Unionists are likely to have a difficult time when they try to get their legislation through the Legislature at its approaching session. Until the Ontario Legislature has passed the Church Union Bill not a single cent's worth of church property can be transferred into the United Church.

VESTRY REPORT SPLENDID YEAR FOR ST. JOHN'S

Ninety-eighth Annual Meeting—Lively Growth is Shown.

ORGANIZATIONS BUSY.

Discuss Project to Extend Parish House on Centenary in 1927.

The annual Vestry meeting of St. John's church was held last evening in the Parish House. The Vicar, Rev. Dr. Blagrave, opened the meeting with prayer after which the Vestry Clerk, Mr. G. A. Smith, read the minutes of the last meeting. The Vicar then gave brief review of the year's work, expressing appreciation of the splendid work done by the various organizations of the parish, and of the spirit of harmony and co-operation which has characterized the church's life throughout the year. Reference was made to gifts offered during the year; penants for the parish hall by Mrs. A. E. Coultard; the provision of a flag for the church flag staff on several occasions by Mr. A. W. Turner; of a used furnace, which was temporarily installed in the parish house, given by Mr. J. A. Aylmer; of altar vases, by Mrs. H. H. Cameron; and silver offertory plates, by Mr. F. M. DelaFosse.

The faithful assistance rendered by Mr. R. N. Stuart as lay reader, and by Bert Graham and Jack Collis as boys' workers, and by Mr. E. Sorby, as superintendent of the Sunday school, was referred to.

The financial report presented by Mr. E. S. Martin, People's Warden, showed all current expenses paid in full and a small balance over.

A garage was built during the year and $900 paid off the Rectory debt by the Church Woman's Association, as well as repairs taken care of.

The sum of $1684.89 was paid for extra-parochial objects, much the largest amount ever paid for this purpose, and a synod assessment of $190.70. The W.A. sent the value of $555.00 also to missions; the evening branch $109.05, and the Juniors $70.89.

Reports were received from the Sunday school, the choir, the A.Y.P.A., the B.S.A., Chancel Chapter, Women's Friendly Bible Class, and Boys Club, in addition to the C.W.A. and W. A. branches reporting all in a healthy condition.

Feeling reference was made to the loss of the late Frank Linton, who for many years was the official auditor, and a loyal member of St John's.

The choir, Mr. R. R. Ford, sexton, and Mr. Butcher, chimer, were thanked for their services.

In view of the centenary of the commencement of regular Anglican services in this city occurring in 1927 a proposition was discussed as extension of the parish house and the installing of a new organ as worthy achievements for the proper celebration of the centenary in June of that year. The matter was referred back to the Advisory Board to report to a meeting of the congegation to be held in the near future.

The total offerings by the congregation for all purposes amounted to $12,232.77.

CHURCH REPORTS WERE EXCELLENT

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Holds Annual Meeting—New School.

The annual meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held in the Sunday school auditorium on Thursday evening last, Mr. Richard Lees presiding. Reports of the various church organizations; the Session, the Choir, the Ladies' Aid Society, the Sunday School, Mr. Kerr's Bible Class, the Women's Missionary Society, the Elizabeth Bell Auxiliary, the Willing Workers' Mission Band and the Men's Association, were presented, showing activity in every department.

The report of the Board of Managers showed that all expenses of the church had been taken care of, even with an unavoidable increase over previous years, and the overdraft existing at the end of 1923 had been reduced from $1116 to $458. The new Sunday school building had added materially to the successful endeavors of all church societies.

The five retiring members of the Board of Managers were re-appointed to office in Messrs. R. M. Glover, Gordon Grier, Alex. Weddell, George Tremain and E. Latimer. Mr. John Read was re-appointed as St. Andrew's Church representative on the Charity Board, Mr. Wm. Langford on the Nicholls Hospital Board of Managers, Mrs. Chas. McClelland on the Protestant Home Board, and Breckenridge were re-appointed auditors for the coming year.

At the close of the business session, refreshments were served by the Ladies' Aid Society.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

COMICAL MINSTREL TALENT.

With Lawrence Baker, "Spareribs" Jones, "Slim Jim" Austin, Will Merritt, Noah Robinson, the comedy of Harvey's Greater Minstrels would be superior to other similar shows without JakieSmith, Chas. Beechman and Frang Kirk. After all there cannot be too much comedy in a Minstrel, provided of course it is clean-cut and of an irresistable kind.

Manager Harvey is justly proud of all the talent he has secured, and although it is expensive to pay high salaries to so many clever people, yet it is a lot of satisfaction to the manager to feel assured that no matter where the Harvey Greater Minstrels play, it is going to please the patrons.

However, none of the above coterie of experts are funnie than Frank Kirk as he is playing the banjo and singing with a lighted cigar in his lips ,that he apparently swallows the cigar and continues to sing as smoke pours from his mouth like lava from a volcano.

Kirk's performance is clever but likewise is the work of Alonzo Moore the man of much mystery, the four old men dancing number and the comedy acrobatic buck and wing dancing of Buster Miller.

This company will be at the Grand on Saturday Matinee and night.

AT THE ROYAL.

BETTY COMPSON AS SPLENDID AS EVER.

Popular Star Excellent in Principal Role of "Ramshackle House."

Beautiful and competent, as always, Betty Compson achieved another triumph as the charming occupant of "Ramshackle House," which opened last night at the Royal Theatre. This picture which is the screen version of Hulbert Footner's popular novel is a gripping murder mystery of a 'different' sort.

Pen Broome thought herself buried on the neglected Broome estate in Florida, and indeed she was until Don Counsell arrived bringing love, and adventure. Pen accepted the latter with a daring that equalled the fervor of the former.

There is an abundance of thrills in this picture. Among them is a rescue from a giant alligator in the treacherous Everglades. This was done by a real Seminole Indian said to be the first one who has ever appeared before a motion picture camera.

The climax of the film is as unusual as it is hair-raising. To tell it would be to spoil the fun.

Miss Compson is ably supported by a worthy cast which includes Robert Lowing as the masculine lead, John Davidson as the arch-villain, William Black, Duke Pelzer, Henry James and Josephine Norman. To Harmon Weight is due credit for the splendid direction.

If you like a love story, plentifully sprinkled with mystery and thrilling adventure, don't miss 'Ramshackle House.'

Two comedies, Lige Conelly in "Step Lightly," and Larry Semon in "Golf," and a Sport Review rounds out an interesting program. The music as usual was up to the high standard maintained by the Royal management.

KENNETH HARLAN PORTRAYS ROLE OF POLICEMAN.

First Time Popular Player Has Had Opportunity to Enact Guardian of Peace.

For the first time in his varied career Kenneth Harlan has the role of a traffic policeman in "Two Shall Be Born," a visualization of Marie Conway Oemler's popular novel of the same name, which will be the attraction at the Royal Theatre on Thursday. During the filming of the production Mr. Harlan guided traffic at several important crossings in New York City and won praise from Police Commissioner Enright for the able manner in which he handled the rush crowds of Gotham's thoroughfares.

The popular actor found the work interesting and confided to the Commissioner that one of his boyhood ambitions was to be a policeman.

"I believe that I would have made good if I had followed my childhood yearning," he said. "Somehow it comes natural for me to guide traffic. After I had been at work a few minutes I felt that I had been on the force all my life."

AT THE REGENT.

"Daughters of the Night" Gives Impressive Insight to Heroism of Central Girls, and is a Great Audience Picture.

It is a story woven around one of the greatest service machines of all time—the telephone—and treats dramatically the secrets, perils, life and love of a girl operator.

"Daughters of the Night" is undoubtedly one of the most authentic documents dealing with the telephone service that has ever been produced. It is replete with thrilling episodes in the lives of telephone workers taken from actual experiences. Theodore N. Vail gold medals with cash awards of $500, have been made for heroism and outstandingly notable service in connection with just such incidents as are here reproduced on the silver sheet.

One of the big sequences of the story, which is based upon fact and thrillingly enacted is the pursuit and capture of a band of bank robbers, fleeing in a high power motor car, all accomplished through the telephone by a pretty and courageous girl.

The burglars, preparing for their escape, cut the main wires leading from the town. Orville Caldwell, as Billy Roberts, a telephone lineman, is sent to repair the break. In the meantime Alyce Mills, as the night telephone operator, is topped off by the accidental red blinking switchboard of the bank robbery in progress and tips of the police.

Wren Roberts tests in on the wire she tells him that the robbers are fleeing in his direction. He watches for them and follows on a motorcycle, reporting back to the telephone girl at intervals to inform the police of the course that the outlaws have taken. Their work results in the capture of the band. This feat was actually performed in the regular course of work in the telephone service.

This is a picture of real universal appeal in view of the fact that every one is interested in the wonders of the ultra-modern telephone system.

AT THE CAPITOL.

The Capitol Theatre has a very interesting programme for the first two days of this week. A William Fox production, "The Roughneck," is the feature, a thrilling story of love in the midst of danger and suspense, there is an entertaining Pathe news and a good scenic, "Trail and Stirrup," showing hunting and fishing scenes in the Canadian Rockies, a Cameo comedy, "Empty Heads," and a Hal Roach comedy, "Hot Heels," that is a regular scream. The cross-eyed Ben Turpin gets some wonderful effects and a series of real laughs from his audience.

"The Roughneck" is an adaptation of the popular novel of that title which was written by the poet, Robert W. Service, best known for 'The Spell of the Yukon.' The story opens in San Francisco, but moves swiftly to sea and finally to the intriguing beauties of Tahiti, where the glamor of romance is reflected with a deft hand, thanks to the directorial genius of John Conway. The principal piece-de-resistance is a series of obstacles placed in the way of the regeneration of a man, who, as a result of bitterly unjust experience, has much to blame humanity and society for. How love helps to find a way for him constitutes the most intensely interesting part of the film.

There is also a very thrilling screening of a fight in shark-infested waters, the hero emerging victorious from a savage conflict with the deadly creatures.

The Capitol is announcing an added attraction to its programme of February 9th, 10th and 11th in the inclusion of a one-act play, "Dumb Dora," by Miss K. L. McCarthy, directed by Mrs. W. McKee Bingham.

POWERFUL CAST IN STAHL PRODUCTION.

Lewis Stone, Florence Vidor and Lew Cody Appear in "Husbands and Lovers."

A small but powerful cast will be seen in John M. Stahl's new picture, "Husbands and Lovers" which comes to the Capitol Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday. Practically all of the story is carried by three characters, portrayed by Lewis S. Stone, Florence Vidor and Lew Cody.

Each a recognized star in his or her own right, these three artists make a particularly well balanced trio to head this new Stahl cast.

Stone and Cody were both on the stage before their triumphant careers in motion pictures, while Miss Vidor, although without the advantages of a long stage experience, has won a screen following that stamps her as one of the most popular girls in the films.

"Husbands and Lovers" is a clever comedy-drama of married life, subtle and humorous for the most part but with a touch of pathos here and there that gives the story depth and drives home the tragic seriousness of the circumstances that led to the shattering of domestic happiness.

Presented by Louis B. Mayer through First National, "Husbands and Lovers," was written by the director and adapted for the screen by A. P. Younger, who also worked with Mr. Stahl on his last picture, "Why Men Leave Home." Antonio Gaudio was borrowed from the Norma Talmadge Company to serve as chief photographer.

GREYHOUNDS AVENGED DEFEAT IN S.P.A. SERIES BY BLANKING THE PETES AND SCORING FIVE GOALS

Brilliant Soo Team Delighted Big Crowd by Exhibition of Almost Perfect Hockey—Team-work Stood Out in Contrast to Individual Efforts of S.P.A. Champions.

NORTHERNERS' SPEED A FEATURE.

Joe Dwyer Stopped a Host of Shots at Close Range — Game Was Lighting Fast and Exceptionally Clean.

(By F. D. C.)

The Soo Greyhounds extracted ample revenge for their defeat at the hands of the Petersboro Seniors in the S.P.A. series by beating the blue and white team, five goals to nothing, in an exhibition game at Brock Stret Rink last night.

The display of team work and individual cleverness given by the Allen Cup holders was a revelation to the big crowd of Peterboro fans who watched the game.

Nothing better in that line has been seen here and it was not difficult for local enthusiasts to understand how the Greyhounds captured the Amateur Championship of Canada last season.

Indeed it was much more difficult to realize how the Petes had been able to defeat the Northerners in the S.P.A. finals.

Make no mistake about that, however, the blue shirts victory in Toronto was earned, but by a different brand of hockey than they showed last night.

In the S.P.A. series the Petes matched speed with speed and close backchecking with even closer backchecking, and while their combination lacked the finish of the Soo machine they passed often and cleverly to score three goals and earn the decision.

Last night it was a case of individual efforts and spasmodic checking against clever team work and backchecking that was consistently close—and when you get that combination there is only one answer.

Peterboro fans saw the Soo at their best.

Soo Broke Fast.

With the Peterboro advance guard lax in their checking the shifty Greyhound forwards were able to break fast and work in two or three in line, passing the rubber with the careless accuracy of a line welded into a machine by years of play together.

With little opposition from behind the Soo attack were anabled to display some of the prettiest combination that has ever been shown at Brock Street Rink.

Constant backchecking is the only defence against that kind of hockey and with the Petes falling down in that department the Greyhounds had an opportunity to show their finest wares and they treated the crowd to a memorable exhibition of unselfish and inside hockey.

Those who missed the game missed a demonstration of Canada's national game that was an education to the fans.

The Soo's five goal margin was earned.

True they got one easy goal on a long shot and the Petes were unlucky not to have scored but overbalancing these things was the fact that Dwyer foiled them a score of times on close-in attacks when a score seemed certain.

They did not show a weak spot.

Flat Walsh was unbeatable in the nets, blocking with a cool deftness that was disconcerting to the Peterboro atack, while in front of him the clever defence pair, Brown and Donnelly checked with sure judgment and rushed beautifully. Brown played a much more effective game than agaist the Petes in Toronto, showing a burst of speed on his jaunts that opened the eyes of the crowd.

The work of the forward line was an object lesson.

Fast, shifty and unselfish, the Soo team played beautiful combination and the way they wheeled and dashed to the rescue of the defence accounts in a great measure for the fact that the Petes were blanked.

A Galaxy of Stars.

It is difficult to pick the stars, although perhaps the honours should go to "Gloomy" Lessard, the elusive sharp shooting left winger, whose work throughout was consistently sensational. Phillips cannot be left off the stellar column either for the tricky centre had a big share in the successful attacks of his team. Johnny Woodruff, the third regular, turned in a man sized game and there was no slowing up of the machine when Campbell or Burke took the ice. In fact the former was a bearcat in his checking, his work in the second period being wonderfully effective.

Against this smooth working machine the Petes, although far from the top of their form, played much better hockey than against Parkdale; in fact the same brand would have beaten the Paddlers.

The weakness of the Petes was the same as against Parkdale, however, and strange to say was in the department in which the blue shirts were wonderfully effective in the S.P.A. series and in the Toronto end of their O.H.A. schedule.

It was their speedy skating and determined checking that carried them through the Sportsmen's series.

They smothered up the opposition because they clung to their checks like limpets and refused to be shaken off.

Right there is where they have been falling down in their last few games. The failure to backcheck consistently was painfully noticeable in the Parkdale fixture and it was again in evidence last night.

The forward line not only did not come to the assistance of their defence and cover up their checks in front of the nets, but they bunched in centre ice and gave the speedy Soo wings far too much latitude.

Those who have followed the Petes through their Toronto games know that the squad is capable of much more effective hockey and are confident that they will hit their stride again before long.

Defense Were Steady.

The Petes defence were for the most part left to their own resources and with the Soo breaking three in line the rear guard must be given credit for holding the Greyhounds to five goals.

Dwyer had a busy night. The Soo wasted little time on long shots, working in close with their elusive combination and most of the drives Dwyer had to handle were at close range, and often with the defence beaten. He foiled the attack time after time, and early in the third period saved what looked to be a half dozen sure goals, by sensation-stops. One long shot beat him, one of the few that have got away from him this year but he made up for that miss a dozen time over. McLeod and Parker in spite of the defensive work they had to do found opportunity to rush frequently and both pulled off dangerous attacks.

Ranger was an absentee from the forward line owingto a bad cold and he was missed. "Shorty" Burgess turned in one of his best games of the season up in front and a couple of his shots from the wing would have beaten a less skilful goaler than Walsh.

Connie Smythe, the Varsity coach, refereed the game in fine style. It was clean hockey, the penalties being for minor offences.

Referee—Connie Smythe, Toronto.

Game Opened Fast.

The Petes most effective hockey was shown in the first period, when the brand displayed by both teams delighted the fans. It was lightning hockey and although the Soo got the only goal of the period the Petes lost several glorious chances and at the end of the session looked to have a fair chance for the decision. Bailey had the first good scoring chance early in the game when he took the rubber away from Donnellly in front of the Soo net but Walsh saved sensationally. The Soo retaliated with a Phillips-Lessard double passing rush but Dwyer made a great stop and also saved beautifully when Donnelly worked in close. Campbell drew the first penalty for tripping and the Petes pressed. Collins lost a great chance when Parker worker in close and shot dead on. The rubber rebounded to Collins who missed practically an open net and shortly after lost a similar chance after a great rush by Bailey.

Finally after 15 minutes fast hockey Phillips grabbed a loose puck at centre and went down the wing. He was chased into the corner but passed out in front. The Petes checked Lessard but the puck slid across to Woodruff and he had lots of time to make the play sure.

Second Period.

Early in the second period the Soo increased their lead. Donnelly got away for a pretty rush and passed to Lessard. Dwyer was looking for a return pass and "Gloomy's" quick shot from the side beat him, catching the corner of the net.

Right after this counter McLeod was benched for tripping and while he was off Eddie Burke broke away down the side and drove a long shot against the twine for the Soo's third counter.

The visitors had the better of the play for the balance of the period, Campbell's great checking, giving Petes trouble in working away from their own territory, but they could not beat Dwyer again and the session ended 3 to 0.

Final Period.

In the first ten minutes of the closing period the Greyhounds were dangerous time after time but Dwyer blocked in great style and it began to look as if the scoring was over for the night. The Petes were working hard to avert a shutout but meeting with no success. At last, however, with four minutes to go Lessard and Phillips combined cleverly to allow the latter to score, making it 4-0.

The Petes threw everybody up on the attack and in the last few seconds of play Lessard took advantage of the opportunity and broke fast with only Dwyer to beat. The Petes goalie skated out fifteen feet and knocked the rubber away from him but the Soo left winger recovered it in the corner and slammed it out in front of net, Phillips arriving in time to push in an easy goal.

COLTS WIN FIRST HALF OF SCHEDULE

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 27.—The first round of the District Hockey League has been played off and the Colts are the winners of Group 1 defeating both the Fireman and Warsaw last year's champions).

The schedule for the second half is as follows:

Jan. 30—Grove vs Colts.
Feb. 6—Colts vs Warsaw.
Feb. 13—Grove vs Firemen.
Feb. 20—Firemen vs Colts.
Feb. 27—Warsaw vs Firemen.
March 6—Grove vs Warsaw.

The winner of this group will play off with the Colts on March 13th, providing the Colts do not win Group 2 also. The Casement Cup is the trophy for the league.

The second half promises some good games and preperations are being made to strengthen the teams and make this season a record for the quality of hockey played. So far the games have been clean and the penalties only for minor offences.

Can't Find Opponents.

Mr. J. C. Ridpath, manager of the Ladies' hockey team reports that the girls are in good form and ready for a game but like the old song are "all dressed up and nowhere to go" as this section has no entry in the O.L.H.A. as Peterboro and Campbellford are both out this season. It has been suggested that a game be arranged with the professional men as was done ten years ago.

The schedule for the local Junior League for the Mackenzie Cup is being drawn up and games will begin very soon. Many of last year's juniors are too old for the League this year but are arranging separate exhibition games. The senior Rink Rat team will play an exhibiton game on Wednesday night with a team from Peterboro.

Bantams Are Good.

Bantam hockey is flourishing and it is a very small boy who does not belong to a team of some sort. Some games are played on the private rinks which are to be seen in several back yards and once in a while in the big rink. Some of these youngsters show promise of being excellent players and in a few years will be playing in the O.H.A. A bantam girls team has been formed with Luella Hamblin as captain and they are occasionally made happy by being allowed to practice with the seniors.

The Lakefield rink still lives up to its reputation as the "village playhouse" and if any one, man, woman or child is wanted, it is the custom to try the rink as one can usually find one's friends there. As an asset to the village the rink only ranks second to the river as a place of amusement and unfailing attraction.

SHAG WANTS CHERRY.

Offer to Kingston Centre Fielder to Join Syracuse.

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 27.—"Del" Cherry," who played centre field in the Kingston C.O.B.L. team and who hammered the ball hard throughout last season has received an attractive contract from Frank Shaughnessy, manager of the Syracuse Stars in the International League, and may accept.

LINDSAY TEAM HERE TONIGHT

Junior Petes Expect to Clinch Their Group—Fans Should See Smart Game.

A STRONG LINE-UP

The Peterboro Juniors expect to win their group and qualify to meet Bowmanville in the next round by handling the Lindsay Midgets a trimming at the Brock Street Rink tonight. The Young Petes have been travelling along, winning games at home and away without much attention from the fans, who have been following the Senior team. This year's aggregation is the strongest that has represented Peterboro in the lower series for a long time and should draw a crowd.

Jack LeBarr, the goalkeeper, is a coming star, who is sure to make his mark in the higher series. In front of him, Russel Salmon and Lambert Collins form an effective defence, and both players are equally strong on the attack. McDougall, at centre ice, is known as the best stick-handler in Junior hockey in these parts. On the wings, Cheu and Ridpath work well with their centre man, and each other. Cheu has been a prominent member of the local Juniors for some years, while Ridpath is a Lakefield boy who starred against the Petes in former years. The subs., Maudsley and Milloy, take nothing from the strength of the team when on the ice, and the sub. goaler, "Shock" Mein, is a worthy member of the squad.

Peterboro has a team which should go far in the Junior O.H.A., and which will provide players to take the places of the present Seniors in years to come.

LOCAL COLLEGIANS LOST TO COBOURG

Score Was 23 to 22 Points—Small Gym a Handicap.

The P.C.I. basketball team lost out of the Cobourg C.I. quintette by the small margin of 23 to 22 points. The game was fast and play was about even throughout neither team taking the lead by very many points. P.C.I. were out in front 12 to 10 when the first period closed but Cobourg came through fast in the last stanza.

Combination play was impossible owing to the smallness of the court and long shots featured.

Waldon at centre and Andrews were best for Cobourg. Ecobichon scored the most baskets for P.C.I. geting three in a row in the last period, right from centre.

The locals hope on the bigger "gymn" in the local "Y" to present the Cobourg team a defeat next Saturday.

The line ups:

Cobourg C.I.—Waldon, centre; Butler and Sherman, forwards; Murray and MacDonald, defence; Harris, Andrews, Chilton, subs.

Peterboro C.I.—McLeish, centre; Pogue and Ecobichon, forwards; Ebbs and Goheen ,defence; Sturgeon, Dormer and Merrill, subs.

ALL BLACKS BOUND FOR ST. JOHN, N.B.

Famous New Zealand Rugby Team Anxious to Try Out Some Winter Sports.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Jan. 27 (Canadian Press).—That the "All Blacks," the great New Zealand Rugby football team, are now on the ocean bound for this port on board the Canadian Pacific steamship Mount Laurier, was an announcement made today by Judge F. G. V. Acheseson, a member of the executive of the team, who arrived on the Canadian Pacific steamship Montcalm from Liverpool. He said their tour had been wonderful. They had not lost a game and had been treated royally in every city they had visited.

The farewell tendered the team at London by the Prince of Wales and other dignitaries, was one, he said, which they will all remember throughout their lives.

On arrival here next Saturday they will leave for Montreal and expect to spend Sunday there. They will then proceed to Toronto and remain there on Monday and then visit the Niagara Falls. From Toronto they will proceed to Calgary and thence to Banff, where they are to see Canada in it- winter grandeur.

"The boys," he said, "are looking forward with keen anticipation to their visit to Canada, and are eager to try snowshoeing and other winter sports."

They are to play two games prior to leaving for home—one at Vancouver and another at Victoria. After the last of February they will proceed to San Francisco and embark for home. From the time of their departure until they arrive back in their native land, eight months will have elapsed.

COLD SNAP TRAILS SPRINGTIME HEAT

TORONTO, Jan. 27 (Canadian Press).—After basking in almost Spring like weather during Sunday and yesterday morning, icy blasts from the north last night brought the lowest temperature of the winter to Ontario and Quebec, the mercury dropping approximately fifty degrees in many districts in less than twenty-four hours. Sault Ste. Marie suffered the most severe decline, 24 below zero being officially reported as the lowest temperature during the night, with a rise of two degrees at eight o'clock this morning. In Ottawa the mercury dropped to 14 below. Meteorological reports give Toronto's lowest mark as 11 below, but thermometers in many suburban sections recorded levels at least eight points lower.

Throughout the West milder weather prevails and there is every indication that the cold wave now over Central Ontario will move eastward to the Maritime Provinces.

BOXING PAYS STATE.

New York Commission Has Profit of $783,046.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The State of New York has realized a net profit of $783,046.70 from professional boxing since the present Walker law went into effect nearly four and one-half years ago, according to figures made public by the State Athletic Commission Monday.

This represents amounts paid as tax on admission tickets to matches, license fees for boxers, managers, clubs, seconds, referees and other ring officials.

Boxing paid a gross income of $1,021,670, but it cost the state $238,624.94 to regulate the game during that period.

If the fashion of "retiring" as practiced by our leading prize fighters becomes general, you'll soon be reading items like these in the news columns.

Mr. Stanlislaus Palooka, champion rivet maker of the O'Brien and Ginsberg boiler factory, today announced his retirement. "The strain was becoming too great on the wife and kids," he told reporters.

Mr. Otis P. Sapp, who led the eighth floor crowd in selling children's underwear for four consecutive years, stepped down for good today. It is said Mr. Sapp's mother begged him to quit.

Mrs. Ritzy Delaney Biddie (of the Philadelphia Biddles), holders of the social high-hatting championship at all weights, intimated today she would not defend the title again. "There are other finer things in life besides five-tube sets and Hood's sarsaparilla," remarked Mrs. Biddie (of the Philadelphia Biddles), significantly.

Mr. One Punch O'Goofty has roped his last Charlie horse. The champion masseur of pugdom has hung up the linament bottle for all time. "I want to be known to posterity—say, who is this Posterity guy, anyway?—as the first rubber to retire undefeated," announced Mr. O'Goofty.

Mr Bull Montana of the films retired to private life today. "I'll never make another picture," declared Mr. Montana. Congratulations are pouring in on him from all parts of the globe, including New Bedford, O.

Col. Abernathy Guzzler (of the Kentucky Guzzlers) today relinquished the heavyweight drinking belt without a contest. Close friends of the colonel say it would be only a matter of time before some younger man came along and whipped him anyway. It is known the colonel has cut his drinking down to two barrels a day here lately.

Mr. Herman Sputterwurst, who holds the plain and fancy delicatessen championship has probably sliced his last yard of bologna. Mr. Sputterwurst is contemplating matrimony and it is said the little woman has asked him to give up his art for her sake. It will be a long time before another Sputterwurst comes along, fans.

FISHERMEN DRIVEN TO SEA BY STORM

Thirteen Men Still Missing and Five Are Marooned

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., Jan. 27 (Canadian Press).—Further particulars of the terrible suffering and probable tragedy that overtook the off-shore fishermen of Rose Blanche and vicinity last Friday morning when a sudden gale blew up and caught the skiffs unawares and carried them out to sea, show thirteen men still missing and five marooned on Little Miquelon Island, 100 miles away, whither they were driven before the gale until their frail craft was smashed on the rocky shore.

Closing Quotations on Principal Active Stocks.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Prices on the Winnipeg grain exchange continued their steady climb this morning, the post war record once again going by the boards when May future was carried to $2.07 3-4 on a veritable avalanche of buying. The advance represents a gain of 2 1-4 cents over yesterday's close.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

The market opened strong. Considerable profit-taking and some short selling appeared afterwards, resulting in slightly lower prices around noon. In the afternoon all offerings were readily absorbed and prices for May wheat advanced to a new high and closed at 199 1-8, a new high record for May wheat. July wheat was steady.

NEW YORK.

The New York market is holding up well under profit-taking. Steel advanced. Action is expected to be favourable when further bullish demonstrations may be looked for. The oils appear to be in an excellent technical position and should be the first group of stocks to respond to any bullish activity.

FINAL SESSION OF MONTREAL'S POLICE ENQUIRY

Evidence Had Shown Negligence of Chief Belanger, Lawyer Stresses in Review.

SAT FOUR MONTHS.

Mr. Justice Coderre Will Prepare Report on Probe at Once.

MONTREAL, Jan. 28.—The enquiry into the administration of the Montreal police force, which has been in almost continuous session for nearly four months before Mr. Justice Coderre, was concluded here Tuesday afternoon and the presiding commissioner announced that he would prepare his report almost immediately.

The final session was occupied by J. P. Lanctot, counsel for the petitioners, in answering the address delivered Monday by Alban Germain, K.C., who was heard in defence of Chief of Police Pierre Belanger, and who had announced that once cleared of the accusations directed against him, the chief would resign, but that he would not quit until then, despite the activities of those who were "conspiring to remove him."

Mr. Lanctot reiterated the evidence had shown negligence on the part of Chief Belanger in the cases where stolen goods had been offered for ransom. He declared that the proof remained that the chief had patronized the disorderly resort conducted by Rose David; that he had favored Mrs. MacDonald, police matron, and that his "assiduity" towards her puts him in a bad light."

"Blurb" for Medicine

The chief had denied that he had sworn to a testimonial supporting a supposed rheumatism remedy, but the statement had been published over the chief's signature, said Mr. Lanctot, that 225 policemen and firemen had been cured, and that was false.

Chief Belanger, continued counsel for the petitioners, had shown incompetence in handling the Bank of Hochelaga murder and hold-up. Tony Frank, the moving spirit of the underworld, who was executed here last October for his share in the murder, could have been crippled financially if his five disorderly houses had been wiped out. As to the chief's friendships, his own admissions, said Mr. Lanctot, permitted the court to comprehend "his acquaintanceships with the underworld."

Chief's Loans.

Captain Roch Sauve's fortune was the best illustration, said counsel, of the fact that the chief had no system for being able to test the honesty of the men under his direction. The chief's own loans from subordinates had been lauded as proof of honesty; but they proved, said Mr. Lanctot, that with all the sources of revenue he has, the chief had insufficient money.

EXPORT OF POWER URGED BY TOWNS

QUEBEC, Jan. 28. — Premier Taschereau has received an open letter from the mayors, councillors and ex-civic dignitaries of the villages of Point Fortune, Carillon and others of the Ottawa Valley between Carillon and Ottawa asking that he give favorable consideration to a project to develop power at Carillon and permit a portion of it to be exported to the United States.

The letter refers to his stand against the export of power to the United States, but urges that he make an exception in the case of the Carillon project on the ground that there are vested rights in the sense that $500,000 has already been expended for preliminary work, and the forty millions needed to develop the proposed 400,000 horse power has already been provided for in the United States. The letter states that of the 400,000 horse power to be developed 100,000 horse power will be kept for use in this province. The letter points out at length the advantages to the province of such a development.

JANUARY EMPLOYMENT DECLINE WAS SMALLER

Stocktaking and Holidays Reflected in Returns at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Jan. 28.—(By Canadian Press)—Employment in the beginning of January, 1925, suffered the pronounced curtailment always shown at the first of the year, according to returns received by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics from 5,813 employers, whose payrolls declined by 57,227 persons to 690,538 on the first of the present month. The losses affected approximately the same number of workers as those reported on January 1, 1924, but were considerably smaller than on the same date in 1923 and 1922. An analysis of the avialable statistics shows that the index number stood at 83.9 on January 1st last, compared with 90.8 on December 1, 1924, and with 83.7 86.3 and 77.9 on January 1, 1924, 1923 and 1922, respectively.

The trend of employment in all industries, except coal mining, was generally unfavourable. Manufacturing showed the heaviest decreases, largely on acount of shut downs over the holidays and for inventories. Construction and transportation also registered important contractions.

MAN KILLED IN SETTLER'S HOME

Was Warmed and Fed, Then Asked to Go—In North Ontario.

NOT IDENTIFIED.

COBALT, Ont., Jan. 28.—(Canadian Press).—An unidentified man, believed to be a Finlander, was shot and killed during a scuffle in the house of Peter French at a point on the Porcupine Branch of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway between Connaught and Barber's Bay late last Monday night. French is under arrest at South Porcupine.

According to details reaching here the stranger arrived at the settler's home cold and hungry. He had been travelling on snowshoes, and his clothing furnished but scanty protection against the bitter winds. He was taken into the French home, warmed and fed. From here reports differ. One is that French waited some time for the visitor to leave, and when he made no suggestion of doing so, was finally asked to move on. The report is that he refused to go, and the settler undertook to put him out. In the scuffle a gun was drawn, and the unknown man was shot to death. Another account is that the stranger was the aggressor, starting to act in a threatening manner after he had been warmed and fed, with the result that French shot him in self-defence.

Up to yesterday afternoon the body of the stranger had not been identified. The inquest was held today. French is reported to have sent one of his children to the station at Connaught after the shooting with instructions to notify the police of the tragedy. The telegraph operator sent word to Constable Fenwick at Porquis Junction, who later arrested French.

A GRAND DUKE.

Grand Duke Boris of Russia (above) has landed in America. How long he will remain is problematical. Representative La Guardia of New York has asked that special care be taken in checking up the papers of the grand duke. Boris is the brother of the Grand Duke Cyril, self-proclaimed czar of Russia.
